As you can see, most of the vehicles stolen are not newer cars. They are in the mid 80's and are primarily General Motors vehicles. If you have a vehicle in this category, it would be in your best interest to invest in some type of theft deterrent for your vehicle.

Purchasing an alarm system or a Club for your vehicle is one good way to make sure your car will be there when you return.

Studds To Hold 10th Annual Art Competition For Students

Congressman Gerry Studds has invited high school students throughout the South Shore, Cape Cod and the Islands to participate in his 10th annual art competition.

The contest is open to all high school students in the 10th Congressional District.

"I hope all of our young artists will take advantage of this opportunity to display their work and gain public recognition of their talent," said Studds.

Studds outlined the rules of the contest in a letter he sent to high schools throughout the 10th District last week. Entry forms, which are available from high school art departments and the Congressman's district offices in Quincy and Hyannis, must be submitted by March 17. The actual artwork must be submitted by March 31.

Each participant will be allowed one original entry, and each high school may send a total of 15 entries. To be eligible, the artwork must be two-dimensional--such as paintings, drawings, collages and prints--and no larger than 30 inches by 30 inches. No photographs will be accepted.

Submitted artwork will be judged by members of the local arts community this spring, and a number of awards will be granted.

For entry forms or more information, visit or call one of the two district offices at 1-800-794-9911 (South Shore) or 1-800-870-2626 (Cape and Islands).

Continental Cablevision Offers New Guarantee

Continental Cablevision of New England has introduced an On-Time Customer Service Guarantee that will directly compensate any customers who do not receive high-quality, timely service.

With the guarantee, Continental pledges to:

•Arrive on time for installation appointments or the installation is free.

•Arrive on time for service calls or the customer receives $20.

•Refund new customers 100 percent if they are not completely satisfied with their cable service.

"Continental Cablevision has always been committed to excellence in customer service," said Russ Stephens, Continental's New England senior vice president. "Now we're putting our money where our mouth is.

"As satellite TV, wireless cable and, eventually, telephone companies all compete with us to provide video and a host of new telecommunications services, we at Continental recognize that the companies providing the best service and taking the best care of their customers will be the clear choice of consumers."

"We fully intend to provide the superior service that will set Continental apart, and our new guarantee is a demonstration of that commitment to customers," Stephens added. "We will work extremely hard to see that our guarantees are met but, as of March 1, if we make a mistake or miss a deadline, we'll make up for it by directly compensating the customer."

Other cable TV companies across the country are joining Continental in the nationwide On-Time Customer Service Guarantee program to demonstrate the entire industry's commitment to making customer service its top priority.

Continental Cablevsion, the nation's third largest cable operator, serves 650,000 households in New England.

Buckley Shocked At Losing B.C. High Job

another one opens and I haven't ruled anything out yet."

Buckley said he will continue to work with youngsters in the Quincy Recreation Department's basketball programs.

"I'll look at certain opportunities. I'll still be involved in the Recreation Department and doing basketball clinics with (Director) Barry Welch."

Welch said Buckley has a unique ability to communicate the skills of basketball and the value of team play in an atmosphere that is fun. He noted Buckley ran recreation's first sports camp 12 years ago.

"Brian has been a leader in our Saturday morning gym program for over 20 years," Welch continued. "He has never forgotten that his love of basketball started at the playground level. The kids genuinely like him and we as a department have benefited greatly from his professional and caring approach to teaching the skills of the game.

"I can say with certainty that our recreation programs are better because of Brian's involvement. I am glad to hear that he will continue to teach in our programs."

Buckley has the coaching credentials to land back on his feet. Before taking the B.C. High varsity job, Buckley coached at then Quincy Junior College and Curry College. He was also a junior varsity coach for three years during the 1970s at B.C. High.

Buckley, who played basketball and graduated from Archbishop Williams High School in 1969 and also laced them up for Boston State College as a freshman, will still keep an eye on the Eagles.

One local boy, Sean Joyce, is projected as a starting guard on next year's squad.

"I wish the team success next year," Buckley said. "If the boys work hard over the summer, they'll have a good year."

Quincy Hospital Fool's Fun Run, Walk April 1

Quincy Hospital will sponsor its first 5K Fool's Fun Run & Walk April Fool's Day, Saturday, April 1.

Walkers and runners of all ages and levels of fitness are invited to attend. Creative costuming is strongly encouraged. There will be water stops and the race will be timed with splits at one and two miles.

The event begins at 9:30 a.m. in the hospital parking lot, continues on through the local neighborhood, and ends up back at the hospital. Awards will be given for top female and male winners overall and top male and female over 50.

A random prize drawing will be held and T-shirts will be given to the first 500 entrants. The festivities will also include face painting, clowns, a DJ and refreshments.

The Fool's Fun Run & Walk is being organized by the Quincy Hospital Rehabilitation Department and sponsored by the ASA Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Company. All proceeds from the event will go to support the Quincy Hospital Charitable Foundation.

To register, send a check for $10 per person, made payable to the Quincy Hospital Charitable Foundation by March 24 to 114 Whitwell St., Quincy, MA 02169. Late registrants will be charged $12.

For more information, call 773-6100, ext. 5300.

A WOMAN'S INFLUENCE

What is the influence of the American woman upon the U.S. car market? As any industry insider can tell you, women accounted for 48% of U.S, car sales in 1993 (the last year for which figures are available). It may also surprise the average person to learn that women accounted for 24% of all truck sales (including minivans, pickups, and sport-utility vehicles) in that year. These numbers make up 40% of total U.S, automobile industry sales, up from 35% in 1978 (according to a study by Consumer Attitude Research). With this total expected to rise to 60% by the year 2000, you can be sure that automakers are taking a women's point of view in account when designing their products.

Hint: Among the design features influenced by women to be found in today's vehicles are: easier entry/egress, easier-to-manipulate radio controls and improved seating position.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO wants all the women in our reading audience to know that you will always be treated very courteously whether you simply have a question or some specific work that needs to be done on your vehicle. Our technicians are highly skilled, so they can do everything necessary to keep your car in excellent condition. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550), we have access to the ALL-DATA computer system that gives us all the up to date changes recommended in the industry. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. PM 3/16

Downtown Master Plan Goal For Task Force

it's not going to happen overnight.

"We want to open up the lines of communication through all the entities of the city so that our common goals can be achieved."

Flynn said the work of the task force will focus mainly on infrastructure and communication. Goals for infrastructure include the Master Plan as well as more specific focus on the Quincy Center Concourse and improving the parking situation in the downtown.

Plans are underway for a "Make it Happen" campaign to promote construction of the concourse, according to Flynn. The QCBPA Task Force will function as a liaison with the mayor's Downtown Committee and other designated organizations working toward the completion of the project "in a timely manner," he added.

"This project has been identified as a top priority of the task force and a vital link to the restoration of a commercially thriving downtown," said Flynn.

On the subject of parking, Flynn said definite improvements can be made at the Ross Parking Garage which he sees as inadequate for long-term use but fine for the short term, provided some changes are made. Among the improvements he suggested are enhanced lighting for safety and aesthetic reasons, installation of advertising panels and retail directories at the garage, printed retail directories and shuttle bus service for tourists, shoppers and senior citizens.

"We want to provide the infrastructure and give people a reason to shop and utilize the services available in downtown Quincy," said Flynn.

The QCBPA Task Force has a two-fold plan to accomplish its goal of communication. One is the marketing of Quincy as a strong business environment in cooperation with the mayor's office, which will target not only new large retailers or distinctive specialty shops but also the promotion of existing businesses.

The other facet of the communication plan is an Envoy Program which will include development and execution of a marketing program to promote shopping in the downtown as well as the offering of membership benefits as part of a new mission to recruit members for the purpose of strengthening the overall retail/commercial climate in Quincy Center.

The task force will kick off the Envoy Program Wednesday, March 22 from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Quincy Neighborhood Club. All QCBPA members, prospective members and their guests are welcome.

In addition, the task force will oversee other functions including a number of QCBPA fundraisers, the first of which will be a Las Vegas Night Saturday, April 1 at 7 p.m. at The Woodward School. Proceeds will be used to hire entertainment for an upcoming QCBPA Sidewalk Sale.

Flynn noted that the task force will also update business owners in North Quincy and Wollaston on its progress.

Flynn said the group's specific strategies may change over time, noting that "the task force will continue to take on new projects as they become a priority." He added, however, that the ultimate goal will always be the improvement of the downtown and of the entire city.

"We want people to know that Quincy is a wonderful place to live, work and do business because of its rich history, commercial resources and potential for tourism," he said.

In addition to Flynn and Manning, the QCBPA Task Force includes the following members of the association's board of directors: Caryn Smith of Caryn's Corner, association president; Richard Barker of Barker's, Joseph Hajjar of The YardRock Cafe, Kathy Missell of Infinity Books, Joan Owen of Bank of Boston and Bernie Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop.

City In Sad Farewell To Former Police Chief

Clinton Letter Among Tributes To Finn

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Remembered for his deep faith in God and strong commitment to his family, friends and profession, former Quincy Police Chief Francis X. Finn was laid to rest Monday following a moving funeral Mass at St. John's Church.

Finn, who served as police chief for 24 years from 1966 to 1990, died March 15 in Florida of heart trouble while vacationing with his wife, Susan.

Fr. Michael McNamara, a long-time family friend, praised Finn for his firm faith in God during his homily. Former fellow police officer and close friend Retired Captain William Murphy, and two of Finn's sons, George and Raymond, eulogized their friend and father with touching reflections.

Obituary Page 30

"He (Finn) knew his need for God. God was first in his life, family was a close second, then the police and his friends," Fr. McNamara told the over 700 mourners who had filed with heads lowered into St. John's Church on a sunny, windy March morning.

"He knew God was the one who would help him be strong," Fr. McNamara said.

Murphy eulogized Finn, whom he called his "boss and friend" for many years, as an innovative chief who set a fine example of professionalism in the police department.

"We first met in 1957. He had just made lieutenant and was in charge of the juvenile division. He started that and it continues today.

"I believe these were the happiest years he spent on the police force. He probably would have stayed there working with youths but he was destined to go much higher,"

In 1966, at the age of 40, Finn became one of the youngest chiefs in the state, Murphy noted.

Murphy then remembered some of the City Attempts To Attract Shoppers To Downtown

Free Parking At Ross Garage Begins In May

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city will attempt to bring more shoppers to the Quincy Center retail district by offering two-hour free parking on the ground level of the Ross Parking Garage beginning in May.

Mayor James Sheets, who made the announcement Tuesday, also noted that the city is examining the possibility of using the site of the former Kincaide's Furniture Store on Hancock Street--which is currently open space--for additional off-street parking.

Sheets said the free parking at the garage should be available by May 1.

"That's what we're shooting for," he said.

Sheets first came up with the free parking proposal last year, saying any loss the city may suffer in parking receipts revenue should be more than made up for by the additional shoppers who come to the downtown to take advantage of the free parking. He reiterated that belief Tuesday.

"We feel that we have to create a turnover at that (street) level (of the Ross Garage)," he said.

Sheets, who is working on the plan with Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, said the entire ground level of the garage will be used by shoppers who plan to stay in Quincy Center for two hours or less, while the two upper levels will be used for area employees and additional multiple-hour parking.

Those on the ground level who attempt to park for more than two hours will pay a hefty fee, according to the mayor.

"It (the two-hour time limit) will be enforced very strictly," said Sheets, who added that the amount of the fee has not yet been determined.

Sheets said that while the results of a survey conducted by the Quincy Department of Public Works revealed last week that more than half of those interviewed cited access and traffic problems in Quincy Center, they also showed that 77 percent of downtown visitors are Quincy residents.

The mayor said he is convinced that by offering such attractions as free parking and making the downtown more accessible through the eventual construction of the planned Quincy Center Concourse, more and more city residents will begin to shop regularly in Quincy Center.

Currently, the Ross Parking Garage and nearby Hancock Parking Lot are managed by Metropolitan Parking Systems Inc. of Quincy. Sheets said although Metropolitan's contract expired last July 1--the start of the new fiscal year--it has been temporarily extended while the city irons out the details of a new contract awarded last summer to Kinney Systems Inc. of Boston.

Sheets said Gillon hoped to complete the negotiations with Kinney sometime this week. Attempts to reach Gillon at press time were unsuccessful.

The mayor added, however, that the city could decide to simply take over the parking system in the event of any problems.

"I will not rule out the possibility that the city will manage its own garage," said Sheets. "We feel we have to remain flexible to meet the retail demands of downtown Quincy. Our decisions are going to be made on behalf of the retailers."

Currently, it has not been determined what will be done with the Hancock

Rabies Clinic Saturday At Quincy Animal Shelter

The Quincy Health Department will sponsor a Rabies Clinic Saturday from noon to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., Quincy.

A second clinic will be held Saturday, April 29 from noon to 3 p.m. at the shelter.

Pet owners of all dogs and cats age 3 months and older are encouraged to bring their pets. Proof of rabies vaccination within the year is required.

Pets that were vaccinated at the March 26, 1994 clinic must be re-vaccinated Saturday. Those that were vaccinated at the April 30, 1994 clinic may be re-vaccinated either Saturday or April 29.

For those whose dog or car received two vaccines less than one year apart and who show proof of those vaccinations, a three-year vaccine will be administrated at the appropriate clinics.

Fee is $8 per dog or cat. For more information, call the Quincy Health Department at 376-1273.

Quincy Sun Price Now 35 Cents

The price of The Quincy Sun is now 35 cents at the newsstand and for home delivery by news carriers.

As announced on March 9, the new price--a five cent increase, is effective with today's issue.

The new 35 cent price is still considerably lower than that of most community newspapers in the Greater Boston and South Shore areas.

The increase is necessitated by a jump in the cost of newsprint which has seen an approximate 50 percent increase in just a few months. More increases in the newsprint cost have already been forecast over the next few months.

Other production costs--including ink--have also increased.

The price of a 52-week mail subscription was increased by $1 in February. This was due to the increase in postal rates for mailing newspapers.

The Sun had absorbed the increased costs of producing a newspaper but just cannot any longer.

We hope our loyal readers will understand the need for increasing the price of the Sun to 35 cents.

We will continue to bring you the best community newspaper we can with the accent, as always, on Quincy news and features.

Quincy is the most important word in our name.

Survey: Majority Think Downtown Traffic A Problem

A recent survey conducted by the city within the Hancock Street downtown commercial area reveals that downtown access, congestion and other traffic problems were cited by a high percentage of respondents.

The survey was done by the Quincy Department of Public Works in late 1994 and early this year to assist in the planning of downtown traffic improvements and upgrades to the streets and roadways in the area. More than half of those surveyed cited access and traffic problems encountered as they visited the Hancock Street downtown area. Only 23 percent of the survey participants labeled access as "good."

Another significant finding of the survey is that access problems were cited by drivers arriving in the downtown area from all directions. One third of the visitors arrived in the Hancock Street downtown commercial area from the east, using Southern Artery, McGrath Highway, Washington Street and Coddington Street, while the rest of the visitors were evenly split among north, south and west.

"The survey results will be helpful as we examine options for improving access to the downtown commercial area," said DPW Commissioner David Colton. "We hope to make access easier for those coming from every direction, and want to encourage people to stop and take advantage of the shopping and services available."

Other survey results indicate:

•Eighty-two percent of those visiting the downtown arrive by car.

•Seventy-seven percent of downtown visitors are Quincy residents.

•Shopping was cited as the predominant reason (65 percent) for coming to the downtown.

•Eighty-four percent of those surveyed made a short visit (under two hours) to the study area.

The complete report, "Summary of Findings: Hancock Street Commercial Area" was prepared by Whitman & Howard Inc. for the city and is available for review at the DPW.

Leaf Pickup Begins April 10

The Quincy Department of Public Works announces that leaves will be picked up curbside beginning Monday, April 10 and every work day thereafter until Friday, May 5.

They should be placed to one side of the recycling bin and trash barrels on regularly-scheduled trash pickup days.

Appropriate containers include barrels and reusable containers, large paper sacks designed for leaves (available at Shop & Shop, Shaw's, Star Market and Tedeschi's), and clear plastic bags.

Leaf and yard waste drop-off for Quincy residents will also continue at the Corporation Yard, 55 Sea St., Saturdays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. effective April 15.

DeCristofaro May Lend His Support

Raymondi To Run For Ward 2 Council Seat

By MICHAEL WHALEN

School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi will run for the Ward 2 city councillor's seat in the fall election, and he may have an influential ally during his campaign.

That ally is current--and outgoing--Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, who announced Monday night he will not seek re-election because of health reasons.

Raymondi, 47, who served as Ward 2 councillor before DeCristofaro, told The Sun this week that while is he holding off on an official announcement, he is planning to run for the seat.

"I have every intention of running," he said. "I will be a candidate."

Raymondi, who praised DeCristofaro for his many years of service, said there are many issues he hopes to address in Ward 2, including the return of shipbuilding to the Fore River shipyard, Massachusetts Water Resources Authority water and sewer rates, crime, and school matters.

DANIEL RAYMONDI

"It's (Ward 2) been my home practically my whole life," Raymondi, a resident of Elm Street, said.

DeCristofaro said this week he will "probably" support Raymondi in his run for the seat.

"I have no reason not to," he said. "I've known Dan for a lot of years, and he held the seat before I did."

Paul Donnelly, a member of the Quincy Conservation Commission, reportedly is also interested in the Ward 2 seat. DeCristofaro, however, said he has not heard of any potential candidates other than Raymondi.

At press time, Donnelly could not be reached for comment.

Raymondi has had a long political career in the city. First elected to the School Committee in 1972, he served in that capacity until being elected Ward 2 Councillor in the fall of 1975. He held the seat until 1981, when he lost a bid for mayor.

Raymondi subsequently served as Norfolk County treasurer from 1985 to 1990 and was re-elected to the School Committee in 1991, serving as vice chairman for the past two years.

A Quincy attorney, he also currently serves as chairman of the Quincy College Board of Governors.

Lot, the mayor added. While the city has discussed developing it for commercial, retail or other purposes, it may eventually be decided that parking remains the best use for the lot, he said.

Regarding the former Kincaide's site, which is privately owned, Sheets said officials are "still trying to determine if that (using it for parking) is possible." He added that DPW Commissioner David Colton, whom the mayor credited with the idea, is looking into the matter.

Sheets said in addition to using the site for additional retail parking, he would also like to use it as a spot for people to sit and rest, if possible.

"Maybe we'll put a bench or two in there," he said.

Cites Health As Main Reason

DeCristofaro Will Not Seek 8th Council Term

By MICHAEL WHALEN

To the surprise of no one, Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro has announced that he will not be seeking an eight consecutive term in the fall election.

DeCristofaro, 71, who has been called the "Mayor of Quincy Point," made the announcement at Monday night's council meeting. He was first elected to the council in 1981.

Political insiders have anticipated the move for several months. The councillor, who suffered a heart attack and stroke last year, cited health as the main reason for his decision.

Among those on hand for the announcement were Mayor James Sheets, making a rare appearance in the City Council Chambers and several of DeCristofaro's family members.

DeCristofaro said he made the decision not to run again "with a very heavy heart." He said he was grateful to all the councillors he has served with, singling out Sheets for his support over the years both as councillor and mayor and Council President Michael Cheney for helping him deal with a controversial proposal to build a Wal-Mart store in Ward 2 during DeCristofaro's illness last year.

"Mike picked up the ball and did all the work," said DeCristofaro.

DeCristofaro thanked several people who have worked in the City Council office for their support during his time as councillor, and also took time to pay special tribute to his family and his constituents.

TED DECRISTOFARO announces he will not run for an eighth term as Ward 2 city councillor in the fall election during Monday night's City Council meeting. DeCristofaro, 71, cited his health as the main reason for his decision.

"Most important to me this evening is taking the opportunity to thank my entire family for all the assistance they have given me during the past 14 years," he said. "They have truly helped me to be the best city councillor I possibly could.

"I would also like to thank all of the people in Ward 2 who have made this a most rewarding experience. Working together, we have done all that we could for Ward 2. These people are part of my home and my heart, and I'll always treasure the time we spent working together.

"Some people say, 'I like where I live'," added DeCristofaro. "Well, I love where I live. I love the City of Quincy."

Sheets and several councillors spoke of their respect and admiration for DeCristofaro. The mayor praised him for his honesty and integrity.

FAMILY MEMBERS OF Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro (second from right) joined him for his announcement Monday night that he will not seek an eighth term in the fall election. From left are his son, Dr. Richard DeCristfaro, assistant superintendent of Quincy Public Schools; son-in-law and daughter Gerald and Ruth McInnis, wife Betty and son Donald.

"As long as we have Ted DeCristofaros in public service who only care about making people's lives better, this country will always be strong," said Sheets.

Cheney agreed.

"I'm very, very proud to have worked alongside you," he told DeCristofaro. "You're a fine man, a fine city councillor and a really, really fine family man."

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia noted that DeCristofaro is "perhaps the staunchest supporter" of the Summerfest Concert Series that LaRaia sponsors. Another at-large councillor, Timothy Cahill, recalled how DeCristofaro tried to drum up support for him outside a Ward 2 voting site in 1981 when both were running for office for the first time.

"I will always remember that, and I will always appreciate that," said Cahill.

DeCristofaro, who is now retired, worked for the National Park Service at the Adams Mansion in Quincy for 25 years. Prior to that, he managed a service station in Wollaston.

DeCristofaro said he plans to stay active in the future. He said he will increase his activity in the Ward 2 Civic Association, of which he is a member; continue to volunteer at 1000 Southern Artery, where he and his wife recently moved, and keep taking care of the park at Washington Street and Baxter Avenue that was named in his honor in November.

Building Needs Subcommittee Meeting At Point-Webster

The Building Needs Subcommittee of the Quincy School Committee will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. in the media center of the Point-Webster School.

The announcement was made by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi, chairman of the subcommittee. He said the meeting will focus on plans for beautification of the school grounds and traffic and safety concerns.

"This is an opportunity for parents and area residents to share with members of the School Committee their thoughts regarding the current plans for the beautification of the school grounds which address safety and traffic concerns as well," he said.

Raymondi added that the purpose of the meeting is to provide information to the community and receive input. Representatives from the School Department and the Department of Public Works are expected to attend and answer questions from the public.

Council To Discuss $13.5M Crane Library Addition

The City Council will discuss a proposed $13.5 million addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library in Quincy Center next month.

The council's State and Federal Funds Committee will meet Tuesday, April 18 to at 7 p.m. to discuss the issue. Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill, chairman of the committee, said he wants Library Director Ann McLaughlin to provide the council with an outline of the project.

Until recently, library officials had estimated the cost of the 40,000-square-foot addition to be around $9 million. A numbers of costs were higher than anticipated, however, notably repairs that need to be done to the current structure because of water leakage.

Library officials are hopeful that a planned fund-raising drive will raise at least $1 million for the addition. In addition, state grant which has been applied for would pay for about one-third of the total cost, and officials expect to be notified on whether they will receive the grant in July.

Mayor James Sheets has said he is reluctant to commit any city money to the project until officials receive word on the state funding.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request from the North Quincy V.F.W. Post and Auxiliary #10277 for a one-day liquor license for a dinner fundraiser. The third annual dinner will be held April 1 from 5 to 11 p.m. at Fenno House, 540 Hancock St.

•Withdrew, without prejudice request from Chris J. Mann and Ivy B. MacDonald of Quincy Pocket Billiards, 1585 Hancock St., for a pinball and billiards license.

SMOKING: A BIG FAT PROBLEM

Researchers have confirmed two new ways in which smoking can cause major medical problems. First, repeated tests have proven earlier reports that tobacco smoke damages the body's HDL, or "good cholesterol." Second, researchers have identified a second part of a one-two punch: In addition to directly crippling HDL, smoke also inhibits a key enzyme, lecithin-cholesterol acyltransferase (LCAT), whose job it is to load up excess cholesterol onto HDL particles. (After this "loading" takes place, the HDL disposes of the cholesterol via the liver.) As a result, in a smoker, cholesterol isn't swept up from the blood stream as it should be, and what is swept up doesn't have adequate HDL carriers to get to get rid of it.

P.S. Cigarette smoking is known to play a role in hardening of the arteries and a higher death rate from coronary heart disease.

No matter how you look at it, smoking is not good for you. If you need help with this, or any other medical problem, give us a call. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself bring years of combined expertise to dealing with your medical needs. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. Harold NOT Running

The rumor that former Senator Paul Harold will run for City Councillor at-large this year is back again.

But don't believe it. That's all it is: a rumor. Period. He's not running. Period.

HAROLD

And was that a collective sigh of relief that just went up from at-large incumbents Mike Cheney, Tim Cahill and Joe LaRaia and challenger Larry Chretien?

The Harold rumor keeps surfacing and Harold keeps trying to shoot it down only to have it come back again.

Harold is overseas now and unavailable for a "No, I'm not running" response. But he definitely is not running for councillor-at-large or anything else this year.

If he did run he would have been a serious threat to Cheney, Cahill and LaRaia who are up for re-election and Chretien who is vacating his Ward 3 seat to run at-large.

Harold has been a consistent top vote-getter as a state senator and councillor-at-large.

And in the race for the new 10th Congressional District seat, Harold carried Quincy against Gerry Studds, a powerful vote-getter himself.

Harold isn't running this year but he will be back on the political front sometime in the future.

Either as a candidate for mayor (when Jim Sheets leaves City Hall), or Norfolk County district attorney when William Delahunt completes this, his final term, or for Congress if Studds tires of the Washington scene.

As a candidate for mayor, Harold would also be a threat to Cahill and Cheney who have mayoral aspirations.

But you won't see any Harold for Councillor-at-large bumper stickers anywhere this year.

RAY CATTANEO, one of those real nice guys who don't come along in life often enough, will be honored tonight (Thursday) at the Quincy Elks Hall, Quarry St. Social hour at 6 p.m., dinner at 7 p.m.

CATTANEO

Cattaneo, who recently retired, served 22 years in the Quincy Park-Forestry-Cemetery Departments, the last seven as executive director.

And did you know that he was quite a ballplayer in younger days and was in the Boston Braves farm system. He almost made it to the Braves lineup as third baseman but, unfortunately, a guy by the name of Eddie Mathews got in the way.

Tickets for the dinner are $25. Don't know for sure if there are any left, but if you're looking for one, call Tom Koch (376-1251), Barry Welch (376-1394) or Joseph Shea (376-1130).

CITY COUNCILLOR Tim Cahill is on both the lecture and political circuits.

CAHILL

He's speaking today (Thursday) at 10 a.m. at the Kennedy Library as part of a lecture series there. His topic is his book, "Profiles In The American Dream."

And he will kick-off his campaign for re-election Tuesday, March 28 at a 6 to 9 p.m. fundraiser at Coddington's, Quincy Sq. Tickets are $50 and may be obtained by calling 328-6699 or at the door.

OBSERVATION: The first robin may still be a sign of spring but you know for sure it's really here when Tony's Clam Shop at Wollaston Beach opens. Which means spring is really here today because the Clam Shop opens today.

The shop has been in the Kandalaft family for 32 years. It was started by Tony Kandalaft and his wife Tillie and the business is now being carried on by sons Roy and Gary Kandalaft and daughter Karen Djerf.

Happy spring, kids.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 postcard view of today's Quincy Shore Drive, looking towards Boston from the end of Rice Road. The Metropolitan District Commission had just built the road by filling in part of the tidal salt marsh along Quincy's shore, creating Wollaston Beach on the right and isolating low level areas known today as The Strand and Chick St. on the left. This view is from what is known as Rufe's Hummock, a glacial drumlin that was later leveled to take the rise out of the road and to create the parking area now on the right of this view. The loose soil from the Hummock was used to fill in the marsh area know today as Princess Eve Drive. During World War II, that filled area was used as a site for underground bunkers with anti-aircraft guns positioned to protect Quincy from possible German intruders.

Wants City To Refurbish St. John's Baseball Fields

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I believe the City of Quincy should be commended for finally appropriating funds to renovate some of our parks. Throughout the city, efforts to refurbish the fields and playgrounds are obvious. I can also appreciate how difficult it must be to determine how this money is spent, considering the condition of most of our fields and recreation areas. However, I must express my disappointment that the city has chosen to neglect the baseball fields of one of our most faithful servants.

St. John's Baseball league has served this city's youth for over 35 years. Every year, over 200 of our children ages 7 through 12 sign up to play in this league. Regardless of a child's ability or physical limitations, all who sign up get to play. Good sportsmanship and fun always take precedence over the stress of winning and losing, although the games remain competitive at all levels.

How has our city rewarded this noble organization for close to four decades of service? The two small fields at Pond St. park, that have been used by St. John's since the league began, have been taken away. They have been taken over by a contractor working on the brook behind the fields for the last two years. Telephone poles have been installed through the middle of the fields, even though other routes were clearly visible. Rubbish and debris from the excavation have been dumped on one of the infields, rendering it useless for yet another year. A third of the other field has been permanently lost to drainage expansion. With these two fields useless, the youngest members of this league have been forced to play their games on the worst, most neglected fields in the city.

The older children of St. John's league play their games at Faxon Park. Erosion has claimed enough of one filed to make the bench and backstop areas dangerous. The other field remains flooded for days after a rain storm because of poor drainage. To my knowledge no maintenance has been done on any of these fields, except cutting the grass occasionally. The coaches and officials of St. John's have spent their own time and money, trying to keep these fields playable for our children.

Now that there has been money appropriated for repairs, I hope the city officials will recognize the needs of our youth. Without help, St. John's organization cannot maintain its history of servitude to our community.

Monroe Playground Renovation Will Follow Flood Project

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The City of Quincy recently launched an aggressive effort to upgrade the condition of its parks and playgrounds. At $2.8 million it is the largest bond issue in the history of the Quincy Park Department. Our goal is to renovate any and every park or recreational facility that needs improvement. Unfortunately, the Monroe Playground on Pond Street cannot be renovated until the completion of the Town Brook Flood Alleviation Project.

The Army Corp of Engineers and the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) are undertaking a massive construction project to alleviate the flooding problems that have plagued South Quincy and Quincy Center for years. In cooperating with this project, the City of Quincy agreed to place the property under easement with the Army Corp of Engineers and the MDC. Technically, the property is under their control until the completion of the construction project. The field is currently used to store and transport construction apparatuses and power lines to the construction site. The City of Quincy does not want to risk spending thousands of dollars on a renovation project that could be ruined by further construction at that site.

Although it is unfortunate that some of the playground's users have been temporarily displaced, the Flood Alleviation Project warranted such action. The Park Department has tried to accommodate any group that has been supplanted by the construction project. We sincerely apologize for any inconveniences and are willing to work to find other playing field arrangements for any organization that made use of Monroe Playground. Upon completion of the Flood Alleviation Project, Monroe Playground will be targeted for renovation, and we look forward to returning the park to the fine recreational facility it once was.

Executive Secretary
Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department

Bates Critical Of New Court Site

March 23-29

By PAUL HAROLD

Former Norfolk County Commissioner Russell Bates called the proposed land taking on Chestnut St. for a new $2 million court house "a big mistake."

He said it would take $100,000 off the tax rolls annually and use of city land off Sea St. would save money in land taking, and would preserve the city's tax base.

If the Sea St. land were not available, in the alternative, Bates suggested the courthouse be built in Braintree on county owned land. The Braintree site would save $500,000 in land taking costs and would better serve the growing towns of the county, he said.

William O'Connell, executive secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, said it was "short-sight" to locate the court house outside Quincy Square.

Atty. Albert Slate, who with his brother Harold Slate, owned the largest part of the parcel on Chestnut St., said of the county commissioners' choice, "it doesn't seem to be the very best decision."

ENC TO RAZE MANSION

Officials at Eastern Nazarene College announced plans to raze the old Quincy Mansion and to replace it with a new two-story semi-colonial designed building.

Once the home of Boston Mayor Josiah Quincy, the 1849 Georgian mansion was used by the Mansion School before its purchase by the college when it relocated to Wollaston from Rhode Island in 1919.

The mansion had been used for classrooms and a men's dormitory.

DARTMOUTH SUES WOODWARD

Dartmouth College sued Woodward School because the school ended a 75-year tradition of admitting only Quincy born girls.

Under the terms of the will of Dr. Ebenezer Woodward, if the school closed, the property would be taken over by Dartmouth.

Arguing that admitting non-Quincy born students would not violate the purpose of the Woodward gift was Woodward alumna, Atty. Ruth Paven of Wollaston Ave.

QUINCY-ISMS

Quincy Choral Society Concert, Auction March 26

The Quincy Choral Society will perform "Sounds and Silence" pops concert and silent auction Sunday, March 26 at 3 p.m. in United First Parish Church, Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The Quincy Choral Society is accompanied by pianist Virginia Grimes.

Friends and members of the Choral Society have donated handmade crafts, gift certificates, professional services, and other items which will be available for bidding before the concert and during intermission. All auction items will be awarded to the highest bidder following the concert.

Light refreshments will be served.

Music of various styles has been planned for the concert, including folk, gospel, patriotic, and medleys from the Broadway musicals "Carousel" and "Les Miserables." Several Quincy Choral Society members including David Giusti, Dianne Carbonneau, Tricia London and Liz Kastner will be featured soloists in the program.

"Our chorus has grown to over 70 members and we are fortunate to have an exceptional pool of talent from which to draw," said Conductor John Nichols.

"We are also very excited to be singing the premiere of a piece written by the talented California composer Lauren Bird-Wiser titled Silver Moon. It is a very sensitive song which the audience will enjoy," Nichols said.

"Along with the inspiring music from 'Les Miserables,' there is going to be something for everyone to enjoy in this concert," he added.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

STATE POLICE Color Guard prepares to fire a 21-gun salute in honor of the late Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn at his burial in New Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan, following Finn's funeral Monday. Finn, 69, who served as Quincy police chief 24 years, died March 15.

Finn Remembered As Innovative Leader, Compassionate Man

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Friends and colleagues remember former Quincy Police Chief Francis Finn not only as an innovative leader before his time but also as a compassionate man who cared about others.

Finn, 69, died March 15 at the Naples Community Hospital in Naples, Fla. He had been hospitalized for heart trouble while on vacation with his wife, Susan.

Those who knew him offered the following tributes to The Quincy Sun:

Mayor James Sheets: "Chief Frank Finn was one of the most talented and aggressive young police chiefs ever appointed in the Commonwealth. His innovations included such programs as the one on domestic violence, which received national recognition on "60 Minutes." He was also involved in the creation of the Earn-It Program with former Judge Albert Kramer.

"His innovative patrol systems and management were often duplicated by other police forces across this state," Sheets added. "The outstanding police department we have today has been made possible partly because of the dedication and commitment of Frank Finn. He will be missed."

Police Chief Francis Mullen, who succeeded Finn upon his retirement and who earlier had served as his partner in the police department's juvenile division: "He was a very dedicated person. We had a lot in common because we believed in a lot of the same things. He was an innovative chief, and he displayed great leadership."

Nancy Griffin, Mullen's secretary who served under Finn for over 13 years: "He was a brilliant man, a wonderful leader. Very, very, well-read and extremely intelligent. He was very good to work for."

Pellham, N.H. Police Chief David Rowell, a close friend who worked over 36 years for the Quincy Police Department: "I found him to be intensely compassionate, and he had a firm belief in God. I'll never forget him, and I miss him.

"He was an accomplished leader. Most chiefs are satisfied with the status quo, but he wasn't. He was a doer.

"He'd had health problems for a long time, but he was a fighter," added Rowell. "The guy was an inspiration to me."

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, who served as legal counsel to the Quincy Police Department in the early 1970s: "I had a lifelong friendship with Frank, and he's going to be sorely missed. I'm genuinely, really, really saddened. He was a significant part of many people's lives, including mine.

"He was a good and kind man," Delahunt added. "He always made an effort to see the better side of people."

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who once served as a police department dispatcher: "He was a close personal friend of mine, and a longtime, dear friend of my parents. And he was an innovative leader. Many of the programs initiated at the police department were under the leadership of Chief Finn."

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman: "I've known him all my life, and he was a good person. He was just a down-to-earth guy who'd always take the time to stop and talk to you.

"He was always trying to help someone out and he never forgot the little guy. He always had the kids at heart, and he was instrumental in starting the police department's juvenile unit.

"I remember that his biggest thrill was seeing the history of the police department book published and the completion of the new police station," Gorman noted. "He wanted those things to happen before he retired."

Quincy District Court Clerk Magistrate Arthur Tobin, who served as city councillor and mayor during part of Finn's career: "I always found him to be a very cooperative and well-liked person. We always had a very friendly relationship. I was always very supportive of him while he was chief, and he was always very supportive of me while I was mayor. And I appreciated that."

Former Mayor Walter Hannon: "Other than the fact that he was a fine man and a very good police chief, what I remember is that he served in some very tumultuous times in the late '60s and '70s. Even though Quincy is the closest city to Boston, he kept it a very safe and sound city."

Quincy Atty. and former Norfolk County District Attorney George Burke: "I feel very badly that he passed away when he was only 69. I worked with him for many, many years, and we were very close friends. He was a great man and a tremendous law enforcement officer."

Several of those interviewed also extended their sympathies to Finn's wife and six children.

Finn led the Quincy Police Department in creating a coordinated response to the increasing problem of domestic violence. He brought together police, social service agencies and the courts at a time when the problem was not yet considered to be a major issue.

He also served as director of Civil Defense/Emergency Management in Quincy in the late 1970s.

Finn, who was born in South Boston and raised in Quincy, had a long, successful career. He became a foot patrolman in 1948 and rose through the ranks of the department, becoming chief in 1966.

Perhaps the most visible symbol of Finn's legacy is the expanded Quincy Police Station on Sea Street. He fought for, and won, $8.9 million for the renovations, which replace a deteriorating headquarters in the late 1980s.

Finn also created effective juvenile, civil rights and detective units and computerized the department.

changes in the department, notably the formation of unions. Compromise, not confrontation, marked this period with Chief Finn.

"He saw good in police unions. Instead of fighting with them, he worked with them. Most grievances were settled right in his office. The chief worked very closely with them and they have a lot of respect for him."

"Chief Finn set an example," Murphy continued, noting Finn led the accreditation of the police department, focused on combating domestic violence and juvenile crime, and encouraged police officers to further their education.

"Frank Finn was far from a disciplinarian. When an officer got in trouble, he took it personally. But because he was the chief, he took action but took no joy in it. It was not in his nature to come down on people."

Murphy then added a light moment, recalling their numerous golf outings on Cape Cod with friends who owned homes there. "Frank always said it is better to have golf partners who own homes on the Cape than it is to own a home there yourself."

Murphy, who lives in the same condo in Florida as the Finns, then remembered one of their last conversations. They were talking about the former chief's health. "II had a good run, Bill," Murphy recalled Finn telling him.

"It's going to be okay. I had a good run."

George Finn shared a personal reflection on his father as well as a tribute and sympathy letter written by President Bill Clinton.

The text of the letter follows:

"It is with great sadness that I offer my respects as you honor the memory of Police Chief Francis Xavier Finn. A staunch defender of his community, he dedicated his life to caring for others.

"The primary responsibility of any government is keeping its citizens safe from harm, and Chief Finn's professionalism and determination brought America closer to reaching that vital goal. His fierce opposition to organized crime and his many innovative solutions to the problems we face helped to protect homes and save lives for the people he served. We can best pay him tribute by rededicating ourselves to upholding the principle of justice for which he fought his entire life.

"Hillary and I extend our deepest sympathy to Chief Finn's family, and we join all of you in praying that his proud legacy is remembered and emulated by generations of law enforcement officers to come."

George Finn then shared a personal prayer honoring his father's memory.

"Bless us of Lord for the gift of Francis Xavier Finn, that we have received on thy bounty through Christ our Lord. In our moments of doubt may the memory of our friend Francis give us strength.

"Strength of character shall be his legacy and may we not forget that it was his strength of faith in Jesus that allowed him to go to work and stand before the fire of evil and yet he could not be tempted, he could not be burned.

"For his love and the examples he set may we have the vision, the faith and the strength to follow in his footsteps of Francis Xavier Finn for we believe his path will lead us to the Lord. Amen."

Raymond Finn, former mayor of Oakland Park, Fla., said his father was "the kind of man who would certainly welcome your prayers and sentiments but not wish for you to grieve over him because he was very much prepared for this time. But it did not deter him from his vigor for life and he lived every day to the fullest."

He then made a special request to professionals in the law enforcement field. "Our Dad would be pleased if all of you carried on in the same proud tradition he has for 42 years. He dedicated his life to serve and protect because it was the highest moral code he knew to live by.

Raymond also addressed his father's friends and family.

"To his personal and professional friends, I'm certain he would ask simply that you remember the good times you had with him. And I know there were many of those times because that's the kind of man he was.

"To his immediate family and my brothers, he would ask us always to remember to love one another, to always do what we know in our hearts is right and when in doubt, turn to God and ask for guidance, as Dad taught us."

Then, Raymond asked police to stand and share in the policeman's prayer which he recited.

"Dear Lord, be with me on my beat this day and every day. Grant that I may weary blows I walk to ease a brother's way.

"Let me be kindly to the old and to the young, be strong. Let me triumph over those whose acts are cruel and wrong.

"And when my own last summons comes, and I stand in your court, May my rest with you be long and my punishment be short.

Six of Finn's former fellow police officers, Capt. Frederick Laracy, Capt. Robert Salvaggio, Capt. Thomas Frane, Capt. Terence Kelly, Lt. John Doyle and Lt. Robert Crowley, were pallbearers. Chief Francis Mullen, who succeeded Finn, led the procession into the church as dozens of Quincy, Boston and State Police patrol officers stood at attention and saluted with black bands covering their badges.

Also attending Monday's funeral were former Mayors Walter Hannon, Arthur Tobin and Joseph LaRaia; Mayor James Sheets, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, Fire Chief Tom Gorman, and two former Quincy police officers who served under Finn and moved to other departments after Finn's retirement: Pelham (N.H) Chief David Rowell and Natick Chief Dennis Maddox.

The funeral Mass was con-celebrated by Fr. Peter Quinn, pastor of St. John's Church; Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor St. Joseph's Church and a close family friend; and Fr. James DiPerri of Sacred Heart Church, chaplain of the Quincy Police Department.

More than 1000 people paid their last respects during Finn's wake at Keohane Funeral Home in Wollaston over the weekend.

Following the funeral, a parade of police cruisers and motorcycles led a procession of 100 cars to the police station on Sea St. for a 30-second pause, before continuing to New Calvary Cemetery in Mattapan.

Seven members of the State Police color guard fired shots in a 21-gun salute and played Taps at the gravesite.

2 Quincy Firefighters Promoted To Lieutenant

Two members of the Quincy Fire Department have been promoted to the rank of lieutenant.

James Reardon, 48, of Plymouth and Stephen Walsh, 32, of Hull took their oaths of office during a swearing-in ceremony last Friday at City Hall. Family, friends and city officials were among those on hand for the event.

Reardon will be in charge of Engine 8 in Germantown, while Walsh will lead a crew on Ladder 5 in North Quincy.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said the two were the top scorers on a lieutenant's exam which they took along with 20 other Quincy firefighters in November 1993.

Both had been serving as acting lieutenants in place of men who were out because of long-term illnesses and eventually decided to retire, the chief said. Their promotions bring the number of lieutenants on the 209-member force to 43.

Reardon has been a Quincy firefighter for 20 years and an acting lieutenant for seven months. He recently completed a three week officer training course on his own time.

Walsh joined the force in 1987 and became an acting lieutenant last month.

Gorman and Police Chief Francis Mullen each have forwarded a list of five people they are recommending to fill vacancies in their departments to Mayor James Sheets. The firefighter candidates all are men, while the police candidates are four men and one woman.

Sheets said he would review their resumes and decide which to send for physical and psychological exams, the next step in the screening process.

The mayor added that in the next few months, he plans to hire at least eight police officers. Five will be added under the new federal Crime Law, which is providing money to police departments throughout the county.

Gorman said there are six or seven vacancies in his department due to retirements of long-time employees.

More than 400 people interested in becoming Quincy firefighters took the Civil Service exam in 1993, according to the chief. On that test, there were so many perfect scores the city held a lottery for the first time ever to determine the order in which candidates would be considered.

The state later changed the questions, Gorman said, and since subsequent scores were much more varied a lottery will not be necessary this time.

Heaters, Gasoline Storage Approved

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board voted to permit WORK, Inc., to store supplement Flameless Ration Heaters containing magnesium and the storage of 360 gallons of gasoline aboveground, at 3 Arlington St.in North Quincy.

The heaters for Meals Ready to Eat was developed by Natick Research and Development Labs for military personnel to heat their food rations during periods of active duty.

The company plans to make a water activated exothermic-chemical heater packaged in a plastic heating bag which functions as a container for heating the meal, Ready to Eat (MRE)

Representatives from the company said there would be no food in the process.

Through the Javits-Wagner-ODay Act, WORK Inc. is able to obtain Federal Government contracts such as the packaging of the Flameless Ration Heater. The contract provides valuable work for the individuals with disabilities.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman told Sharon A. Smith owner of the business that dry sand is needed in the area as an extinguishing agent plus a limit to how much is stored in the building.

Gorman said "daily housekeeping will be a must". and added that supervisors be well trained and educated in the "hazards of the occupation."

He told representatives of the company that they need to have a steel fire door in place of the wooden one that is there. Smith told the board they have "exercised every precaution" for the company

Although the area is considered a flood plain zone, there have been no reports of flooding for years Gorman said.

Impact Quincy To Discuss Its Future Plans March 29

The future of Impact Quincy, a community-based effort to address alcohol, tobacco and other drug problems in the city, will be discussed at an All-Coalition Meeting Wednesday, March 29 from 6:30 to 9 p.m .

The meeting will be held at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

Impact Quincy was founded five years ago by 12 leaders in the community, including representatives from city government, education, human services, business and the clergy. The group was awarded a five-year "community partnership planning" grant from the U.S. Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP).

The Impact Quincy coalition has entered for the final 18 months of its funding through that grant, and will present "Planning The Future", its strategic plan for the next five years of the life of the Coalition.

The plan that will be presented on March 29 was developed over a six-month period by a special Planning Team that had been appointed by the IQ Leadership Team.

The plan was recently modified and approved by the Impact Quincy Leadership Team, and will be presented for approval by the entire IQ Coalition at the March 29 meeting. All are welcome to attend, but only registered IQ members will be allowed to vote on the plan.

Quincy was one of 252 communities across the U.S. to receive community partnership grants from CSAP. The purpose of these unique planning grants was to provide the financial resources to develop community-based coalitions or partnerships that would address alcohol, tobacco, and other drug problems.

Each coalition was allowed to "experiment" with different approaches to address the problems that were identified within its own community. The grants were not to be used to provide "services: in the traditional sense, but rather to help the community assess its own needs and develop its own resources to meet these needs.

Since its founding, Impact Quincy has grown to include several hundred members representing all sections of the community.

Its efforts have included sponsoring Active Parenting groups that have trained over 200 parents; conducting two annual surveys of Quincy youth that have detailed current substance use among the city's young people; hosted the first ever city-wide service provider training; facilitated two region wide workshops on the needs of Asians & Pacific Islanders; helped establish the Teen Center program; and sponsored the annual "It Takes a Community To Raise A Child" conference, which played a pivotal role in the creation of the Mayor's commission on the Family.

Much of the work of the Coalition is accomplished through several task forces, including Elders, Asian American, Family Life, Video Productions, Violence Intervention for a Better Environment (VIBE), Gay/Straight Alliance, Early Childhood and Tobacco. The work of all these groups is coordinated by a 16-member Leadership Team elected directly by the coalition and task forces.

Council On Aging To Discuss Elderly Population Today

The Quincy Council on Aging will meet today (Thursday at 2 p.m. in City Hall annex second floor conference room to discuss plans to meet future needs of the city's fast-growing elderly population.

Guest speaker will be City Council President Michael Cheney who will discuss increasing transportation of the elderly through a possible shuttle service.

At the COA's recent annual meeting, Mayor James Sheets and Edward Flynn, executive director of South Shore Elder Services, Inc., stressed the importance of developing plans now to meet increased demands for services because of a fast growing elderly population plus increased longevity.

COA Chairman John Noonan pointed out life expectancy has increased dramatically in 75 years, from 54.1 years in 1920 to 76 years today.

"With each tick of the clock hundreds more individuals become eligible for Social Security benefits," Noonan said. "Many of those individuals will live to be 80, 90 or even 100 years old and we must start now to plan for their future needs."

Both Noonan and COA Executive Director Brian Buckley have been appointed by Gov. Weld to serve as alternate delegates to the White House Conference on Aging in Washington, D.C., May 2-5.

All COA meetings are open to the public.

2 Names Omitted From Broad Meadows Honor Roll

POOR SUBSTITUTES

Owners of older cars who seek quick fixes for their cars' leaky air-conditioning units should resist the temptation to recharge their AC system with dangerous substitute refrigerants. As environmental regulations continue to restrict and eventually phase out the supply of R-12 (Freon), newer cars have converted to the use of the environmentally friendly refrigerant known as R-134a. The new refrigerant cannot be substituted for the old; however, a number of inexpensive R-12 substitutes have cropped up which offer themselves as replacements to the increasingly scarce R-12. The fact is that leaky AC systems filled with these poor substitutes can leak into the engine or passenger compartment and explode. At the very least, R-12 substitutes will contaminate the servicing garage's R-12 recapturing tanks.

Hint: It takes a qualified auto technician to find and seal a leak in an older car's AC system, and then recharge it with R-12.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every part in your car. Whether you need regular maintenance or suspect a problem with your air-conditioning system, our service technicians have the skills to handle it. You'll find us located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). Hours: Mon.-Fri. 6am-9pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 9am-5pm. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Someone once said, "It takes a heap of living in a house to make it a home." All of us know what a house is; how sad it is that so many people do not know what a home is!

Home is where people love each other. Home is where we learn to over-look each other's faults and experience the joy of forgiving as well as being forgiven. Home is where children play, laugh, sing and cry and are comforted by someone who cares. Home is where children are taught by precept and example . . . where personalities are formed and sent into the world.

Home fosters many memories and also should provide the opportunity for meditation, or what someone has called therapy of solitude. Each of us need a quiet time for himself or herself.

Honesty begins at home. Respect for law and order begins at home. Love begins at home. A sense of duty begins at home. Respect for people of other colors and creeds begins at home. And religion has its first beginnings in the home.

Yes, indeed, - Home is far more than a residence; home involves the character of living that goes on inside the house . . .

Spotlight On Business

'I've Wanted To Open My Own School For Years'

Karate Teacher Begins New Chapter In His Life

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Lifelong Quincy resident and veteran Uechiryu karate student Bill Repoff will be writing a new chapter in his life when he opens his Uechiryu Karate Do (School), 169 Beale St., Wollaston, this week after years of arduous study and training.

Repoff, a fifth degree black belt, has been studying Uechiryu karate for 26 years and has always wanted to teach it. But because he owns a transportation business and is a family man, he never had the spare time until now.

"I've always wanted to open my own karate school for years, but because of my business obligations and family life as well as being active in my community, I never had the time to do it," Repoff, the father of two, said during a recent interview with The Quincy Sun.

Teaching karate to a class is a daunting task which he is looking forward to.

"Teaching karate is a separate art form because it's one thing to be able to learn karate, but it is quite another task to be able to process that information to another human being," he said.

Instead of separating students into different skill levels, the Uechiryu Karate Do combines its students in order to enable them to learn from each other.

"There's no beginners classes or advanced classes at the karate school. This way a green belt can help a beginner and a black belt can help a brown belt and so forth," Repoff, 44, said.

Very often there is too much emphasis and pressure to move up belt rankings placed on karate students according to Repoff.

"The proper way to teach is by personally helping with (students of) all types of karate levels, not by hierarchical standards of belt rankings. A white belt is just as important as a black belt at the school," he said.

Some karate schools charge more to teach a student with a higher level belt ranking, Repoff described his policy as not necessarily the most profitable but the most fair.

"Maybe it's not the smartest business decision, but it is the most fair for the student," he said.

Since they do not base their training on sparring and use the least amount of body contact during training, the Uechiryu Karate Do staff members utilize body conditioning.

Repoff stressed the importance of continuing your training even while you are teaching.

"It is very important to make sure your teacher is still training themselves because whenever you end your own study you begin to slide. We are all students," he said.

Uechiryu, pronounced way-chee, is a traditional form of karate which originated in Okinawa about 80 years ago. According to Repoff, it is a type of karate which stresses self-discipline in the mind as well as in the body and was introduced to the United States during the 1950s.

Repoff was introduced to Uechiryu karate by Forest Samborne, then a lieutenant in the Braintree Police, and Carmen Dirimio in 1969.

In 1975, he began studying with Walter Matson, a 7th degree black belt in Framingham.

Since then, Repoff has studied with a number of Uechiryu karate experts from Okinawa and has competed in some local competitions.

In addition to operating a transportation company and being a dedicated father, Repoff is also active in his community volunteering his time as a basketball coach for Sacred Heart School, a baseball coach for Quincy Youth Baseball and umpiring for the Squantum Baseball League.

Repoff said that Uechiryu karate differs from some of the more popular, franchised karate methods because some of those schools emphasize flashy gimmicks and marketing ideas in the place of serious training.

You won't find any fancy swords or any eccentric flags draped around pictures of karate film heros at the Uechiryu Karate Do.

"There's nothing fancy about this karate school. We don't use any of the gimmicks some karate schools use," Repoff said.

Uechiryu Karate Do, 786-8805, is located one block down from the Wollaston School. The hours of the karate sessions will be determined.

Classes will be scheduled for afternoons, evenings and Saturday mornings.

BILL REPOFF, owner of Uechiryu Karate Do in Wollaston, displays some of the moves he has learned over the years. The new school opens this week at 169 Beale St.

Central Students History Day Award Winners

Amy Cheung, Lisa Chow and Susan Zhen, seventh grade students from Central Middle School, recently won an award for their entry "Tiananmen Square Uprising - Democracy vs. Communism" in the regional competition of the National History Day Contest.

The project was a cross-discipline activity prepared for their language arts and social studies program.

Three will compete next at the 15th annual History Day for Massachusetts Council for Social Studies and the New England History Teachers' Association.

Over 2,000 students participated in district competitions held throughout the state. Students in grades six through twelve entered papers, projects, performances, and medial presentations related to the theme, "Conflict and Compromise in History."

Approximately 20 students from Central Middle School presented their work at the regional competition at Belmont.

Christopher Walsh also received recognition at this competition for his presentation on the integration of Major League Baseball.

To Protect Your Body, Use Your Head, Part I

RAPE! A crime of violence.

Rape isn't an easy thing to talk about. There are many myths, half-truths, and misunderstandings about rape. These add to the confusion, and frequency and even add to the danger.

The following facts have been documented by extensive research. A knowledge of these facts may prevent you from exposing yourself to unnecessary risk.

•Most rapes occur between the hours of 8 p.m. and 2 a.m.

•Most rapists act alone.

•Physical force usually is threatened or used.

•Physical resistance frequently results in injury to the victim.

•Rape victims are typically age 25 or younger.

•Rapists are largely indistinguishable from the rest of the population.

•Most attacks involve strangers or casual acquaintances.

•Most physical injuries are minor, but psychological after-effects frequently are severe and long lasting.

The motive of the rapist is not sexual! His aim is to humiliate, to terrify, to degrade his victim. Passion and lust are not the issue. The issue is violence.

Law enforcement officials report that rape is one of the least reported violent crimes. Yet rape is the fastest rising crime of violence in our country.

The rapist can be a casual acquaintance, a friend, a relative, or a total stranger. There's simply no way to identify a potential rapist by his appearance, manner, or otherwise. Since you can't recognize a rapist in advance, you must learn to recognize potentially dangerous situations.

No one is exempt from the possibility of [an] assault: male or female, infant or elderly. Rape can enter the lives of all people, without regard to age, race, physical characteristics, marital or economic status. Even young boys and men are sometimes victims of sexual assault. The most important fact about rape is this: The rapist frequently plans his crime, seeking the right chance and the easiest victim. The best defense against a rape is to eliminate [the] opportunity to attack.

Next Week: Part II, Secure at Home Against the Rapist.

Quincy Elks Lodge No. 943

90 Years Of Dedication To Country And Community

1905 - 1995

A Special Supplement

Office of the Mayor

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Whereas, The Elks is vitally interested in the tenents of friendship, love and truth, and is dedicated to the welfare of all citizens, and the relief of all distressed; and

Whereas, we recognize that Quincy's Elks and its Ladies' auxiliary have been a great influence for good in our community; and

Whereas, The Elks is now celebrating their 90th Anniversary in Quincy, at their new home on Elks Lane off of Quarry Street;

Now, Therefore, I, JAMES A. SHEETS, Mayor of the City of Quincy do hereby proclaim the Week of March 25 through March 31, 1995 as in Quincy in recognition of the humanitarian efforts of the members of this organization and further congratulate them on this special occasion.

"THE ELKS WEEK"

Quincy Elks Lodge Received Charter In 1905

By TOM SHEPHERD

During the latter part of 1904, a committee of prominent citizens of Quincy held several informal meetings and discussed the need for an Elks Lodge in this historic city from a social and benevolent standpoint.

The first meeting to organize and make the necessary arrangements for securing a charter was held in The Grand Army Hall on Hancock Street. The application for a charter was approved and on Tuesday, Feb. 23, 1905 the Lodge was instituted in Colonial Hall in the Savings Bank Building, where 27 candidates were initiated and became charter members of the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The first regular meeting was held in Greenleaf Hall March 14, 1905 where the Lodge held their meetings for several years.

On April 19, 1907, the Elks dedicated their first home on Foster Street, where they remained until 1923 when they sold it to the Knights of Columbus. At this time, ground was broken for their new home at 1220 Hancock St., and on July 1, 1924 the new home was dedicated.

The Elks remained there for almost 60 years, and then the building was sold in 1983 and we took up temporary residence at the Myles Standish School at 440 East Squantum St. while plans were being made to build a new home on Quarry Street on land that we had purchased from the City of Quincy.

Our temporary residence lasted almost 11 years but our dream was finally fulfilled on Sept. 25, 1993 at groundbreaking exercises at 254 Quarry St. Local and state officials, along with representatives from the Elks Grand Lodge and Massachusetts Elks Association, took part in the exercise and then returned to East Squantum Street to celebrate.

Finally, on June 15, 1994, the doors to our new home were open for business and we held our 84th annual Flag Day ceremony that evening. Appropriately, our Lodge Room is named "The Tirrell Room" after our first Exalted Ruler Fred W. Tirrell who was installed way back in 1905.

QUINCY LODGE OF ELKS was chartered Feb. 23, 1905. It's First Permanent home was in this building on Foster St., Quincy Center, dedicated April 19, 1907. It later became the home of the Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus and today houses the William R. Caddy Detachment, Marine Corps League.

THE SECOND PERMANENT Quincy Elks home at 1220 Hancock St. (now 1200) was dedicated July 1, 1924. Temporary residence for 11 years beginning in 1983, was at the Miles Standish School in Squantum.

THE QUINCY LODGE'S temporary home for nearly 11 years from 1983 until the new home was opened was at the old Myles Standish School on East Squantum St., North Quincy.

Elks First Organization To Observe Flag Day

By TOM SHEPHERD

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was the first organization in the national to have its members observe Flag Day.

The first ceremony was held in 1908 and in 1949 President Harry Truman, who was an Elk, signed the Congressional resolution designating June 14 as Flag Day. It is in the Grand Lodge Statutes of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks that each and every Lodge in our nation must hold services honoring our flag on Flag Day or in the week in which Flag Day falls.

Over the years, and especially when Brother Russell Hally was Flag Day chairman, the Quincy Lodge has held impressive Flag Day exercises. For many years, they held mammoth parades that had members from nearly all civic, patriotic, and fraternal organizations on the South Shore take part and march through the streets of Quincy.

The parade ended at Quincy Municipal Stadium where portrayal of the flag's history was watched by thousands of people.

Quincy has been fortunate to have had many excellent and distinguished speakers at these exercises and none greater than President John F. Kennedy when he was a U.S. Congressman from this area. Some of the other well-known speakers were Gen. Jonathan Wainwright, the hero of Corregidor; American Legion Past National Commander John "Jake" Comer; Congressional Medal of Honor winners Charles McGilvray, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, who later became U.S. Ambassador to the United Nations and many others.

It was only fitting that on Flag Day we opened the doors to our new home on Quarry Street June 15, 1994. Our first function was the 84th annual Flag Day exercise. A crowded Lodge Room of members and the general public observed the officers of the Quincy Lodge of Elks and the ladies of the Quincy Emblem Club conduct the Flag Day ritual. Scholarship Chairman and Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers distributed over $8,000 in scholarships. Josephine Shea, superintendent of administration and finance for the Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, was the guest speaker.

THE FIRST FLAG Day ceremony at the Quincy Lodge's new home on Quarry St. was held in June, 1994. Shown here are Councillor Tim Cahill, Mayor James Sheets, Josephine Shea, Deputy Superintendent, Norfolk County Sheriff's Office, who was the principal speaker, and Exalted Ruler Leo Nunnari. James McDonald (at rear,) leads the group in singing.

National Service Commission Dedicated To Hospitalized Veterans

Shortly after World War II, the Elks National Service Commission was established to insure that the men and women confined to VA Medical Centers would not be forgotten.

A pledge that in these almost 50 years has been upheld in a large number of ways.

The Department of Veterans Affairs operates 172 medical centers, 126 nursing homes and more than 300 outpatient, community and outreach clinics.

Through the doors of each of these facilities pass men and women wearing the logo of the Elks National Service Commisston. Their mission: to bring comfort and good cheer to veterans suffering the mental and physical wounds of war, afflicted with the diseases of aging or fighting the ravages of drug and alcohol abuse.

In 1952, when the VA Hospital was built on South Huntington Avenue in Jamaica Plain, the Quincy Lodge of Elks VA Committee was assigned this hospital to bring comfort and good cheer to the hospitalized patients there. For 43 years, we have been visiting there twice a month and sometimes more often depending on the activities we have planned.

On the second Wednesday of each month, we conduct beano for the patients, giving money prizes and serving refreshments. On the fourth Wednesday we bring 200 sandwiches and cold drinks to four closed wards. The ladies of Quincy Emblem Club assist in these and all our endeavors. We take them on a boat ride and end up on Georges Island for a cookout each year. We take them to a Red Sox game and football game at Holy Cross each year.

We have cookouts on the patio of the hospital for all patients during July, August and September.

We conduct an arts and crafts competition in May giving cash prizes and entering the top winners at our state convention where they compete against the other hospitals for cash prizes.

Each year I deliver over 1,500 decks of playing cards, thousands of crossword puzzles, books and magazines. A Christmas party at the hospital ends our year where professional acts perform and each patient receives gifts and fruit and is served delicious refreshments.

For these 43 years, the Quincy Lodge of Elks has upheld that pledge "As long as there is a hospitalized veteran, the Elks will not forget them."

--TOM SHEPHERD

Elks Memorial Day Celebrated In December

The Grand Lodge of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks has designated in its Grand Lodge Statutes that the first Sunday in December of each year shall be a day commemorated to the memories of our departed brothers and shall be known as "Elks Memorial Day."

It is mandatory that each Lodge in our nation conduct the prescribed ritual for this service on that day.

The Quincy Lodge of Elks held its first memorial service Dec. 3, 1905 and its 89th Dec. 4, 1994 with Felix Cerrato, past exalted ruler of the Mansfield Lodge and Past District Deputy of the Circle District as keynote speaker. This service is open to the public.

Relatives of the departed brothers who died in the past year are sent a special invitation and are presented a memorial plaque in his memory that had adorned the altar during the ceremony.

The officers of the Lodge are assisted by the ladies of the Quincy Emblem Club in conducting this ritual and a breakfast follows.

We have been fortunate to have had many excellent and distinguished guest speakers at these services. One that comes to mind was a brother Elk, Thomas P. O'Neil, who at that time was Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and later became the U.S. Speaker of the House of Representatives.

THIS LIFELIKE BRONZE replica of an Elk stands near the Greenleaf St. entrance to Mt. Wollaston Cemetery and overlooks the graves of departed Quincy Elks.

Over $250,000 Donated Through Bingo Program

By TOM O'CONNOR

In the last 10 years, the Quincy Lodge of Elks has donated over $250,000 through our Bingo program.

We would like to thank all of the faithful Bingo players, because without their support, none of this could have happened.

I would like to share with you what the Quincy Elks do for the citizens of Quincy.

We put on senior citizens' dances and dinners. We have given over $100,000 in scholarships to help students with their college tuition.

We sponsor two baseball teams and a hockey team every year. We have hoop shoots and soccer shootouts with trophies and jackets presented to the winners.

We donate food, coffee, sugar, napkins, paper plates, cups, etc. to Father Bill's Place. We have donated the use of the hall to Cub Scouts and high schools for fund-raisers and banquets. We have donated money to the Quincy Visiting Nurses.

We go to the VA Hospital in Jamaica Plain twice a month, with sandwiches and goodies for the patients. We put on Bingo for them. We have boat trips and cookouts.

We have donated money to fire victims, and the list goes on.

At Christmas time, the members of the Lodge donate their time to distribute food baskets to those in need. We donate 50 baskets a year at a cost of $5,000.

I don't know of any other organization that does more for the citizens of Quincy than we do.

Over $250,000 Donated Through Bingo Program

By TOM O'CONNOR

In the last 10 years, the Quincy Lodge of Elks has donated over $250,000 through our Bingo program.

We would like to thank all of the faithful Bingo players, because without their support, none of this could have happened.

I would like to share with you what the Quincy Elks do for the citizens of Quincy.

We put on senior citizens' dances and dinners. We have given over $100,000 in scholarships to help students with their college tuition.

We sponsor two baseball teams and a hockey team every year. We have hoop shoots and soccer shootouts with trophies and jackets presented to the winners.

We donate food, coffee, sugar, napkins, paper plates, cups, etc. to Father Bill's Place. We have donated the use of the hall to Cub Scouts and high schools for fund-raisers and banquets. We have donated money to the Quincy Visiting Nurses.

We go to the VA Hospital in Jamaica Plain twice a month, with sandwiches and goodies for the patients. We put on Bingo for them. We have boat trips and cookouts.

We have donated money to fire victims, and the list goes on.

At Christmas time, the members of the Lodge donate their time to distribute food baskets to those in need. We donate 50 baskets a year at a cost of $5,000.

I don't know of any other organization that does more for the citizens of Quincy than we do.

Rainbow Fund Makes Children's Final Wishes Reality

By TOM WALSH
Past Exalted Ruler

In 1982, after seeing a segment on "60 Minutes" about an organization that helped fulfill the final wish of terminally ill children, brother Thomas Walsh approached the Board of Directors and suggested that the Quincy Lodge of Elks could have a program like that.

Money was raised from raffles, dances, personal donations, etc. and the Quincy Rainbow Fund was started.

The first recipient was a young girl from Braintree named Maryann Grace was was stricken with cancer. Her final wish was to go to Hawaii. The Quincy Rainbow Fund made this wish possible. Two weeks after her return home, Maryann passed away--but her wish had come true.

Over the years, the Quincy Rainbow Fund has granted many young people their final wishes including trips to Disney World, summer camps, ball games, bicycles, etc.

Presently the Rainbow Fund has been working with the Boston Children with AIDS Program (C.A.P.). These are children ranging in age from six months to nine years who have AIDS through no fault of their own.

The Rainbow Fund has supplied them with special push carts that allow six children to go out together in one cart and thousands of dollars in sundries to help the C.A.P. program out.

The Rainbow Fund is still very active at the Lodge and is there to aid any young child who unfortunately won't be with us for much longer.

The Foot And Arthritis: It's More Than Just Pain

By JOHN GIURINI, D.P.M.

As anyone with arthritis knows, this condition can be painful and debilitating. It can affect any individual regardless of age and can affect any joint of the body, including joints of the feet. While arthritis of the hands makes many tasks difficult and painful, arthritis in the joints of the feet makes ambulation equally as difficult.

The two most common forms of arthritis are rheumatoid arthritis and osteoarthritis. Rheumatoid arthritis affects individuals of all ages, including young children. This form of arthritis most commonly involves the joints of the fingers and wrists with occasional involvement of the feet.

Osteoarthritis (also known as degenerative joint disease) is most commonly found in older individuals or individuals in certain occupations where there is increased wear and tear on their joints. This type of arthritis most commonly affects the weightbearing joints such as the great toe joint of the foot, the ankle joint or the knee joint.

While pain is the most common symptom, patients many also express early morning stiffness, joint swelling and inflammation. The early morning stiffness commonly lasts 20 to 30 minutes until the joint "loosens up." Rheumatoid arthritis is characterized by periods of remission and exacerbations. Patients with this condition will feel most comfortable in warm, dry weather and will experience a flare-up of their condition in cold, deep weather. It is often said that patients with rheumatoid arthritis can predict weather simply by its affect on their joints.

Treatment of these conditions is geared to providing relief of the symptoms. Pain and swelling often respond to one of several anti-inflammatory medications currently available. Physical therapy plays an important part in maintaining as much joint motion as possible and avoiding joint stiffness. A regular program of joint mobility, stretching exercises and aerobic exercises are vital in the care of these patients.

When arthritis has attacked the foot, ambulation is made difficult because of joint pain or foot deformities. Ambulation can often be helped by the use of orthotic devices (special shoe inserts) and appropriate shoegear. Orthoses help to limit painful joint motion while providing support to the arch of the foot. Shoes should be selected which provide both support and shock absorption to the heel and ball of the foot.

Occasionally, when these conservative measures fail to provide adequate relief, surgery to correct the underlying deformities may be warranted and helpful.

Did you know...
When smoke gets in our eyes, it is not romantic.
Tobacco smoke turns eyes red and fills them with tears. It can also irritate your nose and throat. When tobacco smoke reaches your lungs, it damages your natural ability to clear mucus out of your airways.
When smoke gets into the eyes, nose, throat and lungs of a person with asthma and allergies, it makes their symptoms worse. They wheeze, sneeze, and cough not only while around tobacco smoke, but for hours afterward. This is a serious problem because:
• 1 in every 20 people has asthma.
• 1 in every 5 people has allergies.
• Tobacco smoke harms 50 million Americans with asthma and allergies.

Winner Of New England Championship

Croke In Elks National Free Throw Contest

By KERRY BYRNE

Quincy's master of the free throw, nine-year-old Erin Croke, is set to compete for the Elks National 'Hoop Shoot' Free Throw championship after claiming the New England title last week in Springfield.

In a performance that would have made Larry Bird envious, Croke hit 19 of 25 free throws to beat five other girls representing the New England states. As the New England champ, she, and her family, will fly to Indianapolis April 21, courtesy of the Quincy Lodge of Elks, to take part in the national championship.

If she captures the national title in the girls 8-9-year-old division, she'll win scholarship money and her name will be enscribed in the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield.

With her newly-acquired, sharp-looking 'Hoop Shoot' athletic togs and a beaming smile, Croke is set to take on 11 regional winners from across the United States and US territories. One girl in the national competition is from the tiny Pacific territory of Guam.

In the New England competition, Croke's 19 of 25 performance was two shots better than the second-place effort put forth by Jamie Bartone of Connecticut.

Before the contest, Erin was a little wary as she watched Bartone sink shot after shot in warm-ups. But once the competition began, Erin was in her own zone. "I don't worry about the other kids," she said. "I just concentrate on the basket, and if I miss a shot, I don't think about it." But looking at her numbers, it's not often she misses, anyway.

She, and her father Bob, both felt it was to Erin's benefit that she got to shoot first. "You don't have to worry about what her score is," said dad Croke. "You just count the misses of the kids who come after her."

Although 19 of 25 free throws - shot by a 4-foot-3-inch girl at a regulation-height hoop - is impressive, it was one shy of her performance several weeks ago at Lowell which gave her the Massachusetts free throw crown.

QUINCY'S SUPER free throw shooter, Erin Croke, smiles while flanked by two of her newest trophies. She was given the small trophy for winning the New England Regional of the Elks National Free Throw Competition. She earned the big trophy for having the top score in any age bracket when the won the state competition.

Her 20 of 25 shooting in the state competition was the best among all three age groups which took part in the contest. Essentially, she would have been the state champion had she been shooting with the 12- and 13-year-old girls, too.

But playing with the big girls would have been old hat to the Sacred Heart School fourth-grader. The highly skilled young hoopster, who first picked up the roundball at age five, is the point guard on Sacred Heart's sixth-grade girls travel team. Croke is also a member of the Supershooters (an appropriate name for Erin's team) of the Sacred Heart in-house league.

The New England free throw-shooting champion has not limited herself to just hoop, however. She runs in the Quincy Track Club under the tutelage of Geoff Hennessy, figure skates for coach Maureen Durkin, and plays on a travel team in the Quincy Youth Soccer League.

With a such a busy athletic life she might not have time to study. Right?

Wrong. And mom and dad make sure of it. She is a consistent honor roll student (her favorite subject is art, her least favorite is science) and she loves to read - the Babysitter's Club series being her books of choice.

For the national free throw competition in Indianapolis, the Elks will cover the travel and lodging expenses for Erin and her parents. The Croke family will also bring Erin's brother and sister, Billy and Aileen. Several of her aunts and uncles also plan on attending.

Erin still has a month to prepare for the big show. Of course, during that month she'll sit in front of the hoop for endless hours perfecting her shot. Right?

Again, wrong. "She just shoots around when she wants," said Bob. "She doesn't spend every minute working on her free throws. She's got too many other things she wants to do."

Maybe she'll take a few extra shots, admitted Dad. But for the most part she'll practice twice a week and play twice a week for her Sacred Heart teams.

Then, maybe, in about four weeks, her name will go into the Basketball Hall of Fame. And if not, well...being the best in New England isn't bad either.

Quincy High School Football Reunion May 6

The Quincy High football teams of 1950-59 will hold a reunion on Saturday, May 6 at the new Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry Street.

The event will bring together all members of the football programs, including players, managers, coaches and cheerleaders.

Anyone who was a part of these teams is welcome. Spouses and guests are invited.

There have been several meetings to plan this evening and a large amount of memorabilia has been collected and will be displayed at the reunion.

In addition to memories, films and awards there will be a raffle with over 40 prizes and gifts.

Special invited guests are coaches Bill Sullivan, Hank Conroy, Marty Finnegan, Bob Basiliere and Betty Silverman. Also invited are Mayor Jim Sheets, Dr. Lloyd Hill, Athletic Director William Walker and the 1994 Quincy High School All-Scholastics.

Tickets are available by calling Ron Ivil (337-4347), Bob Derbes (471-0596), Bob Smollett (774-1122), Ken Burgess (293-7156), Vin Moscardelli (328-1312) or Jack Powers (508-564-4103).

Tickets are $25 per person. There will be a social hour at 7 p.m followed by dinner at 8 p.m. Only 220 tickets are available.

For more information call Powers at (617) 356-7825 (days) or (508) 564-4103 (evenings).

North Frosh Girls End Season On Positive Note

The North Quincy High freshman girls basketball team closed out the season with two wins and a loss.

The season finale, a win over Medford High, was marked by two scoring milestones. Kerry Skehan became the first NQ freshman in three years to score 200 points in one season; and Maura O'Brien netted her 100th point of the year.

O'Brien was the third Red Raider freshman to reach the 100-point plateau this year.

In the final two games before Medford, North Quincy beat Bridgewater-Raynham and lost to Quincy. They finished with an overall record of 15-8 and an Old Colony League record of 8-4.

During the year the North girls set three goals for themselves: 1) win 75 percent of their games, the end result was 67 percent; 2) develop a sense of team, sportsmanship and commitment. "In all these areas the players excelled," said coach Arthur Good; 3) finish the season as better basketball players. "In every case this was true," said Good.

"They held to the 'yes we can' attitude and learned that 'attitude is everything.' All in all, this was a 'Masta Hanna' season."

St. Moritz Ends Season On Winning Note

The St. Moritz Devils squirt major hockey team ended the season on a high note with a 5-2 win over the Middlesex Islanders Sunday at the New England Sports Complex.

The Islanders came out strong, dominating the opening period and scoring the game's first goal at 2:59 of the period.

However, the Devils skated hard and were able to get on the scoreboard in the final second of the period when Steve Segalla of Quincy slipped the puck past the outstretched glove of the Islanders' goalie. He was assisted by his brother, John Segalla.

The final two periods were owned by the Devils. Four minutes into the middle session, defenseman Tim Egan of Braintree fired a shot into the net from the blue line. He was aided by Chris Follett of Hanover, who had dumped the puck back to the point.

Miah Hasson of Quincy scored seven minutes later. His score was set up by Follett and James McDonald of Everett.

Follett recorded his third assist in the final period when he sent McDonald in for a beautiful breakaway tally. Steve Segalla netted the final St. Moritz goal. He was again set up by his brother John, and by Ryan McInnis of Wellesley.

Josh Wallace of Somerville was outstanding as he held the fort between the pipes. He was assisted by the play of defensemen Nathan Shaller of Newton, Kevin Patten of Quincy and Steve Cavanaugh of Hingham.

Sterling Remains Undefeated, Faces Central For Title

The Sterling Middle School Eagles basketball team remained undefeated with a 42-32 win over Broad Meadows.

The game was a hard-fought affair featuring some of the finest young hoop players in the city.

Outstanding performances were turned in by Joe Kearney, Jeremy Theberge, Derrick Sankey, Dennis Palardy and Jeff Russo.

Sterling will compete for the city championship versus Central Middle School this week. Both sides are looking forward to another exciting basketball contest.

Exercise Program At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer an eight week supervised exercise program consisting of Nautilus strength training and cardiovascular exercise.

The program is designed for exercisers and non-exercisers of all ages. Class times vary throughout the day Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays or Tuesdays and Thursdays.

For more information, contact Brian Wessner at 479-8500.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

I know you all care, but my column did not appear here last week because I was in London for the second time in as many years.

Since this is a family column, I must emphasize (or, emphasise, as the British write) that in no way was in London to sample the fine English beers and soak up the friendly pub atmosphere of the Island Nation. I was also not there to stand on bar stools and sing "God Save The Queen," and I did not attend a soccer game and act like a rowdy hooligan, leading to a pummeling at the hands of the London police and an unplanned stay in an English prison. If I did these things it would set a bad example for the youth of Quincy, indicate a lack of traditional family values, and contribute to the breakdown of the moral fiber of our great nation.

Regular Sports Spotlight readers (both of you) might remember that after returning from England last year I wrote about not being at a London brewery and not drinking that brewery's beer. And, while not doing these things, a young female tourist did look at my hardened, chiseled body and did ask if I were a rugby player.

(Just a point of reference: a rugby player is a finely-tuned athletic machine, the closest comparison to whom would be, hmmmm...I guess Sylvester Stallone.)

After writing about that incident I was besieged by well-wishers saying things like: "Kerry, you pasty-white sissy la-la girl, no one said anything like that." And, "Kerry, you freak of nature, she probably said 'you're shaped like a rugby ball.'"

As you have probably figured out by now, we are in between the winter and spring high school sports seasons and there is not a whole lot else to write about. Therefore I am forced to fill half the space with meandering, pointless stories such as this. So, thanks for your time.

Now here is some real sports news:

Three former North Quincy High volleyball players recently pulled off a Patriot League trifecta.

Bucknell University's Heather Rendle, a sophomore, and Brenda Hayduk, a junior, were named to their school's Dean's List and achieved Patriot League Honor Roll status.

Hayduk is a captain of the Bucknell women's volleyball team.

Wendy Sweetser, a freshman at Lafayette College, rounded out the trio of former North Quincy volleyball players on the Patriot League Honor Roll list.

It seems that Pennsylvania has become a prime destination for the best and brightest from the Red Raiders volleyball program.

Two other local residents were named to the Patriot League Academic Honor Roll.

Representing Holy Cross were senior football player Chris Nichol (Boston College High) and freshman cross-country runner Mary O'Brien (Notre Dame Academy).

Nichol captained the 1994 Crusaders football team.

A sure sign that spring is in the air: The Nichols College baseball team just returned from a baseball exposition in Florida, where the Bison turned in a better-than-expected 2-3 record.

Leading the Nichols hitmen was Quincy's Chris Peck who batted .442 in five games.

Quincy's Jeff Powers recently completed his career as a two-sport athlete at Vermont's Norwich University.

Powers was a member of the Cadets football team in the fall and he just wrapped up his final campaign as a basketball player. He played in 24 of 25 Norwich outings and averaged 10 minutes per game.

He will graduate in May with a degree in communications.

I recently heard from former Quincy High football star Noel DiBona.

DiBona completed his second season playing IAA football at Valparaiso University in Valparaiso, Indiana, where he was a kick returner and nickel back. He also led the 7-3 Crusaders in special teams tackles.

The highlights of his season included a 20-14 win over a Butler team that Valparaiso had not beat in 14 years; and a trip to California to battle the University of San Diego.

That's quite a long ride from the Dust Bowl.

On March 29 from 6 to 8 p.m., Braintree Pop Warner Football will hold player registration at Braintree Town Hall.

The Braintree Pop Warner program is open to Quincy, Holbrook and Braintree players ages 9-14. A $60 fee is required.

They are also in need of volunteer coaches and staff members - no knowledge of football is required. For more information call Diane at 848-2069.

Four Youth Soccer Teams Ends Successful Indoor Seasons

Four teams from the Quincy Youth Soccer travel program concluded a successful winter indoor season at the South Shore Sports Center in Hingham.

Two of the teams finished the regular season undefeated and all four teams have qualified for the playoffs.

The Boys Under 10 Division I "A" team, playing as the Quincy Bay Raiders, finished 6-0-1 and in sole possession of first place in the Under 10 open division. Kevin Holleran led the Raiders in goal scoring narrowly edging out Brian O'Hanley. Forwards Jason Fidalgo, Mike Tormey, Mike Quilty, Dennis Thomson, and Derek Keezer fueled the offense which scored 46 goals in seven games while goalkeepers John Salvaggi and John Naughton, along with fullbacks Steve Pizzi, Adam O'Hara, and Sean Moriarty held the opposition to 18.

Matt Ramponi and Matt Alleva will join the team for the spring South Shore League Season.

The Girls Under 10 A team, the Quincy Ladybugs, improved on their 4-3 fall indoor record by finishing 6-1 and in a three-way tie for first place in their division. Lisa Satkevich, Erin Croke and Emily Haskins key the offense. Shannon Desmond, Kelly Manning and Lauren McGee, along with goalie Nancy Yankow spearhead the defense. Christina Conley, Elizabeth Bloomer, Kathleen McCarthy, Rachel Enos, Katy Mercurio, Erin McFarland and Missy Miller control both ends of the field for the first-place "Bugs."

The Girls Under 14 Division II "B" team, the Wollaston Warriors, finished the season in seventh place out of 20 teams in a very tough open division. The team finished with a 4-2-1 record.

The Warriors were led by the goal scoring of Julie Keene and a stingy defense anchored by goalies Amy Satkevich and Rachael Powers with fullbacks Kate Gaughan, Katie Kelly, Rachel O'Hara, Sara Price and Kelly Raymer. Forwards Ashley Rowerdink, Caitlyn O'Donnell, Jill Nicholson, Stephanie Queripel, Colleen Nichol, Caitlin Nichol, Alexis Miranda, Molly Jacobs and Teresa Ryan kept up the offensive pressure all season long. Chrissie Lewis will join the team in the spring.

The Girls Under 14 A team finished the season in a tie for second place with a 6-0-1 record, the only blemish being a tie with the B team Warriors who held a three-goal lead in the second half before being tied by a late-goal scoring rush by the senior squad. Danielle Duncan, Eileen Mawn, Katie Williamson, Liz Bennett and goalie Crystal Kazolias, carried the defense while Tara Salvaggi, Sarah Towne, Lauren Koch, Erin Toomey, Marisa Ross, Meaghan Spillane, Leanne Martin, Katie Miller, Rima Ashmanskas, Dorothy Cronin and Kerry Higgins led a potent offense for the undefeated indoor unit.

Betsy Stone and Jocelyn West will join the team in the spring.

Panther Cheerleaders To Compete For Title

The Quincy Point Panthers cheerleaders have qualified for the National Cheerleaders Association East Coast Championship to be held at Six Flags Theme Park in New Jersey.

The competition is slated for April 8-9.

The Panthers, the champions of the Quincy Youth Football League cheering competition, won the right to represent the state by winning the small division state title at Emmanuel College last fall.

In that event, teams were split based on the number of participants. All Quincy teams, including the Houghs Neck Manets and the North Quincy Apaches, competed in the small division.

With one team, Quincy would have competed in the large division against towns which pool their cheerleading squads into one team.

The Panthers recently held a two-day yard-sale fundraiser to held defray the cost of the trip for the 12 members and their coaches. Donations are being accepted to help finance a rental bus or van. They can be sent c/o Curran, 23 Smith St., Quincy, 02169, or to the Quincy Point Panthers organization, 64 Edison Park, Quincy, 02169.

Members of the team are captains Bonnie Ford and Jana Bagen, and also Tiffany McAdam, Lisa Califano, JoAnna Ford, Sarah McQuinn, Maeve Glynn, Kristen Brogna, Jamie McCarthy, Elizabeth Dunlea, Valerie Doherty and Kristen Perry. Coaches are Patti Myers and Anita Curran.

New Body Walk Class At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer "Body Walk" a new class of cardiovascular conditioning beginning April 24.

Monday and Wednesday classes will be at 9 a.m. and Tuesday and Thursday at 6:15 p.m.

Registration will begin March 31. For more information, call 479-8500, Ext. 135.

Martinson's Seven Points Lift Samoset

Bret Martinson recorded seven points (five goals, two assists) to lift Samoset Pharmacy to a 9-6 win over Lydon Russell in the Mite House League regular season finale for both clubs.

Steve Ohlson also had a big day for Samoset with two goals and two assists. Rounding out the scoring were Steve Kelley and Matt Lavery. Chris Tierney was the game's top playmaker with three assists. Paul Fasoli made two while Dan Poggi and Matt Haskins made one each.

Pat Maxey led Lydon with a hat trick. Single tallies were notched by Brendan Oliverio, Justin Thorley and Brendan Linnane. Joe Norris handed out two assists. Single assists were made by Thorley, Maxey, Linnane and Dan Durocher.

Joey McManus chalked up three goals and an assist for M. Sugarman in a 7-3 win over Barry's Deli.

Billy Barter scored twice in the winning effort. Single tallies were recorded by Dan Reggiannini and Marc McGinnis. Jarrod Abbott, Ryan Barter and Reggiannini set up goals.

Matt Germain netted all three Barry's goals. He was set up by Kyle Carmody (2), Justin Swierk and Andy Patten.

Five players lit the lamp for Paul Harold Club as it cruised to a 5-3 win over Purdy's Ice Cream.

Mike Tetreault, Richard Stone, Liam Powers, Tony Benigni and Phil Bjorkman were the winning goal-scorers. Andy McDonough, Jimmy Burke and Stone made assists.

Mike Faherty, Dan Giannotti and Matt Grazioso tallied for Purdy's. Assists were notched by Joe Sweeney, Giannotti and Faherty.

Brendan Craig's two goals and an assist lifted Doherty & White to a 5-4 win over Granite Rail Pizza.

Matt Jones, Tim Watson and John McClintlock supported Craig with a goal apiece. Taylor Reinhardt set up two scores from her defensive position while Jake O'Donnell, Pat Casper and Nick Manning handed out one assist each.

Josh Giordani paced Granite Rail with two goals and an assist. Gene Nazzaro (one goal, two assists) also had a superb outing. Mike McKeon netted the other goal.

In the Mite House League playoffs, M. Sugarman will open against Samoset Pharmacy, Harold Club will take on Granite Rail, Barry's Deli will battle Lydon Russell, and Doherty & White will face off against Purdy's Ice Cream.

Squirt House

Thorley Explodes In Regular Season Finale

Joe Thorley had one of the most explosive games of the year in the Pee Wee House League as he led Neponset Valley Survey to a 12-6 win over Keohane's in the regular-season finale for both clubs.

Thorley scored five goals and assisted on four others for a total of nine points.

Ryan Murray and Conrad Leger lit the lamp twice each in the winning effort. Single tallies were recorded by John Kisielius, Rob Rice and Steve Wilkie. Rice added two assists. Single assists were made by Wilkie, Murray, Matt Gregory and Matt O'Connell.

Kyle Piazza recorded a hat trick for Keohane's. Shane Kabilian, Kevin Mason and Steve King netted one goal each. Assists were made by Mason (2), King, Kris Farr, Chris Lumaghini, Matt Moriarty and Bill Barrus.

Marina Bay Taxi and Skinner's Winners, the top two teams in the Pee Wee House League, closed out the regular season with a 4-4 tie.

Mike Welch was the game's top scorer as he led second-place Skinner's with two goals. John Gavin and Ryan Graeber also scored. Rene Lumaghini set up two goals while Paul Zenga and Graham McShane handed out one assist each.

Netting goals for first-place Marina Bay were Matt Petit, Pat O'Donnell, Mark Giese and Sean Owens. Goals were set up by Sean Fennelly, Joe Callahan, Joe Tower, Giese and Petit.

Keith Walsh and Jody Bravo each scored three goals and made one assist to lead Colonial Federal to a 12-4 win over Mike Morrissey Club.

Scott MacDonald was among the top scorers with one goal and three assists. Mike D. Sullivan and Sean Haidul lit the lamp two times each while Richard Bonvie scored one goal and made two assists. Chris Murphy and Matt Miller dished out three assists each and Tom Gouthro aided on one score.

Jon Paquette netted two in the short effort for Morrissey Club. Pat Lahar and Dom Papile also scored. Two assists each were recorded by Lahar, Paquette and Dan Jones while Andrew Nestor set up one goal.

Final Pee Wee House League standings: Marina Bay, 12-4-2; Skinner's, 11-6-1; Neponset, 10-8; Colonial, 9-9; Keohane's, 5-11-2; Morrissey Club, 4-13-1.

In the first round of the playoffs Marina Bay will square off against Morrissey Club, Skinner's Winner's will take on Keohane's, and Neponset will face Colonial Federal.

Pee Wee House

Cooper Leads Doran In Season Finale

Bryan Cooper netted five goals and recorded two assists for Doran & Horrigan as it closed out an impressive regular-season run in the Squirt House League with a 10-4 win over Green Environmental.

Adding to the winning margin were Ryan Tobin with two goals and Chris Anderson, Mike McGonagle and John Ryan with single scores. McGonagle and Matt Alleva were the top playmakers with three assists each. Tobin and Corey Piazza dished out two assists while Chris Anderson made one.

Mike Cox led Green with two goals. Ryan McFarland netted one goal and assisted on another. Lindsay Langille also scored for Green. Tom Walsh made aided on one goal.

Brian O'Hanley lit the lamp five times as his Burgin Platner club gained the fifth seed in the playoffs with a 10-7 win over Granite Auto Electric.

Peter Turowski and Jamie Chiocchio netted two goals apiece for the winning club. Mike Delahoyde tallied once. Assists were handed out by Chiocchio (2), Turowski, Stephen Price, Andy Booker and Greg Sommers.

Lisa Kelly and Neal Gavin paced the Granite effort with two goals each. Shane Newell, Dan Coughlin and Andrew Ross scored one apiece. Newell and Ryan Rogers each set up two scores while single assists were made by Lucy Ross, Andrew Ross, Chopper Walsh, Miah Hasson and Gavin.

In a battle for second place, six players scored for Johnson Motor Parts as they eclipsed Quincy Sun, 6-3.

Matt Tupe, Michael Tupe, Pat Clifford, Scott Markarian, Andrew Mahoney and Brett Keyes were the winning goal-scorers. Setting up the goals were Rob McKenzie (2), Jeff Atkins, Bryan Petit, David Toner and Clifford.

Rob Mooney shined for the Sun with two goals and an assist. Bob Donovan recorded one goal and one assist. Jon Tallent aided on one score.

Final regular season standings in the Squirt House League: Doran, 15-2-1; Johnson Motor, 9-5-4; Quincy Sun, 8-8-2; Green, 6-10-2; Burgin, 5-11-3; Granite Auto, 4-11-4.

In first-round playoff action, Doran will battle Granite Auto, Johnson Motor will take on Burgin Platner and Quincy Sun will face Green Environmental.

Sacred Heart Basketball

The semifinals in the Sacred Heart CYO basketball league saw a series of furiously played games.

Rookie Girls:

The Purple People Pulverizers pasted the Pink Panthers, 29-21.

Kelly Manning paced the Pulverizers with 12 points. She was aided by Caitie Moran's defense and Jessica Connolly's two-way play.

Erin Gavaghan, Katie Lynch and Kate McGue scored all but one of the Panther's points.

Croke edged Brady, 18-16, behind a seven-point effort by Nora Hanna.

Tricia Laydon and Michelle Mattson played well for the Brady bunch.

College girls:

The Hoyas topped Shea, 36-28.

The winners were led by Lauren Liuzzo's scoring, Teresa Ryan's point play and Julie Burke's D.

The Lavery twins, Kate and Kim, combined for all but three of the Shea points with 14 and 11, respectively. Elizabeth Furlong contributed strong rebounding.

McGrath/Ridge moved past Sullivan/Bowes. 27-19.

Beth McNally paced the winning effort with 12 points. Casey Ridge added great ball-handling to go with her eight points and Alyson McGrath played well on defense.

Melissa Rico, Andrea Rothman and Caitlin Powers played well in defeat.

Rookie Boys:

The Hornets charged past the Bulls, 37-27.

The winners broke open a tight battle in the fourth quarter by controlling the offensive boards. Matthew Grazioso was the big stinger for the Hornets with 12 points. Pater Sakharis scored eight and James Coughlin pitched in with stifling defensive work.

Brian Cyr led the Bulls with 11 points. Jason Fidalgo scored eight and handed out five assists.

The Raptors blocked out the Suns, 32-25.

Dave Jaehnig recorded half of the winning points. Phil Perry added 12 and Matt Newton scored four.

William Gardner, Jonathon Corral and Sean Drew led a balanced attack for the Suns.

College Boys:

St. Ann's Minutemen fired past Sacred Heart Jaehnig, 38-32.

Brandon Deshler played a great pressure game and scored eight points for the Minutemen. Matt Mooney netted nine and Eric Stanton was strong on the glass.

Pat Jaehnig put on an awesome offensive display in the short effort, scoring 16 points including four three-pointers. Phil Olivera added 13 and Justin Adler played well at point guard.

The Croke Jayhawks topped the Tarheels, 31-20.

Dave Buckley led the way for the Jayhawks with 12 points. Chris Ham added four points.

Tom Buckley tossed in nine for the Tarheels while Ryan Graeber, Jimmy Johnson and Brian Kenny played well.

Pro Boys:

Gorham outgunned the Burke Celtics, 55-39.

Nick Cyr had four three-pointers among his 18 points, which led the winning club. Matt O'Day chipped in with 12 and Rick Loughmiller added all-around hustle.

The O'Connell boys, Joe and Billy, played well for the Celtics. Dan O'Toole's 13 points led the scoring. Tim McAdams netted seven.

Rosenberger edged LeBlanc, 43-42, thanks to Frank McNamara's 26 points and his winning free throw with just one second to play.

McNamara's decisive stand at the charity stripe was set up by a technical foul call.

Brian Deptula added six points for the winning club and played a fine all-around game.

Ryan Deshler of the LeBlanc squad hit a pair of 3's late in the contest to keep the game close, and scored 13 points overall. Mark Stanton buried 12

Hoop Clinic April 2 At Boston Garden

For the fifth consecutive year the Quincy Recreation Department will distribute tickets to the Boston Celtic's Basketball Clinic, to be conducted Sunday, April 2 at 11 a.m. at Boston Garden.

This year's event is sponsored by The Boston Globe and the Red Auerbach Youth Foundation. The free clinic will feature Boston Celtics players and coaching staff.

Participants will learn about rebounding, shooting and defense from the pros. The clinic will be one hour long.

Family groups are encouraged to attend and participants are responsible for their own transportation.

Quincy residents interested in obtaining tickets can call the Quincy Recreation Dept. at 376-1394. Tickets are limited and requests will be filled on a first-come, first-serve basis.

Ticket requests should include one adult for every four tickets.

The Auerbach Youth Foundation is a permanent endowment to promote recreation and youth development opportunities and athletic events throughout Massachusetts.

Jennifer Pineo Places Third In Shotput At N.E. Championships

Jennifer Pineo concluded her indoor season with a third-place performance in the shotput at the New England Championships.

Pineo's throw of 37' 6'1/2" was her second best effort of the year. In championship level meets this winter, she won the Old Colony League title and was named to the All-Star Team, took second in Class B, second in All-States, ninth in the Eastern States, and third in the New Englands.

She is a junior.

Catherine Saltamacchia, 90
Operated Former Italian Grocery Store

A funeral Mass for Catherine (Mantia) Saltamacchia, 90, of Quincy Point, was celebrated March 18 in St. Joseph's Church.

Mrs. Saltamacchia died March 13 at home.

She was a communicant of St. Joseph's Church and a volunteer in helping the sick in the area.

Mrs. Saltamacchia helped her late husband, Joseph A. Saltamacchia, operate an Italian grocery store in Quincy Square many years ago.

Born, raised and educated in Quincy, she was a lifelong resident of the city.

She is survived by three sons, Anthony J. Saltamacchia of Quincy, Joseph J. Saltamacchia of Sandown, N.H., and Francis L. Saltamacchia of Franklin; a brother, Anthony Mantia of Weymouth; 20 grandchildren, and 31 great-grandchildren. She was the mother of the late Bernard Saltamacchia.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Joseph J. Derba, 95
Operated Taxi Stand In Boston

A funeral Mass for Joseph J. Derba, 95, of Quincy, was celebrated Tuesday in St. Susanna Church, Dedham.

Mr. Derba died March 17 at the Veterans Administration Hospital in West Roxbury after a brief illness.

A retired member of the Independent Taxi Owners Association, he operated a taxi stand outside the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Boston where he met many famous actors and politicians. He retired in 1967.

He grew up in the West End of Boston and enlisted in the Navy in World War I before he was old enough. He served before the war in the Naval Armed Guard as an anti-submarine gunner on American Merchant ships in convoys across the North Atlantic and later he served on the battleship U.S.S. Texas.

Mr. Derba lived in the Savin Hill section of Dorchester before moving to Quincy in 1980.

He was a longtime fan of the Boston Red Sox.

Husband of the late Helen (Jasevic) Derba, he is survived by two sons, Eugene J. Derba of Dedham and Joseph J. Derba Jr. of Winchester; seven grandchildren, and eight great-grandchildren.

Burial was in St. Joseph Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home, 116 Franklin St.

Josephine M. Downing, 75
Housekeeper At Harvard University

A funeral Mass for Josephine M. (Gorski) Downing, 75, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Downing died March 18 in Quincy Hospital after a brief illness.

A housekeeper for 20 years at Harvard University, she retired in 1980.

She enjoyed cooking and gardening.

Born in South Boston, she lived in Dorchester before moving to Quincy 30 years ago.

Wife of the late Daniel J. Downing, she is survived by two sons, Daniel F. Downing of Rockland and James J. Downing of Norwood; two daughters, Maureen McLaughlin of Hanson and Frances Downing of Quincy; two brothers, Joseph Gorski of Florida and Frank Gorski of Dorchester; two sisters, Lorraine Cavanaugh and Mary Zdankowski, both of Quincy; and seven grandchildren.

Burial was in Mt. Wollaston Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St.

Nicholas Chan, 6

A funeral service for Nicholas Chan, 6, of Quincy, will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Lydon Funeral Home, 644 Hancock St., Wollaston.

Nicholas died March 18 at Children's Hospital in Boston.

He was born in Malden.

Nicholas is survived by his mother, Fanny Chan and a brother, Christopher Chan, both of Quincy.

Burial will be in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Visiting hours are Friday from 6 to 9 p.m. in the funeral home.

South Shore Habitat Plans New Home In Quincy Point

South Shore Habitat for Humanity will break ground in Quincy in May for a new home.

The City of Quincy and the Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services have donated a vacant site at 95 Main St., Quincy Point, for the project. The new house will be a three-bedroom, two-story dwelling.

Local families in need of decent, permanent housing and who meet Habitat income and residency requirements can apply to purchase the home. South Shore Habitat will select the family according to housing needs, income, and residence. The family will be chosen without respect to age, sex, sexual preference, disability, race, religion or national origin.

Since the home will be new, construction may be modified within limits to accommodate families with disabilities.

The family will purchase the home at cost and will receive long-term, no interest financing, resulting in a small monthly mortgage payment. South Shore Habitat will use the payments to finance future home construction or renovations for other families with housing needs.

The family must also invest "sweat equity" time in their home and those of other Habitat families. Once a family is given conditional acceptance, they are required to put in 50 sweat equity hours working on Saturdays along with other volunteers on construction, landscaping, site clean-up and other tasks before their applications are formally approved.

South Shore Habitat requires an additional 450 hours of sweat equity which can be completed over a one-year period. Hours can be accumulated by any family member; no construction skills are necessary.

Applications are limited to families who:

•Are Quincy residents and have lived there at least one year, or;

•Have been former residents for at least three years, or;

•Are current City employees who have worked for the City for at least one year.

All candidates should meet the following annual gross family income guidelines. Extenuating circumstances will be considered.

•Family of three (one parent, two children), $17,000 to $24,000.

•Family of four, $17,000 to $25,000.

•Family of five, $17,000 to $27,000.

•Family of six or more, $17,000 to $28,000.

For more information, or to apply write South Shore Habitat for Humanity, P.O. Box 336, Weymouth Landing, MA 02188, or call 617-340-5992. Applications are also available at most local churches, the information desk in City Hall annex lobby, and at Hibernia Savings, 731 Hancock St., Wollaston. In addition, applicants may call the Family Selection Committee Chairperson, John Seavey, at 617-383-9722 (days).

Deadline for applications is June 17.

Siciliano's New Pen-Pal: President Bill Clinton

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano has a new pen-pal of sorts: President Bill Clinton.

Siciliano recently received a letter from Clinton in response to a previous letter he had sent the president. Among the topics Siciliano wrote about were crime, emergency management and the current state of the country.

Siciliano told Clinton he has a "terrible feeling about where America is going," noting that while he supports the president's recently-passed crime bill, he feels that more money should be spent not only toward prevention of criminal activities but also on the promotion of constructive ones, particularly those pertaining to youth.

"Mr. President, I have a copy of the Crime Bill Program," he wrote. "Billions of dollars are being allocated within the next five years for personnel and crime prevention programs. I hope you would also consider high school students throughout our Commonwealth who love their parents, respect their neighbors, care about each other and obey the laws of the land.

"One of the objectives of our emergency management agencies is to acquire funds for our student programs....Your Americorps Program is an excellent example of reviving American volunteerism and is an opportunity for our youth and all Americans to work together as a team for the good of humanity."

Siciliano also briefly described the activities of the state's emergency management groups--including the recently-formed Massachusetts Emergency Management Association, of which he is president--and sent Clinton a videotape of the recent CBS television special "In the Killing Fields of America."

Two weeks after he mailed his letter, Siciliano received a response. Among the president's comments:

"It's important to me that I hear the thoughts and experiences of people who care about the future of America and the world. Our nation faces many challenges as we prepare for the next century. I am seeking the most innovative approaches to address those challenges.

"Thank you for sharing your ideas with me. Sincerely, Bill Clinton."

Parade Committee Seeks Suggestions For Parade Theme

The Quincy Christmas Festival Committee is seeking input in choosing this year's 43rd Christmas Parade Theme.

Each year the them winner is invited to participate in the parade and be recognized as he/she travels along the three-mile route. The committee, each year, presents a gift of appreciation to the winner at an awards ceremony immediately following the parade.

Mike McFarland, general chairman of the committee said, "past years" responses indicate the public's wish to be part of the parade."

McFarland said entries should be mailed to Frances Flynn, 79 Freeman St., Quincy, MA 02170 no later than Friday, April 14.

The committee will select the winning theme Wednesday, April 19.

How to select a hearing aid.

If you are considering the purchase of a hearing aid, here are some helpful tips.

- See a Board Certified Hearng Instrument Specialist or Audiologist.
- Make sure that they have an office close by (hearing aids require service).
- Do they have state of the art equipment? Ask about REAL EAR measurement, middle ear compliance testing, a sound proof booth, word recognition testing, video otoscopy and programmable hearing aids.
- Check to see if they have a good track record with Attorney Generals office and Better Business Bureau.
- Shop around for services, location, experience and price.
- Avoid TV advertised products. You pay more for the commercials and you frequently get a salesperson not a specialist.

Charles Simpson Jr. Director On Hibernia Savings Board

Charles R. Simpson Jr. has been elected to the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank.

The announcement was made last week by Mark A. Osborne, chairman of the board and chief executive office of Hibernia Savings.

Simpson is the former chairman and CEO of Quincy Savings Bank, which was acquired in January 1995 by Citizens Financial Group of Providence, R.I.

"We are delighted that Chuck Simpson has agreed to join the board of directors of The Hibernia Savings Bank," said Osborne. "Chuck's experience and expertise as both a banker and a community leader in Quincy will serve as an invaluable resource to The Hibernia Savings Bank. It is not only a pleasure but also a privilege to welcome someone who can contribute as much as Chuck Simpson can to our company."

Widely recognized within the South Shore

business community for his expertise in all areas of banking and extensive community leadership, Simpson began his career as a teller at Quincy Savings in 1963. He assumed the position of treasurer in 1974 and was successively promoted to vice president and treasurer in 1976, executive vice president in 1979, president and COO in 1983, president and CEO/COO in 1990 and chairman and CEO in 1994.

"Until January of this year, I was associated with a savings bank that had a long history, was headquartered in Quincy, and served an area that my family and I have spent our entire lives involved with," said Simpson. "I feel honored to be able to begin a new association with a financial institution that has a similar style."

Simpson is chairman of The Quincy 2000 Corporation, immediate past chairman and a director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and a former director of the Massachusetts Bankers Association. He is past president and a director of Kiwanis Club of Quincy and a member and former chairman of The Salvation Army Advisory Board.

Other current and past community affiliations include Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services, Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., Beechwood Community Life Center, Hospice of the South Shore, Nazareth Family Center, and Impact Quincy.

Cablevision To Award Nine $500 Scholarships

Continental Cablevision announces it will award nine $500 scholarships to graduating high school seniors on the South Shore who plan to pursue careers in communications.

High school students in Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell, Quincy, Milton, Randolph and Scituate are eligible to apply for the Continental Communications Scholarship if they will attend an accredited institution of higher learning next fall in pursuit of a career in communications industry, television, radio, journalism or theater.

To apply for the Continental Communications Scholarship, students should pick up an application at their high school guidance office or at their local cable office. Each application should be accompanied by a letter (no more than two pages) to Joseph Hayes, Continental Cablevision, 81 School St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The letter should include the applicant's background, their interest in the communications field and why the scholarship is important to him or her. They should also include letters of recommendation from two teachers.

All applications and letters must be received by April 15 at Continental Cablevision to be considered. The scholarship committee is comprised of senior staff at Continental.

Concerns Raised Over Two Auto Shop Plans

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board Tuesday took under advisement, until April 11, a request from A Plus Auto Inc. for permission to change the location of their Motor II license from 519 Quincy Ave. to 80 Copeland St.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said that there was not enough time to "notify abutters" . Board members said they will visit the site and check the neighborhood before issuing a permit.

The location is across from the 7-11 convenience store and adjacent to Crescent Video. Eddie Abed, owner of A Plus Auto Inc., said he would have about 20 cars parked and share six parking spaces with the video store. He said he plans to erect a fence replacing the one which Fabrizio called a "disgrace".

City Clerk and License Board Chairman Shea said "we need to take our time, Copeland St. is a very busy street."

In another matter, Shea told Michael Davis, owner of Davis Truck & Auto Repair to try to "find a more suitable location for his business and then report back to the board,"

Davis wanted to locate the repair business at 105 Federal Ave., South Quincy for a repair shop license.

Fabrizio said the area is "overwhelmed with these types of operations" "and that the neighbors at a recent meeting did not "support such a business" and were "against issuing a license" The site was originally housed by a limousine company.

Davis told the board although he had been looking for a site for his business in Quincy for a "long time", and thought he had found it, said he would try to find another area. Shea told him he would "give him all the help he needed" in finding another spot.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said "if you don't have neighbors on your side, you're in trouble." Davis' request was placed on file.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for Wollaston Center Improvements: Phase II until 10:00 AM local time on Friday, April 7, 1995 at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract consists of selective cold planing of approximately 1650 feet of existing pavement, installation of new pavement, new sidewalks, wheelchair ramps, resetting of curbs, adjustment of utility appurtenances, storm drainage, landscaping, installation of decorative lighting poles, installations of electrical distribution system, fire alarm systems, traffic interconnect system and wire loop detectors, relocations of existing signals, posts, and installation of new mast arm, street signage and pavement markings.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Massachusetts Highway Department's Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges (1988 edition) and Construction Standards (1977 edition), all as last revised, unless specified or directed otherwise.

All work under this contract shall be completed in 130 calendar days.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy, Massachusetts will be required for each set of Contract Documents. Bidders requesting Contract Documents by mail shall also include a separate non-refundable deposit payable to the City of Quincy in the amount of $15.00 per set to cover shipping and handling costs.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours from 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the Offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, MA 02169 on or after March 22, 1995.

A pre-bid conference will be held in the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works on Thursday, March 30, 1995 at 2:00 PM. All prospective bidders are urged to attend.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder must furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Payment and Materials Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City.

The bidding and award of this Contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Law, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

No bidder may withdraw the bid within 90 calendar days after the actual date of the opening of the bids.

All prospective bidders must be certified by the Mass Highway Department.

All Federal/State and City of Quincy regulations in relation to minimum wage rates. Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprises, Minority Work Force, Equal Employment Opportunity and Employment of Quincy Residents must be complied with. The project goals in these areas shall be as given below.

1. The Contractor shall maintain on the project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of eleven percent (11%) MBE participation and five percent (5%) WBE participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be required and maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit completed MBE/WBE forms with the bid.

3. Compliance with the City of Quincy's Ordinance No. 532 requiring Contractors working on City-sponsored construction projects to hire a certain percentage of Quincy Residents is mandatory.

4. Payment of minimum wage rates for all workers, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries or the U.S. Department of Labor Wage Rates issued in the most current "Wage Decisions," as applicable to the project area. Payment of Federal minimum wage rates or higher of the two (Federal or State) minimum wage rates is mandatory when Federal funds are utilized on a project.

Failure to comply with these requirements may render the bid non-responsive, and thus ineligible for further consideration. No waiver for any portion of these provisions will be granted.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all bids if deemed in the best interest of the City. The City does not condone submission of unbalanced bids. Such bids may be summarily rejected.

Violence Prevention Peer Leaders Visit Broad Meadows School

Twelve members of V.I.B.E. (Violence Intervention for a Better Environment), a group of teenagers trained in violence prevention, recently visited Broad Meadows Middle School.

Quincy V.I.B.E., part of Impact Quincy, consists of Quincy and North Quincy High School students. During the visit, Broad Meadow middle schoolers had the opportunity to do a 45-minute conflict resolution workshop with V.I.B.E. peer leaders. The V.I.B.E. group emphasized how fights escalate and how adults and youths have choices in who to de-escalate a fight.

The students expressed positive feedback after the workshop.

"I liked the way they talked to us and answered all of our questions," said seventh grader Theresa Travers.

"Skits and games were fun. They taught us that violence isn't good," added eighth grader Cynthia Harris.

Peer leaders participating in the workshop were Felicia Tam, Kevin Lee, Jennie Weng, Sally Lai, Billy Li, Annie Liu, Dave Nguyen, Tammy Au, Cindy Wong, Pauline Wang, Amy Leung and Teresa Job.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, you who gives meaning to and shines light on my path so that I may reach my goals, you who gives me the divine grace to forgive and forget the evil done unto me and which is with me at every moment of my life. I want in this short dialogue to reassure you one more time that I do not ever want to be separated from you, no matter how grand the worldly possessions may be, my desire to be with you and my brothers in perpetual glory will not be lessened. (One should say this prayer 3 days in a row without mentioning the request, within 3 days the divine favor shall be granted, no matter how unobtainable it seemed) Publish this prayer as soon as your request is granted.

Marina Parking Plan Introduced

A parking plan for Marina Bay presented to the Quincy License Board at Tuesday's meeting was taken under advisement and continued until April 11.

Chairman Joseph Shea said the plan will be reproduced and include new signs with each lot then applying for separate licenses.

According to Geroge O'Malley, owner of Coastal Partners, there will be a total of 1,449 parking spaces in the commercial section of Marina Bay, an increase of 268 spaces from last year.

When Shea said he was going to ask the "million dollar question" as to the status of the empty lot No. 37 owned by the Monarch Life. Richard Novack who represents Monarch Life, said the property is still in "ongoing discussions with no agreement as yet." The lot can accommodate 200 cars.

Richard Barrett, restaurant owner at Marina Bay cited "greed" on the part of Monarch Life for not making available the extra spaces.

O'Malley said from Monday through Friday, visitors may park from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. On weekends, from 6 to 9 p.m. commercial parking at Building 10 will be available.

Shea noted that people have been known to park in fire lane signs and said that law should be enforced. Arthur Casey, one of the owners said they are planning to use orange cones along the fire lanes.

Atty. Douglas Randall, representing tenants at Marina Bay noted that persons were illegally parking along Victory Road. He suggested the owners of Marina Bay adopt a formal position and file plans and legal documents concerning the parking spaces available.

Barrett cited problems with parking near eating areas He said persons can use the MWRA parking lot on the weekends, which a local resident immediately took exception to.. Frank Coyne said "what happens when the MWRA has to work weekends?" Barrett said that so far that had not been a problem. The MDC owns the parking lot and leases it to the MWRA Barrett cotinued at a cost of $2. .

Coyne told the license board that there are "too many licenses issued" and said a restriction on the amount of cars parked should be enforced.

Ward 6 councillor Bruce Ayers urged the city to closely monitor the final parking plans and make sure there is "proper signage". He said the problems with residents at Marina Bay is "frustrating" and that if the parking plan isn't approved, we would "have to put a halt to certain activities".

Shea cited the "overflow of sewage last year".in which Randall explained that the pumping station has been completely rebuilt and can "grind up old shoes if it has to".

For Outstanding Community Service

Fr. William McCarthy Honored As Sun Citizen Of Year

Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church and Quincy's beloved "Father Bill' was honored Sunday as the 1994 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year" for his devotion to the needy and poor over many years.

The 10th annual award was presented to him at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by city and state officials, members of the clergy, representatives of organizations he has been active with, family, friends and other invited guests.

Fr. McCarthy was selected for the honor from among 37 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers. The final choice was made by a panel of judges that considered all 37 nominees.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth presented Fr. McCarthy with a clock plaque inscribed:

"To Rev. William McCarthy, Father Bill, For Outstanding Community Service Through His Many Years Of Dedication To Helping The Poor, The Hungry, The Homeless And All In Need Regardless of Race Or Religion."

"The clock is symbolic," Bosworth said. "It symbolizes all the time you have given to those in need."

Bosworth said Fr. McCarthy "has generously given of himself throughout his life. If there is someone in need, he is there to help. You might say his generosity has no bounds.

"Like the time the housekeeper at the rectory reported the blankets missing. Fr. McCarthy had given them to a needy family.

"And the time one of the beds disappeared from the rectory. It had gone to a home in Germantown that needed it.

"Father Bill would give you the shirt off his back—figuratively and literally. And if you said it didn't fit, he would go out and buy one that did."

Sun Editor Robert Bosworth presented Fr. McCarthy with a framed special Page One of The Quincy Sun, telling of his selection as the Citizen of the Year and listing the names of the 36 other nominees and those of the judges.

"Fr. Bill, we could have filled an entire newspaper listing your accomplishments," the younger Bosworth said.

Five Councillors Voice Support; Ayers Undecided

Shaw's Project One Vote Away From Approval

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposed Shaw's Supermarket which would be built at the old Boston Gear Works site on the North Quincy-Wollaston line is now just one vote shy of being approved by the City Council.

Five councillors have gone on record as saying they will support the project. Two of those votes, however, may be dependent on whether Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers gives Shaw's the green light.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, whose district includes part of the project, told The Sun at press time he will support the proposal if all conditions drawn up by the Quincy Planning Board and City Council are met. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said they also will vote in favor if Ayers also supports the project, part of which falls in Ward 6. Council President Michael Cheney and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said last week the project already has their support.

At-large Councillor Timothy Cahill said he is "leaning toward" voting in favor but will not make his stand on the issue public until the council takes its vote. Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia said he needs more time to review the project. Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson could not be reached for comment.

The council plans to vote on the matter at its April 3 meeting.

The project, which has been approved by the Quincy Planning Board and has the support of Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, needs the support of two-thirds of the nine-member council in order to be passed. Shaw's is seeking a special permit to built at the site.

Phelan said the supermarket chain's purchase of nearby Bob's Speed and Auto Shop was a key reason for his decision to support the project, since the deal will allow the Shaw's entrance to be moved further down Hancock Street and away from neighboring Albion Road.

"If all the conditions are met, I would say I will be voting for it," said Phelan, who added that he has asked City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to make sure all plans for the project are proper and legal. McGrath said at press time he hopes to review the plans by the end of the week.

The Planning Board, while voicing its support for the project, has asked that more than two dozen

More Money, Opportunity In New Florida Post

For D'Aprix, It Was An Offer He Couldn't Refuse

Charles D'Aprix is leaving Quincy 2000 because he was given an offer he couldn't refuse: a big pay hike and opportunity.

Mayor James Sheets, who described D'Aprix's resignation as a loss to the city, said D'Aprix makes an annual salary of about $52,000 in Quincy and will make "virtually double" that in Florida. D'Aprix said the increase is considerable, but not that high.

D'Aprix, who has headed the city's public-private planning corporation for two-and-a-half years, announced this week that he will resign Friday to accept a position as executive director of a similar development partnership in Hollywood, Fla., a community considerably larger than Quincy.

CHARLES D'APRIX

In addition to the pay increase, D'Aprix cited the development challenges in Florida, including the attempt to locate a site for a professional sports stadium for the Florida Panthers of the National Hockey League, the revitalization of a local port and other projects as the main reason for his decision.

Other factors that prompted the move include an increase in benefits and "the great weather in Florida," he said with a laugh.

Sheets praised D'Aprix for the work he has done in the city, and listed among his most notable accomplishments the formation

'Call To Artists' For Arts In Parks Program

City Council President Michael Cheney has announced that the Committee for the Arts in the Parks Program is holding a "Call to Artists."

Any artist wishing to perform in the program may send a proposal to Arts in the Parks Program, First Night Office, City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169. Artists should clearly state the type of entertainment and their background in the performing arts field.

Cheney said he has received several inquiries about the potential of expanding the Arts in the Parks Program this year to additional parks in the city's neighborhoods.

"I appreciate everyone's enthusiasm," he said. "However, we must start slowly."

Cheney has agreed to one additional performance in Ward 4 at the request of neighborhood residents Alba Tocci and Steve Cantelli. That program expansion was possible because of the additional sponsorship of Cheney and Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, who will supplement of the cost of the program.

The Ward 4 program will be held in Shea Park, the site of the Granite Workers' Memorial.

Cheney said he is thrilled to see the support for the Arts in the Parks Program, which is to be held this summer.

Adams Inn Gets Warm Reception But Delay In License

In keeping with the Quincy License Board policy, Chairman Joseph Shea told owners of the Adams Inn at 29 Hancock St., they would have to return for a second hearing April 11 to apply for an all alcoholic license.

At a license board meeting Tuesday, Shea said the rule of the license board which was adopted last Janurary states that anyone applying for an all alcoholic license for the first time attend two hearings. Just in case there are any "abutters at the last minute, " or that the board granted the request "too fast". Shea promised that the Adams Inn request would be on top of the agenda. at the April 11 meeting.

Robert Galligan, innkeeper of the 103 room Inn showed plans to the board including a new lobby following the demolition of the former Aquarius Lounge. Galligan said he hoped to open May 15.

He told the board that he plans to have a full time food and beverage person, plus 24 hour security . He said when there is any expansion of any kind more security personnel would be hired.

Galligan said the hotel was designed primarily for persons coming into the city, but that local residents "would always be welcome".

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the Inn was a "positive thing for the city". Building Inspector Matthew Mulvey said the new Inn was a "credit to our city" and that seeing the site when you drive on Route looks as fabulous as the job so far".

Maralin Manning, executive director of Quincy Business Center Professional Association welcomed what she said was the most important step toward creating more tourism in Quincy."

Ward 3 Councillor Larry Chretien said he "grew up in the neighborhood of the Inn" and called it a "dramatic change for the better". Ward 6 Councillor Leo Ayers echoed Chretien's comments and said he was "impressed with the upgrading of the North end of the city.

QCBPA Members Concerned About Proposed Free Parking

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) have expressed concerns about Mayor James Sheets' plans to offer free parking at the Ross Parking Garage.

The mayor announced last week he plans to offer two-hour free parking on the ground level at the garage beginning May 1. Sheets said his intention is to use the free parking to attract more shoppers to the city's downtown while also creating a greater turnover at the garage by limiting it to two hours.

Sheets is planning a considerable fee for those who stay on the ground level beyond two hours, although the amount has not yet been determined.

The mayor said he does not want people parking at the garage for eight hours while they take the MBTA to work in Boston, and said the fee will be high enough to discuss such activity.

Several QCBPA members expressed concerns about the plan at the association's meeting Tuesday, with the main concerns raised being how the employees of local businesses would be impacted and whether patrons who shop in the area for over two hours should have to pay the higher parking fee because they spent extra time patronizing downtown businesses.

Sheets noted at press time that, as reported in last week's Quincy Sun, employee and other longer-term parking will be available on the two upper levels at the Ross Garage, since his plan only pertains to the ground level. The exact details of the plan, which the mayor has been working on with Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, have not been finalized.

The mayor added that the city is also looking at other possibilities for parking space in the downtown, including the site of the former Kincaide's Furniture Store on Hancock Street. In addition, the Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court is still available for use at 25¢ an hour, he noted.

QCBPA members said they will send a list of their concerns to the mayor. Sheets said he is willing to look at them, but added that his first priority is to try to attract shoppers to the downtown.

"You can't open (parking) spaces for retail and at the same time provide cheap, long-term parking," he said. "You can't have it both ways."

Downtown Business Summit Cancelled

The Quincy 2000 Corporation has cancelled its Summit on Downtown for local businesses scheduled for this week.

The summit was to be held last night (Wednesday) at 6 p.m. in Quincy Center. It will be rescheduled at a later date.

Cahill Candidate For City Council Re-election

City Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill announced Tuesday that he will run for re-election to a fifth term.

Cahill, who lives on Grenwold Rd. with his wife Tina and four daughters, said he is looking forward to serving one last term on the council in order to continue to insist that government serves its purpose on the local level, as well as to deal with the forthcoming challenges brought about by the electoral changes in Washington, D.C.

"I would like to see us try to maintain governmental services and institutions at their current level while insisting that we retain a sense of fiscal responsibility that will keep taxes at their lowest possible rate," he said.

TIMOTHY CAHILL

Cahill added that it is essential for a city the size of Quincy to increase its tax base by accepting and encouraging new businesses to locate within in the city.

"We cannot support projects such as the proposed addition to the Thomas Crane Public Library without sufficient revenues to pay for them," he said.

Cahill, 36, is a graduate of Boston University and has been a self-employed businessman for 13 years. While on the council, he has served as chairman of the Downtown, Tourism, and Federal and State Funds Committees and was responsible for the initiation of the Adopt-an-Island Program.

Sheets Still Hopeful About Decelle

Mayor James Sheets has still not given up hope on bringing Decelle to Quincy Center.

The Braintree-based clothier, which is owned by Burlington Coat Factory of New Jersey, signed a letter of intent with the city late last year to open a new store at the site of the former Child World and Cummings stores in Quincy Center. However, a formal lease has yet to be signed.

Sheets said at press time that the Decelle situation has not changed as far as he is concerned.

"The status of Decelle is that we still have a letter of intent," he said. "There has been no indicator that they've changed their mind (about the Quincy site)."

The mayor added, however, that the city is trying to lure other retailers to the site and will drop the Decelle negotiations if it gets a serious offer from another potential tenant.

THE TIMING FACTOR IN MEAL TIME

Ever since someone pointed out that the butter-loving French enjoy a low rate of heart disease, people have been trying to figure out why. Now researchers on both sides of the Atlantic have come up with at least one possibility: The timing of calorie consumption. A French person generally eats nearly 60 percent of the daily diet before 2 p.m., with lunch being the heartiest meal of the day. After lunch, they tend to remain active for some five hours before eating again. Americans, on the other hand, often consume only 40 percent of daily calories by 2 p.m., after which they tend to be inactive and snack within three hours. Also important to note, the French diet is filled with fresh fruits and vegetables.

P.S. Earlier calorie consumption may also improve fat metabolism, insulin production and blood fluidity.

Regular exercise, eating a healthy diet, and cutting down on unhealthy habits not only make you feel better, but extends your life as well. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension, and cholesterol. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're here at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine. Convenient parking.

Rematch In Ward 4

You can add Ward 4 as a City Council battleground this election.

Michael D'Amico will again challenge incumbent Tom Fabrizio for that seat.

D'AMICO

"I am definitely running," says D'Amico. "I've got my committee together and we are now working on a platform to present to the voters of Ward 4."

D'Amico, who is now 20 and a political science major at Stonehill College, says he will make his official announcement at a 7 p.m. campaign kick-off fundraiser Wednesday, April 26 at The Common Market, Willard St., West Quincy.

Two years ago D'Amico, at age 18, made an impressive political debut, losing to Fabrizio by only 277 votes.

"I am encouraged by that vote of two years ago," he says. "That's one reason why I am running this year.

"Another reason is that I feel there are many issues that must be addressed. I also have some city-wide concerns."

That infamous tower that figured as a main issue in 1993 will not be one—or much of a one—this year, D'Amico indicates.

He says his campaign committee numbers 14 people including two representatives from each of the five Ward 4 precincts.

D'Amico worked as an intern in the office of Rep. Michael Bellotti this summer and was recently reappointed by Gov. William Weld to his fifth term on the non-partisan Massachusetts Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee.

D'Amico is a member of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association board but resigned from that organization's newsletter staff because of his decision to run for the Ward 4 seat.

He says, however, he plans to publish his own newsletter during the campaign.

"I'm going to work extremely hard," he says.

Unless another candidate steps forward this year's Ward 4 fight will be strictly a rematch between Fabrizio and D'Amico.

One name being mentioned however as a potential third candidate is that of Steve Hawko, president of the Ward 4 Association.

And there's speculation there might be another candidate waiting in the wings.

THE ONLY OTHER certain ward council battleground at the moment is Ward 3 with Patrick McDermott and Steve Doherty dueiling for the seat being vacated by Larry Chretien to run at-large. McDermott is president of the Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association and an aide to Senator Michael Morrissey. Doherty is administrative recording clerk at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds.

Other names have been mentioned as possible candidates, among them: James Boudreau, Howard McKay, David McGillicuddy and Robert Marshall. But no official word from them yet.

THE WARD 5 seat will also be open now that Charles Phelan is stepping down. It remains to be seen if there will be a scramble for it.

Lone official candidate is School Committeeman Steve Durkin.

Joseph Murphy, a legislative aide to Rep. Ron Mariano, has been thinking of running but he may not.

It would seem unlikely that Durkin would get a free ride but right now, he is the only official contender.

THE BIG QUESTION in Ward 2 is whether School Committee Vice Chairman Dan Raymondi, a veteran campaigner, will scare off other candidates for the seat Ted DeCristofaro is stepping down from after 14 years of service.

Raymondi is definitely running for that seat. No one else, so far, has indicated a "me too."

RAY CATTANEO got roasted and toasted at his retirement party at the Elks Hall last week and there is still a little more recognition to come.

CATTANEO

The committee that planned the dinner is now preparing a plaque to be erected at the third base dugout at Adams Field.

The plaque will proclaim it as the "Raymond C. Cattaneo Dugout."

Maybe they should add a line: "Also Known As Ray's Place."

This is the dugout the Morrisette Legion baseball team used all the years Ray coached it and is still used by the team today. He still sits there with them.

Cattaneo was honored at the dinner for his 22 years service in the Park-Forestry-Cemetery Departments, the last seven as executive director.

Among the presentations were an Adams Fie'd home plate framed and engraved "May You Always Be Safe At Home" and a special Page One of The Quincy Sun with a story headlined "Ray Cattaneo: A Winner On And Off The Field."

One of the photos on the page is of Cattaneo swinging a bat when he played in the Boston Braves farm system and almost won the third base job with the Braves.

Cattaneo, as previously noted h ere, had the misfortune to come up in the Braves system at the same time Eddie Mathews did. Mathews took over third base, hit 512 homeruns and went on to the Hall of Fame.

Brian Buckley, director of the Quincy Council on Aging, who did a nice job as emcee at the dinner, slipped in a fun-poking "telegram" that read:

BUCKLEY

"Dear Ray: Sorry I couldn't make the time tonight. But I just wanted everyone to know that you taught me everything I know about fielding."—Bill Buckner.

There was another so-called telegram:

"Sorry I can't make the time tonight. I forgot the date."—Ronald Reagan.

SPEAKING OF BUCKLEY, he his father Lionel (Shine) Buckley, formerly of the Recreation Department, and Quincy High School basketball Coach John Franceschini will be heading for Seattle this week for the NCAA Final Four showdown and the National Association of Basketball Coaches conference, but disappointed they won't see the UMass Minutemen there.

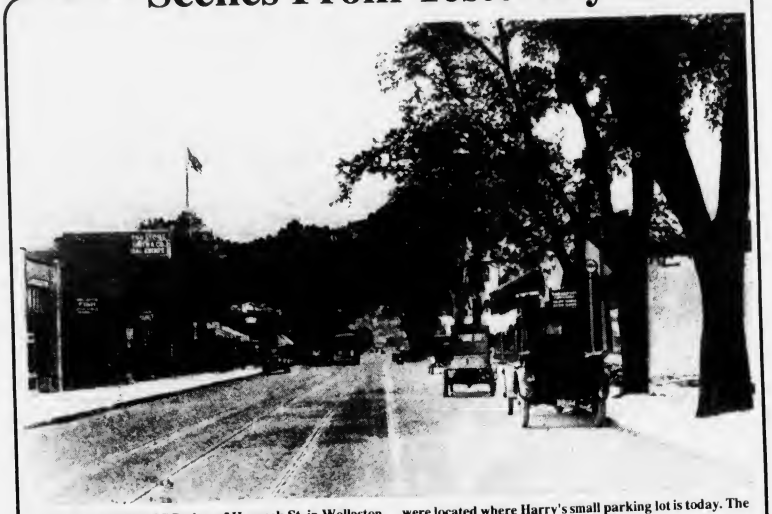
FORMER SENATOR Paul Harold was working in France on March 17 and missed the regular round of St. Patrick's Day receptions. But he was invited to the festivities at the Irish Ambassador John Campbell's residence in Paris.

HAROLD

Harold noted it was the first time he saw a unique French-Irish drink, a "Black Velvet." Ingredients: a mixture of champagne and Guiness stout.

Scenes From Yesterday



THIS 1926 POSTCARD view of Hancock St. in Wollaston Center was taken across from today's Dunkin Donut shop at the end of Chapman St. looking towards Norfolk Downs. The building farthest down on the left was the Beale St. Pharmacy and is now the site of Papa Gino's. On the right, past the third elm tree, C.Y. Woodbury's gasoline pumps were located where Harry's small parking lot is today. The city will be improving this section of Hancock St. this spring and will plant "fruitless" pair trees along here. They will probably look like twigs compared to these giant elm trees that had been planted all over Wollaston by the land development companies in the 1890's.

Brian Buckley: A Fine Coach, Teacher And Gentleman

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for the recent article you published on Brian Buckley, the director of the Council on Aging in Quincy, and the former head coach of basketball at Boston College High School. It was a good article about a good man. I am writing this letter in support of Coach Buckley from the perspective of a parent.

I do not know the circumstances that contributed to the decision to dismiss Coach Buckley as head coach, but in the last seven years I have come to know Brian Buckley. I first knew him as the man who coached my son and helped to develop his basketball skills. After watching perhaps 100 games and scrimmages over that time, I grew to know him as a person who cares deeply for the young men in his charge. Brian Buckley is more than a coach; he is a teacher and a gentleman. He has taught life skills in the best way a teacher can, through personal example. He has been to the basketball program what BC High stands for in education. Many of the boys will, in the years ahead, call on the life skills they learned from Coach Buckley and his staff.

BC High is academically challenging and extremely competitive athletically. Playing and coaching at that level is difficult. There is only one ball and five positions on the court. Decisions about cuts, playing time and game strategy are second guessed from the grandstand. To do the job effectively the coach needs to balance a winning strategy with the abilities, talents and potential as he sees them. I observed that Coach Buckley did a good job with that balance.

Coach Buckley had put together a good staff, mostly unpaid, who worked with the boys and provided them with the same solid adult role models that BCH tries to put in the classrooms. On the sidelines, Brian Buckley has always conducted himself as a gentlemen and a professional. BC High had a good year this year while playing one of the toughest schedules in the state. More than the winning record, the team seemed to improve with each passing week. To me continuous improvement, rather than accumulating discouragement, demonstrates the ability of the coaching staff as well as the student team leaders. My hat is off to a coach, a teacher and a gentlemen.

If Shaw's Doesn't Make N. Q. Traffic Improvements, Who Will?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The best way to make sure something doesn't work is to do nothing about it. This is the way I feel about those who are so dead sure there's nothing that can fix the traffic problems on Hancock Street between Elm Ave. and East Squantum St.

The traffic problems are bad and getting worse. Shaw's wants to build a supermarket right in the middle of the area. They seem to understand that solving the traffic problem is good for them and good for the city. I understand that the city has Shaw's on the hook for $1 million to make sure the city's recommended traffic improvements will do the job.

With this kind of deal, why would anyone want to waste time arguing that the plan won't work. It simply doesn't make sense. If it doesn't work right, the city has a pot of money--$1 million--to draw on to do the job.

If Shaw's doesn't fix the traffic situation, who is going to do it? Getting a first class supermarket and over a mile of traffic improvements is a fabulous deal. Every member of the City Council should jump for joy that the traffic problems will be off their backs.

School Committee Mulls Participation In METCO Program

March 30-April 5

By PAUL HAROLD

The School Committee scheduled a public hearing at the Sterling Junior High School to discuss the city's participation in the METCO program that would bus black students to Quincy.

Committee members received numerous calls and letters on the subject. Charles Sweeny said the ones he's received were evenly split, for and against. Alice Mitchell's constituent calls were mostly against, while Vice Chairman James McCormick and Dr. Charles Djerf would not comment on their calls. Dr. Djerf did say, however, that his polling of city religious leaders showed support.

Frank Anselmo said he was opposed to the city's participation and he would actively oppose the plan.

$26 MILLION BUDGET PASSED WITH SYMBOLIC CUT

Without comment this week, the City Council passed a $26 million budget. As approved, the budget contained a symbolic $3,000 cut in the school budget.

Finance Committee Chairman John Quinn said the $3,000 cut was to highlight the inability of the council to decrease the school budget, because of school autonomy.

City Solicitor Harry Pavan had advised the council that such action could generate a law suit by the School Committee, that could force not only a restoration of the monies cut, but the levy of a 25 percent penalty.

BATTLE OF THE BANDS

The Quincy Jaycees scheduled a "battle of the bands" at the Quincy armory that would feature 14 area rock bands. WMEX disc jockey Arnie Ginsburg would serve as master of ceremonies.

Quincy bands listed to compete included the Aces, the Bowdoins, the Centaurs, the Rebelkind, the Kindred and the Parliaments.

First prize was $50 and a trophy donated by Goodhue's.

BEECHWOOD ON THE BAY has formed a benefit committee for its April 12 "100 Hungry Ones" fund-raiser. Among those involved with the event include, from left, Daniel J. Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc., who will serve as emcee and auctioneer, and Bob Curry of Curry Ace Hardware and Mike Barkann of WLVI-TV who will assist as masters of ceremony. Curry is wearing a shirt autographed by NHl great Wayne Gretzky that will be auctioned off at the fund-raiser.

Beechwood Forms Committee For April 12 Fund-Raiser

Daniel J. Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. Inc. and Robert L. Curry of Curry Ace Hardware will co-chair the benefit committee for Beechwood on the Bay's second annual fund-raiser, "100 Hungry Ones."

The event will be held Wednesday, April 12 at The Fours Restaurant & Sports Bar, Quincy Center.

Other members of the committee, formed by Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals, include:

Mike Barkann, WLVI-TV; Ed O'Leary, The Feenan Financial Group; Charles R. Simpson Jr., Quincy 2000 chairman; Tom Galvin, Boston Gear; Doris Sinkevich, Quincy Hospital; Jerry Dacey, Colonial Federal Savings Bank; Tom McFarland, ERA Central Real Estate; Katherine Hesse, Murphy, Hesse, Toomey & Lehane.

Also, Ron Zooleck, South Shore Chamber of Commerce; William Lucey, O'Connor & Drew; Jay Asher, WJDA; John Graham, Graham Communications; Jim Mullaney, Mullaney and Mullaney; Rep. Michael Bellotti; Bruce MacKilligan, Bank of Boston, South Shore and Don Uvanitte, Mahoney & Wright Insurance Agency.

Each member will sell a limited number of tickets to the event.

The program consists of a dinner and a raffle where ticket holders can win between $100 and $2,500. This year's event will also incorporate an auction of signature and sports items, including autographed shirts of Wayne Gretzky and Robert Parish donated by Flynn, who will serve as emcee and auctioneer.

Barkann and Zooleck will assist as masters of ceremony.

Proceeds to benefit Beechwood will be designated toward a playground at the community center's new location at 440 East Squantum St. at the entrance to Marina Bay.

"Due to the strength and support of this committee and the addition of the sports auction, we expect this event to be a phenomenal success," said Beals.

Dr. William Frates To Receive Award At Hospital Dinner

Dr. William Frates, will receive the first John A. Gordon Award for outstanding service to Quincy Hospital at an honorary dinner Thursday, April 6 at the Neighborhood Club in Quincy.

Dr. Frates, formerly a radiologist at Quincy Radiology Associates, and long standing member of the Quincy Hospital medical staff, retired from practice in August.. He held many leadership positions during his tenure at the hospital including serving as president of the medical staff for a number of years in the 1980's. He has also played a major role in helping to raise funds for the hospital's Charitable Foundation.

The Dr. John A. Gordon Award was established to recognize individual who have made essential contributions to the growth and progress of Quincy Hospital. Gordon played a key leadership role in organizing the community to establish the hospital in 1890 as a 25 bed facility to treat granite workers suffering from dust particle inhalation.

All proceeds from the dinner will go to support the hospital's Charitable Foundation. The cost to attend is $50 per person. cocktails will be at 6;30 p.m. and dinner will be served at 7 p.m. To make a reservation, call the hospital's Public Relations Department at 376-4016 by March 31.

Phototherapy Can Help Patients With Psoriasis

Patients with psoriasis can be helped dramatically through the use of ultraviolet exposures known as phototherapy available at Dr. Kenneth Reed's Psoriasis Treatment Center in downtown Quincy.

Psoriasis is a very common skin disorder afflicting 2 percent of the population. It may appear as localized scaling inflamed plaques or patches of skin or, at times, it may be generalized, involving the entire skin surface. Patients with psoriasis are more prone to a form of arthritis known as psoriatic arthritis.

Psoriasis is often treated with topical steroids, Vitamin D ointments or tar preparations which must be applied to the skin. These forms of therapy became less practical when large surfaces of the skin are involved. In these instances, phototherapy has the advantage of treating the entire skin surface, thereby clearing existing psoriasis and helping to prevent new plaques from forming.

There are two forms of phototherapy known as UVB and PUVA which utilize natural light waves to treat psoriasis. With UVB therapy the patient is exposed to the natural ultraviolet rays of sunlight which are most effective in clearing psoriasis. Conceptually, this is similar to using a tanning booth, although the light waves are different. This technology developed from the observation that patients with psoriasis often clear in the summer when exposed to the sun. Ironically, many psoriasis sufferers avoid the sun in summer because they are embarrassed by exposing their skin condition in public.

PUVA treatments involve exposure to the UVA spectrum of ultraviolet light after the patient first takes a medication known as psoralen which makes them more sensitive and more responsive to the light. This form of phototherapy was developed at Massachusetts General Hospital where Dr. Reed did his training in dermatology.

With photography treatments there is a clearing phase when patients must be treated two to three times a week, usually for the first month or two to clear their psoriasis. Once clear, patients then enter the maintenance phase where their skin can be maintained in a clear state with a few as one or two treatments per month. The treatments usually last for several minutes.

Dr. Reed's center is open from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. to accommodate the needs of working people and on-site child care is available. Although not all psoriasis patients respond to phototherapy, 80 to 90 percent will benefit substantially and many clear completely. Phototherapy can also be very helpful in treating eczema and hand dermatitis or loss of pigmentation known as vitiligo. Most insurances cover phototherapy, since they recognize its efficacy and medical necessity.

Appointments can be made to see Dr. Reed by calling 472-6764. He is a board-certified dermatologist who treats all skin disorders and performs skin surgery.

Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

Do you know what the fastest growing health problem affecting workers is?

If you said Carpal Tunnel Syndrome (CTS), you would be right, according to South Shore chiropractor and lecturer Dr. Barry Freedman. CTS and other repetitive motion disorders now account for over 60 percent of all workplace injuries. Computer operators have joined assembly line workers, meat packers, building tradesmen, cashiers and others as victims or repetitive strain injuries causing these disorders to be dubbed "the Number One occupational .hazard of the 1990s."

CTS is most often caused by pressure on the median nerve just above the wrist, Dr. Freedman said. The Carpal Tunnel is named for the area of your wrist containing the carpal bones (the eight wrist bones), the transverse carpal ligament (connecting two outside carpals together), the median nerve and the tendons controlling finger and hand movement.

Pressure on the median nerve may occur due to injury (for example, a sudden bending back of the wrist), or repetitive motion from activities like typing, keypunching, chopping, hammering or pushing.

Some warning signs are pain (which can be severe), numbness, a tingling or burning sensation, weakness or loss of grip strength, and loss of sleep due to discomfort.

Dr. Freedman notes that in most cases, chiropractic adjustment of the affected wrist area (and perhaps spinal manipulation) has proven to be one of the most effective methods of treatment. Full recovery will only come about by avoiding stressful situations and changing work habits.

Dr. Freedman strongly advocates preventive measures to avoid these painful wrist injuries. He has been speaking at work places and schools on prevention of CTS, along with controlling stress and better nutritional habits.

Did you know...
There are two types of "second hand" smoke which are dangerous to the non-smoker: mainstream smoke and sidestream smoke.
• Mainstream smoke - the smoke the smoker inhales through the cigarette and then exhales.
• Sidestream smoke - even more dangerous, is the smoke which goes directly in the air from the burning tobacco.
Studies show that there are several cancer-causing substances, as well as more tar and nicotine, in sidestream smoke as compared to mainstream smoke.
In addition, carbon monoxide can be 2 to 15 times higher in sidestream smoke.

Conditional Permit Granted To Store Oil, Gasoline

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Bloor Automotive, doing business as Speedy Muffler King, 706 Adams St., received a permit with stipulations Tuesday from the Quincy License Board to store 400 gallons of oil above ground and 250 gallons of gasoline in tanks of motor vehicles.

The site is the former South Shore Tire.

Stipulations read by Building Inspector Matt Mulvey include; the elimination of the use of Wallace Rd. as an entrance or exit; no auto body work; location of the dumpster from the front to the back of the building; no Motor 11 license and the storage of not more than 100 tires on site at one time. The owners promised either they or the landlord would remove the hundreds of tires left there which Fire Chief Tom Gorman called "hazardous material"

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said he had received calls from neighbors who voiced concerns over the noise level and the traffic in and out of Wallace Rd.. Two of the neighbors attended the meeting and questioned John Griffin, area manager for Speedy Muffler King He said the traffic pattern would not include Wallace Rd. and assured Fabrizio that the hours would be limited. The hours will be from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, and from 7:30 a. m. to 4 p.m. Saturdays. During the summer, hours will be extended to 7:30 or 8 p.m. closing time.

License Board Chairman Joe Shea told the owners to report back in the summer to specify exactly the nights they plan to remain open.

Although the board is not meeting next week, Shea said the board will review a report on the sprinkler systems in rooming houses in Quincy which are supposed to be completed by the end of the month.

How to select a hearing aid.

If you are considering the purchase of a hearing aid, here are some helpful tips.

- See a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist or Audiologist.
- Make sure that they have an office close by (hearing aids require service).
- Do they have state of the art equipment? Ask about REAL EAR measurement, middle ear compliance testing, a sound proof booth, word recognition testing, video otoscopy and programmable hearing aids.
- Check to see if they have a good track record with Attorney Generals office and Better Business Bureau.
- Shop around for services, location, experience and price.
- Avoid TV advertised products. You pay more for the commercials and you frequently get a salesperson not a specialist.
- Ask for a FREE hearing screening and consultation and a 60 day no-obligation trial.

Fr. William McCarthy Sun Citizen Of The Year

In accepting the award, Fr. McCarthy thanked those attending for their presence and acknowledged those who have helped him help others over the years.

"I think most of you would rather be some-where else this afternoon rather than here on such a beautiful afternoon. Any-way, I am certainly grateful for your presence," Fr. McCarthy said.

"Down through the years, all of this work has not been accomplished alone. No person is an island to themselves and I have had the support of a great many people, among my fellow priests, among the clergy of Quincy, and among the other people of Quincy who accomplished these works.

"Certainly, The Quincy Sun has been very supportive in everything that has been undertaken. Some weeks because of the fact that there was so many things about myself and St. John's in The Quincy Sun, we used to call it at the rectory, St. John's News. The Quincy Sun has also been supportive.

"From my family, fellow priests, those who I have worked with in the rectory, those who I have worked with in the parish and those who I have worked with in the community, I deserve a debt of gratitude for many shared my same interests and they worked hard with me in order to see that there were accomplished.

"To each and every one one of you, I am most grateful. I am most grateful to Henry Bosworth, to Fr. Heery for putting my name in as Citizen of the Year, and the judges who voted accordingly. As I look around the hall this afternoon I can see many who certainly would quality for the citizen; they have done so much for the city and the church.

"I thank each and everyone of you, certainly for your presence here on this beautiful afternoon."

Fr. McCarthy was also praised by local leaders, clergy, and representatives from organizations which he has served.

Mayor James Sheets, who extended greetings and congratulations from the city, praised Fr. McCarthy as a pioneer of spiritual, social and cultural values which are challenged daily.

"During this time, there have been those crusaders, who have fought valiantly and consistently to ensure those Judeo-Christian values will remain strong, that our society will remain strong.

"We're here today to honor one of those crusaders," Sheets continued. "A man who has not only been a crusader for the spiritual things . . . it's really those spiritual values that set the tone and the temper not only for our individual lives and our families and but also for our country as a whole.

"Fr. McCarthy has been a pioneer in the sense that he has from the very beginning . . . not only presented those spiritual values to us and kept them in the forefront but he has also combined with that a supreme dedication to the social gospel to the fact that yes, there is a spirit of the individual that has to be cared for but individuals also have social needs.

"Not only, father, were you out there caring for the spiritual needs of the flock, but you were also out there caring for the social needs. It is indeed appropriate that I bring to you the congratulations of the city and all its people for the contribution you have made, for the example that you have been and for all those whose lives have been touched and changed and made better because you have been friends with them, you have led them and you have guided them."

Fr. Cornelius Heery, pastor of Sacred Heart Church in North Quincy and vicar of the Quincy catholic parishes, who co-nominated Fr. McCarthy, also praised his friend and fellow clergyman.

"To my mind, Fr. Bill McCarthy captures the message tucked away in the Gospel of Matthew in the 23rd chapter. 'I was hungry and you gave me something to eat, I was thirsty and you gave me something to drink, I was naked and you clothed me.'

"Fr. Bill McCarthy had made that the creed of his life. You people here in the city of Quincy certainly see it and have seen it lived out so beautifully by this man we are honoring today. That's why I submitted his name. I know it has added to those other people who are highly recommended for this position but I'm delighted that the members of the selection committee did pick Fr. McCarthy because I think he deserves it, I know he deserves it for he lives the Gospel."

Deanna Gazarian, a trustee at the Woodward School in Quincy, also nominated Fr. McCarthy for "all the good he has done for people of all faiths."

Fr. McCarthy served as pastor of St. John's Church for 18 years. He has been active in the community since coming to St. John's in 1977.

He received a special honor by the Quincy-South Shore Interfaith Sheltering Coalition in 1988 when it named its shelter for the homeless "Father Bill's Place."

As a Quincy Housing Authority commissioner, he pushed for affordable housing and senior citizen housing in the city.

He has also been active as a trustee at the Woodward School, a member of the Teenage Mothers Support Group, the South Shore Council on Alcoholism, Granite Place, the Quincy South Shore Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, and the Kiwanis Club of Quincy.

Fr. McCarthy grew up in Haverhill, graduated from St. John's Seminary in Brighton and was ordained to the priesthood Jan. 10, 1952 by Cardinal Richard Cushing.

He served at St. Rose Church in Chelsea as assistant pastor from 1952 to 1963 and at St. Gregory's Church in Dorchester from 1963 to 1977 before being named pastor of St. John's Church.

Local leaders and organizations also recognized Fr. McCarthy for his tireless and selfless good deeds.

Senate and House of Representatives citations were presented by former State Sen. Paul Harold on behalf of Sen. Michael Morrissey, and by the city's three representatives, Ron Mariano, Steve Tobin and Michael Bellotti.

Commendations were presented by Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, filling in for Council President Michael Cheney who was unable to attend because he was called into work; and Jim Chiccino, chairman of the South Area American Red Cross.

Organizations and clergy Fr. McCarthy has been associated with during his 18 years as pastor of St. John's Church were represented at the reception including.

Michael Wheelwright, chairman of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition; Joseph Finn, executive director of Father Bill's Place; and Matthew McDonnell, a member of that board.

Cleaner-Greener Quincy Campaign To Be Held May 6

Mayor James Sheets has announced that the sixth annual Cleaner-Greener Quincy campaign will be held Saturday, May 6 at 9 a.m.

Interested businesses, community groups, service organizations, PTOs, churches and youth groups are encouraged to get involved. Rain date is May 13.

There will be six meeting places throughout the city: Ward 1, Adams Shore Library; Ward 2, Fore River Clubhouse; Ward 3, Wollaston School; Ward 4, Lincoln-Hancock School; Ward 5, Beechwood Knoll School and Ward 6, North Quincy High School.

Following the cleanup, a cookout will be held for all volunteers and participants sponsors at Pageant Field, 100 Southern Artery at noon.

Department of Public Works Program Manager Michael Wheelwright said last year's program was "again an enormous success," with about 2,500 volunteers participating.

"We have come a long way in six years, but we must continue our efforts to keep Quincy beautiful," said Wheelwright. "Without the hundreds of volunteers, various supplies being donated from the business sector, the cooperation of the mayor, city councillors and city departments, we could not accomplish our goal of a Cleaner-Greener Quincy. We urge all citizens to lend a helping hand in making Quincy a better place for all."

To Protect Your Body, Use Your Head--Part II*

At Home:

• Invest in one-inch dead-bolt locks for your doors and good locks for your windows, and USE THEM.

• Always look before opening doors to anyone. If possible, install a one-way wide angle viewer in your door. This will give you 180 degrees of vision to the outside.

• Replace or re-key all locks when you move into a new home or apartment. Never leave a key under your doormat, in a mailbox, or in any other obvious place. That's an open invitation to trouble!

• Ask all repairmen and delivery men to show identification. Ask them to wait outside, while you call their employer. Never admit strangers into your home! If a stranger wants to use the phone, offer to make the call for him. Don't let him in.

•Don't indicate that your are home alone. Carry on an imaginary conversation with a fictitious person, if this ploy seems to be necessary.

• Use your last name and first initial only, on your door and in the phone book.

• Be cautious and alert when you enter elevators, hallways, stairways, storage rooms and laundry rooms.

• Keep all entrances to your home and garage well-lighted at night!

• Trim bushes and shrubs around your doors and windows to avoid the possibility of concealment. If your garage isn't actually in use, close the door.

• If you find evidence that your home has been broken into, don't enter or call out. Use a neighbor's phone to call the police immediately. Wait for the police in a safe location.

• If you receive an obscene phone cal, hang up instead of reacting! If the caller persists, contact the telephone company and the police.

• Close all drapes, blinds, or shades when changing clothes or retiring for the night.

• Teach your children and babysitter NEVER to open the door to strangers, or to give any information over the phone to a stranger.

Quincy To Field Strong Defense

By KERRY BYRNE

With major league baseball looking more and more like a distant memory, there is one club that promises National League-style play this year: the Quincy High softball team.

Head coach Bob Keuther, who replaces Bud Mosher after three years as the JV coach, said rock-solid defense and wily play on the base paths will be the cornerstones of his Presidents ball club.

"Defense will be our strong suit," said Keuther. "We expect to be very good defensively and on offense we will do a lot of hit & run, base stealing and aggressive base-running."

Quincy will need to run on all cylinders in their opener, Monday April 10, against Taunton. The Tigers are shooting for their 100th consecutive Old Colony League win. They will be led by pitcher Michelle Kvilhaug who recorded 12 no-hitters last year.

Keuther bases his assessment of his club's defensive potential on the fact that three infielders return to their starting roles of last season. Junior Kerri Connolly will handle the chores at the hot corner, junior Katie Gallagher will be the pivot-player at shortstop, and three-sport athlete Toni Kabilian, also a junior, will play second base.

Of the three returning starters, Keuther will depend most heavily on Gallagher, a proven competitor. "Katie is our catalyst out there," he said. "She runs the infield, takes all of our cutoffs and distributes the ball defensively."

Rounding out the infield at first base is sophomore Kristen Sheehan, who recently transferred from Texas. "Kristen is an exciting transfer. She's an outstanding athlete and I'm expecting a lot from her," said the coach.

The starting backstop will be junior Mary Kelly, who saw spot duty last year on the varsity squad. "She has a good arm from behind the plate and will be one of our big bats offensively," said Keuther.

The focus of the defense will be on sophomore pitcher Angela Hogrell. The coach feels that Hogrell is an exciting young talent, but must work on her technical game to reach her full potential. "In softball pitching is the name of the game," he said. "If she can have control and keep the ball up in the 70-mph range, we have the potential to be a very decent team.

"As long as your mechanically sound, you'll be able to deliver the ball consistently. As a young player, Angela is still working on the mechanics. When she gets that down she'll be a very good player."

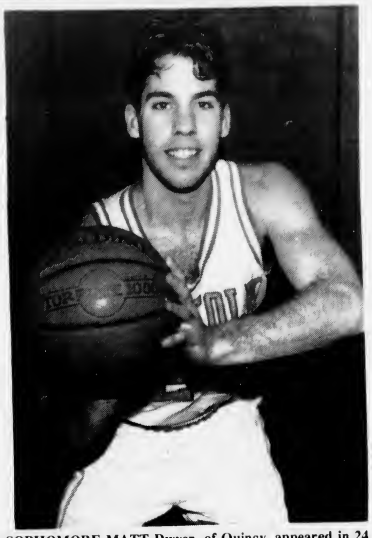
Patrolling the outfield for the Presidents will be junior left fielder Kelly Howard, sophomore right fielder Alicia Ford and senior center fielder Caitlin O'Connor. Quincy's only other senior is Harmony Snedden, who will also see time in the outfield.

The fact that Quincy has just two seniors is Keuther's main cause for concern. "We're gonna be young. We have a lot of returning kids, but they were very young last year."

One player the Presidents will rely on to provide offensive fireworks in junior Heather Wakelin, who recently transferred from Fontbonne Academy. "Heather carries a big bat. She'll be one of the kids who carries a lot of the offense for us."

Th coach expects good things this year from his youngsters on the JV and freshmen squads. Those teams will be led by coaches Nicole Caldwell and Sonya Herring, respectively.

All of Quincy's home games will be played at the newly-renovated Mitchell/McCoy Field on Southern Artery.



SOPHOMORE MATT Dwyer, of Quincy, appeared in 24 games for the Suffolk University basketball team. The Rams finished the season with an 11-14 record.

Sterling Captures City Hoop Crown

The Sterling Middle School boys' basketball team closed out an impressive undefeated season with a win over Central in the city's middle school championship game.

Sterling jumped to an early lead and never looked back on their way to capturing the city title. The championship charge was led by Joe Kearney, Jeremy Theberge, Jeff Russo, James Webb, Dennis Palardy and Derrick Sankey.

Sterling will raise championship banners for both the boys' basketball team and boys' volleyball team, which also recently won a city crown. The banner-raising ceremony will be part of Sterling Spirit Week, April 3-7, and will be sponsored by the Student Council.

Different events will be held each day during Spirit Week, including a school pride clean-up day and a semiformal dance.

Hitting, Pitching Will Spark NQ

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The players and coaching staff of the North Quincy High School softball team are ready for action for the upcoming season.

North is scheduled to open the season Monday at McCoy Field against Notre Dame of Hingham. However, field renovations may not be complete by the April 3 opening date, causing a possible postponement.

Other upcoming games include trips to Boston Latin April 7 and Plymouth South for the Old Colony League opener April 10. The next home game is scheduled for April 12 against Falmouth.

Third-year head coach Carolyn Parsley is hoping to improve on last year's 2-15 record. She will rely on her returning players to provide a spark in this year's lineup.

"We should be a lot better than last year," she said. "Our main focus is on our hitting and pitching, the two main weaknesses from last year, and we must work on our mental state in the field."

Parsley will rely on starting pitcher Denise Anderson, a senior, to help shore up the pitching situation. "Denise worked very hard during the off-season," said coach Parsley. "But she still needs to work on her control."

Slated for back-up pitching duties are sophomore Jen Alberti and freshman Kristy Deptula. Both will start the season on the junior varsity level.

The infield setup has senior Jen Doherty starting at first base. Second base remains up for grabs with senior Alyssa Cobban, Jamie Monahan and Meghan Roche the candidates. Shortstop also remains open with seniors Kristen Proude and Kerry Monahan fighting for the job. Senior Jennifer Teahan will open the season at third base and the starting catching job will be handled by junior Liz Fitzpatrick.

The outfield will have senior Amey Riley starting in right, sophomore three-sport star Kerry Ginty in center, and freshman Kerry Skehan starting in right. Skehan will be the second straight freshman to open the season in North Quincy's starting lineup. Ginty opened last season as the starting catcher.

Outfield backups will be junior Kelly Keegan and senior Nancy Walker. Keegan will see action in the designated hitter role.

Tow others that could see some varsity playing time, but will begin the season at the JV level, are junior Jody Mackie and sophomore Jill Picardi. Both should see time in the outfield.

North will again face tough competition in the Old Colony League. With League favorites Taunton and Bridgewater-Raynham to contend with, coach Parsley and her team will have their work cut out for them.

Coach Parsley will again count on the team's positive attitude and spirit. Last season the North girls were selected the OCL's Good Sportsmanship team of the year, as voted by the League's coaches.

Parsley will have both assistant coaches returning this year. Bob Giordano will coach the junior varsity and the freshmen will be coached by Bob Doyle.

Also helping the program again this year is the ever-popular Chris Dolan. Bill Parsley will again help out on a part-time volunteer basis.

Pee Wee House

Tupe, Markarian Lead Marina Bay To Win

Kiva Tupe netted the equalizer with just one second to play in regulation, and Paul Markarian scored in overtime, as Marina Bay Taxi pulled out an improbable 4-3 win over Mike Morrissey Club in first-round action from the Pee Wee House League playoffs.

The loss was especially disheartening for Morrissey Club, as they entered the contest with the worst record in the Pee Wee House League. They played valiantly before finally succumbing to the first-place Marina Bay squad.

However, Morrissey Club was rewarded for their efforts. They captured the wild card spot in the semifinals, courtesy of having given up the fewest goals against among the losing teams in the first round.

Mark Giese scored twice for Marina Bay to set up the Tupe-Markarian heroics. Markarian also recorded two assists in the winning effort. Joe Callahan aided on one goal.

Mike C. Sullivan, Matt Minicucci and Jon Paquette scored for Morrissey Club. Paquette made one assist as well.

Jay Grazioso chalked up a hat trick to lead Skinner's Winners to a 9-2 win over Keohane's.

Two goals each were scored by John Gavin, Paul Campbell and Paul Zenga. Tom Costa picked up two assists. Single assists were made by Steve McGonagle and Mark Gibbons.

Matt Moriarty and Shane Kabilian scored for Keohane's. Steve King handed out an assist.

Keith Walsh's two goals and an assist lifted Colonial Federal to a 5-1 win over Neponset Valley Survey.

Jody Bravo, Ryan Doyle and Mike D. Sullivan netted single goals in the winning effort. Assists were made by Sean Haidul (2), Matt Miller, Pat Mullen and Sullivan.

Conrad Leger tallied for Neponset. He was aided by Martin McGrath.

In the semifinal round of the Pee Wee House League playoffs, Marina Bay Taxi will again do battle with Morrissey Club, while Skinner's Winners will take on Colonial Federal.

Squirt House

Burgin, Green, Doran, Granite In Squirt Semis

In first-round action form the Squirt House League playoffs, Burgin Platner advanced with a 6-5 win over Johnson Motor Parts.

Glenn Liberatore and Peter Turowski paced the winning effort with two goals each. Mike Delahoyde and Jamie Chiocchio netted single goals. Assists were made by Joe Cunningham (2), Andy Flores and Chiocchio.

Lighting the lamp for Johnson were Jordan Virtue (2), David Toner, Brett Keyes and Shaun Flaherty. Flaherty also notched two assists. Single assists were made by Pat Clifford, Andy Mahoney, Bryan Petit and Jeff Atkins.

Burgin's semifinal opponent, Green Environmental, extended their season by virtue of a 7-2 win over Quincy Sun.

Jeff Hunt led Green with two goals and an assist. Single tallies were netted by John Mateu, Ryan McFarland, Kenny Young, Ryan Donahue and Lindsey Langille.

Assists were dished out by Young, Mateu, McFarland, Mark Tetreault and Mike Cox.

Jon Tallent and Wayne Moynihan scored for the Sun. Both goals were set up by Bruce Maggio.

Doran & Horrigan short-circuited Granite Auto Electric, 5-2, but the two will meet again in the semifinal round as Granite earned the wild-card berth.

Jill McInnis powered Doran with a goal and two assists. Other goals were scored by Corey Piazza, Jim Cashins, Bryan Cooper and John Ryan. Assists were made by Colin Maxey, C.J. Stivaletta and Cashins.

Scoring for Granite Auto were Brian (Blue Chip) Stock and Dan Coughlin. Blue Chip set up Coughlin's goal.

Killer Bees Buzz Past Belmont In Finale

Quincy Youth Hockey's mighty Killer Bees, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, topped the Belmont Mites, 2-1, in a goaltenders' struggle. It was the last game of the year for the media darling Killer Bee squad.

The Bees swarmed the net time and again, only to find the Belmont goalie was packing some strong Bee repellent. Quincy goalie Nick Manning took care of his goal by kicking and swatting away all but one shot the Belmonters dished out.

The Killer Bees' first goal came in the opening period when Jonathon O'Connor flew up the ice and buzzed one into the net at 11:41.

Old Reliable Danny Sullivan lived up to his name when he netted the winning goal at 2:32 of the third period. He was aided by Shamrock-Liner and team captain Liam Powers.

The score set off ecstatic waving among the Wanna Bees of the Killer Bee sign as they sensed the game was in hand.

Quincy forwards Jake O'Donnell, Myles Clancy and Brendan Linnane were repeatedly stifled by the fine play of the Belmont netminder, but their barrages helped loosen the defense and pave the way for the winning scores.

Billy Jones, Mark Lewis and Brianna Nolan had potential scoring bids but were denied.

Bee blueliners, including the hard-hitting Danny Davis, Mr. Defense George Snowling and Matt (Flash) Haskins, were all over the Belmont forwards.

Taylor Reinhardt made sure Manning's hive was well protected by blocking numerous shots. Chris Sheehan also played well and Gene Nazzaro doubled up as a forward and a defender.

The win was a fitting end for an impressive season by the Killer Bees. They began as a young, inexperienced rag-tag bunch of beelings, only to blossom into a hard-skating, finely-tuned hockey machine.

The Killer Bee success stemmed from a group of great players, and a core of people who helped the club every step of the way.

Head coach Kevin Lewis and assistants Rich Reinhardt, Steve Powers, Steve Sheehan and doorman Gene Nazzaro provided the leadership and hockey wisdom.

Working behind the scenes were treasurer Marie Davis, general manager Tom Maloney and equipment manager Karen O'Donnell, who delivered freshly cleaned and pressed uniforms to the hive every week.

Mite House

Mite Semifinals Set

M. Sugarman Co. will battle Paul Harold Club, and Barry's Deli will take on Doherty & White in the Mite House League Jamboree semifinals after all four teams posted first-round victories last week.

Doherty & White was involved in an opening round nailbiter with Purdy's Ice Cream as Steve Crispo netted his second goal in the overtime shootout session to give D&W a 2-1 win.

His first goal was assisted by Dan Donovan.

Bob Newcomb scored the lone Purdy's goal after being set up by Paul Graham.

D&W's semifinal opponent, Barry's Deli, advanced courtesy of a 3-2 win over Lydon Russell.

Danny Sullivan, Matt Germain and Andy Patten scored the winning goals. Patten and Sullivan also had assists.

Josh Sawtelle netted both Lydon goals. He was aided by Brendan Linnane twice and Brendan Oliverio once.

M. Sugarman edged Samoset Pharmacy, 3-2, in their first-round outing.

Brendan Conley, Dan Reggiannini and Marc McGinnis tallied for Sugarman. Ryan Conley and Billy Barter recorded assists.

Lighting the lamp for Samoset were Steve Ohlson and Matt Lavery. Bret Martinson, Steve Kelley and Dan Poggi set up the scores.

Paul Harold Club blitzed Granite Rail Pizza, 7-1.

Ryan Feldhoff led the win with a hat trick. Mike Lohnes was close behind with two scores. Single tallies were notched by Mike Tetreault and Steve McGrath. Andy Pangraze was the top playmaker, handing out three assists. Bryan Donelin, Tony Benigni, Brian Lynch and Richard Stone also assisted.

Josh Giordani scored the Granite goal. He was aided by Paul Grazioso and Paul Lennon.

The semifinal matches were to be played the evening of Tuesday, March 28.

Devils Roll Through Assabet Tourney

The St. Moritz Devils squirt major hockey team closed out the season by cruising to the title in the Assabet Invitational Spring Classical Tournament. They outscored their four opponents by a combined 28-8 margin.

Only the Boston College Jr. Eagles provided any competition, losing to the Devils by a narrow 4-3 margin in the title game. After the final game Eagles coach Bob Dylan congratulated the Devils and said, "Your victory today was one of the most exciting games that I have ever watched."

St. Moritz slammed Worcester, 10-0, in the tourney's opening game. They followed that with a 5-1 win over the Assabet Cardinals and a 9-4 victory against the Sharks in the semifinal match.

The outstanding Steve Segalla of Quincy led the Devils offensive charge with six goals and six assists in the tournament. His brother, John Segalla, scored three goals and dished out six assists.

Rich Howe of Milton lit the lamp five times and aided on one goal. Miah Hasson of Quincy knocked home four goals while Kevin Patten of Quincy, James McDonald of Everett and Chris Follett of Hanover netted three each. With one goal apiece were Nathan Shaller of Newton, Kevin Lynch of Milton and Tom Hughes of Quincy.

Somerville's Josh Wallace manned the pipes during all four wins. He stopped all but eight shots, including one penalty shot.

The defensive duo of Tim Egan of Braintree and Steve Cavanaugh of Hingham broke up numerous scoring bids. Their exploits were equally matched by blueliners Pat Balaconis of South Boston and Patten.

The Devils will hold tryouts for next season at the Quincy Youth Arena on April 15 and 22. Anyone with a 1984 birth date interested in trying out can call coach Paul Cameron at 479-3684.

Volleyball

Size, Experience Will Power Presidents

By KERRY BYRNE

In Massachusetts the name Rendle has become synonymous with volleyball success. First, coach Jim Rendle built a dynasty in the North Quincy girls program; a dynasty built on three state titles in 10 years. The powerhouse teams included his two daughters, Holly and Heather, each of whom won scholarships to Division I colleges because of their prowess on the court. His son, Jim Rendle Jr., looks to be one of the leaders of the North Quincy boys team this season.

Now coach Rendle is looking to put his stamp on the boys program at Quincy High. He is in his fourth year at the helm of the Quincy boys' team, but it is only this season that he feels the Presidents have what it takes to make a name for themselves.

"This will be Quincy's first winning season," he said in a statement that would appear bold if said by someone with a lesser track record. "I'm very confident and we're anticipating the first tournament team ever in Quincy's boys volleyball history."

The Presidents (8-12 last year) get their first test Monday, April 3, when they travel to Holliston. After contests against Boston Latin and Milford they will play their first home game April 12 against Brockton.

The reason for Rendle's optimism is simple. "We have some returning starters which give us experience - that combined with great new talent gives us a strong foundation," he said.

The experience will be found in Quincy's back court as seniors Dave Sawan, Jason Downey and Tony Wu return to their starting roles of last year. The forward wall will likely be manned by a series of physically impressive youngsters, including 6-foot-4-inch sophomore Geoff King, 6-3 sophomore Don McCarthy and 6-7 junior Jed Donnelly, whom Rendle called "the big surprise" of the preseason.

Said Rendle of his lineup: "I have tremendous size in the front row, and the experience is in the back. This is certainly the largest team ever at Quincy. It's rare that a team in high school has the size that we do. The big guys are not experienced, but one thing that coaches can't coach is height."

Others who will make an impact for the Presidents are freshmen Jared Downey and Ed Smith. Downey starred on the Central Middle School volleyball team last year and Smith is "playing real, real well" according to the coach.

Rendle also expects Jonathon Hyacinth to be a vital cog in the Quincy machinery.

Despite the optimism, the Presidents a not ready to roll easily over their opposition - the main reason being the lack of experience among the big men. "We're gonna start out very, very basic and we're going to stay very basic," said Rendle. "We'll work on one or two basic moves. We want to eliminate our mistakes and force the other teams into mistakes, primarily through intimidation at the net. We'll try to develop one or two things - good blocking and good defense. I think that will carry us a long way."

A long way for someone of Rendle's standards is indeed that - a long way, as in the whole way, as in state title. Does he expect to do it this year. No. Does he expect to do it in the future? This is what he has to say: "I think you'll see this year that Quincy boys' volleyball has turned the corner. We're developing a winning program and we expect to get better."

Not exactly the words of a prophet, but the words of one who expects big things.

North Boys Look For Repeat Performance

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

After finishing last season with an 18-4 record, the best in school history, and a trip to the MIAA quarterfinals, the North Quincy High School boys' volleyball team is hoping for a repeat performance this year.

This will be a tough task as ninth-year head coach John Perkins has both inexperience and a tough schedule to contend with. The Red Raiders open the season Monday, April 3 with a trip to highly-ranked Natick, the team which eliminated NQ from last year's tournament. They follow that with their home opener against defending state champion New Bedford, which is again considered the team to beat in boys' volleyball. The Raiders played well against the Whalers last year, but were defeated twice

"We have a lot of inexperience this year," said coach Perkins. "We will have to rely on our seniors for experience and leadership. After losing our two starting setters from last year's tournament team, we will have two inexperienced setters running the offense."

What experience there is will be provided by captain middle hitter and middle blocker Ken Goon, and senior setter and outside hitter Jackie Lei. Other returning starters are junior outside hitter James Rendle and junior middle blocker Jason Lau. "The four returning starters will help the others gain their experience," said Perkins.

The two other starting positions are up for grabs, but the early favorites are senior setter Sampson Lee, who saw a great deal of action last year, and sophomore outside hitter Mike Johnston, the star of last season's 18-1 junior varsity team.

Other players that should see a lot of action are senior middle blocker Eric Lee and senior outside hitter Charles Yu. Rounding out the varsity roster are senior defensive specialist David Lee, junior outside hitter Sidney Ma, junior setter Jimmy Liang, junior Wing Lau and sophomore Frankie Liu.

"The season prediction for us is up to the team,"said coach Perkins. "We will have to develop players and get better as the year goes along."

The Red Raiders will face East Alliance opponents Quincy, Weymouth, New Bedford and Brockton twice each this year. They will battle Billerica, Latin Academy, Chelmsford, Holliston and Cambridge in non-league action.

Perkins will have the services of JV coach Kipp Caldwell and newcomer Matthew Groom, who will lead the freshmen. Both are former North volleyball captains.

Quincy Pee Wees Win Mini One-On-One Title

Quincy Pee Wee A players Dan Kennedy, Mike Welch, Ryan Doyle, Kiva Tupe, Paul Markarian and Ryan Krueger recently won the Massachusetts Hockey District III Mini One-on-One championship.

The Quincy team was sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

The local boys, in single-elimination play, knocked off teams from Weymouth, Milton, Dedham, Westwood, Walpole, Franklin, Canton, Medfield, Brookline and Norwood.

Tupe's strength and Markarian's speed proved a formidable defensive combination. Ryan Krueger was impressive as always between the pipes. Kennedy was untouchable, and, teamed with Doyle and Welch, they proved unbeatable.

'March Madness' Tourney

The North Quincy High School and Atlantic Middle School gymnasiums will be the sites for the second annual "March Madness" youth basketball tournament, featuring six Quincy teams and four teams from the state of New York.

The event will tip off this Saturday and 20 teams are scheduled to compete in three divisions - fourth-grade boys, fifth-grade boys and sixth-grade girls.

Each squad will play two games Saturday afternoon, with the winners of each bracket meeting in a championship game Saturday night at 7:30 at North Quincy High.

A foul shooting contest, three-point shooting contest, and other fun competitions will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday.

The fourth-grade boys kick off the action at 12:15 p.m. at NQHS. Included are teams from Walpole, Milton, St. Ann's (Wollaston), St. Joseph's (Quincy Point) and two teams each from Sacred Heart (North Quincy) and St. Matthew's (New York).

The fifth-grade boys begin play at 4 p.m. Teams are from Attleboro, Braintree, Canton, Milton, Wakefield and St. Matthew's, with two teams from Sacred Heart competing.

The sixth-grade girls tip off at 12:45 at Atlantic Middle School. Expected to participate are teams from Brookline, Weymouth, Sacred Heart and St. Matthew's.

Spectators are welcome and their is no admission fee. All proceeds from the tournament will benefit the Sacred Heart/North Quincy Youth Basketball program.

For more information call tournament director Mark Jaehnig at 472-3311.

INTERNAL MATTERS

A compression test reveals a great deal about an engine's internal condition. It is done by connecting a compression gauge to one cylinder at a time and cranking the engine until five compression strokes have been completed. If a cylinder achieves 2/3s of its total compression on the first stroke and reaches the minimum factory compression specification by the fifth stroke, it has good compression. If the compression reading is low on the first stroke and builds without achieving minimum compression on successive strokes, the indication is that the piston rings are probably not sealing well. If the compression reading is low on all five strokes, a leaking valve is usually the culprit. Low compression in two adjacent cylinders is indicative of a blown gasket head.

Hint: If all the engine cylinders have low compression, a "wet compression test" (done with oil in the combustion chambers) will tell if the rings or the valves are at fault.

For most of your cars maintenance needs including compression testing, rely on our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Learn for yourself why so many of your friends and neighbors turn to us to keep their family cars in top condition. For the best service in town, we're here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Spring Street Sweeping Program Begins April 3

The spring street sweeping program will begin Monday, April 3, announces the Department of Public Works.

In an effort to produce better results, the DPW has devised a residential schedule. The schedule will run approximately six weeks with one ward covered each week.

"The goal in announcing this schedule in advance," said DPW Commissioner David Colton, "is to provide residents with sufficient notice so that they may remove their cars from the street during the day their neighborhood is scheduled for sweeping, allowing street sweeping efforts to be much more effective, resulting in cleaner streets."

The schedule is set up by ward and precinct. Schedule information will be aired on WJDA radio 1300 AM between 7:30 and 8 a.m. For ward and precinct location information, call 376-1943 or 376-1142.

This is the second consecutive year the DPW has scheduled a spring sweeping program. Weekdays (Monday through Friday) will be scheduled and Saturdays will be used as makeup days for rain.

The city has allotted time in order to realize the schedule. If, for some reason, the DPW falls behind, a new schedule will be published, Colton said.

Residents are encouraged to help with the spring cleanup effort by sweeping sidewalk dirt and sand into the gutter a few days before the sweeper is due in the area.

Most importantly, Colton said residents should be sure to not to park their car in the street the day the sweeper is scheduled to be in their neighborhood.

Questions or suggestions regarding the program may be directed to DPW Operations Manager Lester Gerry at 376-1902.

Shaw's Project One Vote Away

conditions be met before the project becomes a reality, and Ayers and Phelan have asked for even more. Most of the conditions pertain to neighborhood safety issues such as traffic and parking.

Phelan said he feels the current plan addresses all residential concerns and that the store should be a major plus for the neighborhood. He added that because the city is due to lose considerable state funding in the near future, Shaw's may be the only way to address needed road improvements in the area.

"The city's in for a big hit in the next year or two, and Shaw's may be the only way we're going to get it done," he said.

Shaw's has pledged about $500,000 in road improvements, a $1 million bond to back up that pledge, and other amenities such as new trees for the surrounding neighborhood.

Ayers, however, said he still has some concerns about the proposal, and wants to do more research on it before making a final decision to be announced at the April 3 meeting. He noted that he wants to make sure school-zone lights are installed where needed, since there are four schools--North Quincy High School, Atlantic Middle School, Parker Elementary School and Sacred Heart School--located in the area.

Ayers added that he wants to discuss the $1 million bond with Gillon to ensure that the amount is enough to give the city's taxpayers adequate protection should anything go wrong with the project. He said he is also working with area business owners make certain their concerns are met.

"What I'm doing is dotting my I's and crossing my T's," he said. "I'm trying to do as much homework on the issue as possible."

The bond amount is similar to that offered on the Home Depot store in West Quincy, which was built by developer Mark Dickinson who is behind the Shaw's project.

Shaw's has proposed building a single-story structure comprised of a 56,200-square-foot supermarket with a 2,000-square-foot mezzanine, as well as an attached 27,925-square-foot retail store currently planned to house two tenants, at the Boston Gear Works site at 10 Hayward St. and 477-479 Hancock St. Plans call for the opening of the second retail store to be delayed until after the supermarket has been open for nine months.

The company's original proposal to build at the site was withdrawn in late 1993 after Phelan, Ayers and other councillors indicated they would vote against it. Councillors have said the new Shaw's proposal addresses neighborhood concerns dramatically better than the first plan.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request from Antebellun Foods of New England doing business as Serendipity Cafe, 2 Hancock St. (Neponset Flea Market Snack Bar) for a common victualer license.

The license will be limited until Will Lewis, owner of the food concession meets with the health department, building department and fire and health departments. The board continued the hearing until April 11 and will request David Sullivan, owner of the Flea Market to attend the meeting. Lewis will be able to sell coffee and packaged food until that time.

•Granted a request from the Woodward School and the Quincy Center Business & Professional Association for a one day liquor license for a Las Vegas Nite at the Woodward School Saturday, from 7 p.m. to midnight.

•Granted a request from the What Not Shoppe for the transfer of their second hand license at 414-416 Hancock St., to a new location at 37 Billings Rd. Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue told owner Michael Greene to make sure there is proper ventilation for any spray painting that might be done. Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers told the board that Greene needed more space to expand his business and was "in total support" of the move. Greene said he will be mainly selling furniture.

•Postponed action until April 11 a request from J.E. Lauzon, Inc., doing business as Quincy Collision and Frame Center, 125 Liberty St. for a Motor 11 License. Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio said he is "against further auto operations in the South Quincy area", and would feel "more comfortable "to get a petition signed by immediate abutters before he would support the request. ".

•Board continued until April 11 a hearing from A Plus Auto, Inc. for permission to change the location of their Motor 11 License from 519 Quincy Ave., to 80 Copeland St. Board members agreed that two entrances would be needed for the business instead of the one existing. The site would be next door to Crescent Video.

•The following canning drives.were approved by the board. They are:

•Quincy High Girl's Softball, March 30 through April 1.(Robert Keuther).

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

We like this quotation by Robert South - "If there be any truer measure of a man than by what he does, it must be by what he gives."

BE GENEROUS - SHARE YOUR LIFE

Do I always think in terms of money when I think of being generous?

If I think about being generous with the richness that is always a part of my life, I lift the limitations I have set upon myself and always have plenty with which to be generous.

I can be generous with my smile.
I can be generous with my time.
I can be generous with my Friendship.
I can be generous with my talents and skills.
I can be generous with my prayer.
I can be generous with my word of appreciation.
I can be generous with my example of a faith-filled God-directed life.
Yes, I can be generous with the richness of my life.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. A.M.D. 1/01 of a $4 million loan pool that included 14 local banks, development of a sign-improvement grant program and establishment of a retail incubator program to help launch businesses.

"He took an organization in its infancy and made it into something," said Sheets.

Charles Simpson, chairman of Quincy 2000, voiced similar sentiments.

"Chuck has shown fine leadership and vision and assisted in making this partnership a viable organization," said Simpson. "Few people could have done this job."

D'Aprix said he, too, is proud of his accomplishments and will leave with reluctance.

"Without a doubt, Quincy is the most viable and pro-business community in New England," he said. "I leave reluctantly. However, any economic professional would be hard-pressed to pass up this opportunity."

D'Aprix had been under fire from some city councillors and downtown merchants for being unable to lure Decelle, a Braintree-based clothier owned by Burlington Coat Factory of New Jersey, to a vacant building in Quincy Center. Although Decelle signed a letter of intent to open a store at the site late last year, a formal lease has yet to be signed.

D'Aprix cited a number of factors which caused delays in the Decelle negotiations, most notably major repairs that were needed at the nearly 100-year-old Hancock Street location, the site of the former Child World and Cummings stores. Sheets has also said that an unusually warm winter has affected sales at Decelle and made the company reluctant to open any new stores.

Asked if problems with Decelle had any impact on his decision, D'Aprix said, "Not in the least. That has nothing to do with it at all."

Sheets agreed.

"I don't see that (Decelle) as a failure, absolutely not," he said. "Chuck could not have done any more than he did."

The mayor said Quincy 2000 Deputy Director Joseph Mannarino will take over as interim executive director of the planning corporation. He added that any search for a permanent replacement would not begin for two or three months, noting that Mannarino may very well wind up with the job himself.

Bring Total To 450

143 More 2-Hour Free Spaces At Ross Garage

The city is now planning to offer 450 spaces for free parking purposes at the Ross Parking Garage beginning next month.

Mayor James Sheets announced Tuesday that the city's parking committee has agreed to open up an additional 143 spaces at the garage for limited free parking, up from the original number of 307. The plan now calls for two-hour free parking not only on the ground level, but also part of the second level.

The rest of the second level will be used for 2-3 hour and 3-4 hour parking, while the third level of the garage will be used for employee and paid contract parking. Full details of the parking plan, including prices, have yet to be determined, Sheets said.

The parking committee is headed by Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, who at press time could not be reached for comment.

The mayor announced two weeks ago he plans to offer two hour free parking on the ground level of the garage beginning May 1. Sheets said his intention is to use the free parking to attract more shoppers to the city's downtown while also creating a greater turnover at the garage by limiting it to two hours.

Sheets is planning a considerable fee for those who stay on the ground level beyond two hours, although the amount has not yet been determined. The mayor said he does not want people parking at the garage for eight hours while they take the MBTA to work in Boston, and said the fee will be high enough to discuss such activity.

The mayor said those who stay longer on the two upper levels of the garage will also have to pay an additional fee. While details are still sketchy, the city plans to use a traffic control officer from the Quincy Police Department to enforce the regulations on the ground level, he added.

Last week, members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) expressed concerns about the free parking plan. They wondered how the employees of local businesses would be impacted and whether patrons who shop in the area for over two hours should have to pay

$2 Million Backup Set By Council On Traffic Improvements

Shaw's Wins But Could Appeal Bond

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Shaw's Supermarket has been granted a special permit from the City Council to build a new store at the old Boston Gear Works on the North Quincy-Wollaston line, but the chain may appeal the decision.

The council voted unanimously Monday night to grant Shaw's the permit for the project, which previously was approved by the Quincy Planning Board and Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon. The audience in the packed City Council Chambers, made up mostly of union representatives and other supporters, broke into applause after the vote.

The reason for an appeal would be a $2 million bond to back up the supermarket chain's promise of nearly $500,000 in traffic improvements. The amount is the largest ever required in the city's history for the developer of such a project, and twice what was offered on the Home Depot in West Quincy, a Wal Mart planned for Quincy Point and a Stop & Shop to be built in North Quincy.

Shaw's had offered a $1 million bond, but the council unanimously agreed to double the amount at the request of Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers. Both Ayers and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said the additional protection was needed for the neighborhood because it is by far a more densly populated area.

Brian Leahy, senior real estate representative for Shaw's, said he was not happy with the bond increase. Still, he would not comment on the possibility of an appeal, saying only that Shaw's will review the permit carefully and looks forward to the start of construction.

Mark Dickinson of Dickinson Development of Quincy, the developer of the project and the firm which built Home Depot, said he also could not predict whether there would be an appeal.

"It really is their (Shaw's) decision," he said. "But this has gotten incredibly expensive and out of control."

Shaw's has 20 days to appeal the decision.

Despite the differences over the bond, Shaw's officials were thrilled with the council's unanimous support of the new store. The project site, located at 10 Hayward St. and 477-479 Hancock St., straddles

City Ponders Lawsuit Over Boston Harbor Funding Cuts

The city is considering filing a lawsuit with Weymouth, and possibly other Massachusetts Water Resources Authority communities, against the federal government because of recent cuts in funding for the Boston Harbor cleanup.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday that the city's law department is examining the feasibility of the suit.

"I think there's a lot of anger out there," he said. "The ratepayers have to pick up what the feds are cutting. That's a terribly bad sign."

Asked about the chances of winning the suit, Sheets replied, "What have we got to lose? Even if it's a long shot, we're going to do it."

At Monday night's City Council meeting, Council President Michael Cheney called a federal House committee's plans to slash funding for the cleanup from $500 to $50 over five years "the straw that broke the camel's back."

"It's time for a real Boston Tea Party," said Cheney, referring to an effort led by Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson two years ago when MWRA ratepayers threw water and sewer bills into the harbor.

Cheney said the bills are getting so high, some

City, State Officials Rally Behind Yacht Club

The Town River Yacht Club in Quincy Point, while under fire by the Army Corps of Engineers, is gaining support from city and state officials.

The City Council Monday night passed a resolution stating that its members, as well as Mayor James Sheets, are opposed to any state or federal agency to "displace, move or eliminate" the floating docks kept by the yacht club at the site.

Council President Michael Cheney, who introduced the resolution, gave a brief history of the 85-year-old yacht club, noting that it was first permitted to keep docks in Town River in 1943 and that the permit was expanded in 1982. Cheney cited the many benefits of the yacht club to the community, including safe boating and junior sailing courses and a place for the "average blue-collar worker" to keep a boat.

Cheney's resolution also notes that the club "provides access to water to thousands of people through its membership, and provides slips for the Quincy Fire Department's rescue boat and the Quincy Harbormaster, in addition to winter storage, at no cost."

Recently, however, the Army Corps of Engineers received a complaint from someone removing a barge from the local oil company Quin-Oil who apparently thought the floating docks could cause a safety hazard to such vessels, according to Cheney.

Cheney said the Army Corps of Engineers has asked the yacht club to re-apply for its permit, which he suggested will merely give the Corps a formal opportunity to cancel it. Without the permit, the club would likely have to close, he added.

Other councillors agreed with Cheney, saying that there is no safety hazard. Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson suggested that represents from the oil company be brought before the council to discuss the matter, while Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia joked that "maybe we should propose a resolve (resolution) asking Quin-Oil to relocate," to the applause of a handful of yacht club officials present at the council meeting.

After being signed by the mayor this week, the resolution was to be sent to a number of government officials, including Congressman Gerry Studds, as well as to the Corps and the oil company.

The members of Quincy's Legislative delegation also recently expressed support for the yacht club in a letter sent to Col. Earle C. Richardson, division engineer for the Corps. It was signed by all four Legislative members: Sen. Michael Morrissey and Reps. Stephen Tobin, Ronald Mariano and Michael Bellotti.

"We were disappointed to learn that the Army Corps of Engineers intends to suspend the Town River Yacht Club's occupancy permit as their floats are allegedly located within the Federal Navigation Channel," the letter stated. "This situation has evolved as a result of inaccurate plans which accompanied the yacht club's 1982 permit. As these plans inaccurately depicted the location of the federal channel, the situation has resulted through no fault of the Town River Yacht Club."

The letter also asked that the delegation members, as well as yacht club representatives, be allowed to meet with members of the Corps staff to discuss the matter before a decision is made on the permit.

Council Appropriates $10,000 For Houghs Neck Public Landing

The City Council Monday night appropriated $10,000 to make repairs to the Public Works Public Landing located in Houghs Neck.

Ward 1 City Council Peter Kolson said the landing, which has a deck that measures approximately 100 feet in length, has timbers underneath it that are "starting to rot" because of age. The site is located beside the Quincy Yacht Club.

The funds for the appropriation were taken from the city's waterway improvement reserve, a special account derived from property taxes.

Early Childhood Center Receives $24,000 For Tot Lot Construction

Children at the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center in South Quincy will soon be able to play in a new Tot Lot.

The City Council Monday night appropriated $24,000 to build the students' play area at the school. The money was taken from the city's federally-funded Urban Development Action Grant (UDAG) account.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said the state Department of Education requires all Early Childhood Centers to have a Tot Lot for certification purposes, making the appropriation crucial to the future of the school.

Fabrizio, however, added that he had another reason to support the appropriation: a letter from a class of first graders at the school requesting that a Tot Lot be built.

"I wouldn't want to disappoint them," he said.

Fabrizio said he plans to write to the students to inform them that the project will soon be underway.

Vo-Tech School Receives $6,000 For P.A. System

The Quincy Center for Technical Education (CTE) will soon receive a new public address system.

The City Council voted Monday night to appropriate $6,000 to replace the system at the vocational-technical school. The funds were taken from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account.

Council President Michael Cheney said there have been several problems with the current system, which he called "terrible," and voiced support for the appropriation.

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia agreed.

"I know up to now, it hasn't been too capable," he said.

$5,365 Appropriated For Repairs To Fire Truck

The Quincy Fire Department has received an appropriation of $5,365 from the City Council to make repairs to Engine 10 in North Quincy.

The council took the funds from the city's free cash (cash reserve) account.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman explained to the council Monday night that Engine 10 is a spare piece of apparatus covering Engine 2. It is currently about 20 years old and was damaged during a recent response to an alarm in North Quincy, he said.

"Engine 10 was responding to an alarm at the State Street Bank complex," said the chief. "The truck went over bumps on Newport Avenue and the spring snapped, going through the booster tank. Due to the age of the booster tank, the tank could not be repaired; therefore, the truck had to be sent out so the booster tank could be replaced."

Gorman added that the work was done by Middleboro Fire Apparatus.

Fire Breaks Out At Broad Meadows Marsh

Five Quincy alarm engines responded to a marsh fire that broke out behind Broad Meadows Middle School around 3 p.m. Tuesday.

Quincy Fire Lt. Bill Griffin termed the blaze "an extensive grass fire" and said it may have been caused by either dry, sunny weather or youths playing with matches.

Firefighters had the blaze out just after 5 p.m., he added.

Deputy Fire Chief Paul Cuddy said anytime a fire breaks out in the match, there is a potential danger to homes in the surrounding area.

"There certainly is always a danger of exposing houses that are near the marsh," he said.

Both Griffin and Cuddy credited a sudden downpour that whipped through the area Tuesday afternoon with helping the firefighters to contain the blaze.

HELP FOR RARE CASES

Coping with a serious medical problem can be difficult under any circumstances; however, when that medical problem also happens to be rare-commonly unknown by name or symptoms - the situation can be even more frustrating. The first challenge is obtaining an accurate diagnosis, followed by the task of discovering the right therapy without spending time bouncing from specialist to specialist. Fortunately, there is help in the form of the National Organization for Rare Disorders. Information on individual ailments is available by calling 1-800-999-NORD. Another source is the Rare Disease Information Directory at 1-800-428-6626. Also, doctors can access the latest treatment protocols through the Rare-Disorder Network.

P.S. Some 5,000 conditions are currently classified as "rare," and millions of American are affected by them.

One important feature of a good medical professional is that he or she knows where to turn to get the information necessary for the patient's health. In our office, all medical professionals keep up-to-date on the latest information on medical intervention and care. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Three-Way Race In Ward 5

There will be at least a three-way race for the open Ward 5 City Council seat this year.

Steve Reilly and Dennis Dockham—making their first bid—will join School Committeeman Steve Durkin as contenders for the seat Charles Phelan is stepping down from.

Both have filed intentions to run with the City Election Department. Both are setting up campaign committees. Both already have bumper stickers in circulation.

And both say: "I'm definitely running."

Reilly, 37, who lives on Beach St. and is a lifelong resident of the Wollaston area, says he plans to make an official announcement in May.

Reilly is a lieutenant in the Norfolk County Sheriff's Department and supervisor of the guard night shift at the county jail.

Although this is his first run, Reilly has worked in the campaigns of Senator Michael Morrissey and Charles McIntyre.

He has been active in youth sports as a coach in the St. Ann's basketball league and Koch Club baseball.

He is also a member of the now combined Quincy Citizens Association and Wollaston Park Association.

Dockham, 33, lives on Elm Ave., Wollaston and is general manager of a Hanover Mall store, says he will make his formal announcement around the end of April.

Long active in the Red Cross, he is Disaster Operations Director overseeing 93 communities.

He says he is running because of traffic and public safety concners and would like to develop a teen-age center for the area.

With three candidates it will mean a preliminary election runoff in September for the Ward 5 seat.

Question: Anyone else getting in?

CHARLES McINTYRE has decided to sit out this election year.

McINTYRE

McIntyre, who was considering another run for City Council at-large, has decided not to.

Appointed an assistant District Attorney in Dist. Atty. William Delahunt's office a short while ago, McIntyre says he wants to concentrate on that job and wouldn't have sufficient time to mount an effective city-wide campaign.

The son of the late Mayor-Senator James McIntyre, he made a strong run two years ago in his political debut.

McIntyre now lives on Gothland St. and would be eligible to run for the Ward 3 seat that is opening with Larry Chretien's decision to run for council at-large. And it wouldn't take as much of his time as an at-large campaign would.

But McIntyre, who recently moved back to Ward 3, says he feels it wouldn't be fair for him to jump into that race.

Only 27, he has plenty of time for future politics. Some think you may see him as a district attorney candidate when his boss leaves office at the end of this current term.

CHUCK D'APRIX said "no" twice before he said "yes" to the offer from Hollywood, Fla. (population 140,000) to become executive director of its Quincy-like city-private development partnership.

D'APRIX

Third time around it really did become an offer he just couldn't pass up.

D'Aprix, who was making around $52,000 here as executive director (then president) of Quincy 2000, will be getting what amounts to about a 60 percent income hike in salary and benefits.

"It's a good opportunity and challenging," he says.

One of the challenges is to bring back-to-life the Diplomat Hotel which has been closed for something like seven years. It became famous as a hangout for Rat Pack members Frank Sinatra, Dean Martin, Sammy Davis Jr., etc.

Another challenge is to find a home for the Florida Panthers of the National Hockey League.

Ironically, D'Aprix, who concentrated on Quincy downtown while here, won't have to worry about Hollywood's downtown. They already have someone doing that job.

No, smiles D'Aprix, that had nothing to do with his decision to take the Hollywood offer.

FOR ANYONE THINKING of running for office in this year's city election, City Clerk Joseph Shea reports nomination papers will be available May 1.

SHEA

Deadline for filing them to get on the ballot is 5 p.m. July 11.

The preliminary election date is Sept. 19 and the final election Nov. 7.

And, a Merry Christmas to you.

Walk For Hunger May 7 To Benefit Local Programs

An estimated 46,000 walkers will participate in the 26th annual Walk for Hunger Sunday, May 7, raising an expected $3 million for Project Bread, the event's sponsor.

The pledges will support a record 510 emergency feeding programs in 127 state communities, including 12 in Quincy.

Locally, the funds will benefit the American Red Cross, Atlantic Neighborhood Center, DOVE, Protestant Social Service Bureau's Pantry Shelf, Quincy Community Action Programs, QCAP Summer Food Service Programs, Quincy Crisis Center, Quincy Housing Authority Summer Food Service Program, Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (Father Bill's Place), The Salvation Army, Seaside Advocacy Group Food Pantry and South Shore Overflow Shelter.

Food pantries, soup kitchens and homeless shelter feeding programs state-wide are experiencing dramatic increases in the number of hungry families turning to them for help.

The 20-mile Walk for Hunger begins and ends at Boston Common.

Registration for the Walk for Hunger will take place Sunday, may 7 from 7 to 9 a.m. at Boston Common. The MBTA will offer all walkers a free ride to the Walk between 6 and 9 a.m. on any subway, bus or commuter train. Walkers should show their Walk registration card to any T operator.

For more information about the Walk, call Project Bread at 723-5000.

Parents Without Partners Open To Quincy Residents

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS 1910 POSTCARD view of what was known then as Wollaston Square, shows the intersection of Beale St. and Newport Ave. looking east. The old railroad bridge with a carriage crossing over it in the center of the picture leads towards Hancock St. On the left is the grand old Wollaston Hotel and across the tracks on the right is a store that sold antique furniture on the site of what is today an MBTA power station. Now known as Anne Hutchinson Square, this view of the intersection shows Grandview Ave. coming in at the right foreground and a sliver of the old Taylor Block showing on the extreme right. Until recently this was the site of the Frank Evans Company. At the time of this picture, the trees on the old Farrington Estate in the distance occupied most of what is now Wollaston Center and the MBTA parking lot. Notice the water fountain across Newport Ave. on the right.

Police And Fire Layoffs Possible

April 6 - 12
1976

By PAUL HAROLD

There was no confirmation from Mayor Joseph LaRaia's office this week concerning rumors that the proposed layoffs of city worker would include police and firemen.

Police Chief Francis Finn said, "I've only heard rumors; no official word. I don't know whether there will be layoffs in the police force, but I would hope that would be the last thing that would happen."

Fire Chief Edward Barry was equally in the dark about layoffs and asserted he could not afford any personnel cuts and still provide the same quality of fire protection.

3,000 ATTEND JOB FAIR

The fourth annual job fair held at State Street South attracted 3,000 people this week.

Sponsors were the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy CETA office, South Shore Job Center, the Mayor's Commission on the Status of Women and the Norfolk County Tourism and Development Commission.

PUSH TO REGAIN MERRYMOUNT PARK ACRES

The Park and Recreation board called upon Congressman James Burke in their effort to regain 6.6 acres of Merrymount Park from federal use.

The board wanted the congressman's help in relocating the Infantry Brigade that has occupied the parkland since World War II. The board's executive secretary, Richard Koch, noted that while relations with the infantry group have always been cordial, there was a compelling need by the city to regain the needed acreage for recreation uses. Koch suggested that the Army Reserve unit be moved to available space at Ft. Devens.

What's Wrong With A Little Open Space?

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I feel that I would be remiss if I did not voice my opinion to the already long line of opposition regarding the construction of Shaw's Market in the grossly overcrowded north end of the city.

It boggles my mind to think that the people we elect to entrust with a city which has the distinction of having two past presidents of the United States, and is so very rich in history, can possibly think of permitting a supermarket to be placed within one quarter of a mile of another supermarket.

I also wonder if anyone has stopped to consider the repercussions Shaw's market would have on the Wollaston Market and to the people who have worked so hard to make it the pleasant, convenient market it is today. To be sure, Shaw's will bring jobs, but what about the jobs of the people who work at the Wollaston Market, which is sure to go under if Shaw's is allowed in North Quincy?

The people of North Quincy have had enough to digest over the years. We are still reeling from the effects of State Street South, with raccoons, opossums and other displaced wildlife running amuck through our garbage cans and backyards, not to mention the rabies that these creatures may be carrying.

One only has to visit North Quincy at any given day of the week, to observe the "demolition derby" atmosphere that exists on our streets. I could not begin to count the number of pedestrian accidents (one of them fatal) that have occurred on West Squantum Street, and add to that the destruction of private property which was the result of vehicles jumping the sidewalks and crashing through fences surrounding schools and residences.

Finally, let's leave Shaw's where it is. We do not need to cram another supermarket into an already impossible situation. What we need is a little breathing space in this end of the city.

Let's keep a sense of civility about us. Why do we need to fill every nook and cranny with tons of concrete? What's wrong with a little open space?

'Contract' Group Will Wipe Out The American Dream

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

If the American people, without protest, allows the Contract With America group to continue their plans of cutting Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, and federal Civil Service retirement benefits, the American way of life will be shattered.

The benefits that are realized from these programs have been and are still made possible through payments of taxes and retirement plans, paid for by the individuals and their employers. These are earned entitlements that we contracted for with the federal government. It is the same as putting money into an annuity or bank for the future. The Contract With America group is not trying to make a contract, but to break its contract!

"Stealing" these entitlements through means testing of these programs will result in America having two classes of citizens: welfare class and rich class. There will be no middle class, which is the class that makes America the best and most desired nation to live in the world.

The American Dream of owning your own home and automobile will be wiped out for the majority of America's households. There will be no middle class. Can you picture this situation? Wow! In this scenario, America will destroy itself. There will be no future to look to, because the government will have control of our lives, putting us in a socialistic state.

Means testing, as they want it, would eventually backfire; or, in reverse, would tell us how much we need to live on how much (and no more) we can earn. This is what means testing does! It limits your earnings. Many would lose their incentive to get ahead, or save and plan for the future. There would be no future! Period! Don't think otherwise and don't forget it.

Cutting Social Security, Medicare, Medicaid, and federal Civil Service retirement benefits will wipe out any financial security or hopes for the future that the future Baby Boomers may have when they look forward to their retirement in their senior years. It just won't be there. It will be "means tested" and you will live a "means tested life."

Rita's Risotto

It's not everyday that one of our children moves four houses down from us on the same street.

In fact, my husband and I think it's a great tribute to us that our son Dom and his family did just that over the weekend.

When all the furniture was moved, and we were hanging curtains and trying to put things in their place, our daughter Rita stayed at our house and cooked her famous risotto. (Italian rice). There are three steps to its preparation,and while it takes a little time, it's worth it in the end.

RITA'S RISOTTO

For the stock

1 pound veal bone
5 or 6 pieces of chicken celery, carrot, parsley salt
enough water to cover

Ingredients to add to the rice

1 veal chop or a piece of veal (about 6 to 8 ounces)
1/2 pound fresh mushrooms
5 or 6 stalks of fresh asparagus oil for sauteing

For the rice:

1 1/2 cups imported Italian rice (Arborio)
1 tablespoon olive oil
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon chopped onion
1/2 cup white wine

The first thing is to boil the veal bone and the chicken for the stock, adding the celery, carrots or anything you usually add to soup. Strain when done and keep warm.

While that is boiling, cut the veal chop in small thinly sized pieces and cut the mushrooms in halves. Saute them in a little olive oil, season and set aside. In a separate pan, boil the asparagus until tender. (cut in small pieces and set aside)

Now you are ready to start cooking the rice. In a sauce pan, saute the oil, butter and onion until the onion is limp.

On medium heat, add the raw rice coating it with the butter, oil and onion. Then add 1/2 cup white wine and stir.until almost absorbed. Then 1/2 cup at a time, add the chicken and veal stock stirring for two minutes each time you add a cup of stock. Do this until the rice is done and you've used about 5 and 1/2 cups. Keep cooking until rice is firm not soft. (about 20 minutes)

At the last minute, add the sauted veal, mushroom. the asparagus and the grated parmesan cheese. Blend and serve hot with extra grated cheese.

We were all so hungry after moving, that it was gone in a matter of minutes.

Citizens Banks Appoints Two New Lending Vice Presidents

Alisa Levitt Billings and Daniel G. May have been appointed vice presidents responsible for corporate lending for Citizens Bank in its Quincy Lending Center, announces John J. O'Connor III, regional president of Citizens Bank.

Billings, of Mansfield, and May, of Carver, were most recently employed as vice presidents in commercial lending with USTrust.

O'Connor said the new hires, based at Citizens' regional headquarters in Quincy, complete the bank's personnel restructuring of its small business and commercial lending division.

Billings began her banking career in 1981 as a credit analyst at Rhode Island Hospital Trust National Bank. She was promoted to account representative in 1983, officer in 1984 and assistant vice president in 1985. Joining USTrust in 1985 as assistant vice president, she was promoted in 1987 to vice president most recently responsible for portfolio management and new business development.

A graduate of Georgetown University, she attended Southhampton University in England and Babson College in Wellesley. She is a member of The Family Firm Institute and a volunteer of the Jane Doe Safety Fund.

May began his banking career in 1978 with Hancock Bank & Trust Company which was acquired by Bank of New England. In 1980 he joined BayBank Harvard Trust Company as a loan officer and rose to vice president in the corporate lending division. In 1987 he joined USTrust focusing primarily on new business development and risk management.

May is a graduate of Boston University and Suffolk University. He is a member of the Ancient & Honorable Artillery Company and the Plymouth Yacht Club.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

A Note From Representative Michael Bellotti To Quincy Seniors:

Dear Friends:

As I am sure you are well aware, this past year was especially difficult for Massachusetts and it's people. But, despite the intense fiscal constraints, the legislature won some gains for our state's senior citizens. The Commonwealth has a proud history of service to its elderly residents. As your State Representative, I have done my best to preserve this commitment. With your continued support, I will work to ensure that all who require assistance receive it.

Below is a list of important toll-free telephone numbers that may be of assistance to our senior citizens.

Follow the clues.

Ever hear an eerie rattling in the basement?

Find sooty footprints trailing up the stairs?

Discover your heating bill fluctuates recklessly?

Convert to gas heat now and get a $200 credit.

Because you're a Boston Gas customer, you know the many advantages of natural gas. But if you don't use it to heat your home, here's a solution that will save you money. With the Key to Conversion, you can receive a $200 credit on your gas bill when you convert to gas heat. In addition, you can have a conversion burner installed for just $795—a valuable savings. In most cases, it can be installed onto your existing heating system in just one day.

Call today. Natural gas burns cleaner and more efficiently than other fossil fuels. Our FREE home heating inspection will tell you if you qualify.

The Key to Conversion includes:

- A $200 credit on your gas bill after your system has been converted.
- Two conversion options:
  - Gas conversion burner installed onto your existing heating system for just $795.
  - New heating system equipment installed through a plumber/heating contractor.
- Optional financing plans.
- FREE chimney inspection and sweep with your conversion burner installation.
- FREE three-year Home Heating Service Plan that covers most repairs on your new system.
- 50% or more off eligible energy-saving home improvements from Boston Gas.

The clues lead to the same conclusion.

1-800-755-4427

It's elementary, dear Watson. You need gas heat.

Bostongas
FOR THESE TIMES, IT'S A NATURAL.

Offer ends September 30, 1995. You must have an active gas line and your heating system must pass a free inspection to qualify for a conversion burner. $200 credit applies to Boston Gas customers who don't currently heat with gas.

South Shore YMCA Support Campaign Kick-Off April 11

The South Shore YMCA will launch its 1995 annual support campaign Tuesday, April 11 with a kick-off reception at the Quincy Neighborhood Club from 5:30 to 7 p.m.

Chaired by WJDA-AM President James D. (Jay) Asher Jr. and assisted by Glenn C. Ferguson, owner of Green Environmental, Inc. and K. Douglas Briggs, president of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, this year's goal for the six-week long campaign is $165,000.

All funds are used to financially assist children, families and adults who are not able to pay full fees toward YMCA programs and memberships.

Asher will be responsible for the overall campaign. Ferguson will head up the major gifts division and Doug Briggs will serve as section leader for the President's Club.

For more information, or to attend the April 11 kick-off, contact Glenn McQuade, South Shore YMCA, 479-8500 ext. 138.

the line between Wards 5 and 6.

Ayers, who had not indicated how he would vote prior to the meeting--despite early support for Shaw's from other councillors--said he felt that conditions added to the permit by himself, Phelan and the Planning Board would meet all neighborhood concerns and give residents adequate protection.

"It's not the same project that was originally withdrawn before us," said Ayers, referring to a proposal from Shaw's to build at the site that was withdrawn in November 1993 because of opposition from Ayers, Phelan and other councillors. "Quincy can't afford to turn this down. We are looking forward to having Shaw's as a neighbor in North Quincy."

Shaw's submitted its new plan to the council last November and a public hearing on the matter was held in January.

Phelan, who voiced his support for the project last week, agreed.

"It's been a long process," he said. "But at this point, I feel that they (neighborhood concerns) have all been addressed in this permit."

Traffic was the major concern of area residents, and councillors said they felt confident all traffic issues would be solved because of Gillon's blessing and the conditions added to the permit.

Among the numerous conditions that Shaw's must meet in order to build at the site are:

•Donate $150,000 to be divided evenly between the North Quincy Business Development Fund and Wollaston Business Community and Development Fund.

•Contribute to an area senior shuttle service.

•Install flashing lights in nearby school zones, including North Quincy High School, Central Middle School, Parker Elementary School and Sacred Heart School.

Shaw's also plans to purchase nearby Bob's Speed & Auto and expand part of Hancock Street, which will move the supermarket's entrance away from Albion Road, where plans for a parking lot have been canceled. Bob's Speed & Auto plans to relocate in the city.

In addition, Shaw's will pay for road and other area improvements and other amenities such as new trees for the surrounding neighborhood.

The project will also bring the city $150,000 in annual property taxes, 200 union construction jobs and 250 permanent jobs.

While some neighbors have expressed fears that nearby Wollaston Market would be put out of business by a new Shaw's store, councillors expressed confidence in the abilities of market owner Frank Miller.

"I think he will prosper if he handles the challenge properly," said Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill, who likened Miller's "good business sense" to that of Robert Curry, whose Curry Hardware in West Quincy has continued to do well despite the presence of the nearby Home Depot store built several years ago.

The Shaw's proposal includes construction of a single-story building comprised of a 56,200-square foot supermarket with a 2,000-square-foot mezzanine, as well as an attached 27,925-square-foot retail store currently planned to house two tenants, at the Boston Gear Works site. Plans call for the opening of the second retail store to be delayed until after the supermarket has been open for nine months.

25 QHS Students See Washington Close-Up

Twenty-five students and two faculty advisors from Quincy High School recently returned to the city after participating in the Washington Close-Up Foundation government studies program.

During the one-week program, students attended seminars with members of Congress, and met with a representative of the Washington press corps, lobbyists, government officials and political figures to learn more about the govermental process. Time is also allotted to tour the city, to visit local universities and for cultural activities.

Students were grouped with students from other areas of the country and discussed activities on current events and the governing process.

Members of the Quincy High delegation, among the largest in the country, are:

Faculty advisors Ann Carroll, a social studies teacher; and Jack Scanlon, a Pass program instructor; and students Damon Blaco, Betty Chen, Robert Churchill, Susan Fenton, Amy Gibbons, James Griffiths, Domenic Gulla, David Gunther, Roger Johnston, Janet Zane, Paul Kazolias, Amy Leung, Karen Norton, Terry O'Neill, Amy Parsons, Sean Perry, Loc-Duyen Pham, Sara-Ann Porter, Michael Pringle, Harmony Snedden, Kathleen Swanton, Trinh Tran, Sini Tupe, Jennifer Weng and Pauline Wong.

In order to participate in the program, students must make a commitment, Carroll explained. "They attend a special class outside of the regular school day and they perform 25 hours of community service in the Quincy area in preparation for the trip.

"Any students willing to fulfill these obligations are welcomed into the program regardless of their economic situation," Carroll said.

Participation in the program at Quincy High has increased because Close-up changes students' lives. One Quincy High student who attended the program said, "I now look at government in a totally different way. I always felt like an outsider--that decisions were made completely out of my control. Now, I understand that decisions are made by people, not some huge machine. Now I feel like I have a voice."

Carroll said the Close-Up program provides students with the skills and confidence to express themselves. She noted voter participation is at an all-time low.

"Education reform advocates stress the need to develop critical thinking and communication skills in our students. We believe that the Close-Up program effectively addresses both of these issues.

"We are creating citizens who understand how the system works, and that will only benefit the Quincy community," she added.

Annual Letter Carriers Food Drive May 13

The annual Letter Carriers Food Drive will be held nationally May 13, announces William T. Dunphy, manager of customer services for the Quincy Post Office.

"The drive is always held nationally on the second Saturday in May," he said. "The needs of food banks go unfulfilled during the summer months, and the drive is timed to fill the banks during this crucial period."

Nationally, the letter carriers have been doing the drive for four years, and the volume received has doubled each year. Last year, nationally, 32 million pounds were received and distributed by the carriers. This makes the carriers' food drive the largest collection of food in the United States.

Quincy, as a test site for Branch 34 of the National Association of Letter Carriers, undertook the first collection of foodstuffs last May in the Boston area. At that time, some 15 tons of food were collected, and eight identified food pantries in the City of Quincy were filled to capacity.

This year, the letter carriers in Boston have expanded the collection to every neighborhood in the greater Boston area and outlying suburbs. The National Association of Letter Carriers and the Postal Service have coupled with the AFL-CIO and the United Fund to make this an even better year.

Each customer can leave non-perishable food stuffs next to their mailbox, or give it to their carriers May 13. The carriers will do the rest. Everything possible will be done to keep all the food donated by Quincy residents in Quincy.

Two or three days prior to the collection, a postcard will be mailed to each Quincy residence, reminding them of the drive.

"We hope that this second year of the drive in Quincy will be even larger than last," said Dunphy. "We are sure that the people who are in need of these foodstuffs can count on the Quincy people again. The letter carriers, many of whom live here in Quincy, are doing nothing more than trying to give something back to the community that treats them so well."

Positive Forecast For Quincy Commercial Real Estate Market

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Market trends and statistics support a positive forecast for the commercial real estate market in Quincy.

After the battering the regional economy endured in the late 1980s and early 1990s, it has taken some time for the bruised survivors to recognize the signs of recovery. However, during the course of 1994, regional statistics made it clear that New England was not only recovering, but that Massachusetts was leading the way.

There is no escaping the fact that there is a direct correlation between the Boston market and our local market conditions. An estimated 45 million square feet of private sector office space in the City of Boston was reflecting a vacancy rate of just 13 percent as we entered the new year. This rate represented a significant drop from the 1994 rate of 16.3 percent and the historic high of 18.4 percent in 1991.

Alan Levanthal of Beacon Properties in Boston projected in a recent industry trade publication column that momentum built up by the recovery will result in an office vacancy rate below 10 percent by early 1996.

In the market south of Boston, from Quincy to Hingham, and across Dedham and Westwood, we are already experiencing this estimated 10 percent vacancy rate for office space. With the Big Dig construction project continuing to push tenants out of Boston, Quincy is positioned to capitalize on market demand for accessible and lower priced office space.

Consider these 1994 local market indicators: almost 40,000 square feet at Presidents Place were leased out to Boston Financial Data Services, and State Street Bank leased over 100,000 square feet at Batterymarch II. The Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, with 150 employees, leased approximately 12,000 square feet at 10 Granite St. in December 1994.

"We made a concerted effort to stay in Quincy Center to try and help other local businesses," said QVNA Executive Director Stephen Robbins. "We would like to see the various city departments continue to work with companies like ours to address parking and other issues that present a challenge to doing business in the city."

Local banks also play a key role in the economic revitalization of the city. These banks have an opportunity to expand their commitment to the city by investing small, local business owners. They've loosened their purse strings for some local real estate investments as the finance, insurance and real estate service sectors, traditionally our largest office-based workforces, have been achieving substantial regional growth.

In the past 16 months, several Quincy office buildings between 5,000 and 10,000 square feet in size have sold an average of $40 per square foot to attorneys, health care providers and other professional end users. Much of this activity has been funded by local banks.

What does all of this office activity mean to the city at large? Indications are positive for retailers who can position their product and services to attract the growing influx of office workers. We need to find a convenient way to move these workers around the city to support our restaurant and shop keepers. This access to community-based services will become an added incentive for future corporate relocations.

Crown Colony Office Park and Presidents Place are examples of standing first-class inventory in the $18 to $24 range. We've seen an estimate 15 percent in this type of space and as demand surges prices could continue to rise. Net effective rents would need to increase by approximately $8 to $10 per square foot to support new construction in the immediate area.

The development of new Class A office buildings in Quincy Center should be timed to take full advantage of market shifts. As the city, through the efforts of groups such as Quincy 2000 and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, is positioned to attract new economic development, we need to remember the competition for office space goes beyond the buildings we can see on the skyline today. Just three and four exits to the south of us these is more than 100,000 square feet of first-class space becoming available this year, as well as a new fully permitted office park of almost 100 acres in size.

The City of Quincy boasts the advantages of access to Boston via public transit, a geographical position as the gateway to the South Shore, and distinction as the only "city" just outside of Boston. We need to remember that out competition is very close--just down the road a piece--and we need to continue to create the environment and incentives that will make doing business in Quincy the best option for businesses we want within our city limits.

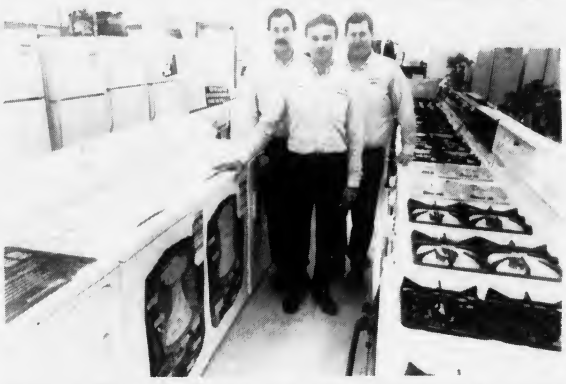
Spotlight On Business

Third-Generation Business Celebrating 50th Anniversary

Accents Always On Personal Service, Quality At Hancock Tire, Appliance



HANCOCK TIRE AND APPLIANCE owner Joseph Palumbo, center, and staff Bob Nelson, left, and Ken Parker, display some of the appliances they sell and service at the South Quincy business.

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Since opening their doors to the public for business in 1945, the Palumbo family and the rest of the staff at Hancock Tire and Appliance, 115 Franklin St., have adapted to the changing times while remaining true to their roots.

According to third generation owner Joe Palumbo, he and his staff at HTA have been able to remain in business for so long by treating their customers on a personal level and offering access to all brands of quality equipment.

"We deal with people on a one-on-one basis with honesty and integrity," he said.

In their five decades of service, Hancock Tire and Appliance has earned a reputation for putting the customer first.

"We have survived and thrived for 50 years due to our proven record of treating the customer with respect and by offering them the little extras which keep them coming back," Palumbo said.

"We've been here for so long that when people come in here they feel comfortable they are getting the best service for the best price," Palumbo noted of the store's 50 years of business.

Palumbo explained that some customers trust the staff at Hancock Tire and Appliance so much that some customers order products over the phone without seeing the product first-hand.

"Customers trust our judgement and that is very important," he said.

HTA belongs to a nationally-recognized buyers group which allows them access to all brands, to keep a low overhead, and to acquire quality products for a competitive price.

"We have a knowledgeable sales staff which help the customers make the right choice to get the right product at the right price," said Palumbo.

Among them, Palumbo, Ken Parker and Bob Nelson have over 50 years of combined service in sales.

Besides offering an experienced and knowledgeable sales staff as well as quality merchandise at competitive prices, HTA also offers a free delivery service to meet the customer's needs.

"We don't deliver products only when we happen to be in the area, we make special trips to fit into our customer's schedule, anytime and anywhere," said Palumbo.

The sales room of Hancock Tire and Appliance showcases a broad selection of the most technologically advanced equipment.

"We are continually updating our showroom with the most up-to-date equipment," Palumbo said.

Hancock Tire and Appliance also offers a 90-day finance program, all the appliance parts for the handyman's needs and, of course, tires.

When Hancock Tire and Appliance opened 50 years ago, tires and appliances were sold in the same stores routinely. But, as some stores have become more and more specialized, the staff at Hancock Tire and Appliance have remained true to their roots by continuing to sell tires and appliances.

"Instead of changing our sales policy like most other stores, we decided to continue with the more traditional sales practice," said Palumbo.

In addition to selling all major brand-name tires, the staff at HTA also replaces and repairs tires.

Since the sales of tires and appliances peak at different times of the year, the combination of appliances and tires make for a more inclusive sales environment.

"They compliment each other well," Palumbo said, "and it helps the customers by offering them a more diverse selection."

The staff is factory-authorized and trained to service all brands of major appliances and arrange for in-home service at the customer's convenience. HTA also offers carry-in service on all brand-name TVs and VCRs.

Located next to the historic Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., Hancock Tire and Appliance, 472-1710, is open Monday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., Tuesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m., Friday from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Crane Library To Celebrate National Library Week April 9-15

The Thomas Crane Public Library, 40 Washington St., Quincy Center, will celebrate National Library Week April 9-15.

Events include:

•Mystery writer J. Dayne Lamb, author of the Teal Stewart Mysteries, will speak Tuesday, April 11 at 7:30 p.m. She has written two novels, "Questionable Behavior" and "A Question of Preference," and a third, "Unquestioned Loyalty," will be published in October. Lamb is president of the New England Chapter of Sisters in Crime and a member of Mystery Writers of America and The Authors Guild.

•A program entitled "Buying Your Family's First Computer" will be held Wednesday, April 12 at 7 p.m. It will be led by Jim Jarzyniecki, a computer systems design and software education consultant.

•Local artist Carmen Ungar will exhibit her paintings in the Main Library Gallery April 10-28. A reception will be held for her Thursday, April 13 from 5 to 7 p.m. Ungar served as art librarian at the library for many years before her retirement in 1981. She is a longtime member of the Quincy Art Association and is among the women included in the publication "Quincy Women 200 Years." Paintings will be available for purchase. Exhibit hours are 2 to 4 p.m. as well as 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. on April 10, 19, 24 and 26.

In addition, the annual nationwide read-aloud event, "Night of 1,000 Stars" will be held Tuesday, April 18 at 7:30 p.m. in the library's Children's Room.

For more information, call the library at 376-1300.

How to select a hearing aid.

If you are considering the purchase of a hearing aid, here are some helpful tips.

- See a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist or Audiologist.
- Make sure that they have an office close by (hearing aids require service).
- Do they have state of the art equipment? Ask about REAL EAR measurement, middle ear compliance testing, a sound proof booth, word recognition testing, video otoscopy and programmable hearing aids.
- Check to see if they have a good track record with Attorney Generals office and Better Business Bureau.
- Shop around for services, location, experience and price.
- Avoid TV advertised products. You pay more for the commercials and you frequently get a salesperson not a specialist.
- Ask for a FREE hearing screening and consultation and a 60 day no-obligation trial.

"We know a great deal about hearing aids."

To Protect Your Body, Use Your Head Part III*

While Traveling:

- Park your car in a well-lighted area. Lock both your ignition and your door.
- When leaving a building to get to your car, have your keys in your hand ready for use.
- Check before entering your car to make sure no one is hiding in the back seat. If you have a station wagon, check the luggage compartment.
- Your windows should be rolled up and your doors locked when you're in your car.
- If you think you're being followed, don't drive home! Immediately go to the nearest well-light all-night business and call for help.
- If you're sure you're being followed, ATTRACT ATTENTION! Honk your horn, blink your lights. As long as your car is operable, stay in it. Keep the motor running.
- If you have car trouble, raise the hood, then wait inside the car with the doors locked and the windows rolled up. If a motorist stops to help, open your windows slightly and ask him or her to call the police.
- If you want to help someone in a disabled vehicle, don't get out of your car. Drive to the nearest well-lighted area and call the police.
- Keep your car in gear while stopped at traffic lights. If someone tries to get into your car, drive away, even if it means going through a red light (do it safety).
- Don't pick up hitchhikers. Don't hitchhike yourself.
- Avoid using public restrooms facilities in parks, forest preserves, underground parking garages, or any other isolated areas.
- DO NOT permit your children to enter public restrooms alone!

BUSINESS NEWS

Jeff Bertman Member Of Master IJO Jewelers

JEFF BERTMAN

Jeff Bertman, of Roger's Jewelry in Quincy, was recently accepted for membership into the Master IJO Jewelers Organization in recognition of his expertise in the areas of diamonds and fine gems, said IJO President and CEO Jack Gredinger.

As the exclusive Master IJO Jeweler in Quincy, Bertman can offer many benefits of interest to area residents, including buying jewelry at significant savings due to IJO's strong buying power. As a master jeweler, Bertman can buy diamonds direct in Antwerp, Belgium, the diamond capital of the world, an option not available to most jewelers.

"We'll be passing our savings along to our customers," Bertman said. "By eliminating the middleman mark-up, for example, we can save our customers as much as 31 to 54 percent on the most beautiful diamonds they'll find anywhere."

Master IJO Jewelers Organization, headquartered in Westport, Conn., is the largest buying group in the world, more than all the others combined. Its more than 850 retail jeweler members, some as far away as Australia and the United Kingdom, generates more than $600 million in annual retail sales.

QUINCY PITCHER CHRIS DeLisle got the starting nod on Opening Day for the Presidents. He performed admirably, striking out nine in five innings, before succumbing to the unseasonably cold weather.

Quincy Drops Opener, Optimism Remains

By KERRY BYRNE

There's a lot to look forward to for the Quincy High School baseball team. The questions is, will that optimism come to fruition this year or the next?

The Presidents boast a "very competitive situation," according to head man Bob Sylvia. The problem, however, is that many of the talented competitors are young players with little or no varsity experience.

Before the opening game Monday Sylvia said, "We only have a few proven veterans with varsity experience. Kids like Joe Biagini, Shaun Kivlin and Steve Barrett. The rest are young kids not used to being a part of varsity competition.

"I'm worried about hitting primarily. We don't have much to draw on. As far as arms go, I think we're pretty strong."

Those words proved prophetic as Quincy opened the season with a 5-0 loss to a Milton High club which last year posted a 19-3 record.

The Presidents next play Monday at Taunton. They return home Wednesday, April 12 for a 3:30 meeting with Weymouth.

Against Milton, starting pitcher Chris DeLisle, who closed out the 1994 season with a number of strong performances, looked impressive as he fanned nine batters through five innings of work. However, in the fifth he was rattled as the Wildcats loaded the bases. The senior hurler managed to work his was out of the jam without giving up a run by getting DH Charlie Beyer to ground out to first.

DeLisle, his arm perhaps pushed to the limits by the windy, frigid - certainly unbaseball-like - weather, was replaced by Shaun Kivlin for the final two innings.

Kivlin, who will likely be Quincy's ace after posting some outstanding numbers last year on the mound, was stung for the five runs. It was not the type of performance Kivlin is used to; last year he had one of the best ERAs in the Old Colony League.

But, as Sylvia had predicted, it was the lack of hitting which truly hurt the Presidents. Only lead-off man and left fielder Steve Barrett cracked a hit against Milton gun Jim Beyer. (Beyer also proved a weapon at the plate, going 3 for 4 with two doubles, scoring the game-winning run and batting in two.)

Quincy threatened once in the second inning when they managed to get Kivlin on third and sophomore third baseman Bobby Walsh on second. But Kivlin was thrown out during a rundown as DeLisle reached on a fielder's choice.

When asked if this was the type of game we can expect from the Presidents this season, Sylvia said, "I think so. At least until we start hitting the ball, until we start making contact. It will take a little while, but the kids will come around."

It may take a while, but the future is bright for the Presidents. "We have a very competitive situation," said Sylvia. "We have kids who will be going up and down between JV and varsity. It's a very healthy situation. We haven't had that around here in a long time. When you got a kid breathing down your neck it will bring out the best in the kids, it has to. Kids will have to be on the ball - on the field and in the classroom - or someone will take their place."

For now it will take a little time. Only two of Quincy's starters, Barrett and Biagini, started regularly last season. Biagini, a junior, leads a talented core of juniors and sophomores which will be asked to carry a big load if the Presidents are to match last year's 12-8 record - a record which included a tournament appearance that ended with a one-run loss to eventual state champion New Bedford.

Senior Hitmen To Lead The North Quincy Nine

With their major league counterparts now preparing for their season, the North Quincy baseball team is now ready to improve on last year's 5-15 record.

Head coach Leo Donovan, who enters his 10th season at the helm, will lead his team into action when the Red Raiders open their season Saturday with a trip to Stoughton. Their first home game at Adams Field is Monday against Plymouth South. It is also NQ's Old Colony League opener. The Stoughton contest begins at 11 a.m. and the home opener starts at 3:30 p.m.

Donovan will rely heavily on the bats of seniors Sean Dolbeare, Dan Reynolds, Steve Koch and Jesse Casler to carry the team on offense. The four will serve as the team captains.

"A lot will depend on our senior hitters," said Donovan. "I'm also expecting a big year from the bat of Tim Zaniboni."

This year's pitching staff will be a group of inexperienced right-handed hurlers. The two-man starting rotation which will open the season will include juniors Malachy Higgins and Joe McCarthy. Also slated to see time on the mound are Dolbeare and juniors Jeremy Nielson and Tim Sheehan. Only Dolbeare has varsity pitching experience to his credit.

"Our success depends on the progress of our young pitchers," said Donovan. "If they come through for us, it will be a great help."

The infield will have Reynolds starting at first base. Second base will be handled by Higgins when he is not pitching and Koch will open at short-stop. Dolbeare will start at third base and junior Kenny Hannaford will start at catcher. Backup infielders include Sheehan and junior John Conlin.

"Our infield is good, but we lack depth," said Donovan.

Zaniboni, a junior, will see a lot of time at DH, but will also play first and third base. "Zaniboni is a strong hitter," said Donovan. "We need to have him in the lineup to help our offense."

The starting outfield will consist of sophomore Brian Beaton in left, junior Bill Manning in center and Casler in right. Backups include seniors Steve

First 5K Fool's Fun Run & Walk

Mike O'Rourke of Braintree and Suzanne Jones of Milton were the top male and female winners in the first Quincy Hospital 5K Fool's Fun Run and Walk Saturday.

The race took runners and walkers over a challenging 3.1-mile course through the hills surrounding Quincy Hospital. Other top winners were Fred Zuleger of Coventry, R.I. and Gail Connolly of Braintree, top male and female masters winners (over 50 years); and Geoffrey Hays of Quincy who was the first walker to cross the finish line.

The event raised nearly $6,000 for the Quincy Hospital Charitable Foundation. The foundation helps to provide vitally needed medical services for South Shore residents by supporting the purchase of advanced medical technologies and improvements to the facilities at Quincy Hospital.

Other Quincy runners and walkers participating in the event were:

Male

Anthony Anatucci, 17:38; Jim Marer, 20:49; Walter Burgess Jr., 20:58; Brian Callow, 21:07; Bob Pantuccio, 21:33; Gerald Smith Jr., 21:40; Mike Linnand, 21:42; John Sullivan, 22:04; and Robert Griffin, 22:10.

Female

NQ Girls Look To Repeat, Boys Have New Coach

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy High School boys' and girls' tennis teams are ready to play and both open their seasons Monday.

The boys play their first match at home at 3:30 against Plymouth South. The girls will head to Plymouth South for a road match against the Panthers, also at 3:30. Both NQ tennis teams will play their home matches at the tennis courts at Presidents Golf Course.

The girls' team is coming off a successful 10-5 season last year in which they qualified for the team tournament for the first time in school history.

"We're proud of our accomplishments last year," said sixth-year head coach Doug McFarland. "The girls were very proud of themselves."

Things should go well again this year. With eight returning players, McFarland can expect a repeat tournament appearance.

Leading the group of returnees is sophomore Wendy Trafton, who will play first singles. Second singles will be occupied by senior Vivian Kam. McFarland is yet to decide on his third singles competitor.

Playing as first doubles is the sister team of Kim and Ngan Ho. The second doubles unit is up in the air as seniors Wai Lau, Karen Moi and Katherine Chin along with sophomores Yun-Wing Yu and Laura Powers battle for the positions. All had doubles experience last season and one could lock up the spot for third singles.

Others competing for a doubles position are sophomores Tammy Au, Outtara Ly, Shuk Wa Leung and Wingsze Yuen. McFarland singled out Au for her great improvement during the off-season.

"We look to be competitive this year," said McFarland. "We gained a lot of experience in the tournament last year and that will help us a lot."

On the boys side, a young team and a new coach should make things very interesting. Inheriting a team with no seniors is head coach Gail Small, who is confident a successful season will be had by her team.

"I love the game [of tennis]," said the rookie coach. "I thought it would be a great way to get involved with the students of North Quincy High School."

Small will have some experience on her side with seven returning players, including junior first singles player Matt Knowles and junior second singles player Vik Gadre. Two other returning players who will battle for the third singles spot are junior Dong Yang and sophomore David Nguyen.

Both doubles teams have yet to be determined. Leading candidates for the first team are junior Quy Nguyen and sophomore David Klingenstein. Three others hoping to form the second team are junior Andy Wu and sophomores Jackson Lee and William Kwong.

"It will be difficult to pick a team for each match," said Small. "The kids work hard and are very motivated to play. They will even challenge each other to get a certain position."

The boys' team also has the services of three promising freshmen. They are Billy Connolly, Joe Flores and Tom Vitt.

Both North Quincy teams will play a tough Old Colony League schedule which includes boys and girls favorites Falmouth and Barnstable.

Colonial Federal Captures Title

Jody Bravo's overtime tally gave coach Joe Ardagna's Colonial Federal squad a dramatic 7-6 win over Marina Bay Taxi in the championship game.

Bravo also pushed in two assists and Mike D. Sullivan scored two goals in regulation to power the championship attack. Single scores were recorded by Keith Walsh, Chris Murphy, Patrick Sullivan and Rich Bonvie.

Paul Markarian (two goals, one assist) and Mark Giese (one goal, two assists) paced the Marina Bay effort for coach Dick Fennelly, whose club finished the regular season with the League's best record. Sean Owens, Kiva Tupe and Jim Mateu posted one goal each. Assists were made by Terrence Doherty and Mateu.

[illegible] at the [illegible] with 29 seconds left to [illegible] Marina Bay Taxi to a 4-3 win over Mike Morrissey Club.

Joe Callahan, Matt O'Malley and Sean Owens scored Marina Bay's first three goals to set up Markarian's heroics. Assists were made by Terrence Doherty (2), Sean Fennelly and Joe Tower.

Jon Paquette paced the Mike Morrissey Club effort with two goals. John Alves netted the other. Matt Minicucci and Chris Lee made one assist each.

Six players scored for Colonial Federal as they posted a 6-5 win over Skinner's Winners in the [illegible] semifinal match.

[illegible] Sullivan, Ryan Doyle, Tom Gouthro and Sean Haidul netted the winning tallies. With three assists, Doyle was the game's top scorer. Single assists were made by Keith Walsh, Joe Ardagna, Sullivan, MacDonald and Haidul.

John Grazioso led Skinner's with two goals and an assist. John Gavin, Mark Gibbons and Paul Campbell tallied once each. Dishing out assists were Paul Zenga, Ryan Graeber, Mike Welch and Tom Costa.

Squirt House

Brewster, Fitzpatrick Do The Trick In Title Game

Mike Brewster and Joe Fitzpatrick registered hat tricks as Green Environmental cruised past Doran & Horrigan, 9-4, in the Squirt House League championship game.

Adding to the Green onslaught were Ryan Donahue, Jeff Hunt and Mark Tetreault with one goal apiece. Billy McKeon was the title game's top playmaker with three assists. Single assists were made by Mike Maguire, Joe Cronin, Mike Cox, Tetreault and Donahue.

Coaches Mike Maguire, Mike Brewster and Jamie Young guided Green to the title.

Scoring for the runners-up were Chris Anderson, Bryan Cooper, Matt Alleva and Jim (Slashin') Cashins. Jill McInnis, Pam Sullivan, Colin Maxey and Cooper posted assists in the finale.

Rick Cashins and Jack McInnis were at the helm for the Doran club.

Two goals by John Ryan proved the difference as Doran edged Granite Auto Electric, 6-5, in the semifinal round.

Also tallying for the winning squad were Alleva, McInnis, Cooper and Steve Dunn. The scores were set up by Cashins (2), Billy Eisan, C.J. Stivaletta, Courtney Barton, David Boncek, Mike McGonagle, Dunn, Cooper, McInnis and Alleva.

Netting goals for Granite Auto were Neal Gavin, Shane Newell, Lisa Kelly, Miah Hasson and Brian Stock. Assists were recorded by Dan Coughlin, Mike Conley, Shawn Richardson, Andrew Ross, Newell and Blue Chip Stock.

McKeon's overtime tally lifted Green Environmental to a 4-3 semifinal win over Burgin Platner despite the hat trick heroics of BP's Brian (The Flying Irishman) O'Hanley.

Donahue, Cox and Fitzpatrick scored for Green in regulation. Tetreault, Donahue and John Mateu dished out assists.

Two of O'Hanley's goals were unassisted. Frank Guest aided him on the other score.

Mite House

Doherty & White Wins Crown

Billy Jones lit the lamp in overtime to give Doherty & White the Mite House League Jamboree title with a 2-1 win over M. Sugarman & Co.

Ben Metcalfe recorded the regulation tally for coach Kevin Craig's Doherty squad. Steve Crispo made one assist in the championship effort.

Billy Barter posted the lone Sugarman goal. He was unassisted.

The two finalists advanced after both recorded 3-2 wins in the semis.

M. Sugarman topped Paul Harold Club behind goals by Brendan Conley, Joey McManus and Barter. Ryan Conley and Dan Reggiannini made the assists.

Liam Powers netted both Harold Club goals.

Metcalfe, Taylor Reinhardt and Jake O'Donnell tallied for Doherty & White in their win over Barry's Deli.

Jones, Tim Watson and Nick Manning set up the winning scores.

Andrew Patten proved he can do more than just stonewall his opponents as the lit the lamp twice in the short effort. Matt Germain, Chris Haldoupis and John Clark aided on the Patten goals.

Happy Faces For NQ In Opener

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

There were nothing but smiles and happy faces on the North Quincy High School bench Monday at McCoy Field as the Red Raider softball team began the season with a 9-2 victory over Notre Dame of Hingham.

North will travel to Boston Latin Friday for a non-league matchup and will open their Old Colony League schedule with a trip to Plymouth South Monday, April 10. The Raiders' next home game at McCoy Field is Wednesday, April 12 at 3:30.

The win Monday was caused by a combination of strong pitching, tough defense and timely hitting in the early innings.

The strong pitching came from Denise Anderson, who pitched the complete game, allowing just two earned runs and eight hits, walking two and striking out one. Anderson got ahead on several Notre Dame hitters early and had great control throughout the game. However, she showed some signs of fatigue in the later innings but was able to finish the game.

"Denise pitched much better than I thought she would," said head coach Carolyn Parsley of Anderson, who had a rough outing in North's last pre-season scrimmage. "She still has to build her stamina to pitch the whole game."

The defense was also a key factor for the Red Raiders. Great plays were made by second baseman Alyssa Cobban, third baseman Jen Teahan, left fielder Kerry Skehan and center fielder Kerry Ginty, who made a great catch on a line drive to end the game.

"My starting outfield is starting to think all around," said Parsley. "They are keeping their mental edge for seven innings."

Offensively, North was led by Ginty, who collected two hits on the afternoon. Also getting into the hit column were Jen Doherty, Liz Fitzpatrick and Kelly Keegan. Teahan scored four runs for the Red Raiders.

The North Quincy offense started early. After two quick outs in the first, the bats began to connect. Four straight hits by Doherty, Teahan, Fitzpatrick and Keegan got the Raiders going. Keeghan's two RBI single gave NQ a 2-0 lead.

They scored single runs in the third and fourth innings. First Teahan scored on a single by Fitzpatrick in the third. Then, in the fourth, Teahan scored again, this time when Kristen Proude reached on a Notre Dame error.

The fifth inning was more productive for North as far as runs scored; four in all, but on the benefit of only one hit. A total of four walks and three wild pitches by Notre Dame pitching helped Teahan, Keegan, Skehan and Cobban bring the Raider run total to eight.

NQ scored their final run in the sixth as Teahan scored when Fitzpatrick reached on an error.

Notre Dame scored their two runs with single scores in the fourth and sixth innings.

Bregoli Shines In St. Ann's Loss

Fourteen-year-old Chris Bregoli, an eighth-grader at St. Ann's School in Wollaston and a member of the St. Ann's hoop team, scored 40 points in a recent 56-48 loss to St. Catherine's of Norwood.

Although impressive, Bregoli has grown accustomed to big-time athletic performances. He has been on quite an athletic ride the past year and a half.

As quarterback of the North Quincy Apaches, he led his team to back-to-back Quincy Youth Football League championships.

He was a starting infielder on the Elks squad which won the city's Babe Ruth championship last summer; he missed the title contest, however, because he was in Iowa playing in a tournament with the AAU New England Mariners.

Most recently has been spinning his magic on the roundball court.

Needless to say, Bregoli was named to the South Shore Parochial School League all-star team.

'Intro To Fitness' Program At YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will offer an "Intro to Fitness" Program.

The course will include basic conditioning techniques of weight training and aerobics along with nutritional information. Classes begin Tuesday, April 25 at 6:30 p.m.

Registration has begun.

Heroux, Erik Soloman, Desmond Lui and Keith Martinson.

North Quincy's OCL competition will again be tough this season. Games against League favorites Falmouth and Barnstable will be tough battles.

Donovan will have both assistants returning this season. Dave Perdios is the JV coach and Jack Outerbridge will coach the freshmen.

Mite A's Close Season In Strong Fashion

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A team, sponsored by the Northland Corporation, wrapped up their season with a second-place finish in the 16th annual American Legion Invitational "A" Tournament on Cape Cod.

In the third game of the tourney, the hard skating and hustle exhibited all year were not enough to overcome a strong Manchester, N.H. team despite the superb goaltending by Andy (Stonewall) Patten.

Defensemen Richard Stone and Joe Norris played exceptionally well but the team was unable to light the lamp as they fell, 2-0.

Quincy opened the tournament with a solid 4-1 win over a talented Belmont club. Quincy never trailed, taking on 1-0 lead in the first period courtesy of an unassisted tally by Brendon Conley. Dan Durocher quickly followed suit with a score that was set up by Matt Germain.

In a third period filled by exciting end-to-end play, Quincy's Pat Maxey scored top shelf thanks to a display of picture passing by Matt Grazioso and B. Conley.

Ryan Conley knocked home the final goal after passed by line mates Pat Casper and Andy McDonough.

Blueliners Kevin Richardson, Matt Lavery, Brendon Craig and captain Tim Duggan continually frustrated the opposing attackers. Belmont scored just one goal, midway through the second period.

The second game also provided the Quincy faithful with exciting coast-to-coast action as the local boys again captured a 4-1 decision, this time over a strong New Jersey team.

Excellent defensive play by Norris, Stone, Lavery and Richardson combined with stingy goaltending by Stonewall Patten kept the game scoreless until New Jersey netted one midway through the contest.

Quincy, behind for the first time in the tournament, refused to fold and answered when Grazioso lit the lamp off passes by Maxey and Duggan.

Aggressive offense by the Casper-McDonough-R. Conley line and outstanding defense by Craig and Duggan kept Quincy alive and the game remained tied until Grazioso scored. He was set up by the stick work of Maxey and B. Conley.

Josh Giordani then scored and followed that with an assist of Germain who netted Quincy's final goal. Durocher also helped set up the closing goal.

Patten and his defensemen sealed the contest by turning away a relentless New Jersey attack in the final minutes.

Planning Underway For Quincy Senior Olympics

Planning for the 13th annual Senior Olympic Games sponsored by Beechwood Community Life Center and the City of Quincy has begun.

Committee members Mary Centola, Barry Welch, Bill Walker, Michael McFarland, Brian Buckley and Sharron Beals are putting together the schedule of events.

"Quincy Hospital will be the primary sponsor for Senior Olympics 1995," according to Beals, Beechwood's executive director. Supporting sponsors will be River Bay Club, Quincy Rotary, Quincy Visiting Nurse Association and Continental Cablevision, she added.

"We are pleased to host this 13th annual Senior Olympic Games for folks 55 years young and over," said Centola, director of elder services.

The Olympics will be held May 8-13. Events include: golf, softball, bowling, bocce, billiards, darts, volleyball, walking, swimming and track and field.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

There will be a new look in Quincy Legion baseball this year. The Wollaston Legion team is no longer, and a 16-year-old "all-star" senior Babe Ruth team will take its place.

Quincy and Morrisette will be the city's two representatives in Zone 6 American Legion baseball. According to Ed Spring, former manager of the Quincy Legion team and now a member of the joint committee that will oversee all three teams, the actions are part of an effort to strengthen baseball in the city.

"This can't do anything but help us," he said. "Now you're only trying to fill two Legion rosters instead of three. It will improve Quincy's standing in the Zone and help maintain Morrisette's."

The new structure has a multiple purposes. Not only will the Legion teams be better able to compete, it will also give playing time to members of the senior Babe Ruth team who would otherwise be riding the pine on the Legion clubs.

"Basically too many kids aren't getting enough playing time," said Spring. "We hope, that by giving kids time to play in the senior Babe Ruth league, that they will be that much better when they get to play in Legion games."

"Our philosophy," added Quincy Legion manager Wayne Chambers, "is to get 16-year-olds playing time so they don't miss a crucial year in their development as baseball players."

The senior Babe Ruth team will compete against teams from several surrounding towns.

Chambers, one of the young turks in the city's baseball community, expressed hopes that the new system would benefit kids beyond their playing days in Quincy. "We want to join scouting bureaus and set up a network of college coaches - do things to get people down here to look at the local kids," said Chambers. "Maybe there are some scholarships out there for young baseball players from Quincy."

It is also hoped that the system will lead to improved relations within the city's baseball community. Bickering and in-fighting over players have often marked the relationship between Quincy's Legion ball clubs.

"We're not now going in three different directions," said Spring.

The senior Babe Ruth team, which will be coached by former Wollaston manager Mike Draicchio, along with Jack Outerbridge and Pat Gallagher, will serve as a feeder for both Legion teams. Chambers, and coaches Dave Perdios and Larry Taglieri of Morrisette, will help to make sure the same fundamental skills are developed among all players in the system.

The Quincy Sun sports department (me) carried out an informal survey Monday to find the city's best sports prognosticator.

The forum: a battle for the national title between UCLA (pronounced Uke La) and Arkansas (pronounced R-Kansas, as in Sen. Bob Dole).

The contest: guessing which team would win and by what score; the winner to receive lavish praise in a prestigious sports column, the loser to be flogged publicly like a common 17th-century street urchin.

The so-called smart money was on Recreation Director Barry Welch. His qualifications, a master's degree in recreation from Northeastern University, seemed to give him an advantage. He brazenly stated that only he was qualified to take part in such a contest.

However, in a blunder that discredits the American higher educational system and deflates his own sense of self-worth, Welch picked the Razorbacks to win by eight. Since Uke La won by 11, there was a 19 point differential. Of nine people surveyed, his selection was the worst. One would expect more from a man who spent years studying the sport.

Welch was not the only one to go in the tank on this one. A certain local sportswriter also picked R-Kansas. But since the sportswriter picked them to win by only two and since he claims to be the Football Guy and does not openly boast of his superior qualifications, he thumbs his nose in Welch's general direction.

Who came the closest? Quincy High School senior Jeff Burrell. He picked Uke La to win by seven and was off from the total number of points by 24.

Ray Cattaneo, one of Quincy's all-time great athletes, took second. He also picked Uke La by seven, but missed by 38 the total number of points.

In the "What a Smart Guy My Boss is and I'm Sucking Up For a Raise" category, Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth captured first place by picking Uke La to win by six.

Squirt's A's Complete Impressive Season

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt A team, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, captured the Greater Boston League title and finished the season with a record of 21-1-5.

The club went to the state championship games in Fall River and finished the season at the American Legion Tournament in Bourne with two wins and a loss.

A great season was had by all the players. Team members were Shaun Flaherty, Jim (Slashin') Cashins, Matthew Conso, Joe Cunningham, Ryan Donahue, Joe Fitzpatrick, David Germain, Frank Guest, Jill McInnis, Billy McKeon, Brian (The Flying Irishman) O'Hanley, Sean Richardson, Andy Ross, Danny Sheehan, Jordan Virtue and captain Brian (Blue Chip) Stock.

The coaches who dedicated their time to the team were Steve Sullivan and Lou Carinci and equipment manager Jim Conso.

Hockey Benefit Saturday Night

The Wilson-Watt-Hussey benefit hockey games will be played Saturday night at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Proceeds from the game go towards the Quincy Executive Hockey League scholarship fund. Donations will be accepted at the door.

The three benefit games will be played at 6:40, 7:50 and 9 p.m. Participants in the first two games will be members of the Quincy Executive League. The final game will include members of both the Executive League and the Quincy Senior League.

NO LONGER SHOCKED

Cars that bounce unduly over bumps or that experience front-end drive when braking may well be in need of new shock absorbers. If the front end of an automobile seems to float up and down several times after going over a bump, there is a simple test that car owners can perform to see if worn-out shock absorbers are the problem. With the car parked, car owners should lean on one side of the front bumper and bounce the car up and down a few times, then release it. If the car continues to bounce more than once before coming to rest, the shock on that side is worn. This test can be conducted on all four corners of the car. Shocks should also be replaced when leakage is detected during an inspection. Ignoring such leaks invites gradual failure.

Hint: Abnormal front tire wear is not caused by worn shocks. Have the wheels balanced and the alignment checked instead.

For all your automotive needs and wants, come to LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. We look forward to putting our years of training and experience to work for you and your vehicle. You'll find us conveniently located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Christians accept as everlasting truth, the story of a happening in 33 A.D. . . . that a Man lived, was crucified, died and was buried in a tomb. They accept as truth that the tomb was empty three days later. They accept as truth He had risen, as He said He would . . .

They accept as truth the unchanged story told hy one generation to another from the time of the Apostles. They accept as truth that resurrection is a fact and not a mere theory about death. They accept as truth that there is a literal, moral and spiritual sense about life, death and resurrection that makes sense. They accept as truth that just as He lived in the flesh yesterday, He lives today and will live tomorrow in everlasting fellowship, in glory and peace with God. They accept as truth that their own future can contain that same certainty. They accept as truth that there need be no fear of death . . . It's a wonderful truth isn't it?

Mr. Freel died March 29 at the John Scott Nursing Home in Braintree after a long illness.

He was a member of Boilmakers Union Local 29.

Born in Winchester, he was raised in Quincy where he lived most of his life. He was a former football player for the Quincy Manets and graduated from Bridgeton Academy in Maine, where he also played football.

He is survived by his wife, Marjorie E. (Canfield) Freel; two sons, Robert J. Freel of Hanover and Stephen J. Freel of Quincy; a sister, Rita Deluca McKeough of Andover; and six grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 74 Elm St.

Dr. Michael Agronow Remembered At Quincy Hospital Memorial Service

A memorial service was conducted Wednesday morning at Quincy Hospital for Dr. Michael Agronow, co-founder of Crown Ob/Gyn in Quincy, who died March 16 from an asthma attack shortly after delivering a baby.

The service was attended by Quincy Hospital medical staff, administrators and employees as well as family, friends and colleagues of Dr. Agronow.

The service was conducted by Rev. Ann Rearick, director of pastoral care at Quincy Hospital, who is trained in bereavement counseling.

The service included personal remembrances of Dr. Agronow, including those by Dr. Nicolas Saliba, his practice partner; Hospital CEO/Director Ralph DiPisa and a staff member who was also a patient of Dr. Agronow.

"It was an opportunity for those who knew Mike to share some memories," said Renee Buisson, director of Quincy Hospital public relations.

To honor Dr. Agronow's memory, the hospital will convene a committee which will identify an appropriate memorial, DiPisa said. All donations received in memory of Dr. Agronow will be placed into an account until the committee determines the best utilization of the funds.

Anyone wishing to make a donation can send a check to the Quincy Hospital Charitable Foundation, 114 Whitwell St., Quincy, MA 02169.

DiPisa said the sudden and tragic loss of Dr. Agronow has been difficult for the hospital community.

"Losing someone so young and so full of life is difficult for each of us. The hospital staff and the medical staff have been touched by Dr. Agronow, and we will miss him."

The 37-year-old physician died March 16 approximately three hours after delivering a baby. Co-workers revived Dr. Agronow after he collapsed in a hospital hallway bu an hour later, his heart stopped.

Eight nurses and physicians, including many close friends and colleagues, took turns doing CPR, desperately trying to get his heart pumping again. But the heroic attempts to save Dr. Agronow were unsuccessful as he died in the hospital's intensive care unit of complications arising from asthma.

Dr. Agronow suffered from severe asthma and had been hospitalized for attacks in the past. The fatal attack was the fourth time in about seven years that Dr. Agronow had to be hospitalized because of his asthma, an allergic respiratory disease that causes the body to retain carbon dioxide.

An obstetrician/gynecologist, Dr. Agronow founded Crown Ob/Gyn in Quincy with his best friend and medical partner, Dr. Nicolas Saliba four years ago. Today, the practice includes nine physicians and serves about 15,000 women on the South Shore.

Medicine was the mainstay in Dr. Agronow's life, in and out of the office, friends and colleagues said.

In addition to his work at Quincy Hospital, he was a member of the medical staffs at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth and Good Samaritan Medical Center in Brockton.

His fiancee, Trisha Kelly of Westwood, is a neonatal intensive care unit nurse at New England Medical Center in Boston.

He travelled with the Massachusetts Ukraine Citizen's Bridge, leading a medical team that brought expertise and 22 tons of supplies to the people of the former Soviet republic. He also met with physicians in China and in Third World nations.

But despite the demand on his time and 100 hour work weeks, his personality remained pleasant and vibrant. He was known for a bright personality, sense of humor and compassionate touch.

A native of Miami, Dr. Agronow graduated from Duke University in Durham, N.C., and earned his medical degree from the University of South Florida in Tampa. He did his internship and residencies at Albany Medical Center Hospital in upstate New York where he met Dr. Saliba.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. RMM 4/6 people have already been forced to sell their homes.

Kolson said he is furious over the government's plans.

"We just want some relief," he said. "This is getting silly. These cuts are an insult to our intelligence."

Kolson added that he would like state legislators, if possible, to divert some funds from the Central Artery project to water and sewer rate relief.

The suit would charge that the government is violating resident's constitutional rights by forcing them to pay for most of the $3.5 billion cleanup. Sheets said the city has already been in contact with Weymouth officials, who plan to ask town meeting to pay for the suit next month.

Weymouth is arguing that the cleanup is the first time the government has required such a large public works project without paying most of the cost. On other required projects, the federal government has paid between 75 and 90 percent of the costs, while the state has generally chipped in 15 percent and cities and towns 10 percent.

With the Boston Harbor cleanup, however, the MWRA's 2 million ratepayers are being hit with about 78 percent of the bill, with the federal government and state paying about 18 and 4 percent respectively.

The average MWRA ratepayer's bill totals about $600 a year. That amount is expected to rise to $900 before the end of the century.

the higher parking fee because they spent extra time patronizing downtown businesses.

Sheets said Tuesday he believes the QCBPA's concerns have been a "major factor" in the changes being made in the parking plan, which will receive final approval from the mayor.

The mayor has also said that the city is also looking at other possibilities for parking space in the downtown, including the site of the former Kincaide's Furniture Store on Hancock Street. In addition, the Hancock Parking Lot across from Quincy District Court is still available for use at 25¢ an hour, he noted.

While the city hopes to eventually redevelop the Hancock Lot--probably for commercial office space--at present no changes are planned there.

Plans call for the Hancock Lot and Ross Garage to be managed by Kinney Systems Inc. of Boston, which is still negotiating the details of the contract it was awarded by the city last year with city officials.

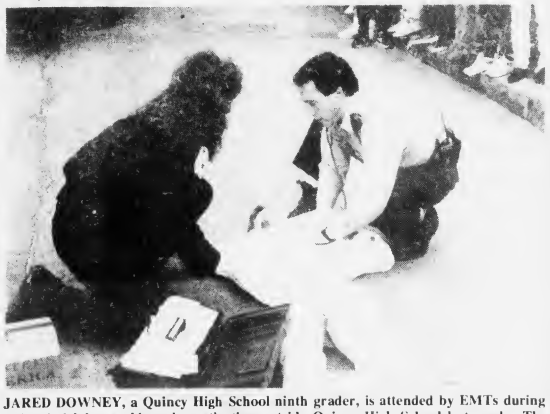
Drunk-Driving 'Accident' Sends Message To Students

QUINCY HIGH SCHOOL students line Woodward Avenue to watch a drunk-driving accident dramatization last Friday, the day of the Junior Prom. As Quincy Police arrive on the scene, QHS Junior Sally Lai yells for help as fellow students Senior Rich Bergeron, leaning against the car; and Junior Angela Attardo, lying on the street; await assistance.



JARED DOWNEY, a Quincy High School ninth grader, is attended by EMTs during a drunk-driving accident dramatization outside Quincy High School last week. The dramatization featured citizens and students who portrayed accident victims, as well as real police officers, firefighters and EMTs.

"DRUNK DRIVING VICTIM" Harold DiMattio is removed from a vehicle used in a dramatic re-creation of fatal accident involving alcohol staged outside Quincy High School last Friday. The dramatization was intended to send a message to students during prom season. DiMattio is a member of the Quincy Citizens Police Academy.

In Response To QCBPA Concerns

City Agrees To Re-Examine Signage Law

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city, in response to concerns voiced by the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, plans to re-examine an ordinance allowing the Quincy Historical Commission to place restrictions on signage used by downtown businesses.

Mayor James Sheets said at press time he will meet with QCBPA and commission officials to discuss the matter, and City Council President Michael Cheney said he will appoint a committee to address the issue.

The QCBPA Board of Directors voted Tuesday to request that the city place a six-month moratorium on the law, which states that a business can only place one sign bearing its name in its front window.

Some downtown business owners have voiced concerns that the signs bearing their establishments' names are too high above the sidewalk for passers-by to see, making it difficult to recognize what kinds of services the shops offer. Merchants have also said that it makes no sense that businesses can use other signage containing any messages they want except their names.

Four downtown businesses are currently facing court action by the historical commission for defying the law. The mayor noted that the ordinance is enforced by the city's building inspector, but it is the commission that has the authority to make exceptions to the rule.

Sheets said a formal moratorium cannot be imposed, but added that the city may request that any further decisions regarding controversial signage be delayed until after he has the chance to meet with QCBPA and commission officials.

"You can't suspend the law," said Sheets. "I don't have the authority to do that, and the City Council doesn't have the authority to do that. However, the policy (regarding signage) should be user-friendly, and a court case is not user-friendly.

"I welcome a discussion in the near future to see that the issue is resolved as soon as possible. I think their (QCBPA) concerns are reasonable, and we'll work it out."

Cheney said he will appoint a committee to look into the possibility of changing the ordinance by the end of the week. The committee will consist of representatives from the QCBPA, historic commission, Quincy 2000 (the city's public-private planning corporation), City Council and mayor's and building inspector's offices.

The work of the commission will likely take about six months to complete, he added.

Cheney said that while he agrees the city's his-

State's Highest Court To Hear City's Lawsuit Against MWRA Rates

The Supreme Judicial Court in Boston--the state's highest court--has resurrected Quincy's lawsuit challenging the Massachusetts Water Resource Authority's methodology for charging its sewer rates.

Mayor James Sheets announced this week that the court has decided to hear the city's suit, which was filed in the fall of 1993. Suffolk Superior Court Judge Gordon Doerfer had originally ruled in the MWRA's favor last August.

"My guess is, that's a good sign for us," said Sheets, who added that no date has been set for the new court hearing. "It's been a long road, but I still think in the final analysis, we'll win."

MWRA spokesman Paul DiNatale, however, said the authority is confident it will again prevail.

When the suit was first filed, the MWRA billed cities and towns for sewer service based exclusively on the population of each individual community. The lawsuit argued that such action was illegal because MWRA bills did not reflect actual sewerage volume in communities or improvements to local sewer systems.

Since then, the MWRA has adopted a new billing system, which goes into effect July 1. The new methodology, which takes into account both population and actual sewage use, will be based approximately 70 percent on flow and 30 percent on population. Communities pay the MWRA and then bill property owners.

Part of the reason Doerfer ruled in favor of the MWRA last summer was because of the changes made by the authority.

Morrisette Legion Post Scolarship Applications

Scholarship applications are being accepted by the Cyril P. Morrisette Post No. 294, American Legion.

Applications will be accepted from high school graduates or graduates of other secondary schools who are children of members in good standing and who have been accepted as freshman in institutions of higher learning awarding bachelor or associate degrees. They may be picked up at the law offices of Carl R. Johnson, 111, 1212 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

All applications must be completed and returned along with required documentation, to the same office by April 26. They should be addressed to Scholarship Chairman Paul A.M. Hunt, c/o Carl R. Johnson, 111 Esq.

Applicants will be notified of their interview times assigned for the evening of May 1.

Those unable to attend the interview, should call 471-0800.

How to select a hearing aid.

If you are considering the purchase of a hearing aid, here are some helpful tips.

- See a Board Certified Hearing Instrument Specialist or Audiologist.
- Make sure that they have an office close by (hearing aids require service).
- Do they have state of the art equipment? Ask about REAL EAR measurement, middle ear compliance testing, a sound proof booth, word recognition testing, video otoscopy and programmable hearing aids.
- Check to see if they have a good track record with Attorney Generals office and Better Business Bureau.
- Shop around for services, location, experience and price.
- Avoid TV advertised products. You pay more for the commercials and you frequently get a salesperson not a specialist.
- Ask for a FREE hearing screening and consultation and a 60 day no-obligation trial.

"We know a great deal about hearing aids."

More Memorial Bricks To Be Added

Concerts, Cultural Events, Family Reunions Planned At Granite Workers Memorial

The Granite Workers Memorial Committee wishes to thank the hundreds of people who have expressed an interest in the continued upkeep of the park.

The committee announces that from late spring throughout early autumn, concerts, cultural events and family reunions will be held at Shea Park on Copeland St. in West Quincy. The committee is also planning a first annual Granite Workers' Memorial Reunion celebration in October.

Additional information on upcoming events will be announced in The Quincy Sun.

More than 800 memorial bricks and 30 granite benches have been sold and placed in the park. Benches are no longer being sold. However, bricks are still available.

Also, 16-inch by 16-inch granite plaques with up to 85 printed letters of choice are now on sale. The plaques will be placed among the bricks in the back part of the monument's circle. The number of plaques that will fit in the circle is limited. Plaques are being sold on a first-come first-served basis.

For more information about activities in the park, or to place an order for a brick or a plaque, contact Steve Cantelli at 479-1019 or Alba Tocci at 472-2580.

The following bricks will be added to the Granite Workers' Memorial this spring:

New Crime Watch Program Unveiled

State Sen. Michael Morrissey joined state and local officials Tuesday at Arbella Mutual Insurance in Quincy to announce a new crime watch program jointly sponsored by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, local communities and local businesses.

The Massachusetts Neighborhood Crime Watch Commission was established by Gov. William Weld as a link between local community crime watch groups and the executive branch of government. Arbella Mutual Insurance is the first business to become directly involved in the crime prevention program.

Morrissey praised the City of Quincy's efforts in the area of crime prevention.

"Quincy has become the victim of neighborhood crime. It is an unfortunate reality that our society needs to deal with on a daily basis. This city led by its law enforcement officials refuse to back down to this problem and has stressed how vital neighborhood programs are in crime prevention efforts. . . It is imperative that neighbors watch out for each other and report any suspicious activity in their community," Morrissey said.

Quincy Police Crime Prevention Officer Robert Hanna and member of the Commission outlined several of the program's goals.

"This program will provide updates on crime prevention strategies at the neighborhood level and improve technical support for start-up neighborhood watch programs. The Quincy Police Department is committed to fostering safer communities throughout the city," Hanna said.

The Commission will also serve as a liaison for the state's community crime watch groups and law officers to develop a comprehensive, statewide criminal justice strategy directed at making neighborhoods safer.

Greg Haley, representing the commission, presented a plaque to Richard Brewer, president and chairman of the board at Arbella Mutual Insurance of Quincy, recognizing the company's support of the program.

Sen. Morrissey extended an invitation for other businesses to become involved in the commission. "Success for this program hinges on the partnership between government, law enforcement, and business. We have just demonstrated that commitment."

Lois Catanzaro, public affairs director for Ackerly Outdoor Communications, displayed mock-ups of billboards that will be put up around the state, including Quincy, promoting the Massachusetts Neighborhood Crime Watch Commission's logo and message.

Morrissey urged individual neighborhoods to get involved. "Unfortunately, we can't have a police cruiser on every street corner in the city. Let's watch out for each other and make our neighborhoods a safer place for our families.

The commission is located at 1 Ashburton Place, Room 611, Boston, MA 02108.

Morrisette New Home Supported At Hearing

The Cyril P. Morrisette American Legion Post's plans to build a new hall in West Quincy was supported by a large majority of those who attended a public hearing Monday night.

The post is requesting that a parcel located at 238-252 Quarry St. currently zoned as open space be rezoned for business use. Post officials bought the land from the city earlier this year for $50,000.

Last November, the post sold its former headquarters at 54 Miller St., West Quincy to a Boston Saturn auto dealership.

Cmdr. Henry Roche said the post hopes to build its new hall by the end of the summer or early

VICTORIES IN FIGHTING WAR

Times change, and, fortunately, there have been many positive changes in the fight against cancer. Improvements have been made in the delivery of chemotherapy and radiation therapy, two standards of cancer treatment. For example, neoadjuvant chemotherapy uses anti-cancer drugs to shrink a caner, followed by surgery to remove it, CT scanning uses X-rays to discover the precise location of tumors, so radiation can be administered accurately, without damaging healthy surrounding tissue. Normal bone marrow cells can now be stimulated to withstand higher doses of chemotherapy drugs. Monoclonal antibodies can be designed to target cancer cells, delivering radiation and drugs with pinpoint accuracy.

P.S. Early detection remains the strongest weapon in fighting all types of cancer.

Early detection is critical when it comes to dealing with a serious illness. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy, OR CALL MYSELF OR Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. Ted Won't Reconsider

Ted DeCristofaro took himself out of this year's city election four weeks ago.

And since then some of his constituents have been hoping he will put himself back in.

"Hope you change your mind," they've been telling him.

Would he?

DeCRISTOFARO

DeCristofaro, who is giving up the Ward 2 City Council seat after holding it for 14 years, says "No."

"I'm flattered that they would like me to run again but it's really time to step down."

He said that even if he did waver, it still wouldn't happen.

"I promised Betty (his wife) I would retire. And I can't go back on that promise.

"Besides," he laughs," she wouldn't let me."

DeCristofaro, who is 71 and suffered a stroke and heart attack a year ago, is a walking medical miracle. He has come all the way back and looks trim and healthy.

So it appears definite that DeCristofaro's name won't be on this year's ballot.

And, apparently, a few feel that if you can't have one DeCristofaro on it, maybe they can have another.

DeCristofaro's brother, James, has been asked to consider running.

Would he?

"No," he says. "Politics is not my cup of tea."

TWO ALL-TIME basketball greats at UMass got together during the Minutemen-Oklahoma State NCAA play-offs at the Meadowlands, N.J.

BURKE

And said Julius Erving to Quincy's George Burke: "George, it's awful nice to have our number up there together at UMass."

Erving was referring to No. 32 which Burke wore in the mid-50s and Erving wore in the 1970s.

The number was retired for Erving in 1988. And it was again retired for Burke in January, 1994.

So now there are two No. 32's hanging from the rafters in the Mullins Center, one with Erving's name on it at one end and one with Burke's name on it at the other end. The number is the only one ever retired at UMass.

Burke set a number of scoring records while playing for UMass and Hall of Famer Erving came along and broke most of them.

But the two standouts who won so many games for UMass on the court couldn't root the Minutemen home a winner from the stands as Oklahoma State eliminated them from the Final Four play-offs.

Burke got together with another old friend at the Boston Garden the other night when Sam Jones was honored by the Celtics at the game with the Philadelphia 76ers.

He and Jones were Celtic rookies in 1957.

AND SPEAKING OF Burke, he again is furnishing $6,000 in scholarships for six Quincy and North Quincy High School graduates going on to UMass.

That's $1,000 each for three Quincy seniors and $1,000 each for three North graduates.

This is the third year that Burke has made the scholarships available, bringing the total amount to $18,000 for 18 students.

The Quincy scholarships are given in the names of late Coach Monroe MacLean, Marty Finnegan, former coach and retired athletic director and Guido (Budsey) Pettinelli, retired Quincy School safety officer and a QHS basketball player in the 1940's.

The North scholarships are given in the names of former Coach Ken Rickson, Gerry Coletta and the late Richard Koch, Sr., founder of the Koch Club for whom Burke played basketball.

Quincy and North seniors may apply for the scholarships at their respective school principal's offices.

CITY CLERK Joseph Shea will mark a double milestone April 18: his 50th birthday and a farewell to his beard.

SHEA

Shea, who has had the beard for two years, decided it is time for it to go. And what better time than on his 50th birthday?

"Before you hit 50," he reasons, "you don't mind looking older. But when you hit 50, you don't mind looking younger."

So come April 18, he will celebrate with a toast, cake and a razor.

PERSONAL: Hello to Charlie Griffin in East Sandwich, an old friend and one of the Quincy Police Department's top detectives now retired. He teamed up with another good detective, Jim (Sonny) Fay who was also a football standout for the legendary Jack Donahue at North Quincy High School.

Charlie keeps tabs on what's going on in Quincy as a mail subscriber to The Sun. (Charlie, you bring back many fond memories.)

USS Salem Homecoming Documentary On Cable Monday

Continental Cablevision will show the premiere of The Homecoming of the USS Salem, a half-hour documentary special on Quincy Community Television Channel 3 on Monday, April 17 at 8 p.m.

Highlighting the weekend events which culminated in the arrival of the Salem at the Fore River shipyard, the video featurs visual images of the majestic cruiser entering Quincy. Interviews with former crew members and the key activists who helped bring the Salem home are included to emphasize the scope of the historic event for QCTV viewers.

The documentary is produced by Continental Producer Darren Herlihy with the assistance of several staff members and QCTV volunteers.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD shows the Wollaston mansion built by Josiah Quincy, Jr. when he completed his term as Mayor of Boston in 1849. The second of three Josiah Quincys to serve as Mayor, he also is credited with building the Boston & Albany Railroad and laying out the Old Colony Railroad through Quincy and on to Newport. He established Boston's water supply at Lake Cochituate and developed the legislation establishing co-operative banks in Massachusetts. This was Quincy's home until he died here in 1882. In 1896 it became the Quincy Mansion School until it was purchased as the new home of the Eastern Nazarene College in 1919. The building was located at 23 East Elm Ave. and was protected for many years during the expansion of the college until finally it was razed to make more space. Interestingly, this is still used as the official address of the college.

Siciliano Urges Support Of New House Bill

Quincy Emergency Management Agency Deputy Director Anthony Siciliano is urging support of a new House of Representatives bill pertaining to the rights of emergency management volunteers.

The legislation, House Bill 220, will be heard Monday, April 24 at 10 a.m. in Room 1A at the State House in Boston.

"This bill is most important because if it passes, it will be to the benefit of all volunteers," said Siciliano, who serves as president of the Massachusetts Emergency Management Association.

Among the issues addressed in the bill are the indemnification of volunteers by the Emergency Management Claims Board, medical and burial expenses, Workers Compensation, and others.

Those who wish to show their support of the bill may do so by attending the hearing or by calling the House of Representatives clerk at 722-2356 or Senate clerk at 722-1276.

Sheets To Kick Off Week Of The Young Child April 24

Mayor James Sheets will kick off the festivities for this year's Week of the Young Child at Beechwood by the Bay, 440 East Squantum St., Squantum, Monday, April 24 at 9 a.m.

The mayor will greet parents, children, and teachers for a continental breakfast, story time and music program. Invited dignitaries will see firsthand how high-quality early childhood services are meeting the needs of young children and their families in the community.

This year's Week of the Young Child theme is "The Early Years Are Learning Years...Make Them Count!" Activities through the week, sponsored locally by the Quincy Early Childhood Advisory Council, will include parent workshops, children's activities and a Family Fun Fair.

Event details are listed in a Calendar of Events available at all public schools, private daycare centers, preschool programs and children service organizations. For more information, call Jeanne Satterlund at 472-2960 or Nancy Harvey at 984-8777.

Walk For Hunger To Be Held May 7

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

It's time to think about lacing up those sneakers again and joining 46,000 other concerned people at the Walk for Hunger. May 7 is the date and today is the day to begin collecting pledges. This will be my fifth walk and hundredth mile and I encourage all Quincy residents to join me in supporting local meal programs and food pantries, including The Salvation Army Pantry.

If you feel like you can't hoof it 20 miles, there are opportunities to volunteer on walk day, setting up registration tables, cheering on walkers, passing out water, etc. You can also volunteer to phone former walkers before walk day to encourage them to walk again. Finally, if you don't have the time for these activities, please consider a pledge. Every dollar--and cent--counts.

If you would like more information about the walk, please call me at 472-2345 or Project Bread at 723-5000. Thank you.

Ferrazzi Halts Model Races

By PAUL HAROLD

April 13 - 19
30 Years Ago

Police Chief William Ferrazzi ordered a halt to all races of model cars at the Model Raceway on Hancock St. pending an investigation by the police department.

The chief's action came after a meeting of the Licensing Board. While the raceway was available to race cars, it also appeared that races were conducted in which participants paid an entry fee and could win prizes. "This is borderline wagering," said one police official.

The chief ordered detectives to get a list of all contestants so their ages could be checked.

NEIGHBORHOOD YOUTH CORPS TO START

Three hundred eighty-four young people ages 16-21 were scheduled to start work May 1 in the federally funded Neighborhood Youth Corps project.

School Supt. Robert Pruitt, Asst. Supt. Chester Sweatt and work-study Coordinator William Trifone met this week to coordinate the $264,888 grant program.

Enrollees would be paid $1.25 an hour and would work 10-20 hours a week. Work stations were in city departments and several non-profit agencies.

Easter Ring

This week I plan to make at least a half-dozen Easter Rings (a round pastry with eggs placed on the top). They're not all for us--I give some of them to the family.

They keep for days after Easter, and are delicious with a cup of tea or coffee.

EASTER RING
1 stick butter or margerine
3/4 cup sugar
2 beaten eggs
2 1/2 cups flours
2 1/2 tablespoons baking powder
1/4 cup-1/2 cup milk
1 to 2 tablespoons anise extract

Cream the butter and sugar together. Add the eggs, then the rest of the ingredients. Mix until a dough forms and you can handle it. Add a bit of flour if sticky. Grease a cookie sheet and with your hands form the dough in a wreath like circle on the cookie sheet. Keep a little dough for strips to hold down the eggs.

Place about two or three eggs around the circle securing them so they don't fall out with the strips from the dough.

Bake in a 350 degree oven for about 25 to 30 minutes. Cool and frost with confectionery sugar and a spot of anise. Sprinkle with colored candy.

If you make it ahead of time, refrigerate and cover until ready to use.

PAULINE SWEENEY of Quincy (right) joined other leaders in the American Cancer Society's "Daffodil Days" fund-raising drive recently at the Murphy School in Weymouth to pay tribute to students' efforts in the endeavor. Also in photo are Mark Kowalski, president of the Cancer Society's South Shore Unit and Joyce Kulwawik, WBZ-TV arts and entertainment reporter and state chairperson of the "Daffodil Days" program. Sweeney serves as co-chairperson of the South Shore Unit's fund-raising efforts.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Management Transfer At Cafe Denied

The Quincy License Board denied a request from Brannigan's Cafe, 226 Water St., West Quincy for a transfer of management from Ed Maloney to Mark DiBona.

At Tuesday's meeting, board members said there too many "internal problems" that had to to be addressed. before they would vote on any change of management. DiBona is owner of Cagneys in Quincy.

William Sullivan, the attorney for Mark DiBona told the board that business at Brannigans was "down significantly" and that there had been "no efforts in marketing" plus problems with employees.

However, Louis A. Cassis, attorney for Mr. Maloney said the company's board of directors had been working without by-laws, and that it was a "power play" to push Maloney out.

Although DiBona said he worked 40 hours a week at Cagneys and practically the same amount at Brannigans, Cassis said he didn't think he could maintain such a schedule

Attorney Sullivan told the board that he would make plans for another hearing with the license board to name yet another manager instead of Maloney, or DiBona.

QHS 'Best Of The Best' Winners To Be Honored

The Friends for a Better Quincy High School will hold its second annual "Best of the Best" Awards Ceremony Sunday, April 30 at 2 p.m. at the Three Seasons Restaurant in the Quincy Center for Technical Education (CTE).

The award has been established to recognize outstanding achievements or contributions by alumni to their community, Quincy High or the CTE. The alumni have set standards of excellence for students to follow.

The nomination process ended in December. A panel of judges composed of members of the Friends for a Better Quincy High School and Quincy High Principal Lloyd Hill made the selections. Winners are placed into the Alumni Hall of Fame.

This year, two alumni and a third person actively involved in Quincy were chosen. They are:

•Doreen C. Barrett, a 1963 Quincy High graduate who worked with the youth of Quincy. She had been involved in many organizations in all levels of the school system and spent countless hours coaching Koch Club and Quincy Youth Soccer. Until her death in 1993, she served Quincy High as treasurer of the Hockey Booster Club, an officer of the Parent Advisory Council and a charter member of the Friends for a Better Quincy High.

•JoAnn Potter, a 1965 Quincy High School and another supporter of Quincy youth. She serves the school as a board member of the Parent Advisory Council, a member of the Quincy High School Council and a charter member of Friends for a Better Quincy High. Potter has also made contributions as a member of the school's Auditorium Committee and the Advisory Committee for the CTE. She is treasurer of the Wollaston Mother's Club and active in Norfolk Human Services as an advocate for retarded adults.

•Elizabeth Swanton, a 1959 graduate of the Gate of Heaven High School, who was chosen as an honorary inductee. She is an active member of Our Lady of Good Counsel Parish in Merrymount and has been involved in Quincy's elementary, middle and high school parent and educational programs. Swanton is also a board member of the Manet Health Center. A foster parent, she has worked with other foster parents at the local, state and national levels. She was instrumental in the rejuvenation of the Citywide Parents Council and was a member of the Early Childhood Task Force.

fall. The new headquarters will not have function facilities.

Four people at the hearing spoke in favor of the zoning change and 19 others signed in support.

Still, one neighbor did express reservations about the plan's moving forward until a construction problem at the abutting Quincy Elks Home is resolved. Werner Tikkanen of 145 Suomi Rd. said the Elks left a large area of fill piled high than allowed

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio noted that he shares Tikkanen's concerns and added that the Elks have already agreed to take care of the problem.

The City Council with Planning Board will both vote on the matter in the near future.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

Marco Garrido Participates In Asian-Pacific Youth Conference

Marco Garrido of Quincy, was among several Boston College High School students who participated in a recent conference to build awareness and understanding of Asian-American cultures.

The state-wide conference entitled, "Strengthening Ourselves to Shape the Furture," was held March 16 at UMass/Boston. It was sponsored by the Coalition for Asian-Pacific American Youth.

The day-long conference included dozens of workshops attended by students from many area schools. Discussion topics ranged from relationships with parents, dating, and education to getting involved with government, community involvement, and race relations.

Cultural Council Grants Awarded

State Rep. Ronald Mariano has announced that Fiscal Year 1995 grants have been awarded by the Quincy Cultural Council with funds provided by the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

Local cultural councils provide support for a wide range of cultural and educational programs for children and adults. Mariano said this year the legislature was successful in increasing local grants.

"Funds for local programs grew from $2.1 million in FY 1994 to $3.5 million in FY 1995", he said.

Mariano praised the work of Quincy Cultural Council Chairman Arthur Keogh by saying, "The quality programs Quincy offers its citizens are a direct result of the hard work and dedication of Quincy Cultural Council volunteers like Arthur Keogh."

Mariano said the Quincy Cultural Council had the task of reviewing applications for funding and ensuring that they complied with both state guidelines and local priorities.

"Through the Quincy Cultural Council, I am pleased to announce that Quincy programs have received a total of $43,230," he said.

Included in the award is over $15,000 to support cultural programs in Quincy schools. The money will allow Quincy school children to visit areas of cultural interest as well as bring presentations and concerts into Quincy schools.

Additional monies will support Quincy's Annual First Night Celebration as well as library workshops, concerts for nursing home residents, the Quincy Historical Society and a host of other programs.

Medical Watch Focuses On Osteoporosis

Loss of bone density is a serious problem for women.

In April's Medical Watch, a joint production of Quincy Hospital and Continental Cablevision will focus on "Osteoporosis".

Joining Kate Gifford, host of Medical Watch is Karen Musolf, MD, a family practitioner at Manet Community Health Center. They will discuss what you can do to prevent osteoporosis or minimize its effects.

The program can be seen on Quincy Continental Cablevision's Channel 3 in April. It will also air on Channel 53 in Cohasset, Hanover, Hingham, Hull, Norwell and Scituate as well as on Dimension Cable's Channel 23 in Weymouth. Check local cable listings for programs, dates and times.

Robert Kelly Visits China

Navy Petty Officer 2nd Class Robert K. Kelly, son of Robert K. Kelly of 21 Franklin St., Quincy, recently visited China with the guided missile cruiser USS Bunker hill.

Kelly was one of 450 sailors aboard the ship who visited Qingdao, China, marking the first time in six years a U.S. Navy ship has stopped in China.

During the visit, Kelly and fellow sailors joined Chinese sailors for games Chinese ships, submarines and the Chinese submarine academy. In turn, the USS Bunker Hill sailors also attended a tree planting ceremony along with several Chinese dignitaries commemorating the visit.

Kelly's visit to China reflects a renewal of military contacts in support of ongoing US security interest.

Kelly is home based in Yokosuka, Japan.

To Protect Your Body, Use Your Head, Part IV*

On The Street:

Don't walk alone unless you absolutely have to!

•If you must walk alone, move along briskly and confidently.

•If you walk home from work regularly, vary your route.

•Walk near the curb, away from alleys, entryways, and bushes--where someone could be hiding.

Stay in well lighted areas!

Be aware of your surroundings if you are alone. If a situation feels uncomfortable, it may be dangerous. Pay attention to your intuitions.

Take action to secure a safe environment!

If you think you are being followed, cross the street and reverse direction. If you fear that you're in danger, scream loudly to attract attention.

•If you are being harassed by occupants of a vehicle, turn and walk in the opposite direction. (The driver will have to run around to follow you.)

Protect Your Children:

•Warn your children not to talk to strangers. Tell them not to accept candy, money, or rides from strangers.

•Encourage your children to talk with you, especially if they have had any unusual experiences of problems with strangers, friends, or relatives.

•If you suspect your child has been molested, remain calm. Encourage your children to talk about what happened. Call the police. Seek medical assistance, if necessary.

General Precautions:

•Avoid entering high risk areas alone!

•If someone touches you in an offensive manner, don't remain passive! Attract attention. Let everyone know you object.

Important!

•Be careful whom you date and where you go socially. Tape a few dimes inside your purse, for emergency use in pay phones. NOTE: You can call 911 from a pay phone without putting money in the phone.

Know Yourself!

•Decide what you will do in various situations before they occur. You'll need that kind of presence of mind in an emergency. If you are attacked, you'll probably panic. The quicker you regain control of your emotions, the quicker you'll respond to the situation.

Alternatives, If You Are Attacked!

Passive resistance.

•This tactic will give you a method of self defense which, if it fails, will not increase the risk of physical harm to you. The goal of passive resistance is to think and talk your way out of the situation. Your own ingenuity is your best guide. This tactic takes many forms--but doing or saying the unexpected can often stop or delay the rapist. He wants to be in control and finds it difficult to cope with something he hasn't expected.

Active Resistance.

•This method includes any tactic designed to incapacitate, temporarily injure, or distract your attacker. It involves the sue of any weapons you may have available, such as hairsprays, nailfiles, pins or keys, as well as use of your body, through martial arts, screaming, running or kicking.

Important!

If the types of tactics are used, they must be sudden and quick. You must be psychologically and physically prepared to follow through--to guarantee a disabling injury to your assailant. Failure to incapacitate your attacker with one of these active resistance methods may result in further injury to yourself.

Subcommittee Opposes Bill Which Would Restrict Special Needs Services

The Quincy School Committee's Subcommittee on Special Education, chaired by Committeeman Stephen Durkin, has recommended that the School Committee oppose House of Representatives' Bill 1448, which contains provisions restricting the rights of disabled children needing special education services.

The full School Committee, at its meeting last week, unanimously voted to adopt the Subcommittee's recommendation and to forward a letter to the governor and the Joint House and Senate Committee on Education indicating opposition to the bill.

In making the recommendation to oppose the legislation, Durkin wrote that the Committee should object to the redefining of the standards of service which apply to students with special needs. Durkin said the "current state law requires programs which provide maximum feasible benefit." This standard was put in place to aid children with disabilities in overcoming discriminatory attitudes about disabilities. Without this standard, children with disabilities could be told that they cannot benefit from education or that they do not have the potential to be educated in certain areas.

The "maximum possible development" standard does not give children with special needs a superior education, but rather an equal education. "Ideally, we should be striving in education to educate all our children to the maximum extent feasible," Durkin said.

"When the state budget must be balanced in a time of slow economic growth, it is natural, of course, to look for areas in which spending can be reduced. In this climate children with disabilities become easy targets. This is unfortunate," Durkin said.

"It should be pointed out that some changes in the special education law already have taken place over the last few years. Additionally, the education reform law required a state-wide study of special education, which has not been completed. It would be preferable to allow time for full implementation of new mandates and full review of the mandated study before making any drastic changes in the state's special education law," he added.

A hearing was held on the special education bill at the State House last week.

Oldest Real Estate Agency In City
Flavin & Flavin Proudly Celebrating 70th Anniversary

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Flavin & Flavin is celebrating its 70th anniversary as a leading Quincy real estate agency that also offers essential financial services.

Located at 1085 Hancock St., the former residence of Quincy's first mayor, Charles H. Porter, the agency is the oldest in Quincy with second and third generation buyers and sellers among its many customers.

Created in 1925 by brothers Jim and John Flavin, Flavin & Flavin was formerly located at 1601 Hancock St. They moved to their current location in 1952.

Keeping their customers satisfied and maintaining a close relationship with them has remained one of the prime goals during the past seven decades of the family-owned agency.

Since joining Flavin & Flavin in 1966, Edward P. Flavin, company president, has formed enduring close-knit relationships with his customers.

"We have a friendly, long-standing relationship with the people of Quincy and surrounding towns," says Flavin. "I have seen second and third generation customers and that is most gratifying."

Flavin added that his company is one of the most successful companies in the Quincy area.

"We have sold the most single-family houses in the Quincy area during the past seven years," Flavin says.

Flavin, his brother and vice president John, sister Marguerite and sales manager Steve Fishman and a staff of 10 experienced and professional customer service representatives are dedicated to giving their customers the best service possible.

Among the other financial services which Flavin & Flavin offer include property management, appraisals and rentals.

Flavin has also served as president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors and is currently a trustee for the Massachusetts Board of Real Estate Appraisers.

"We are all Quincy residents and we all care about the city. We are committed to the city by our involvement and the high quality of service we offer," he says.

Flavin, a member of Quincy 2000, finds personal fulfillment in guiding his clients through the difficult decision of buying a house.

"Buying a home is a big decision. It is the biggest financial decision of most people's lives and for them to put their trust and confidence in us to make this important decision is very satisfying," he says.

Flavin said his company is going to increase its emphasis on working with and better serving the people of Quincy without becoming too big and impersonal.

"We're not concerned with expanding," Flavin says, "We are more concerned with becoming closer with our clients and better servicing our customers and other potential customers."

The future of Flavin & Flavin is full of hope, according to Flavin.

"We want to continue to be very prominent in the real estate business and maintaining the same degree of market leadership and professional service we have been giving to our long standing customers," he says.

Located across the street from The Woodward School For Girls, Flavin & Flavin, 479-1000, is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 7:30 p.m., Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Hospital Transitional Care Unit Observes First Year Anniversary

Quincy Hospital's Transitional Care Unit (TCU) recently held a one year anniversary party to celebrate it success. Nearly 100 people attended the festivities.

. The event featured a speaking and entertainment program. Speakers included City Council President Michael Cheney; Quincy Hospital CEO/Director Ralph DiPisa; TCU Manager Steve Greco; Gerry Hagan, RN, nurse manager of he unit; Charles Rippberger, MD, medical director of the TCU; former patient Bert Eckblom, owner of President Press in Quincy; and Fran Parsons of Braintree, whose mother was a TCU patient.

The TCU provides services for patients who are no longer acutely ill, but need rehabilitative therapy and nursing care before returning home. Within a home-like environment, patients participate in comprehensive rehabilitation programs designed to increase their independence.

In response to increasing pressure on hospitals to reduce their lengths of stay for patients, the TCU offers a continuum of care that provides patients with new options for recovery.

Quincy Hospital was the first hospital on the South Shore to offer a transitional care program. During its first year of operation, more than 90 percent of the TCU's patients returned home and avoided costly long-term placements.

Family Commission Meeting Today

The Quincy Commission on the Family will meet today (Thursday) at 4 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The agenda will include the status of the group's executive director position, a needs assessment study, and any other business that may come before the commission.

Meetings are open to the public.

Atlantic Neighborhood Assn. Meeting Tonight

The Atlantic Neighborhood Community Center and the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, will meet today (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at the center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

Brian Buckley, Director for the Council on Again, will be guest speaker.

An award will be given to Joanne Condon-Walsh, founder of the center almost 20 years ago.

State Rep. Michael Bellotti and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers will present citations to citizens that have volunteered their time and effort to the center.

A new award called "The Young Student Award" will be presented to Jenny Skargenski, who has been teaching dancing to some of the younger children at the center. There will be a small recital at the end of the year.

Union Congregational Celebrates Centennial

REV. JOHN SWANSON (center), minister of Union Congregational Church in Wollaston, with congregation members Jean Benson and Robert Boussy at the church's recent centennial celebration.

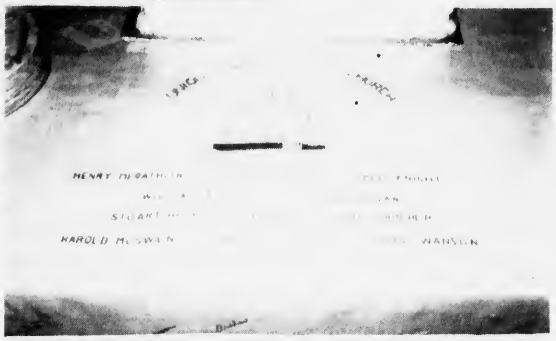
LEADING THE 19TH CENTURY Communion Service at the recent centennial celebration at Union Congregational Church in Wollaston were, from left, Rev. John Odams of Pilgrim Congregational Church in Dorchester; Rev. Charles Harper, conference minister of the United Church of Christ and Rev. John Swanson, minister of Union Congregational. The Victorian Communion Set used in the service is owned by Pilgrim Congregational.



CENTENNIAL TABLECLOTH bearing the names of all of the permanent and interim ministers who have served at Union Congregational Church in Wollaston was displayed during the church's recent celebration of its 100th anniversary. It was made by Carolyn Marks, church moderator.

Solve One Of Life's Little Mysteries...
And Save Up To $200 A Year!

It could be meatloaf, or maybe it's the leftover chicken from last summer's cookout. Whatever that mystery meat is, keeping it cold by running your old second refrigerator or freezer is eating up energy and costing you as much as $200 a year on your electric bill.

If you want to solve that problem fast, call us today.

We'll come to your home — at a time that's convenient for you — and pick up your second refrigerator or freezer FOR FREE!

We'll recycle the parts of your appliances in an environmentally responsible manner. You must be a Massachusetts Electric residential customer, and your second refrigerator or freezer must be within our service area, standard-sized, owned by you, operating in your home, and cold at pick-up.

City To Re-Examine Signage Law

toric district is something that should be preserved, he does not see the harm of allowing a merchant to use a second sign bearing the name of his or her business.

"I think you need to be reasonable about it (signage)," he said. "You have to build a consensus in this case, but I think that something can be resolved."

Cheney added that if all sides can come to an agreement, the City Council could discuss and ultimately change the ordinance. A public hearing would have to be held before the council could vote to amend the law.

Quincy Historical Commission Administrator Roberta Fitzgerald noted that the signage law was originally passed as part of the city's zoning ordinance many years ago but eventually fell under the jurisdiction of the commission, which was formed in 1974.

Fitzgerald said the commission has valid reasons for enforcing the law in the city's historic district, which runs from School and Hancock Streets to Furnace Brook Parkway. Among them, she said, are keeping the area aesthetically pleasing and trying to attract major retailers to the downtown.

Fitzgerald added, however, that as a pedestrian she has noticed that some of the signs in Quincy Center are hard to notice, and agreed than an ordinance change that is pleasing to all sides might be the best solution.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a request from the Adams Inn, 29 Hancock St. for an all-alcohol-common victualer InnHolders license and a license for 4 pinball machines.

•Granted a request from Christ Church, 12 Quincy Ave. for a permit to hold a flea market in the church hall Saturday, April 29 from 9 a.m. .m. to 4 p.m.

•Granted a request for a change of ownership of Washington Tap, 609 Washington St. from Mary Lou Minichelli to Mark Crowley. The Minichelli's have owned the business for 20 years and were called a "good neighbor" to the community. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro told Crowley that although they had no problems in the past at the site, he wanted it to "remain that way."

•Granted a temporary food license to Antelbellum Foods of New England doing business as Serendipity Cafe, 2 Hancock St. (Neponset Flea Market) The license is for sandwiches already purchased by a vendor and kept refrigerated. The board told Will Lewis, owner that as soon as some of the equipment is repaired, he could head toward a full service food license.

•Granted a request from South Shore Auto Sales, 577 South St. for a change of ownership from Louis P. Gangi to Leslie Lahage for a Motor 11 license Lahage said he plans to have about 25 cars on the lot. Board members told Lahage to "spruce up the place" by doing a bit of landscaping. Councillor DeCristofaro warned Lahage not to "turn it into a junkyard".

•Granted a request from Quincy Donuts Inc.., doing business as Dunkin' Donuts, 825 Southern Artery & Washington St., for a common victualer license. Owner Victor Carvalho said the store would be a satellite business with no cooking and no preparation of food on the premises.

•Continued until next week, a request from Prince Arthur's, 686 Southern Artery for a common victualer license It used to be Santoro's Arthur D. Weglewski told the board he would be selling sandwiches and pizza.

The board requested that the owner of the building meet with the police and fire chiefs. Fire Chief Tom Gorman called the outside of the building as to "deplorable condition".

•Granted a request from the Shipbuilder's Museum for a one day liquor license for use at a fundraising ball to be held May 13 at the USNSM building at the Fore River Shipyard

•Granted a request from State Street Bank Realty, Inc., 1776 Heritage Drive, for a change of managers on their liquor license from Robert Mahoney to Mary Ann Marino.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Will The '80s Real Estate Boom Be Repeated In The '90s?

By ART FOLEY
Century 21
Annex Realty, Inc.

The real estate boom of 1982-87 was as unusual as it was puzzling. Never in recent times have real estate prices climbed so much in such a short period of time. In the space of six years, the average residential real estate price climbed in the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors (Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull) from $57,127 ('82) to $164,792 ('87), a climb which mirrors what happened in the rest of the state. This is an unprecedented increase in values of 288 percent in the space of six years.

To evaluate whether a boom could happen again, it's important to understand why it happened in the '80s. There is an excellent article written by Karl Case and Robert Shiller in the New England Economic Review Nov./Dec. 1988 entitled "The Behavior of Home Buyers in Boom and Post-Boom Markets." What the article essentially concludes is that the boom market was not driven by basic economic fundamentals but rather by expectations. Home buyers in booms expect still more appreciation of housing prices and worry about being priced out of the housing market in the future.

It is apparent that the housing boom in the '80s had a major basis in psychological rather than economic rational. The price increases of one year seemed to almost fuel the increase of the next year.

For years, it was thought by many people in the real estate business that the single most important factor in home sales activity and appreciation was interest rates, but clearly the experiences of recent years has proven this to be false: Prices are down and interest rates are way down, but there has not been any significant increase in price or activity until very recently.

From a practical viewpoint, if unemployment is at 9.000 percent and some of your friends are losing their jobs, that would be a large factor in your considering a purchase. The interest rate could be 2 percent but if you're not sure you're going to have a job, you're not going to make a purchase. In 1982, the unemployment rate fell from 8.0 percent to 3.0 percent in 1987 and conversely, consumer confidence peaked in 1987; interestingly, home prices peaked in 1987. From that point on, unemployment rose to 8.2 percent in 1990, consumer confidence plunged to its lowest point in 1990 and home prices were still falling.

While it's a mistake to oversimplify a complex market such as real estate, all things being equal, real estate has always proven to be a sound investment over the long run. Since everyone needs a place to live and work, real estate has more intrinsic value than many other Investments. Therefore, if the average person feels good about his/her future, has a little extra money to spend, and is looking for a long-term investment, real estate is the logical place to put your money. When there are a lot of people feeling good about their security, with a lot of extra money to spend, the demand will exceed the supply and prices will rise. It would seem that as the economy improves, unemployment decreases further, and interest rates remain stable only one thing can happen: the Mini-Boom of the '90s!

First-Time Homebuyers Workshop Starts April 25

Quincy Community Action programs, Inc., a Mass. Housing Finance Agency approved first-time homebuyer counselling agency, will hold a series of First-Time Homebuyer's Workshops beginning Tuesday, April 25.

Workshops will be held from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. at the Weymouth Tufts Library, Community Room, 46 Broad St., Weymouth.

Other workshops are scheduled for April 27, May 2 and May 3. Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass. Housing Finance Agency and other financing options.

Focus will be different aspects of homebuying process, including locating a property within budget, making an offer and suitable financing.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. Fee is $30 for all four sessions; cost of workshop text and all copied materials are included.

For more information and registration forms, call Debbie Kidd, housing specialist, at 479-8181 ext. 115.

The workshop is sponsored by the City of Quincy and EOCD.

Shannon Tiede Graduate Of DeWolfe N.E. Program

Shannon Tiede, a real estate professional in DeWolfe New England's Quincy office, has graduated from the company's SMART educational course.

The Cohasset resident was an active participant in DeWolfe's pilot SMART Start training session and among the program's first graduates.

Tiede and fellow DeWolfe students were required to participate in 12 days of career training and role-playing, in addition to completing course homework and practical assignments.

Created by the DeWolfe New England Education and Training Department, the SMART (Sales, Marketing And Real Estate Training) Start educational forum specifically addresses the skills required to be successful in the homeownership business.

The course has been designed to keep pace with the growth of DeWolfe, a publicly-owned company known for offering customers a menu of in-house services such as home selling, buyer representation, a WLVI-TV 56 weekend real estate show and its own mortgage and relocation companies.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Finding The Right Home

With all the choices in today's market, how do you go about finding the right home? It seems the more research you do, the more alternatives you discover.

It's important to visualize your needs and plan ahead. "Know what you want in a home, what's important to you, and what you can live without," James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors, said. "Many of us start out with a champagne taste and a beer pocketbook, so it's important to be realistic."

Where and what you buy will affect you for as long as you live in the house. "Get your priorities in order before you start looking or even talk to a real estate broker or sales associate," Stamos said.

For first-time homebuyers this is a new experience, so it's especially important to do your homework. If you currently own a home, you know exactly what's lacking. You may need another bedroom or bathroom, or a good school nearby.

First, decide where you want to live. A big part of the answer hinges on where and how you earn a living. If your job requires a lot of reading or is quite stressful, public transportation may offer valuable time to sit quietly.

"Regardless, you should practice the commute in rush hour before you make a commitment. A seemingly quiet road can transform into gridlock during peak hours," Stamos said.

People with children have other major considerations: school and safety. If you plan to send your children to private schools, you can live where you want assuming you can easily arrange transportation. On the other hand, a lavish public school system may indicate high local real estate taxes. Check them out.

Obviously, lifestyle is an important consideration. People who frequently dine out, go dancing and attend the theater probably belong in the city or a close-in suburb. "In other words, make sure you're in close proximity to the things that matter most," said Stamos.

It used to be that homes came in a limited variety, but today, you have many choices. In addition to the traditional single-family home, you can buy a townhouse, condominium or apartment condominium or co-op.

In planned unit developments (PUDs), you can find almost any combination. In condos and other such communities, make sure the rules and regulations, as well as the by-laws, match your lifestyle. This type of housing is great for people who want to own their own space without being responsible for mowing the lawn or repairing the roof, a management company handles that.

On the other hand, you'll pay fees for these services. "In addition to checking the documents and financial soundness of the homeowner's association, you must determine if the monthly fees are worth the services and additional amenities such as a swimming pool or exercise room," Stamos said.

Affordability can be a factor not only in the type of housing, but whether it's new or an existing home. Old houses often have fine woodwork or interesting nooks and crannies not normally found in new homes. They generally sit on landscaped lots with mature trees and grown bushes.

New homes may cost more, but you can make many more decisions on amenities, colors, carpeting and fixtures. "Make sure you're dealing with a reputable builder, and have an attorney review all documents," Stamos said.

Selecting a real estate professional is an important first step in beginning your search, he added.

"Ask for personal recommendations to find an individual who is knowledgeable about the neighborhood and has access to the local Multiple Listing Service," Stamos said. Make sure you feel confident about his or her knowledge and skills, and understand the agency relationship, he added.

Also, look for Realtor membership. These professionals go beyond state licensing requirements, subscribe to a strict Code of Ethics and are committed to continuing education.

The Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Spring HOME IMPROVEMENT

Protect Your Home From Fire

(NAPS)—Since 1985, wildland fires have burned more than just timber and wildlife. In just those nine years, wildfires consumed approximately 9,000 homes and other structures, representing a loss in excess of $2 billion in property.

To help protect your home from wildfires, here are three fire-safety suggestions from the experts at the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Forest Service:

• Step 1—Remember, level is better than sloped. Always check with local officials to see what fire protection is available.

Untreated wood shake roofs are the number one cause of home losses in wildland fires.

• Step 2—Work with architects, contractors and fire officials to create a design that is both aesthetically pleasing and fire-safe. Remember, the number one cause of home losses in wildland fires is from untreated wood shake roofs.

• Step 3—Stay on guard with fire-safe landscaping and maintenance. The first thing is to create a safety zone or fire break around your home. Also sweep your gutters, eaves and roof on a regular basis.

Finally discuss these fire-safety guidelines with your neighbors so your entire community can also be protected.

Any Home Can Have A Radon Problem

Radon is estimated to be the second leading cause of lung cancer in the United States. High levels of radon have been found in every state. If you smoke and your home has high levels of radon, your risk of lung cancer is especially great.

If you haven't yet tested your home for radon and you live in an area where high levels of radon exist, the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County urges you to test your home.

The American Lung Association offers the following testing tips:

•Any home can have a radon problem--even apartments if they are below the third floor. Testing for radon is a simple precaution that everyone should take. Homes with radon problems can be fixed.

•Do-it-yourself test kits can be ordered from the American Lung Association of Greater Norfolk County for $10 each.

•The American Lung Association kit meets Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) requirements for short-term screening (4-7 days). Look for the words, "EPA Listed" on the package.

•If a short-term test indicates an elevated radon level, confirm your findings with a second test before taking action.

•If you prefer, a professional testing firm, listed by the EPA or the state, can test your home for you.

•If your home does have a high radon level, don't panic. Repairs cost no more than many other common home repairs and will not change the appearance of your home. A variety of methods can be used, from sealing cracks in floors and walls to changing the flow of air into your home.

•Always consult an EPA-qualified or state-certified radon contractor. They can evaluate the problem and help you select the right solution.

•As when hiring a contractor for any other home repair, you may want to get more than one estimate and check references.

•Contact the American Lung Association at (508) 668-6729 for more information about radon, including names of qualified radon contractors and testing firms.

Remodeling And Spring Cleaning

It's no wonder that when spring remodeling plans are made, easy-to-clean appliances are high on everyone's list. The most recent addition to the line-up of easy-to-clean appliances is the smooth surface cooktop. It's easy to clean and looks great.

Whether you want to replace an existing range or completely remodel your kitchen, there's a smooth-top unit to fit your needs.

Virtually every major appliance manufacturer uses Ceran black glass-ceramic panels supplied by Schott Corporation.

The Ceran panels are decorated to appliance manufacturer's specifications. The decoration indicates the size and location of the heating elements and gives the panels a distinctive look. The panels are available in a virtually limitless variety of surface patterns, which are "baked in" during production so they won't scratch or wear off.

Insect Screening Keeps Bugs Away From Patios, Porches And Backyard Pools

(NAPS)—You love your new deck. Trouble is, so do the insects. Don't let fears of flies, mosquitoes, hornets, bees, beetles and other bothersome bugs keep you inside in summer instead of outside enjoying the cool breezes on your veranda. You can keep the pesky pests at bay and enjoy the great outdoors again protected by a screen enclosure.

Most homeowners already know the comfort and convenience of installing screen doors and window screens in warm weather to let fresh air indoors but not flying insects. Screening also can be installed to enclose porches, patios, decks, gazebos, pools and other outdoor areas for greater enjoyment.

"More and more homeowners have created an outdoor oasis that expands their living space during warm-weather months, and insect screening can make being outside even more pleasurable," says Peter Miranda, executive director of the Insect Screening Weavers Association. "In addition, screening can enhance those areas by closing in the open space to give it more definition."

With reports of growing populations of disease-carrying mosquitoes, bees and other insects, screening is not only effective but is the environmentally friendly way to control insects, adds Miranda.

"Insects can be more than just a nuisance. Many homeowners hire expensive insect control services to treat their homes each summer with chemicals to keep annoying and harmful insects away, or spray with insect repellents. But screens can do the job safely and effectively without impacting the environment. And the costs are relatively inexpensive since screens can be installed by most do-it-yourselfers."

Today, screening products in woven fiber glass and aluminum are available in a choice of colors that allow homeowners to enhance the outdoor aesthetics of the enclosure, while affording good outward visibility.

Silver gray is a popular color for fiber glass, as is charcoal in both fiber glass and aluminum screening. While bright aluminum continues to be the preference of many homeowners, new black aluminum is growing in popularity. Black/charcoal screening provides excellent outward viewing, seeming to disappear when you look through it.

The durability of today's insect screening means it can withstand the rigors of year-round weathering. Resilient aluminum screening is rust-proof, while woven fiber glass is coated with vinyl, making it tough so that it won't dent, corrode or rust.

Installing screens to enclose a roofed porch or provide privacy for a patio is not difficult and costs are very reasonable, Miranda says. "Aluminum and fiber glass screening can be purchased in rolls at hardware stores or building centers. The rolls are available in many widths that can accommodate a variety of panel sizes, making for easy installation in a variety of projects."

And don't forget those window screens and screen doors. If they are beginning to show wear, the screening can be replaced in a few simple steps, Miranda says.

If you're looking for ideas, the Insect Screening Weavers Association has a free brochure with sketches of projects ranging from a screen-enclosed porch to a multi-season entertainment center with a screen-enclosed fireplace. The booklet is available by mailing a postcard to: The Insect Screening Weavers Association, P.O. Box 26316, Pittsburgh, PA 15230.

A Light, Airy Kitchen

(NAPS)—You can achieve a light, airy kitchen that is warm and inviting by juxtaposing pristine white cabinets, white tile and epoxy grout on the countertops and backsplashes against a terra cotta floor.

The continuous use of white makes the space feel larger, while the earth-tone floor adds warmth and takes high traffic gracefully. The epoxy grout used on the countertops resists common food stains and buildup from household products, assuring a pristine look years after installation.

The earth-tone floor adds warmth and takes high traffic gracefully.

Note that the breakfast area features tile walls from floor to ceiling. The Art of Ceramic Tile, a colorful booklet with more creative ideas about the endless uses of tile, is available free by calling the Tile Promotion Board at 1-800-994-8453.

City Celebrating Community Development

The City of Quincy is celebrating Community Development Week this week in recognition of the contributions of the federal Community Development Bock Grant Program, as well as the HOME Investment Partnership Program, and the Emergency Shelter Grants Program to improving the quality of life for local residents.

Enacted into law in 1974, the Community Development Block Grant Program (CDBG) is the principal federal program providing grants to states, cities and towns to devise neighborhood approaches that will improve the physical, economic and social conditions in communities.

CDBG activities through the years have included: housing rehabilitation/deleading grants and loans; Quincy Council on Aging (COA) and elderly transportation program; public service programs which include funding for seven community-based neighborhood centers; economic development loans for job creation and storefront/facade improvement loans; Quincy Center street and traffic improvements; construction of the Ross Parking deck; Town River Bay Shore Protection project; neighborhood streets, sidewalks, drainage, sewer and traffic improvements; parks and playground improvements/reconstruction; rehabilitation/renovation of public facilities, serving low/moderate households; and the provision of handicapped access in public buildings.

Quincy will receive $2,639,000 in CDBG funding for fiscal 1995-96 which begins July 1.

The HOME program has provided federal funds to state and local governments for use in implementing locally designed affordable housing strategies. The City of Quincy will receive $446,586 in HOME funding for FY 1996. The HOME program provides funding for down payment assistance for first-time homebuyers, and the rehabilitation of owner-occupied and rental housing, the development of rental property for low-moderate income persons and transitional housing.

The Emergency Shelter Grants Program is intended to improve the quality of existing emergency shelters for the homeless, to make available additional shelters, to meet the costs of operating shelters and of providing essential social services to homeless individuals, and to help prevent homelessness. Quincy will receive $90,000 in ESG funding for FY 96. The ESG program has provided funding for the operation of Fr. Bill's Place, Quincy's main homeless shelter.

In commemoration of Community Development Week 1995, the Department of Planning and Community Development hosted Monday an opening celebration and presented a video of community development efforts in the city, funded through the three federal programs. Mayor James Sheets was the keynote speaker. Planning Director Richard Meade provided welcoming remarks.

Other speakers included City Council President Michael Cheney; Robert Brown, program manager of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development; and Margaret Sherry, local representative for Sen. John Kerry.

City and state officials, as well as numerous organizations who have contributed to community development efforts in Quincy, were invited to attend the celebration. Cong. Gerry Studds participated in the video through a pre-recorded message from Washington, D.C.

The video was developed through the collaborative efforts of the city's Department of Planning and Community Development and Quincy Cablevision. The video was developed by Angelito Santos, CDBG principal planner; Planning Director Richard Meade, and PCD staff members.

Editing and narration was handled by William McColgan, program director, Continental Quincy Cablevision. Paul Johnson of Cablevision and David Greig, of the city's PCD/Housing Rehabilitation Office, conducted the interviews and the filming. More than 20 organizations and individuals participated in the video.

In addition, CDBG funded public services organizations are sponsoring special events this week at their respective neighborhood centers.

For more information, contact Angelito Santos at 376-1373 or Elizabeth Rowan at 376-1366.

Downtown Merchants To Meet Today

City Prepares To Send R.F.P. On Hancock Lot

The city planning to send out a request for proposals (R.F.P.) on the future development of the Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center.

Downtown business leaders are scheduled to hold a meeting on the matter today (Thursday) at 8 a.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Mayor James Sheets said officials from the Quincy Planning Department, which will publicize the request, are also expected to attend.

Sheets said he expects the department to put out the R.F.P. "as soon as possible," adding that he hopes the request is one that takes into consideration the concerns of the individual downtown merchants, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) and others who might be affected by any development at the 5.2-acre lot.

Sheets has voiced support of developing the lot for commercial use such as office space, but has also said he is not opposed to the idea of using the site for retail purposes. The city will act upon the proposal it feels makes the most sense for the area, he added.

The mayor did not rule out the possibility of acting upon a proposal that suggests going beyond the existing boundaries of the lot and into nearby Cottage Avenue and Hancock Street, but said it is too early to speculate if the city will receive a proposal that calls for such action.

John Noonan Named Alternate To White House Aging Conference

John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging, has been chosen by Gov. William Weld to serve as an alternate delegate to the 1995 White House Conference on Aging scheduled May 2-5 in Washington, D.C.

"Your appointment is in recognition of your committed advocacy, your dedication to improving the well being of today's elders, and your concern for future generations both in Massachusetts and across the nation," Weld said in making the appointment.

"I am greatly honored to be named an alternate delegate to one of the most important conferences on aging to be held this century," Noonan said.

He listed topics which

should receive high priority at the conference: access to health care, long term care, home health services, support and respite care, medical transportation, health promotion, personal safety, fear of isolation, consumer fraud, and elder abuse.

Noonan was recently re-elected to his 13th consecutive term as chairman at the annual Council on Aging meeting. He was appointed to the Council on Aging Board by former Mayor Walter Hannon in 1972 and reappointed by Mayors Arthur Tobin, Joseph LaRaia, Frank McCauley and James Sheets.

He is a program consultant to the State Health Department Division of Elderly Health and has been active in senior advocacy programs involving the Massachusetts Association of Older Americans, American Association of Retired Persons, South Shore Coordinating Transportation, Inc., South Shore Elder Services and Beechwood Community Life Center.

Ellen Kinsley Beechwood Life Center Employee Of Month

Ellen Kinsley, lead teacher of infant care, has been named Employee of the Month for March at Beechwood on the Bay Life Center.

Kinsley, who joined Beechwood in November, 1985, began as a part-time teacher at the Center as an aide in the pre-school program. She later taught and helped develop "Nature Capers," a summer camp for pre-schoolers.

"We were delighted when Ellen was interested in expanding her role as a full-time teacher, working with toddlers in 'First Steps.' Them, when we opened our search for the lead teacher to launch our new infant care program, Ellen stepped forward," said Beechwood Executive Director Sharron Beals.

"Ellen personifies all that is most valued at Beechwood," Beals continued. "She radiates a genuine warmth and care for children and families. She has great understanding and respect for children--at all developmental levels. She teaches gently through example."

Kinsley's experience, dedication and creative energies serve the Beechwood community well, Beals said. "Thank you Ellen for all you do for us and with us," she added.

Bellotti Co-Sponors Bill To Establish Alzheimer's Office

State Rep. Michael Bellotti, Tuesday announced that House Bill 3121 which he co-sponsored, has received a favorable report from the Joint Committee on Human Services.

"I believe it is very important to establish this office since it is designed to provide cost effective planning and program coordinating assistance across the spectrum of state agencies. It will efficiently deal with the pressing needs of more than 100,000 Massachusetts residents with dementia related illness and their caregivers." said Bellotti.

The legislation requires the office to oversee the implementation of the recommendations of the governor's conference on Alzheimer's Disease. It will also require services be delivered in the most effective and efficient manner possible and will determine ways the Commonwealth can secure additional federal and private sector money and will promote public awareness and education of needed services and programs.

The Legislation enjoys widespread bipartisan support, Bellotti said.

Raiders Can't Connect In Home Opener

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

In baseball there are three rare occurrences: hitting for the cycle, hitting four home runs in a game and pitching a no-hitter. A seven-inning format in high school ball mostly prevents the first two from happening, but a no-hitter is more possible and that's just what happened to the North Quincy baseball team Monday at Adams Field.

In dropping an 8-3 decision to Plymouth South, North was held hitless by the outstanding effort of Plymouth hurler Shane Bither. Bither also struck out 11 Red Raider batters, including the last two to end the game.

North will try to rebound today (Thursday) when they travel to Barnstable. They will be home again Monday with a date against Stoughton, a team that beat North, 10-8, in the season-opener last Saturday. The first pitch will be at 11 a.m.

"We ran into a red-hot pitcher," said Raider coach Leo Donovan of Bither's performance. "He was just too overpowering."

North, despite being held hitless, was able to score three runs. In the first a walk by Steve Heroux gave the Raiders their first base runner. After stealing second, Heroux scored the game's first run when Tim Zaniboni reached on an error.

Trailing 8-1 in the sixth, NQ was able to get something going again when Zaniboni reached first after striking out on a passed ball, reached second on a Sean Dolbeare groundout, then scored on a wild pitch. Their third run was scored when Dan Reynolds and Jesse Casler walked and Reynolds came home on a double steal to close out North's scoring.

The home team also put men on in the second inning when Ken Hannaford walked and stole second, and in the fourth when Dolbeare also walked and stole second.

The Red Raiders received a fine pitching effort by Joe McCarthy. In 5 2/3 innings of work he allowed eight hits and struck out four before giving the pitching duties up to Tim Sheehan. Sheehan allowed two hits and struck out one in his 1 1/3 innings.

"He (McCarthy) had a good first inning and pitched well but just got tired," said Donovan. "I am also very pleased with the work of Sheehan."

Despite giving up no hits, Bither gave North Quincy plenty of chances to keep in the game by issuing six walks and a wild pitch. He only retired the Raiders in order twice, in the third and seventh innings.

NQ had help on defense to keep them in the game early with Reynolds and Casler making diving catches in foul territory to keep more Plymouth hitters off the bases.

Tigers Win 100th Straight OCL Game

Taunton Machine Rolls Past Quincy

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High softball team entered their season-opener Monday knowing that a win would be no easy feat. Their opponent, Taunton, was in search of their 100th consecutive Old Colony League win - a streak dating back to 1988. And on the mound for the Tigers was junior pitcher Christi Kvilhaug who posted 12 - yes, 12 - no-hitters last year.

With that in mind, it's understandable why Quincy coach Bob Keuther listed nothing but positives when talking about his club after their 10-1 loss Monday at Mitchell/McCoy Field.

"We played pretty well and I'm pleased with our effort," said Keuther. "That was a very good team and a very good pitcher we played. We banged her up a little and I'm definitely pleased with that."

Indeed, the Presidents were able to get to Kvilhaug on several occasions. Junior captain Katie Gallagher, the emotional catalyst of the Quincy club, punched out two hits against the whirlwind Taunton fireballer and scored her team's only run in the sixth inning.

It was Alisha Ford, however, who gave Kvilhaug the best shot in the sixth. The sophomore right fielder got all of one pitch and sent it flying over the third baseman's head were it dropped in for a hit and allowed Gallagher to come home from second, which she stole after her base hit. The right-handed hitter showed impressive bat speed in managing to get ahead of the ball in a manner that sent it down the left field foul line.

The Presidents' batters repeatedly got good wood on the ball - certainly no easy task against arguably the best pitcher in the state. They threatened to do damage again in the seventh as Mary Kelly, Kelly Howard and Heather Wakelin loaded the bases with one out. However, Kvilhaug slammed the door and emerged from the final inning unscathed.

"With the way we played I feel we'll definitely be competitive against the other teams in the OCL this year," said Keuther. "Nobody will look at us and take us lightly."

During the preseason, Keuther touted the defensive unit as the strength of his club. Behind pitcher Angela Hogrell, who was starting her first game ever on the mound (the coach said he was "really pleased" with Hogrell's outing), the Presidents turned in a number of defensive gems.

Left fielder Howard was error-free as she made several putouts, including a great, outstretched running stab in the final inning. Center fielder Kristen Sheehan and third baseman Kerri Connolly combined for a big-league play in the fourth when Sheehan gunned the ball to Connolly from deep center and nailed Taunton's Heather Faria as she tried to turn a double into a triple. Connolly stood her ground and applied the forceful tag.

In the fifth inning, shortstop Gallagher relayed a throw from Sheehan to Connolly for another putout at the hot corner. It was the type of play Keuther expects from his shortstop: "Gallagher runs our infield and she delivered for us," he said.

Quincy second baseman Toni Kabilian pulled off a rare double play in the third inning. She made an outstanding over-the-head catch in short right field then smartly threw to Wakelin at first for the second out as Taunton's Lindsay Figueiredo had left the bag not expecting Kabilian to make the catch.

Despite the 10-1 deficit, the performance was indicative of good things to come for the Presidents this year and next. The entire starting unit is comprised of underclassmen and they already appear stronger than last year's model.

Quincy traveled to Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday) and will host Bridgewater-Raynham today at 3:30. They have a long break before returning to the field April 26 at Plymouth South.

A CRANKY ENGINE

When an engine begins to crank more slowly than it normally does, suspicions about the cause usually center on the battery. And, indeed, an engine that cranks slowly is one of the telltale symptoms of impending battery failure. If a battery is not yet four years old, however, other culprits should be suspected. Those factors requiring a closer look should include: a defective starter; bad electrical connections at the battery, starter, or chassis ground; use of the wrong grade of motor oil; and incorrect ignition timing. Some maintenance-free batteries make it easy to rule out the battery as a cause of slow braking by revealing information about their conditions by virtue of a built-in hydrometer "eye." The color of the dot in the eye corresponds to a particular state of charge.

Hint: Battery failure does not necessarily bring with it the need for a new alternator and voltage regulator.

Call 843-1550, LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO for an appointment if your car is showing signs of any problem, especially a "cranky" engine. Rec. Department Crowns Hoop Jamboree Champs

Over 80 boys and girls recently took part in the Quincy Recreation Department's Basketball Clinic and Jamboree.

The activities are designed to instruct elementary-age children in basketball skills while under game conditions; participation, not competition, was emphasized.

Before playing in a series of round-robin minigames, the participants took part in a clinic conducted by Hingham High School assistant hoop coach Ted Stevenson, Jr., a long-time leader in the Quincy Recreation program.

After eight round-robing mini-games, a combined Atlantic/Squantum team captured the Jamboree Cup with a win over Atherton Hough.

Phil McGillicuddy paced the winning effort with 10 points while Pat Jaehnig and Michael Feetham scored five each. Pat O'Brien and Matt Doyle also played well. The champs were coached by Stacey Welch.

Paul McAteer and Dave Grogan led Atherton Hough with six points apiece. Coach Michelle Drury praised the efforts of Shaun Gibbons, Steve O'Neill, Pat Malone and Billy Reid.

Atlantic/Squantum advanced to the title contest with a 29-19 win over Snug Harbor in the semi-finals.

Tops in the scoring column for A/S were Feetham (10), McGillicuddy (eight) and Jaehnig (five). Also scoring were Katheryn MacRitchie, Chris Ham and Joe Sudak with two each.

Steve Florentine netted 10 and Kha Ta added three for Snug Harbor. Malcom Lynn, Chris Dykens and Frankie Kelly showed great hustle for the Mike Flavin-coached squad.

Atherton Hough advanced following a 7-6 win over Montclair as McAteer sank two foul shots with time running out.

Noel McAuliffe, Robby Wright and Grogan scored in the winning effort.

Steven Barbuto, Jonathon Carroll and Ryan Rogers scored two each for Montclair and coach Dean Zoia.

In other tournament games:

Bernazzani opened with an 18-13 win over Montclair.

Ryan Hogan scored nine and Dan Duggan chipped in with four to lead Bernazzani.

Carroll paced Montclair with six points.

Atlantic/Squantum opened its championship run with an impressive 31-10 win over Atherton Hough.

McGillicuddy, who seems to top the scorers column in every game he plays, single-handedly matched the Atherton Hough total with 10. Ham and Feetham also contributed to the victory.

Brendan McDonald, Brian Malone and McAteer played well for Atherton Hough.

Eddie Farrell scored 10 to lead Snug Harbor to an 18-2 win over Point-Webster.

Roberto Cutoni and Josh Webb looked sharp for Point-Webster and coach Matt Flynn.

Montclair also topped Point-Webster, 5-0, as great defense by both teams dominated.

Montclair's Dominic Delgardo, Kosta Kalpakidis, Darryl Zoia, Lauren Kalil and Warren Cheung played well against the swarming defense of Point-Webster's Andrew Picard, Anthony Sandonato and Justin Thorley.

Snug Harbor held on to a one-point halftime lead to post 12-11 win over Bernazzani.

Ta and Florentine led Snug Harbor with four points each.

Bernazzani's hot-shot Dan Duggan was the game's top scorer with seven points. Michael Ryan added two.

Track

NQ Girls Out-Throw, Out-Leap Plymouth South

The North Quincy girls' track team, which struggled last year, opened the new season in impressive fashion, easily downing Plymouth South, 89-49.

"It was good to start off with a win after last year's 1-7 campaign," said coach Geoff Hennessy. "The people we count on came through, but more importantly, the rookies also did very well. With the early season and harsh conditions (it was windy and in the 40s during the meet) this bodes well for the rest of the year."

Junior standout Jen Pineo was the event's main attraction as she captured wins in the shot put, discus and 200-meter run. In the two throwing events she recorded state-qualifying distances, 36-feet-4-inches in the shot and 101-1 in the discus.

Pineo led a Red Raider sweep in the shot put that was completed by by Wingsze Yuen (27-8 1/2) and Kristi Myers (23-1). Yuen placed third in the discus as well.

Also winning events and qualifying for the states during the season's first outing were Phyllis Poon and Beth Crowley. Poon finished the 100-meter hurdles in 17.5 seconds. Crowley cleared the high jump with a leap of 4-10.

All three leaders in the 100 hurdles were North Quincy girls. Suk Ng and Sharon Lee closed out the sweep, narrowly finishing behind Poon.

The Red Raider 4x100 relay team also completed their race in state qualifying time. Casey Ngo, Jasmine Gonzales, Aja Jackson and Poon timished with an impressive 54.5 second showing

Before the first meet, Hennessy touted his jumpers as one of the keys to success this year. They easily came through against Plymouth South, with first- and second-place finishes in all three events. Ng and Ngo were the top long-jumpers as the former out-leaped the latter by 3/4 of an inch.

Crowley's high jump was followed closely by Rachael Repoff's leap of 4-8. In the triple jump Jackson and Repoff provided the 1-2 punch.

Rounding out North Quincy's list of winners were Ngo (100), Gonzales (400), Kelly Duggan (two mile) and Erica Crawford (javelin).

Duggan was the top Red Raider in the mile with a second-place finish while Ursula Feurtado led the Raider effort in the 800 with a third-place finish.

Morrissey Files Bill For U.S. Olympians

State Sen. Michael Morrissey testified before the Joint Committee on Taxation recently on a bill he says will provide revenue for future Olympic prospects.

Morrissey's legislation, Senate Bill 1655, amends the Massachusetts General Laws regarding income tax returns by establishing a voluntary checkoff box for individuals who may be interested in making a contribution to U.S. Olympic Committee (USOC).

"This is an initiative that gives the citizens of the Commonwealth an opportunity to really feel like part of the team," Morrissey said as he addressed the Taxation Committee at the State House. "Currently, Massachusetts offers voluntary contribution checkoffs for funds relative to AIDS, organ transplants, endangered species, and state elections.

"Massachusetts has been so proud of our Olympians throughout the history of the games. What better way to show our support than to make a contribution to these fine athletes through a simple checkbox on our return?"

Morrissey's legislation would offer any individual filing a tax return the opportunity to voluntary contribute all or part of any refund to which they are entitled or to add an amount due to be credited to the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Morrissey said constituents who want to express their opinions on the bill or any other piece of legislation should write to him at the State House, Room 520, Boston, MA 02133 or call him at 722-1494.

Trust.

A child shows it instinctively with its first faltering steps. Over the years, trust becomes a precious gift given only to special friends.

Trust. A quality we've earned.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It is Easter, the occasion for Christians to rejoice again in celebration of the Resurrection . . . It is Easter, an occasion for renewal of our spirits . . . It is Easter, a day we hear again the story that all Christians believe, yet sometimes forget as the months pass by from one year to another - the promise of Christ that - "If I live, ye also shall live."

There are times in each of our lives when human help, human comfort, human love are not enough. Sometimes every man, every woman faces the hour when there is only One hand to hold, only One to whom we can turn. No other ear listens, no other heart really cares, no other arm is strong enough to hold us when health or material possessions are gone, or when a night of any kind is darkest. Then we realize what Christ's words really mean, "Lo I am with you always."

For the Christian, Easter comes as a continuation of God's great promise. . .

Rev. Brian C. Black, 37
Former St. Chrysostom's Rector

A memorial service for Rev. Brian Charles Black, 37, of Madison, Ga., former rector of St. Chrysostom's Church in Wollaston, was held Tuesday in the church.

Rev. Black died April 3 of lymphoma cancer in Emory University Hospital, Atlanta.

He served as rector of the Church of the Advent in Madison.

As rector of St. Chrysostom's from 1988 to 1990, he revitalized the youth programs there. He organized discussion groups, had high school students attend church gatherings and coordinated scavenger hunts at Logan Airport and Georges Island in Boston. Rev. Black also had youths doing ice sculptures for a winter carnival.

He also organized and helped raise $10,000 for a mission trip to Belize after a fire caused vast damage in that Central American nation. Along with 13 high school students who accompanied him on the journey, he helped clean out burnt buildings, repaint, and perform carpentry and maintenance work.

Rev. Black placed a special emphasis on Christian education and restructured the program with the addition of a Children's Chapel service. There was also extensive growth in adult education programs.

Born in Charlotte, N.C., he was a graduate of Elmhurst College in Elmhurst, Ill. and graduated in 1986 from Seabury-Western Theological Seminary in Evanston, Ill. He was curator-seminarian assistant at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Park Ridge, Ill., from 1984 to 1988.

He is survived by his wife, Carole (Thomes) Black; two sons, Michael Black and Tyler Black, both of Madison; a daughter, Carrie Black of Madison; his parents, Thomas and Roberta Black of Columbia, S.C.; three brothers, Bart Black and Brad Black, both of North Carolina, and Bruce Black of Florida; and two sisters, Bonnie Black of Maine and Barrie Black of South Carolina.

The funeral and burial were in Georgia.

Donations may be made to the Church of the Advent, 338 Academy St., Madison, GA 30650 or to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, 220 N. Main St., Natick, MA 01760.

Mary A. Colton, 71
Retired Telephone Co. Clerk

A funeral Mass for Mary A. (Femiano) Colton, 71, of Quincy, was celebrated yesterday (Wednesday) in Most Blessed Sacrament Church.

Mrs. Colton died April 9 in the home of her daughter, Pauline C. Lefebvre of South Weymouth.

A clerk in the accounting department of New England Telephone, she worked 22 years for the company before retiring in 1984. She was a member of the New England Telephone Pioneers.

She volunteered and later became an employee at the Discovery Day Clinic at South Shore Mental Health Center.

Mrs. Colton was also a volunteer at the Houghs Neck Community Center.

She was the mother of David A. Colton of Quincy, commissioner of the city's department of public works.

Born and educated in Boston, she lived in South Boston before moving to Quincy 40 years ago.

Wife of the late Anthony J. Colton, she is also survived by another son, Anthony J. Colton Jr. of Quincy; another daughter, Jacqueline A. Gardner of Quincy; a sister, Josephine Norton of South Boston; nine grandchildren, and many nieces and nephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave.

State's Highest Court To Hear Lawsuit Against MWRA Rates

Quincy appealed the judge's ruling to the state's appeals court last September. The city and MWRA have since submitted brief written statements arguing their positions, according to city officials.

However, the Supreme Court decided late last month to hear the case itself and to remove it from the appeals court.

The city has spent approximately $20,000 on the suit to this point, according to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath. Sheets said the Supreme Court will almost certainly have the final decision on the matter, since such cases rarely make it to the federal level.

The Boston Water and Sewer Commission joined the lawsuit in February 1994, and also its appeal, despite the fact that Quincy had argued that the strict population-based formula favored Boston.

The skyrocketing MWRA sewer and water rates, which are the result of costs for the $3.5 billion Boston Harbor cleanup, have been the target of complaints from communities in the MWRA district for several years.

The average sewer and water bill in the state is now $600 a year and is expected to rise to $900 before the year 2000. The MWRA provides sewer service to 43 Massachusetts communities and water to 47 cities and towns.

Board Grants Auto License Despite Objections

Despite objections from Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio and Quincy License Board Chairman Joseph Shea, the license board voted 4 to 1 in favor of Quincy Collision & Frame Center, 125 Liberty St., South Quincy, for a Motor 11 license.

Even though owner John E. Lauzon showed the board letters from abutters who were in favor or of the business. , Fabrizio said he was opposed to any expansion of auto related businesses in the area. He said while there were letters of approval from a few, he (Fabrizio) had a larger group to represent.

Shea said there were "too many used car businesses" and cited another request to sell used cars on the agenda, that had to be postponed yet another week.

That hearing was a request from A. Plus Auto, Inc. for permission to change the location of their Motor 11 license from 519 Quincy Ave., to 80 Copeland St. (next to Crescent Video), the board will hear their request April 18. Shea said there are a "lot of problems with that site" and that he was waiting for further reports from Jack Gillan, traffic engineer.

Tax Hike Expected

$3 Million City Budget Hike Seen

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets plans to submit a proposed FY96 budget of $136,652,759--a figure about 2.3 percent or a little more than $3 million higher than last year's budget--to the City Council.

The mayor said at press time the council will receive the budget at its May 2 meeting. The council, which has the power to make cuts to the proposed figure where it sees fit, must approve a final budget before the start of the new fiscal year July 1.

Last year, the council approved an FY95 budget of $133,539,802- a figure $3,112,957 less than this year's proposal.

Sheets said the budget figure does not include anticipated increases in the salaries of city employees. Contracts for police, fire, teacher, public works and clerical unions all expire at the end of June, he noted.

"We won't know how much beyond that (will be needed) for raises," said Sheets. "The raises will be a supplemental budget."

About half the increase in the proposed budget is the result of pay increases from old union contracts that took place in January of this year, according to the mayor.

Significant increases will be needed in the budgets of the city's school and park departments, Sheets said. The proposed school budget, not including teacher salary increases, is $42,893,257, an increase of $1,461,214 or about 3.5 percent over last year's budget.

The increase in the school budget--which Sheets refers to as one of the city's "big budgets," along those of the police and fire departments--is necessary because of the scheduled re-opening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston, additional manpower and other increased expense needs, the mayor said.

The park department budget will increase by about $300,000, a hefty amount for that department, mainly because of new personnel, Sheets said.

In general, most of the departments' budgets will be up this year, he added.

"You'll see an increase in just about all departments, basically because of the wage increases," said Sheets.

Sheets said at this point, he is unsure how much more money the city will need to raise through property taxes to balance the budget. Those figures will be determined, in part, by the amount of state aid and Lottery funds the city receives, because those are the major sources of revenue for the city besides property taxes.

The mayor added that he should have a better idea on the amount of state money the city will receive by the end of the week.

The city was able to hold the line on property

DOWNTOWN BUSINESS OWNERS feel that signage restrictions imposed on them by the Historic District Commission are unfair and too rigid but billboards like this one are allowed.

Sun Survey Of Downtown Businesses:

'Signage Law Unfair, Needs To Be Changed'

Quincy Center business owners feel that the signage ordinance under the Quincy Historical Commission is unfair to them and needs to be changed.

Criticism expressed by owners in a survey conducted by The Quincy Sun included descriptions of the ordinance as "ridiculous," "very unfair," "outdated and narrow-minded," "unbelievable" and "almost a joke."

The historical commission, which enforces the ordinance, was also sharply criticized for "not having a genuine feel for the retail business of today." One business owner said he believe the ordinance should not be under the commission.

The law originally was part of the city's zoning ordinance but has since fallen under the jurisdiction of the historical commission. It pertains to the city's historic district which includes, among other sections of the city, the downtown shopping area.

The ordinance states, among other things, that a merchant may only use one sign to display the name of his or her business. While businesses are allowed to use other wordage, the name of the establishment cannot be used more than once.

Some business owners have complained that the signs above their storefront windows are too high for pedestrians to see, making it impossible for passers-by to recognizes what kind of services each shop offers.

Maureen Ryan, owner of what is now Embellish, Embellish, Embellish, Embellish but originally was just Embellish, called the ordinance "outdated and narrow-minded."

She has four canopies over the front of her establishment and wanted to put the one word, Embellish, on each of them but was told by the commission

City To Take Over Parking System July 1

The city will assume management of its parking system effective July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

Mayor James Sheets, who made the announcement at press time, said the takeover will allow the city more flexibility to make planned changes in the system, which includes the Ross Parking Garage and the Hancock Parking Lot, both in Quincy Center.

Among those changes will be the institution of limited free parking at the Ross Garage as well aesthetic improvements and other renovations at the site.

"We need to control our own destiny when it comes to the garage," said Sheets.

The mayor added that Traffic Engineer Jack Gillon, with whom he consulted before deciding on the takeover, will be in charge of the new system.

"Jack Gillon is an outstanding administrator," he said. "If Jack wasn't in charge, I probably wouldn't do it.

Gillon could not be reached for comment at press time.

Last year, the city awarded a contract to Kinney Systems Inc. of Boston to manage the parking system. However, the contract was never finalized and was being negotiated between Kinney and the city's legal counsel when Sheets made his decision last week.

In the interim, the system has been run by Metropolitan Parking Systems Inc. of Quincy, which owned the parking contract for five years prior to last year.

Sheets said his decision was not impacted by the prolonged negotiations with Kinney, adding that the new contract was all but finalized. The move was simply the best course of action for the city to take, he said.

The mayor also noted that the city's proposed FY96 municipal budget will not be affected by the change. The cost to hire personnel to manage the parking system will cost between $200,000 to $220,000 a year, he said, which is about what Kinney would have been paid through its contract.

"In dollars and cents, it's a wash," he said.

State Treasurer Reports $80M In Unclaimed Property

State Treasurer Joseph Malone has announced that the State Treasury has compiled a list of individuals and organizations who have money waiting for them under the Commonwealth's abandoned property law.

"This year over $80 million has been turned over to my office as unclaimed property," Malone said. "I urge every citizen to check the abandoned property listing we publish because we are eager to return all of this money to its rightful owners."

Under Massachusetts' abandoned property law, accounts which have been inactive for more than three years are declared abandoned and turned over to the State Treasury for safekeeping. Unclaimed property consists of any financial asset that has not had any owner-generated activity for an extended period of time. This includes savings accounts, checking accounts, unpaid wages or commissions, stocks, underlying shares, uncashed dividends, customers deposits or overpayments, certificates of deposit, credit balances, refunds, money orders, paid-up life insurance policies and uncashed benefit checks.

In accordance with Massachusetts' Unclaimed Property Act, property becomes "unclaimed" when the owner does not respond to attempts by the holder of the asset for a three-year period, 15 years in the case of travelers' checks. Under the law, the "holders" (banks, insurance companies, businesses etc.) must make a determined effort to locate the true owner. If they are unsuccessful, they are to report the names and last known address of the owners to the State Treasury. The money is then deposited in the General Fund.

Owners can always claim their financial assets and there is no time limit on claiming the money. Owners and their heirs need not pay a finder's fee to anyone to claim what is rightfully theirs. All funds accrue interest until claimed.

Anyone who sees his or her name on the unclaimed property published list may call Malone's office at (617) 367-0400, Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. or write to: State Treasury, Unclaimed Property Division, One Ashburton Place, 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02108. When writing or calling, respondents should give the name as it appears on the list, plus current address, address three years ago, Social Security number and daytime telephone number.

"Please help me return $80 million to the people of Massachusetts."

Joseph D. Malone,
Treasurer and Receiver General
Commonwealth of Massachusetts

Under the Massachusetts abandoned property law, accounts which have been inactive for three or more years are declared abandoned and turned over to the State Treasury for safekeeping. At the Treasurer's office, notices are made, such as this notice, to locate property owners who never lose their right to claim what is legally theirs. Owners of their heirs need not pay a finder's fee to anyone to claim what is rightfully theirs. If you see your name or wish to make a general inquiry, please call my office at (617) 367-0400 or write to: Department of the State Treasurer, Unclaimed Property Division, One Ashburton Place, 12th Floor, Boston, MA 02108

When writing or calling, please give your name as it appears on this list, plus your current address, your address three years ago, your social security number, and a daytime telephone number. We are here to help you Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Non-Alcohol Club Seeks License At Parkingway

A non-alcohol club may soon open at the Parkingway in Quincy Center.

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for one week a request from Reed Thomas Venture, Inc. to open the club at 152 Parkingway. The applicant, Lawrence Hunt, is seeking Common Victualer, Pool Table and Pinball Licenses for the establishment, which will be called Clouds.

The site is not far from the location where another non-alcohol club, Footprints, opened briefly in the city. That establishment has since closed its doors.

Hunt, an accountant, told the board that he and his two sisters would be the primary stockholders of the proposed business. He added that he knows several people who are recovering alcoholics and that he feels there is a great need in the city for an adult club that does not serve alcohol.

The club would seat "about 125 people," according to Hunt.

Board members told Hunt he would have to submit a more detailed set of plans for the establishment before they could grant the license. They also asked him to contact Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, to discuss his plans with her.

12-Year-Old Murdered In Pakistan Visited Here

A FALLEN HERO--Iqbal Masih (right), 12, of Pakistan, received the Broad Meadows School Freedom Medal from seventh grader Barry Bueler last December. Sold into slavery by his parents to the owner of a carpet weaving factory at age 4, he escaped his oppressors two years ago and became a human rights activist. Iqbal was shot to death Easter Sunday while riding his bicycle near his grandmother's house in Pakistan. Authorities believe his death was part of a conspiracy led by the carpet owners.

Marina Bay Discussion Continued By Board

The Quincy License Board Tuesday continued for two weeks discussion regarding parking and other issues at Marina Bay.

The board, which has discussed the matter several times in recent weeks, agreed to make a decision at its May 2 meeting.

The major issues concerning the site are parking and the schedule of events to be held during the upcoming summer season. Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers said because of a recent change in ownership at Marina Bay, it is necessary that "a more definite plan" for the site's future be established.

License Board and Marina Bay officials discussed the matter at length Tuesday and agreed that a permanent plan will not be implemented until the fall, when the 1995 season has ended. It was agreed, however, that both sides would meet with the Conservation Commission and other officials to come up with an interim plan in the next two weeks.

Your Social Security

Women Should Be Alert To Rights

By CAROL BOYLE

Women need to be especially alert to their Social Security rights and responsibilities to get the most out of their Social Security protection.

Although Social Security is the same for men and women, difference in life-styles and work patterns that characterize the genders can mean different patterns of Social Security benefits and coverage.

For example, women are more likely to qualify for benefits on the basis of their husband's earnings than men are to qualify for benefits on their wife's earnings. Women may qualify for spouse's benefits, mother's benefits, widow's benefits or a divorced spouse benefit. This means that women need to be aware of how Social Security treats them as workers, wives, widows, divorced wives, and mothers.

If you chose to be a homemaker, you are covered under Social Security through your husband's work. When the family income is reduced because of his retirement, death or disability, you may qualify for Social Security benefits at age 62, at any age if you have minor children in your care receiving benefits, or as early as age 60 as a widow, or from age 50-59 as a disabled widow. However, if you divorce after less than 10 years of marriage, you may have to earn your own Social Security protection.

If you chose a career outside the home--about 60 percent of all women do--you earn Social Security protection of your own for yourself and your family. If you die or become disabled, your children get benefits until they're 18, or 19 if still in school. Your husband could also qualify for benefits on your earnings.

If you alternate between a career and homemaking, you need to be award that you can maintain your full Social Security protection with a little attention. Any Social Security credits you earn remain on your record, and after 10 years of work in which you have earned the maximum of four credits each year, you are fully insured for retirement, disability, and survivors benefits. But for disability benefits, you also need to have recent work. For example, if you're over 30, you need the maximum amount of credits for five out of the last 10 years (20 credits). Younger workers need less, as little as six credits for a year and a half of work under age 24.

If you qualify for benefits both as a spouse and as a worker, you get the higher of the two. That is, you get your own benefit plus the difference between the two. Whether to take a benefit on your own earnings or a spouse's benefit may be more complicated than that, however. For example, if you take a widow's benefit at the earliest possible age, age 60, it is reduced to 71.5 percent of the worker's benefit. But if you take it at age 65, you get 100 percent of the deceased worker's benefit.

The important thing is that you recognize the need to stay on top of your Social Security protection. One way to begin is to call Social Security and ask for the booklet, Social Security... What Every Women Should Know. The number is 1-800-772-1213.

(Carol Boyle is Social Security manager in Quincy.)

Change The Signage Law

The city signage ordinance under the jurisdiction of the Historic District Commission needs a good overhauling and—at last—may get one.

And, maybe the commission itself could use a little tune-up in the compassion department at the same time.

Ask downtown business owners what they think of the commission's signage restrictions and you will usually get the answer in one word: ridiculous.

They also feel the Historic Commission has been more than a little hard of hearing when it comes to their complaints about sign restrictions.

The commission's attitude, they complain is: "The law is the law. That's it."

So, if the "law is the law and that's it," then it's time to take a good look at it and make some changes.

The signage restrictions were originally part of the city's zoning regulations and inherited by the Historic Commission which has been on a recent crackdown.

Four businesses have been taken to court. Violators face up to a $100 a day fine for such crimes as placing an easel-style sign on the sidewalk, installing a neon sign or having more than one name sign on their store or business.

The ordinance seems to lack common sense.

Whoever put it together could not have owned a business or known--or cared—about the daily struggle of a small business trying to stay in business.

The one-name-sign-only restriction is one that really fits the word "ridiculous" like a glove.

Under this restriction, a business is allowed just one sign with its name on it. If you have a name sign overhead on the building, you can't have one below at eye-level.

If you have an overhead sign, motorists driving on the opposite side of Hancock St. can look up and see who you are.

But pedestrians walking by the store or business will have trouble seeing it unless they are on stilts or play for the Celtics.

Never mind the ban on a second sign. You can't even put the name of your business in lettering on the window if you have a sign overhead.

But (that word "ridiculous" comes back again) you can use 25 percent of your window space for wordage providing none of the words are the name of your business.

Is a business name professionally lettered in good taste on a window so objectionable?

That no-no doesn't seem to be fair or to make much sense when you consider the two large billboards that are sitting high and mightly on two buildings in the downtown area.

The people who erect these billboards seem to do what they want and say what they want on them in multi-colors. But the Historic Commission, on occasion has ordered businesses applying for sign permits to tone down the color of their signs or awnings--including trademarks.

That's like telling Howard Johnson the tile is too orangey or Coca-Cola, the red is too red.

No one is against reasonable control over signage in the downtown area. No one wants screaming honky-tonk signs cluttering the area. No one wants to see downtown Quincy looking like a penny arcade.

But it's time for a common sense approach.

And time for a little sympathy for the owners of downtown businesses, most of whom have their lives and futures staked out on Hancock St.

And time to remember that the businesses provide full and part-time jobs for many local residents.

No one is against preserving the historic district.

But let's not make it so tough that more stores close their doors and grass starts sprouting down the middle of Hancock St.

Many businesses have appeared before the Historic Commission for its blessing to install a sign or to plead for a little flexibility.

But no one on the commission has suggested that maybe the ordinance might need a little amending.

But, hopefully, it may be on the way.

The Sun last week reported that the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association's Board of Directors voted to ask Mayor James Sheets for a moratorium on the enforcement of the sign ordinance to give the QCBPA the opportunity to discuss the problems with him and other city officials.

Sheets expressed the opinion that a formal moratorium was not possible but that a delay in decisions until discussion could be held was.

City Council President Michael Cheney said he would be happy to appoint a committee—with downtown representation—to re-examine the ordinance and make recommendations.

Now he and the mayor have jointly named a committee to make that re-examination.

The City Council will have the final say on amending the present signage ordinance. The council is the legislative branch of the city government and as such, passes or amends city ordinances.

The signage ordinance is definitely broken and definitely needs fixing.

Bernazzani School Jog-a-Thon April 28

Students, teachers and parents of the Bernazzani School in West Quincy, will participate in a Jog-a-Thon Friday, April 28 at 6 p.m. at Veteran's Memorial Stadium in Quincy to raise funds for the school's award-winning arts program.

The event is open to all current and past members of the Bernazzani school family.

Each participant will be asked to obtain pledges on a per-lap basis or a single pledge. Laps will be totaled for each participant by the volunteers at the event. Upon completion, the pledges will be collected and returned to the school by May 5. This year's funds will be used to supplement a grant from the Massachusetts Arts Council given to the school earlier this year.

Ocean Spray Juice Company, Hibernia Savings Bank and the Bernazzani Parent-Teachers Organization are co-sponsoring the event. All participants will receive a race number and ribbon. Refreshments will be available.

The North Quincy Girls Track Team will be one hand to assist runners and walkers. Geoff Hennesey, director of the Quincy Track Program, will be the emcee.

Those interested in participating or making a pledge should call the Bernazzani school at 984-8713.

Nutrition, Fitness Breakfast For Quincy Elders

The Quincy Council on Aging, in conjunction with Total cereal, is sponsoring a nutrition and fitness breakfast for Quincy senior citizens at the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association, 100 Brooks Ave., South Quincy, on April 24 at 8:30.

The educational and free fitness event is for Quincy residents 50 years of age and older. Speakers will include a nutritionist and a fitness specialist. An aerobic workout will follow.

Those interested must register first by calling the Council on Aging at 376-1243. Participation is limited.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1922 picture postcard of the Fore River Shipyard's main office in Quincy Point. Bad news came to the yard in February of that year when the word's five major naval powers signed a treaty that placed 10-year moratorium on the construction of battleships and cruisers. Other provisions of the treaty required the United States to scuttle 30 other warships. You can only guess as to why all these people had congregated at the gates of the shipyard. The employment office was just to the left of this picture, perhaps they were collecting their last paychecks. The building at right is where the Quincy City Store is now located.

Another Quincy Goodwill Ambassador

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Despite the phasing out of Historic Quincy's world-famous products, everlasting Quincy granite and ships fashioned at the Fore River shipyard, the proud name of Quincy will live forever.

For, with the election of Patriot Ledger Editor William B. Ketter as president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors recently, the long litany of good will ambassadors for our fair city gains added luster and nationwide prominence....once again.

Can any other city in the nation boast such an outstanding cast as the following who put, and kept, Quincy "on the map"...first as a township and in 1888 as a city? Prominent at the outset were, of course, John and son John Quincy Adams as U.S. Presidents, Abigail Adams, John Hancock and years later actors Billy DeWolfe, Ruth Gordon, Lee Remick and Bill Dana (nee William Szathmary). And, lest we forget, Howard Johnson of 28 flavors ice cream fame and Pulitzer prize-winning author John Cheever.

As an unabashedly proud native of history-rich Quincy, I trust I'll be forgiven for any omissions in my humble attempt to call attention to Quincy's rich historical mosaic.

Let's now concentrate on our next objective: making certain our "City of Presidents" gains its rightful status as one of the premier tourist attractions in the country. And it's about time!

New Fore River Bridge Proposed

By PAUL HAROLD

April 20 - 26
1969
26 Years Ago

Plans for a new Fore River Bridge were presented at a hearing at Faneuil Hall. The new bridge would handle increased traffic not over the bridge, but under it.

General Dynamics, area business leaders and Sen. James McIntyre had been among those advocating a new bridge to allow the shipyard to bid on larger ships. The current span of 175 feet would be increased to 300 feet under the new design.

While there was no opposition to the proposal, Sen. William Weeks of Cohasset requested that the hearing be continued so that the Weymouth Selectmen could testify. Their concerns were with the amount of landtaking that would be needed on the Weymouth side of the river.

There was no endorsement of a specific design, although the swing bridge being pushed by General Dynamics was under study by the state Department of Public Works as the least costly, at a price tag of $5 million.

HEADSTART PROGRAM UNDERWAY

David Ezickson, director of the city's Headstart program, announced that 42 youngsters were enrolled, with more than 100 applications to be screened.

The eight-week education experience for pre-schoolers was funded with $6,162 from the city and $19,984 from the federal government.

Russell O'Connell, executive director of the Community Action organization, said that the program would operate at four schools, with 17 students per class. Schools participating included Snug Harbor with four classrooms, and one classroom each at Parker, John Hancock and Daniel Webster schools.

BELL-BOTTOMS AND SHORTS AT STERLING

Bell-bottom pants, shorts and culottes were allowed at Sterling for one day this week as part of a fund raising effort by the student council to benefit CARE.

For 25 cents students purchased the right to participate in the school's casual dress day.

Male teachers also participated and took the opportunity to wear turtle neck sweaters.

QUINCY-ISMS

A $70,000 dredging project of Quincy Bay near Wollaston and Squantum Yacht Clubs began this week, with completion expected before the beginning of the boating season. . .Initial approval was given at the State House for a Quincy Government Center Commission to build a combined city hall, parking garage and auditorium. Civil Defense Director John Schmock and D.P.W. Commission James Riccuiti hosted four Brazilian army officers visit of the city's civil defense office and bomb shelter. . . Charles Sheppard retired after 30 years as mail carrier and window clerk at the Quincy Post Office. . . There was no opposition to the transfer of the license of Granite Liquors to Morton Liquors; Albert Slate of Monroe Rd. was president of Morton Liquors. . . Joseph Pinero of Sea St. was awarded $300 for his suggestion box entry at the Boston Naval Shipyard; it was his 26th award. . . The Uljas Koitto Temperance Society of Quincy elected Sigrid Hankisalo as their new president. . . A Bronze Star was awarded Sgt. Calvin Kirkpatrick of Wollaston for combat service in Vietnam. . . Stretch wigs at Wethern's on Hancock St. were $23. . . Twenty-eight grass and brush fires were reported on one day this week. . . Speaking at the Lion's Club at Sherry's Restaurant, James McCormack predicted that stock market courses would be part of the high school curriculum. . . Boston Gear advertised for general factory workers for all three shifts: machine operators, material handlers and maintenance personnel. . . "2001" was playing at the Wollaston Theater. . . A funeral was held at the First Baptist Church of Wollaston for Atty. George Alexander who was killed after a traffic accident at Neponset Circle. . . The Knights of Columbus plan to build at the corner of Furnace Brook Parkway and Quarry St. met with criticism at the meeting of the Zoning Board of Appeals. Speaking in favor was Joseph Flaherty who said that parking concerns would be resolved by an act of the legislature, although he didn't explain how it would be done.

PAULINE SWEENEY of Quincy (center) recently joined, from left, Helen Ireton, Al Odermatt, Joyce Kulkawik and Kay Miara to promote the American Cancer Society's Daffodil Days program which this year has netted more than $1 million for cancer research. Sweeney and her colleagues worked with dozens of volunteers to sell daffodils for the first week of spring, and then joined Kulhawik at a volunteer reception hosted by Shreve Crump & Low at their Chestnut Hill store. Kulhawik, arts and entertainment anchor at WBZ-TV, is a three-time cancer survivor who has chaired Daffodil Days since 1983.

2 Exhibits At Historical Society Open April 24

The Quincy Historical Society, Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy, will open two exhibits that juxtapose national history and its local manifestations Monday, April 24.

"Eleanor Roosevelt Remembered: the Aaron J. Ezickson Collection" depicts Roosevelt from childhood through her years as first lady, United Nations ambassador and world figure in 100 photographs. Ezickson was a photo editor for Associated Press and The New York Times and a several books, including Helen Gahagan Douglas' "The Eleanor Roosevelt We Remember" in 1963. The collection is on loan from Ezickson's son, David, a Quincy resident and teacher.

"Quincy, 1932-1945" provides a counterpoint by presenting the events of that era as they appeared in local daily life. The exhibit, which includes newspaper front pages, household artifacts, political memorabilia, and letters home from the war, is designed as both a coherent show and an open-ended, evolving record of public and personal experience. The public is invited to loan items during the run.

Both exhibits will run through September. Hours are Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. Admission is free for society members, by donation for non-members.

For more information, call 773-1144.

Healthy Kids Day At YMCA

The fourth annual YMCA Healthy Kids Day will be held Saturday, April 22 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy.

Activities include a bike course, aerobics, fitness testing, face painting, clowns, a ball pit, pool, board and group games and more for children, teens and their families.

In cooperation with the Quincy Immunization Task Force initiated by the Quincy Rotary Club, information on pediatric immunization and health-impairing substances will also be available, free of charge, in display booths and from volunteer health professionals.

"The focus of Healthy Kids Day is on helping children and families build good health habits," said Mary Moorse, executive director of the South Shore YMCA Quincy Division. "The activities we have planned and the information we will have available are focused on nurturing children's healthy development through fun, games and useful information."

The event is open to all.

For more information, contact Peter Compton, youth and family director, at 479-8500 ext. 144.

New Temple Singers In Concert At First Presbyterian April 30

The New Temple Singers will present a concert of gospel music at Quincy's First Presbyterian Church, 270 Franklin St., on Sunday, April 30 at 6:30 p.m.

This is the last of four concerts in the church's concert series.

Admission is free, child care is provided and a reception with the musicians will follow in the church's fellowship hall. A fee-will offering will be taken to further the concert series.

Music is presented as a celebration of God's gifts as expressed in the musicians' and composers' talents.

For more information call 773-5575.

Archie's Place April 28-29

Archbishop Williams High School, 80 Independence Ave., Braintree, will present Archie's Place '95 Friday and Saturday, April 28-29 from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The evening will include Broadway tunes by Human Heart, Texas Line Dancing, Las Vegas Casino, karaoke, Sweet Shoppe, Irish Pub, Italian Festival, silent auction, old-fashioned deli and raffle.

Admission is $5 and tickets may be purchased at the door. No one under 21 will be admitted.

For more information call 843-3636.

Antiques, Flea Market At Christ Church

An Antiques and Flea Market will be held Saturday, April 29 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Christ Church Parish Hall, 12 Quincy Ave., Quincy.

Items for sale include antiques, dishes, jewelry, books, crocheted and knitted items, records, kitchenware, craft items, puzzles and toys.

Large items will be featured in the garage sale at the rear of the building.

There will be a lunch bar serving sandwiches, beverages, and home-made soup and desserts.

An admission charge of 50 cents will benefit the church.

Juliana Iglesias Ceramics Display Participant

The name of Juliana Iglesias was inadvertently omitted from the list of 34 youngsters who made items for the ceramics display in the window of The Quincy Sun.

The display marks the conclusion of the Quincy Recreation Department ceramics program and will continue in the Sun's Hancock St. window until Saturday.

Michael Weingart In 'The Diary Of Anne Frank'

Michael Weingart of Quincy will play the role of Mr. Dussel in the Company Theatre of Norwell's production of the Pulitzer Prize-winning drama "The Diary of Anne Frank."

Performances are April 21, 22, 28, and 29 and May 5 and 6 at 8 p.m. and May 7 at 2 p.m. Tickets are $15 in advance, $17 at the door. The theatre, which is handicapped accessible, is located off Rtes. 3 and 53.

For more information, call 871-2787 weekdays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Cerebral Palsy Seeking Volunteers

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore, 105 Adams St., Quincy, is seeking volunteers who can type or do word processing during weekday hours at the center.

Anyone interested in helping at the agency, from four to 40 hours a week, is asked to call 479-7443.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Chretien Urges Support Of Two Recycling Bills

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien is urging Massachusetts lawmakers to support two pieces of pro-recycling legislation.

The two bills are H2618, the Recycling Initiative and H2337, the Recycling Content Bill. The former is designed to save money by calling for the use of trash packaging which could be recycled before the trash is taken to a landfill or incinerator, while the latter would require that packing for products sold in Massachusetts bear a label stating the total percent of recycled content the package contains.

Chretien, chairperson of the Quincy Recycling Committee, expressed support of the bills in a letter written to Rep. Robert Durand at the State House.

"Although neither the City Council nor the Recycling Committee have taken positions on either bill, I am strongly in favor of both pieces of legislation," he wrote. "For several years, Quincy has conducted a very successful recycling program. We have received very little in the way of financial assistance from the Commonwealth.

"In our efforts to comply with the solid waste master plan, one of the most effective ways for the Commonwealth to assist communities such as Quincy is to stimulate the market for truly recycled and recyclable materials. House 2618 and House 2337 are both greatly beneficial in this regard."

Gay-Straight Alliance Meeting Monday

The Impact Quincy Gay-Straight Alliance will meet Monday, April 24 at 7 p.m. in the Impact Quincy Community Room, 15 Cottage Ave., Quincy.

The Alliance is planning a conference to be held June 17 in Quincy, and is strategizing on other ways to make Quincy a safer and more caring community for all.

Any interested community members are invited to attend the meeting. For more information, call Impact Quincy at 472-6027.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

SAMANTHA FISHMAN was among the many youngsters entertained by the 25-foot Oscar Mayer Wienermobile and hotdogger (driver) Keri Shotola during their recent visit to Quincy. Fishman is the daughter of Quincy Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger.

KERI SHOTOLA, an intern for the Oscar Mayer Foods, presents a reproduction of a painting of the Adams Birthplaces to Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site. Shotola was a recent guest at the Adams Inn where the original painting hangs in the lobby. The reproduction was a gift from the Adams Inn.

Wienermobile : A 'Bun' Time For All

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

What's 25 feet long, looks like a hot dog and turns heads wherever it goes?

Why, it's the Oscar Mayer Wienermobile, of course.

The sleek hot-dog replica on wheels was in Quincy recently, touring the city and staying at the newly-refurbished Adams Inn with its driver, er, hotdogger, Keri Shotola.

The wienermobile, which also measures 10 feet high and 8 feet long and weighs 5,800 pounds (or 58,000 hot dogs), quickly made friends and fans with Shotola behind the bun, steering wheel that is.

In a few short hours, Shotola, with Bob Galligan of the Adams Inn as her tour guide, visited City Hall, the Adams National Historic Site and other scenic city spots as kids and adults waved and cheered at the two-tone fiberglass vehicle converted from a 1988 Chevy van.

At its first stop to City Hall, Shotola and the wienermobile created such a stir that Mayor James Sheets, Auditor Bob Foy and Executive Secretary Mike McFarland had to break away from a budget meeting to take a glimpse at the giant hot dog.

The ever jovial McFarland, a former restauranteur, was so awed by the scope and size of the dog that he immediately broke into a chorus of "I Wish I Had an Oscar Mayer Wiener."

The executive secretary quickly composed himself, and then chatted briefly with Shotola about the vehicle's purpose.

Essentially, the wienermobile is part of a one-year internship for recently graduated college students. The students are paid $20,000 a year, plus travel and other benefits, to tour the country with the wienermobile.

"It's an ideal internship," Shotola explained. A graduate of the University of Wisconsin in Madison, Shotola is one of 12 hotdoggers who drive throughout the country in teams of two. (Her associate left the city to be home with her family for the Easter.)

"I did my senior thesis on marketing and I received my degree in English. Those two things didn't give me a lot of options so I decided to seek this internship.

"The idea is to make contacts on the road which we can hopefully pursue. I've seen practically every job as a result of being on the road and I've made contacts on the road and I'm seeing different cities, industries and people."

As result of her experience, Shotola has decided to pursue a career in children's marketing after her internship is completed.

"I enjoy kids and my mother is a kindergarten teacher. That age is very appealing to me but I like kids of all ages. Everyone is a kid when they see the wienermobile. It brings out the kid in everyone."

Shotola came to Quincy because the wienermobile was scheduled for an appearance at the Food Show at the Bayside Expo Center (Tuesday through Thursday this week). She said the hotels in Boston were too expensive and inquired about Quincy's newest hotel, the Adams Inn in North Quincy.

"I wanted to stay in a friendly place which was happy to have us but I'm on a teeny-weeny budget," Shotola said, pardoning the pun. "I could not have been luckier. I can't tell you how much it means to have happy people behind the desk."

Galligan heard that someone from Oscar Mayer was looking for a room at the Adams Inn at an economical rate.

"I said 'you can have a discount but only if you brought the Oscar Mayer Wienermobile with you' and she did,'" Galligan said with a dog gone laugh.

During her stay in Quincy, Galligan took Shotola to some other sights as well, including Marina Bay and the Broad Meadows Middle School. Whatever the destination, Shotola and the vehicle created quite a curiosity.

"People have been stopping at the hotel just to look at it," Gallagher said. I've never seen so much positive response. To me, the kids get excited by it but the adults do too.

"This compares to anything I've ever seen including the attractions at Disneyworld. You just don't see a hot-dog going down the street everyday."

And what was Shotola's response to Quincy: "I'm loving it. I've never been to this city before but everyone here has been so nice."

Shotola's travels have stretched to 26 states over the last 10 months. Before her internship ends, she hopes to visit several other states, including Vermont, New Hampshire and North Carolina.

Michael Boylen On Notre Dame Dean's List

Michael W. Boylen, son of Mr. and Mrs., William Boylen, 36 Apthorp St., Quincy, has been named to the Dean's List at the University of Notre Dame for outstanding scholarship during the fall semester.

The Dean's List is comprised of students who have succeeded in maintaining a scholastic average of 3.4 and above during the past semester.

Dennis Dockham Candidate For Ward 5 City Councillor

DENNIS DOCKHAM

Dennis Dockham, 32, of 63 Elm Ave., Quincy, announces he is a candidate for Ward 5 city councillor.

In making his announcement that he will seek the seat being vacated by Charles Phelan, Dockham said it is time for a change and "I am the man to do it."

"I would bring years of experience and love for my community to the vacated Ward 5 City Council seat. I graciously ask for your support in my efforts to bring forth change and a new direction to Ward 5. I know there are many who feel nothing will change.

"You may say this happens every election but I am a man of my word. Let's give the power to the people," he said.

A manager for nine years, Dockham presently is a general manager of a restaurant. In addition he serves as vice chairman of operations for the American Red Crosss of Massachusetts Bay. He has been called in during disasters to coordinate relief efforts for 95 communities.

Dockham, who said Quincy has progressed in many ways, added "there is still much work to be done," in the areas of the economy, education and public safety among others.

"Although Quincy has taken many steps to try to ensure the economic future of our small business owners at present they are still suffering, the doors of some of our schools have been opened for recreational use after school but our children need a place they can depend on year round not just seasonally.

"I feel the city has neglected to implement strong safety measures to curb the rising number of pedestrian accidents. My concerns aren't only for Ward 5 they are for Quincy as a whole. While I feel we may lack in some areas, Quincy is very strong in others.

"I would like to continue to build on that. Quincy has one of the most experienced police forces in the state. I wuld like to ensure that their expertise is being utilized to it fullest in Ward 5. There are some who prey on our elderly and hildren.

"We cannot allow this to happen. The education of our children is at risk, not because we lack the educational experience but because of drugs and the need for new methods in our schools to keep them interested. There are several areas that need to be addressed and I feel I am the candidate of change."

Dockham and his wife are the parents of a two-year-old son.

CITY COUNCIL PRESIDENT Michael Cheney and his wife, Tish, stand outside the heavy cruiser U.S.S. Alabama in Mobile, Ala. where they recently attended an International First Night Conference. Cheney serves as chairman of the annual First Night Celebration held in Quincy.

Bernazzani Students Write To George Washington

"Dear George Washington,

"Was it scary being the first president? How did you meet Martha? What was your favorite food, color, game or pet?"

Students in Sharon Sallaway's fifth grade class at Bernazzani School in West Quincy recently wrote letters to George Washington, asking questions like these and seeking advice from the Father of Our Country.

And they received a reply to their letters. Not a letter from Washington long delayed in the mail, but from the staff who still cares for Mt. Vernon, the historic home he built in Virginia. Along with the letter, the students were awarded a full color certificate for their classroom and a special edition of Cobblestone magazine devoted to George Washington.

The activities were part of a special education program developed by scholars at Mt. Vernon. The George Washington Biography Lesson, a collection of classroom materials, activities, and video presentations, was distributed free of charge to more than 75,000 fifth grade students in Massachusetts. Funding for the educational materials was provided by the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinatti and the Cox Foundation.

Topics that Sallaway's students asked about were George Washington's attitude toward slavery and how he treated his slaves, and if he found it hard to be president. They were interested in what particular difficulties he encountered in the office, and wanted to know how he overcame them.

Their interest was prompted by the groups' study of a brief biography of Gen. Washington, agricultural experiments with Mount Vernon wheat seeds, and colorful stickers for each student to wear. The stickers, which read "Ask Me About George Washington," encourage the students to share their new-found knowledge with others in the school. A video presentation, "The Life of George Washington," was provided to all Massachusetts school districts to supplement the materials in the biography curriculum.

"The children's letters to Washington are always delightful," said Nancy Hayward, manager of education programs at Mount Vernon. "And sometimes our staff learns from the students' inquiries because we have to do our homework to answer their very insightful questions."

This is the first year Massachusetts fifth graders have participated in the George Washington educational program which began five years ago. To date, almost 2 million students in 17 states have received the material at no cost to the states' public or private elementary schools.

Central Senate Hosts Appreciation Luncheon

The Student Senate at Central Middle School recently hosted an Appreciation Luncheon in the school's Learning Center.

The students held the event to thank the staff and committee that worked on the school's 100th Anniversary Celebration last year.

All students and staff participated in the school's 100th birthday. Each of the student-teacher teams highlighted a segment of the years between 1894 and 1994 with displays, music, costumes, interviews and refreshments for the nearly 600 former members of the Central staff and students.

The committee that spearheaded the celebrations comprised of Henry Bosworth, Carter Cundle, Louis DiMartinis, Mary Lou Fishman, William Gluvna, Donald McCarthy, Donna O'Neill, Kevin O'Neill and Mary Catherine Iannoni.

A buffet luncheon was served by members of the Student Senate: Mayor Brendan Griffin, Deputy Mayor Betsy Stone, Treasurer Joseph Watson and Reps. Katie Ceurvels, Patricia Dixon, Meredith Hutchinson and Alexis Pivnicny. Commemorative paperweights were presented to members of the Centennial Committee.

The Senate will sponsor a Car Wash Saturday, May 20 as a dual fundraiser to augment the Eileen Rugg Scholarship Fund and the Thomas Crane Library Building Fund.

Robert Griffin Elected Quincy Hospital Chairman

The Quincy Hospital Board of Managers recently elected its officers for 1995.

Robert Griffin was elected chairman; Lou Mazzini, vice chairman, and Norma Gacicia secretary.

Griffin was appointed to the board in 1990 by Mayor James Sheets and has been vice chairman of the board for the past two years. He has also served as chairman of the Finance Committee.

Griffin is an associate with the law firm of Krokidas & Bluestein in Boston. His practice represents health and non-profit organizations, in the areas of administrative and legislative law and capital formation for non-profit organizations.

From 1982-85 Griffin served as chairman of the Massachusetts Rate Setting Commission. Prior to that he was Assistant Secretary in the Executive Office of Human Services and Assistant Commissioner of Management Services for the Department of Public Health.

Griffin received a BA from Trinity College in Hartford, Conn., an MA from UMass Amherst; and his law degree from Suffolk University Law School.

He has served on the boards of the Quincy Visiting Nurse Association, Massachusetts for Mental Health, Inc., and was chairman of Very Special Arts of Massachusetts.

Mazzini was appointed to the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers by Mayor Francis McCauley in 1984. His long service includes chairmanship of the Board of Manager's Buildings and Grounds Committee in 1988. Mazzini had a say during the renovation and construction of the hospital's new $60 million patient care facility.

Mazzini has been owner and operator of Mazzini Plumbing Specialities in Quincy for the past 25 years and owns several other local businesses. He also teaches a master's course in plumbing at Quincy College and is a past president of the Merrymount Neighborhood Association.

Gacicia was appointed to the Board of Managers six years ago and has served on several committees. For the past few years she has chaired the Bylaws Committee and is a member of the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations (JCAHO) Committee.

A graduate of Quincy High School and Boston University, she was a medical secretary for 12 years. She and her husband Peter, owned and operated several small businesses for many years. Gacicia has worked as real estate broker for the past 15 years, and is currently employed by Lauria Real Estate in Braintree.k

Gacicia's many volunteer commitments include membership in the Quincy Catholic Club, Women's Sodality and the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors. She is an honorary member of Altrusa International of Quincy and a past member and treasurer of the Quincy Emblem Club. Gacicia and her husband helped organize the first Jerry Lewis Muscular Dystrophy telethon with the Quincy Sun which raised over $1 million.

In 1994, Gacicia received the million dollar sales award from the Realty guild and for the past two years has received certificates of recognition from the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

THREE LOCAL AUTO dealers were recently recognized hy the Quincy Police Department for their contributions to the department's D.A.R.E., safety and crime prevention programs. Foley Chrysler-Plymouth, Fore River Motors and Quirk Auto Companies received a plaque for loaning four vehicles valued at more than $75,000 to the programs. Chief Francis Mullen, third from right, commended the dealerships for their community spirit and dedication to the police programs and Quincy residents. Receiving the plaques were, second from left, Bill Foley of Foley Chrysler-Plymouth in North Quincy; Dan Quirk of Quirk Chevrolet in Braintree; and Jack Dunn of Fore River Motors, Quincy Point. Also on hand were DARE program coordinator Officer Bob Edgar, far left; and Crime Prevention Officer Bob Hanna.

Block Grant Program Special On Channel 3

Quincy Community Television will air an in-depth special on how the federal government's Community Development Block Grants and HOME funds are distributed in the city and benefit residents tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. on Channel 3.

The program will be repeated Tuesday, April 25 at 5 p.m.

The production, produced by the Quincy Planning and Community Development Department and Continental Cablevision's local programming staff, is hosted by William McColgan, area program manager for Continental. Others who worked on the show are David Greigg, housing rehab specialist; Paul Johnson, an intern from Eastern Nazarene College; and Angelito Santos, principal planner for the city.

Case Study

A 60 year old woman was involved in a rear-end car accident and suffered a whiplash injury. Because she had never been to a chiropractor, and had heard so many stories about chiropractors she decided she would never go to one. She went to an internist and was diagnosed as having post-concussion syndrome. She suffered from severe neck and upper back pain, headaches, frequent nausea, neck strain, burning spasms in her neck and upper back, dizziness, blurred vision, anxiety, and her eyes were sensitive to light.

For more than eighteen months, the patient continued to suffer. She had numerous tests performed. She was taking several drugs, including pain relievers, anti-inflammatory agents, muscle relaxants, and tranquilizers. The drugs had no lasting effect on her symptoms.

Finally, she became desperate and made an appointment with Dr. Freedman. Her visit went smoothly, although she was visibly anxious and skeptical about how chiropractic could help her. Her neck was so sensitive that simply touching it caused extreme nausea.

For the first four visits, soft tissue therapy was the primary treatment. On her fifth visit, she received her first adjustment. Her headache, which had been constant for three days, stopped. She couldn't believe it. She continued treatment and made slow but steady progress.

The patient gradually returned to her usual life-style. Dr. Freedman instructed her on an exercise program, which she now does along with her walking and yard work.

This patient is very pleased with her progress and regrets that because of rumors, she delayed receiving the chiropractic treatment that helped her so much.

CHIROPRACTIC WORKS-NO DRUGS-NO SURGERY. Dr. Barry Freedman has been the Director of FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC for the past 16 years, with offices at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy Center. He is President of the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society, teaches nutrition at Massasoit Community College and lectures extensively at many organizations and schools, including Harvard University School of Medicine and Boston University School of Nursing. If you have any questions about chiropractic or need information about lectures for your organization please call Dr. Freedman's office at 472-4220.

Author, Ornithologist Says:
'Hand-Feeding Birds Is For Everyone'

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Arthur Hugh Wiberg, ornithologist and author of "Hand-feeding Wild Birds", addressed a crowd of bird aficionados and interested shoppers during a recent question and answer lecture at the Hummingbird Emporium in Weymouth.

Wiberg dispelled fears of some who may be wary of hand-feeding birds and described how one may go about doing so.

"Hand-feeding birds is for everyone young and old alike," said the bird expert, "and if you are careful when you are feeding them there is little chance of being hurt."

As proof of his theory, Wiberg displayed a blown up photograph of his 2-year-old granddaughter, Alexis Wiberg, hand-feeding a black-capped Chickadee.

According to Wiberg the months of October through April are the season to hand-feed birds.

Wiberg, who has been hand-feeding birds for 10 years, suggested starting off slowly and gradually increasing contact with the birds.

"It's good to start by putting out a bird feeder and getting into contact with the birds by gradually moving closer to the feeder. Chickadees are good birds to start hand-feeding with because they are so tame and relatively harmless," he explained. "You must remain motionless and then gradually move closer and closer to the bird."

The process involved in hand-feeding birds is no easy task, according to Wiberg, a Cambridge native who now resides in Wilmington.

"It takes time and patience," he noted. "Even when you're feeding the most timid birds, you should only move about a foot closer to the bird each week."

Wiberg's goal is to be able to hand-feed a blue jay, one of the more difficult birds to hand-feed.

The Hummingbird Emporium, 777 Broad St., has been selling everything from bird seed and bird feeders to arts and crafts in the shape of birds since they opened their shop a year and a half ago.

When store owner Christine Donovan and her daughter Kate opened their bird shop they had high hopes but they never envisioned the success they have achieved.

"A lot of people are interested in birds," said the store owner, "I'm happily surprised at the response of the customers."

A plethora of thank you cards from joyful customers and even a thank you poster from the Monatiquot Kindergarten School, Braintree, are tacked against the store walls.

Kate, a student at Bridgewater State College where she studies art, plans to open her own section of the store in May where she will sell her own arts and crafts.

"The atmosphere is so nice, the people are so nice and the treasures are so unique," said Betty DeAngelis, a Weymouth resident and regular customer at the shop.

The Hummingbird Emporium, 340-SEED (7333), is open Monday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

You Can Beat The Backyard Blues

By Joe Freeman
For News I SA

(NU) - Having the most beautiful lawn on the block is something to be proud of — but not if you become a weekend slave to its maintenance and care.

Gardening is America's No. 1 pastime, but overdoing it can cause physical strain and exhaustion. How can you maintain your yard and still have time to enjoy it?

Freeman

Follow these tips to reduce your time and labor spent watering, mowing, pruning and fertilizing.

• Reduce H20. Whether by sprinkler system or garden hose, watering is a must for keeping lawns in tip-top shape. To reduce time and money spent watering, try planting native plants and flowers in your landscape — or those that have proven durability.

Group plants according to their water requirements, and plant thirsty ones close to a faucet or hose. This way, you can water these groups without saturating the entire landscape.

• Spread out. To reduce time spent pruning, don't crowd plants together — give them room to breathe and grow. Choose plants with dense growth patterns, which look great without pruning. Indian Hawthorne is an excellent plant choice in the South; in Northern regions, try juniper or dwarf mugho pine.

• Go with the flow. Free-flowing, curved or rounded beds are much easier to care for than square or rectangular beds. Make use of large, homogenous beds — they're more attractive and easier to fertilize and water.

• Avoid the "mow" trap. As freshly mowed grasses look crisp and stylish, you might find yourself mowing every weekend, or more. Take care not to mow too often, because mowing at low levels can result in poor root growth. Without strong roots, grasses are more susceptible to drought, insects and disease.

You also might consider planting a different type of lawn grass. There are several good choices that need less water and fertilizer, and are excellent resistors to wear and disease. In cooler regions, try red fescue, tall fescue and improved perennial ryegrass; improved Bermuda, improved zoysia and Bahia-grass are good for Southern lawns. Check with your county extension office for the best choices in your area.

• Fertilize naturally. Heavily fertilized lawns are often green and lush, but also are prime targets for pests. To reduce the amount of fertilizer you use — and the amount of time required for application — try slow-release fertilizers, which nourish the landscape evenly over a longer period of time.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Diversity Will Sustain Quincy Retail Market

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Once revered as the retail center of the South Shore, the city of Quincy has consistently boasted a density of population and regional access that attracted the region's largest retail operators. There is no denying that American family lifestyles changes drive consumer patterns and behaviors, and the end result in the last century has been darkened store front windows in the downtown retail centers of cities and towns across America.

Because of its demographic profile and location, Quincy will be at the forefront of retail recovery as we enter the next era yet the location of much of this retail activity will change. Beyond the expressway, the critical access roads of Quincy Avenue and Willard Street will continue to attract retailers. Mega-size specialty discount chains such as Home Depot demand expansive on-site parking and direct highway access. Their key to survival is addressing consumer demands for convenience, convenience, convenience.

"Home Depot was attracted to the site because of its unique position between two interchanges on the expressway, the visibility and the dense area population of older single family homes," said developer Mark Dickinson.

D.J. MacKinnon of Academic Development cited similar support for the Granite Crossing Shopping Center now under construction on Quincy Avenue. The 75,000-square-foot Roche Bros. Supermarket will be the largest in the city when it opens this fall. The supermarket is supported by 400 on-site parking spaces. The second phase of the development includes the 165,000-square-foot Wal-Mart with 800 dedicated parking spaces.

"Our analysis and studies conducted by Quincy 2000 revealed that the city of Quincy has a retail leakage of more than 100 million dollars annually. The local population isn't adequately served and they're traveling to shop in other communities. I'd estimate there's a remaining leakage of 50 million even with all of the retail development on the table now," said MacKinnon.

Commercial real estate developers agree that there is still room for diversity in the city's retail mix.

"Quincy has a very nice urban center. It's attractive and the opportunity is there to create retail to complement existing uses," said Dickinson.

DANIEL FLYNN

"Larger retailers are not a threat. the center will benefit from more service oriented businesses catering to the needs of people in the immediate area such as the office workers, local residents and the new Welch Health Care facility," added MacKinnon.

Niche Retailing will feed the burgeoning resurgence of activity in Quincy Center that is sustaining businesses as Barker's and Ryder's Curtains and Drapery. The center is also the scene of a flurry of new activity from specialty shops and retailers who plan to cater to consumer demand for a high level of personalized service. New kids on the Hancock Street block include: Cafe Et Bon Apetit, a 970-square-foot restaurant operated by Dwayne Law which opened in March; Fairy Nails, a 1,000-square-foot nail salon managed by Glenn Pham which opened last December, the 9,000-square-foot Ya Kim Tae Kwon Doe studio managed by J.H. Kim which opened earlier this month; and the new McArdle family venture a convenience store that opened in March next to their established Hancock Tobacco Shop.

Around the corner and up the road a bit on Washington Street, a new children's clothing and toy store was opened in a 1,800-square-foot space on April 6 by Lorraine Kusy under the banner Rhyme"N Reason. These smaller shops pay between $8 and $12 per square foot for retail space in the city with prices being driven up by location dn proximity to parking.

Private Property Rights Are Yours To Protect

"No person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law." These words from the Bill of Rights guarantee the security of home ownership and the basic right to own, transfer and use real property.

In honor of American Home Week, April 23-29, the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors offers a brief look at the history of private property rights and acknowledge the need to protect them.

Our nation's concept of private property rights evolved from English Common Law, which, to a large extent, was patterned after ancient Roman law. Such laws have stood the test of time and courts and were strongly supported by the American colonists.

Property rights were well established by the time George Washington became our first president. Washington remarked that "lands are of permanent value; there is scarcely a possibility of their falling in price, but almost a moral certainty of their rising exceedingly in value."

However, we don't have the absolute right to exercise these rights as freely as we may wish. "Just as most property is subject to some limitations, so are property rights controlled by some necessary restrictions," said James Stamos, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors. "These restrictions may be thought of as protections that enhance property and safeguard its value."

American property rights and privileges are limited or restricted by certain powers of government. The first, power of taxation, is the government's right to tax property based on assessed value and the prevailing tax rate.

The power of eminent domain is taking private property in the public interest. "Just compensation" is required when property is appropriated. Affected property owners participate in the legal processes to ensure that compensation is just.

Police power is the right of the government to regulate property for the protection of the public's safety, health, morals and general welfare. Zoning laws, housing restrictions, building codes and subdivision controls are examples of regulations based upon the police power of the government.

"Because we, as Americans, enjoy more political and economic freedom than any other people on earth, this nation must guard against taking for granted the rights inherent in home ownership," said Stamos. "All citizens should be aware of local government regulations affecting private property. I encourage you to attend city council meetings. Know your local property issues, such as zoning and taxation."

Franklin Delano Roosevelt once said, "Real estate cannot be lost or stolen, nor can it be carried away. Purchased with common sense and managed with reasonable care, it is about the safest investment in the world."

While this remains true today, the dream of home ownership can be fulfilled only if we continue to protect our private property rights.

Join us in celebrating American Home Week, April 23 to 29, the national observance of our right to own, use and transfer real property.

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and association of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

THE FORMER Howard Johnson Candy and Condiment plant on Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, is up for sale. It is being marketed by Dave O'Connell of ERA Central Real Estate.

Former Howard Johnson Plant Now Up For Sale

The former Howard Johnson Candy and Condiment Plant on Old Colony Avenue--a long-time Wollaston landmark--is up for sale.

The three-acre building-land site is being marketed by Dave O'Connell of ERA Central Real Estate, 128 Mayor McGrath Highway, Quincy.

The Howard Johnson Company which was founded in Quincy, acquired the plant in 1938 and produced candy and relish products there for its chain of restaurants and roadside stands.

It was the company's only manufacturing facility for candy and relishes.

During the 1980's, the company changed hands several times and the plant continued to manufacture the products.

In 1986, the facility was purchased by Exeter Foods, Inc. The plant was no longer producing for Howard Johnson but was manufacturing for Barton's, a well-known kosher candy company.

It ceased candy production in 1989 and has since been idle.

In 1990, the property was rezoned from Industrial B to Planned Unit Development "Congregate Elderly Facility." Although the appropriate approvals were granted, the project was never built.

The site is now owned by a trade union. Developers interested in the site can reach O'Connell at 328-1312.

Groundbreaking For Habitat House Saturday

The groundbreaking for South Shore Habitat for Humanity's first project in Quincy, the construction of a three-bedroom house at 95 Main St. for a Quincy family in need, will be held Saturday.

Mayor James Sheets, SSHH President Gerry Roethel and city officials will be on hand for the formal dedication ceremony at 10:30 a.m.

"We are very excited about this ceremony and the opportunity that it represents," said volunteer Bettyanne Muir. "This project will be an outstanding chance for the community to come together and transform a Quincy family's life forever."

Immediately after the dedication, volunteers will begin construction of the two-story home. Professional tradespeople will be on site every Saturday from about 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. to coordinate volunteers and oversee the project, which should take six months to complete. Community support has been strong, but additional help is still needed. Individuals or groups interested in participating should contact Suzanne Furness at 617/982-1248.

South Shore Habitat for Humanity is an ecumenical, non-profit housing ministry established in 1985.

Make Your Home Look Like A Million With Spending A Fortune

(NAPS)—Today's value-minded consumers are looking for effective, yet affordable ways to rejuvenate their homes. The American Society of Interior Designers Wear-Dated Freedom Carpet offer these tips for decorating on a budget.

• Be patient. Most people aren't able to invest all their time, energy and money into decorating every inch of their home. Start with one room and remember to take your time and build as you go along. You'll be happier with the end result.

• Think long-term. Invest in high-quality furnishings and demand durability, particularly for floor coverings and furniture. These items should stand the test of time so that they will look good for years to come.

• Keep your design simple but effective. Choose bold focal points that will attract attention, such as a piece of artwork, interesting pieces of furniture or a wall unit.

• Paint. Applying a new shade of paint is the single most inexpensive way to change the impact of a room. Wallpaper borders or painting techniques, such as sponging or ragging, are easy and effective ways to add interest to your walls.

Pre-Retirement Meeting At Bernazzani School

The Massachusetts Teachers' Retirement Board and the Quincy Retired Teachers' Association will hold a pre-retirement meeting Tuesday, April 25 at 3 p.m. at the Bernazzani School, 701 Furnace Brook Parkway, Quincy.

The informational program will focus on the basic retirement formula, option selection, health insurance, and other critical requirement issues. Retirement applications and other print materials pertaining to retirement will be available.

A counselor from the Retirement Board will be present to discuss, counsel and answer questions.

The South Shore YMCA will offer a newly-revised pre-natal program beginning April 25.

The program is a medically-approved exercise course for the pregnant woman from the first through the third tri-mester.

Crime Watch

By ROBERT HANNA
Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

To Protect Your Body, Use Your Head, Park V*

Think Before You React:

•Rapists have the potential for inflicting serious harm, even death. If you begin by fighting, you'll probably have no opportunity to try any other kind of escape.

•Only you can decide whether or not your life is in immediate danger. No one can advise you, in advance, as to whether to use passive resistance or active resistance.

•If you are attacked, regain control of your life. You are the one who has been injured. Take Action!

•Call the police immediately. Law enforcement authorities have been trained and counseled. They are sensitive to the needs and fears of a rape victim. They will arrange for immediate treatment at a hospital or a rape treatment center.

•While waiting for the police, do not change your clothing! Do not clean your clothing! Do not apply medication, or destroy any other physical evidence which could be used in the prosecution of a rapist.

What About Prosecution?

•There are a number of advantages for the rape victim who reports the crime to the police. With a good description, the police may apprehend the suspect and take him off the streets. Then he won't be able to hurt anyone else.

•Your description of the attacker also may match descriptions given by other victims.

•If you need additional information about prosecution--or if you have doubts or questions about this phase of the crime--contact the Norfolk County Rape Crisis Unit, your local hospital, or the Quincy Police Community Services Unit. You do not have to identify yourself.

•Massachusetts law provides for the establishment of rape reporting and prosecution units within the police departments. Investigators in this unit are required to pass an approved course of training in rape counseling and prosecution. A police woman may be available to aid in the investigation, if requested by the victim.

Some Supportive After-Words

•If you become the victim of a rape, please remember this: The man who attacked you committed the crime. You committed NO crime.

•It is your body that has been intruded upon, it is your life that has been endangered.

•There is NO shame attached to what has happened to you! NO SHAME AT ALL.

In Conclusion

•Almost endless emotional issues are involved in a rape situation. A brutal rape is a terrifying and traumatic experience.

•Rape victims often suffer acute and potentially long lasting psychological damage as a result of the assault upon them. Their most private being has been violated.

•It will take time to diminish the trauma and memory of the experience. The rape victim--whether male or female of whatever age--will desperately need the understanding and affectionate support of family members, friends, and the rest of the community.

Board Grants License To Sandwich, Pizza Shop

Another restaurant will soon open its doors on Southern Artery.

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request to open a sandwich and pizza shop at 686 Southern Artery under the name Prince Arthur's. The establishment will be open Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to midnight, Saturday and Sunday from 11 a.m. to midnight and will offer a delivery service.

The matter had been continued from a previous board meeting because of the board's concerns over the appearance of the site. Applicant Arthur Weglewski told the board he has already begun painting and planting shrubs at the location and plans to put up a fence.

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he would support the license if no alcohol is sold at the site. Weglewski said he has no plans to serve alcohol.

Both DeCristofaro and Police Chief Francis Mullen, a member of the board, told Weglewski to instruct his delivery drivers to exercise caution and drive in marked cars while making deliveries. They added that there were problems with the delivery service used by a previous, similar operation at the site.

GROUNDBREAKING WILL BE held Saturday at 10:30 a.m. at 95 Main St., Quincy Point, at a home built by South Shore Habitat for Humanity. Mayor James Sheets recently presented deed to the property to Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services President Dick Peterson as SSHH President Gerry Roethel looked on. Volunteers built the house, which will be purchased by a low-income family, and Bank of Boston donated a check for $15,000 to Roethel to help pay for the cost of the building materials.

Reilly Calls On Mayor To Make Pedestrian Safety Improvements

Ward 5 City Council candidate Steven Reilly has called on Mayor James Sheets to take steps to improve pedestrian safety in the city while awaiting the report of the Mayor's Task Force on Pedestrian Safety.

Reilly, in a letter to the mayor, suggested the city install overhead traffic signals at major intersections and that they repaint the city crosswalks in a color more visible than the white currently being used as an "interim, inexpensive solution" to the problem.

"I truly believe that these two suggestions will significantly improve pedestrian safety in Quincy," Reilly said. "The problem is caused, in large part, because drivers cannot see the traffic signals or the crosswalks. By improving the visibility of both, we can cut down on the number of pedestrian accidents we are currently seeing.

"Neither of these suggestions is the answer to our problem. But they do provide us with an additional safety cushion for not a lot of money. We should move forward with common sense solutions such as these and continue to educate the citizens of Quincy on traffic safety.

"The longer we wait to take measures to improve safety, the more chance there is that we will see additional accidents," Reilly said.

SURVIVING A HEART ATTACK

When it comes to a heart attack, what you don't know can kill you. Some 1.5 million Americans have heart attacks every year, and most of those who recognize the symptoms and get help fast survive. Those who don't risk severe physical damage and death. Your most important insurance for surviving a heart attack is knowing the symptoms: chest discomfort (feeling of tightness or pain in the center of the chest, possibly radiating to shoulders, neck, arms or back); profuse, cold sweating of the upper body; shortness of breath; and weakness or dizziness, especially upon standing. If you experience any or all of these symptoms call for emergency aid or have someone drive you to the nearest hospital.

P.S. The first hour after a heart attack is the "golden hour," when prompt help can save lives and avert permanent damage.

If you think you may be suffering from heart problems, see your physician immediately. If you need help with this, or any other medical problem give us a call. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself focus on prevention as well as treatment. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Call 472-2550 for an appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

'Confidence Builder' For Quincy

Presidents, Russell Post First Win

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy High School baseball team posted their first win of the season Tuesday morning with a 3-2 victory over Boston Latin.

The non-league decision upped the Presidents' record to 1-4. They host Brookline tomorrow (Friday) at 10:30 a.m.

"I think its a good assessment to say that this could be a confidence builder for us," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "We're a young team and there's gonna be mistakes made. We're just gonna work through it until the team matures. This actually should have been our second win, we played well against Weymouth but just had that one bad inning." In that game, the Presidents held a 6-0 lead going into the final inning but lost 7-6.

Quincy's junior pitcher, Jeff Russell, easily controlled the Latin attack, striking out eight and giving up just one hit each in second, third and fourth innings. His work eased the burden on the young infield around him which featured two juniors and three sophomores.

"There's no question about Jeff," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "He's as good a pitcher as there is in the league and this is the type of performance we expect to get out of him this season."

Although they struggled in the field, it was the core of sophomore infielders, third baseman Bobby Walsh, first baseman Mike Russo and shortstop Mark Glynn, who combined to put the first runs on the board for Quincy. Walsh opened the inning with a single and Russo followed with a walk. With two out, Glynn smashed a double that drove in Walsh and Russo.

Latin tied the game in the top of the fourth with two runs that were the result of one base hit and a series of fielding miscues.

The Presidents came back with the winning run in the bottom of the fourth when Russell, Glynn and Mike Sheffer were issued free bases and senior Steve Barrett hit a sacrifice fly to right field that allowed Russell to tag up and come home.

With memories of the Weymouth game still fresh, it appeared that it might be deja vu all over again in the final inning. Russell easily retired the first two men on a soft grounder to short and a pop fly to left field. However, he issued a walk and the next batter followed with a fly ball that landed in the gap between second baseman John Duffy and right fielder Bill Dunn. With the tying run standing on third and the go-ahead run at first, Walsh made a nice stop and threw to first to foil the threat and end the contest.

McCarthy's 13 Ks Not Enough

North Quincy Drops Pitchers Duel, 3-0

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

Without the traditional Patriots' Day baseball game at Fenway Park this season, the only game in town Monday was at Adams Field, where fans were treated to a strikeout-filled pitcher's duel that ended with a 3-0 victory by the Stoughton Black Knights over the North Quincy Red Raiders.

North Quincy (0-5) began play in a tournament yesterday (Wednesday) at Hingham and will be there again Friday. They travel to Silver Lake Monday. Their next home game is Thursday, April 27 versus Taunton.

The pitching duel by Red Raider Joe McCarthy and Black Knight Mark Gibbons proved to be one of the most exciting performances seen in a long time. The two combined for 26 strikeouts - both registering 13.

Gibbons struck out the side in the first and third innings despite a Steve Koch walk in the first and a Desmond Lui single in the third. McCarthy struck out the side in the fourth, but walks and a wild pitch loaded the bases. His final K left all three base runners stranded.

"McCarthy pitched an excellent game," said North coach Leo Donovan. "The other pitcher pitched great, too."

The game remained scoreless until the bottom of the seventh, when Stoughton got to McCarthy for three runs. The big hit came with one out when a triple scored the last two runs.

The closest the Red Raiders came to scoring early in the contest was in the fourth when Dan Reynolds reached on an error and Brian Beaton singled, but both were stranded on base.

Trailing 3-0 in the bottom of the seventh, with the last third of the order due up at the plate, North Quincy made things interesting when they came even closer to scoring. Singles by Mark Hannaford and McCarthy put runners on first and second with no outs. A sacrifice fly by Lui moved the men to second and third. With the two men in scoring position, a deep flyout to center field and a strikeout ended the contest.

"The kids felt good that they played well today," said Donovan. "We're improving and that's a sign of things to come."

Each team ended the game with a total of five hits.

REPLACING THE CAM BELT

Car owners must be sure to have their automobiles' camshaft belts replaced every 50,000 miles. This procedure should be undertaken as part of a preventative maintenance program because waiting for the belt to break before replacing it could bring dire consequences. A broken cam belt can cause massive internal engine damage in some cars. In others, it represents a major inconvenience. An engine camshaft opens the engine's intake and exhaust valves, as it revolves. The cam belt connects the engine camshaft to the crankshaft. As the crankshaft rotates, the cam belt rotates the cam shaft in the same direction. The "teeth" in the cam belt mesh with the grooves in the crankshaft and camshaft sprockets to create a constant relationship between the two.

HINT: By correctly adjusting the cam belt tensioner when the cam belt is replaced, the auto technician helps to assure proper valve timing.

The best way to make sure your car functions at its optimum level is to follow a regular maintenance schedule including the necessary replacement of your cam belt. Our service department at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO will be happy to help you set one up. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, (843-1550), our technicians have the best diagnostic equipment available anywhere as well as access to the ALL-DATA CD-ROM system that gives us all the latest information from the manufacturer. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored.

Koch Club Baseball Registration

Registration for the 1995 Koch Club youth baseball program will be held April 19, 24 and 26 from 6-7 p.m. at Cavanaugh Field in North Quincy.

Boys and girls ages 5-10 are eligible. Everyone who joins will play and will receive a hat and t-shirt. The registration fee is $12.

The season begins in May and runs through the end of June. Games are played every Monday and Wednesday at 6 p.m. at Atlantic Middle School on Hollis Ave. in North Quincy.

The program is run on an informal basis and volunteers are needed to assist. For more information contact Rich at 472-2089 or Brian at 479-7997 (after 6 p.m.)

Massasoit Men's Soccer Top Academic Team

The season may have ended for Massasoit Community College's powerhouse men's soccer team, but the awards keep rolling in as they were recently named the NJCAA Academic Men's Team of the Year.

The Warriors' cumulative grade point average was 2.71. Nine of the 22 players had GPAs of 3.0 or better, including Jake Costa of Quincy whose 3.9 GPA was second highest on the team.

"As an alumnus of Massasoit I understand the workload players have to cope with," said head coach John Murphy, who is also a Quincy product. "Some players are on campus for 10-12 hours a day with studies, practice and homework. I am very proud of this team."

Record Turnout For Houghs Neck Marathon

A record 80 youngsters and adults raced on Patriots' Day in the 40th annual Houghs Neck Marathon, sponsored by American Legion Post 380.

The course wound from the Post home at 1116 Sea St. to the Quincy Yacht Club and back for youngsters, while adults continued around Great Hill before returning. Winners received trophies and ribbons were given to second and third-place runners.

Peter Connolly captured the men over 30 division, with Jack Clark and Steve Stone following. John Katsarikas captured the boys' 9-14-year-old category, followed by Dan Dorsey and Pat O'Neil. Pat Malone led the youngest boys' group, while Tom Stone and Mike Calley captured second and third place. Dennis Joyce topped the 20-30-year-old category and Dan Savit led the 15-19-year-old division.

The top women in the over-25 group were Margaret Jenkins, Nancy Jacobs and Renee Stone. Nicole Calley, Pamela Jacobs and Diana Berberan led the girls' 9-14-year-old division. The top runners in the girls' under-8 category were Julia Berberan, Amy Hennessy and Jamie Moran.

The marathon staff included John Duffy, chairman; John Christensen, vice-chairman; Brian Young and Dick Burke, chefs; Carol Riley, Tom Vecchione and Dave Kilduff, spotters; Terry Bergstrom, awards; Jim Fratolillo, announcer; Jr. Vice Commander Dan Shields; Sr. Vice Commander Ray LaRue, refreshments; and Commander Dick Wainwright, publicity.

HERE THEY COME - Led by Nicole Calley, members of the girls' 9-14-year-old division race to the finish during the Houghs Neck American Legion marathon.

Players Needed For Quincy's Yawkey League Baseball Team

The Yawkey Baseball League has expanded and this year will include a team from Quincy.

The league is for post-Legion age players. The first game is May 14 and there is a 29-game schedule in addition to an all-star game which will be played at Fenway Park. Two people from each of the league's 18 teams are guaranteed spots in the all-star outing.

Quincy franchise holder Al Julian said, "We hope to get a majority of the players on our team from Quincy. We are still looking for a field manager and coaches."

There is an awards banquet at the end of each season.

The Yawkey Baseball League has been in existence for 35 years and is made possible by a donation each year of $15,000 from the Boston Red Sox on behalf of the Yawkey Family.

For more information regarding tryouts call Julian at 773-8142 or Ed Spring at 773-3249.

Quincy Residents Run Marathon, Raise Money

Several Quincy residents ran in the 99th Boston Marathon Monday in an effort to raise money for various causes.

Gordon Behrer of North Quincy was one of 137 in the Boston classic who ran to raise money for the Leukemia Society of America. Behrer is a member of the Society's Team in Training program and ran the marathon in honor of an individual leukemia patient.

Overall, the Society raised close to $200,000 in the Marathon fundraising effort.

Quincy's James Larner and Patricia McGowan raced in the nation's oldest marathon along with nearly 300 other runners on behalf of the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute.

Last year the Dana-Farber Marathon Challenge raised more than $500,000 for cancer research. The goal this year was to raise $750,000.

Local Auxiliary Police Assist Marathon

Twenty Quincy Auxiliary Police Officers assisted crowd control and communications at the 99th running of the Boston Marathon Monday.

They are:

Tony Siciliano, who volunteered at his 20th marathon; Thomas Curran, Mark Gordon, Joseph Linscott, Paul Morrison, William Murphy, James O'Brien, John Peters Jr., Donald Reed, Dawn Scholl, Joseph Shea, Dale Solander, Joseph Thurston, Louis Tornberg Jr., Robert Bianchi, Richard Gillis, Joseph Gomes, Joseph Mullin, Doug Nickerson, Joseph Pearson, Forrest Wallace, John Chetwynd Sr., Robert Richards, William Stuart, and Richard Stuart.

The local auxiliary police joined dozens of other auxiliary members from other departments throughout the state at the starting line in Hopkinton.

St. Moritz First U.S. Team To Win Canadian Title

Cinderella stories do happen.

Last week, the St. Moritz pee wee minor hockey team took home the gold in the 18th annual international SEDMHA Tournament in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia after having won just five games during the regular season.

The tournament included 242 teams from across Canada with St. Moritz the only U.S. representative.

In the open-format tourney, St. Moritz won four games, 8-1, 4-3 (OT), 5-2 and 6-0 and was the only undefeated team in the Atom AA division to go into the Gold Division Championship playoff game.

In a battle of attrition against Dieppe, last year's defending champs, St. Moritz captured the gold by virtue of a 2-0 victory. With the win, St. Moritz became the first U.S. team since the tournament's inception to win its division, and the second to honor the U.S. with a tournament gold.

"We were hoping to win two games and leave on Saturday," said Bob Huxley, who coached the team along with Tom and Jim Bille. "We even had the bus arranged to come home early. When we won the third game the kids began to believe that the could do it. By the time we won the last game and knew we were in the championship game, which was being played on Palm Sunday, we were calling the kids the 12 disciples.

"These kids won because they truly believed they could."

Special game MVPs were awarded to Matt Geever (two), Ryan Conachen, Joey Sinkiewiecz and Tony King.

Tryouts for the 1995-96 season will be held Saturday, April 22 at 10:30 a.m. at Quincy Youth Arena. Boys born in 1983 are eligible. For more information call Tom Bille at (508) 821-7690.

10 Local Wrestlers Named To OCL All-Star Team

Over one-third of the athletes named to the Old Colony League all-star wrestling team this year were Quincy representatives.

Ten Quincy boys, seven from QHS and three from NQHS, were included on the list of 27 first- and second-team OCL all-stars.

Leading the list at 135 pounds was Red Raider Jamie Karvelis, who overcame incredible adversity while claiming a stake as one of the top wrestlers in the region this year. Karvelis bravely dealt with his mother's bout with cancer throughout the season. She passed away soon after he had placed second in the South Sectional tournament.

Karvelis recently was honored with a scholarship from the Boston Garden and he hopes to attend Norwich University in the fall.

Both Karvelis and teammate Jason Gibson, an OCL first-team all-star at 119-pounds, were undefeated in dual meets in the league. "This is a tough league with plenty of good competition," said North Quincy coach Steve Joyce. "To go undefeated is a serious accomplishment."

Gibson, a junior, will lead the Red Raider squad again next year. "Jason is very strong and very determined. If he works hard he can be one of the best wrestlers in the region. He has to step it up a notch in tournaments next year," said Joyce.

Presidents on the first team were 145-pounder Bryan Gallahue, 160-pounder Gregg Santoro and heavyweight Mike Feeley.

Gallahue was a two-year captain, placed second this season in the sectionals and was a finalist during the prestigious Lowell Tourney, widely considered among the toughest meets in Massachusetts As to Gallahue's rare two-year reign as a captain the coach said, "as a youngster he showed potential as a leader. He's just the type of kid I thought other kids would look up to."

Santoro was undefeated (10-0) in dual meets and placed second in the sectionals. His plans for next year are still up in the air.

Feeley also captained the Quincy squad this year and proved he could win under pressure throughout his impressive career. "A lot of matches came down to the heavyweights and he always seemed to come through," said Venturelli. Feeley has yet to decide between Stonehill College, Boston University and UMass-Boston.

Leading the second-teamers was Quincy's Matt Miller, who won the South Sectional and Division 1 state titles at 130-pounds but was relegated to second-team status in the OCL by virtue of a regular-season loss to Weymouth's Joe Curran.

The senior had an overall record of 32-7 and placed fifth in the all-states. "Matt set a goal at the beginning of the year to see his name up on a banner in the Quincy High gym and he saw to it that he reached that goal,"said Venturelli. As a freshman Miller posted a meager 3-20 overall record; "He's come a long way," said the coach.

Quincy's 103-pound senior John Richards was one of the great surprises in the league this year. In his first year of varsity wrestling he went 11-2 in dual meets, placed second in the South Sectionals and finished fifth in the state. Venturelli called him a "tough, scrappy little kid."

Junior President Rich Testa, who qualified for the second team at 119-pounds, placed third in the sectionals and has "a lot of potential next year" according to the coach.

Rounding out the Quincy contingent is 189-pounder Matt Strauchon. The senior fought off a series of painful knee injuries and placed fourth in the sectionals despite his woes.

Heavyweight Steve Vukosa was North Quincy's second-team representative. The senior rapidly developed some excellent skills in just two years of wrestling. "A lot of credit has to go to Steve's twin brother, Paul," said Joyce. "They were built in sparring partners. Paul kept pushing his brother and kept the pressure on him to become a better wrestler."

Vukosa lost but one OCL dual meet all season, a 10-9 decision to cross-town rival Mike Feeley in a match that could have gone either way.

He ended his short but productive career with a first-place finish in the sectionals and a top-eight showing in the states.

Central Middle School Wins City Swim Meet

Central Middle School recently won the city middle school swim meet behind the strong performances of sixth-graders Brett Keyes and Stacey Szcesuil.

Three first-place finished by both Keyes and Szcesuil led Central to a total of 598 points. Broad Meadows captured second with 159 points, narrowly edging Sterling's 158 points. Atlantic rounded out the competition with 138 points.

All four schools were jointly coached by Yvonne Boness and Joanna Vermette. The swimmers had six weeks of instruction before the meet. Preparation included demonstration of proper stroke technique, starts and turns.

Keyes won the 50-yard butterfly, the 50 breastroke and was a member of the first-place 200 freestyle relay team along with Andy Mannix, Charlie (Fast) Acton and Dan Cabral.

Szcesuil took the 50 freestyle, the 100 freestyle and was a member of the first-place 200 medley relay unit along with Laura McCarthy, Ilana Saxe and Maggie Ketchem.

Other winners in the meet were Sterling's Sheila Bohen (girls' 50 butterfly); Central's Acton (boys' 50 backstroke); Central's Kathy Cantelli (girls' 50 backstroke); Central's McCarthy (girls' 50 breastroke); Central's Cabral (boys' 50 freestyle); Atlantic's John Mercurio (boys' 100 individual medley); Central's Mannix (boys' 100 freestyle); Sterling's Bohen, Kerry Gordon, Mariah Salame and Jasmine Haher (girls' 200 freestyle relay); and Atlantic's Frank Curreri (1 meter diving).

PAL 3.5-Mile Road Race May 14

The Quincy Police Athletic League's annual 3.5-mile road race classic will take place Sunday, May 14 at 10 a.m.

The race begins and ends at Veterans' Memorial Stadium and follows a mostly flat route through Quincy.

Last year over 600 runners took part in the event and Race Director Bob Hanna of PAL expects close to 1,000 participants this time. The entry fee is $8 for those who enter before May 1 and $10 for those who enter afterwards. The first 300 entrants will receive a t-shirt.

Splits are provided at each mile and prizes will be awarded to the top three finishers in each male and female category. The categories are Youth (15 and under), Juniors (16-19 year olds), Open (20-29), Sub-masters (30-39), Masters (40-49), Seniors (50-59), Veterans (60-plus), Wheelchair and Walkers.

The Officer Richard Flynn Memorial Trophy will be awarded to the first Quincy police officer to finish the race.

There will be hamburgers, hot dogs, soft drinks and raffle prizes at the post-race gathering.

For more information call Hanna at 328-9334.

Just Two Games Played In QYS Travel Division

There were only two games played by Quincy Youth Soccer travel teams this past weekend due to the Easter break.

The Under 10 Girls 3A team cut down Braintree, 4-0, and remained undefeated with four wins.

Sarah Gregory paced the attack with two goals. Jessica Carella and Evelyn McInnes booted home single tallies. Assists were posted by McInnes, Ashley Fowkes, Courtney McDonald and Megan Griffin. Caitlin Callahan, Samantha Maconochie and Rebecca Anglehart played smart, solid soccer games.

The Under 14 Girls Div. 1 club was outsmarted by Whitman, 5-2.

Dorothy Cronin and Betsy Stone hit paydirt for the Quincy club. Marissa Ross and Leanne Martin aided the scoring efforts. Eileen Mawn and Liz Bennett played well.

Michael Slade Completes Marine Recruit Training

Marine Pfc. Michael E. Slade, son of Elliot K. and Theresa F. Slade of 28 Vine Ave., Quincy, recently completed recruit training.

During the training cycle at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C., recruits are taught the basics of battlefield survival, introduced to typical military daily routine and personal and professional standards.

All recruits participate in an active physical conditioning program and gain proficiency in a variety of military skills including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close-order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline are stressed throughout the cycle.

Sladen is a 1994 graduate of Quincy High School.

Michael Koski Honored At Norwich

'Signage Law Unfair, Needs To Be Changed'

that she could not. So she changed the name to Embellish, Embellish, Embellish Embellish to be able to put the word once on each canopy.

Ryan said she feels the ordinance was established at a time when Quincy Center was a more thriving business area and should not be applied in today's downtown.

"It has no foothold in today," she said. "If we could all get together and rewrite the sign ordinance, that would be wonderful."

Jim Balnis of Wanna Bagel had a free-standing sign on the sidewalk in front of his business for "four or five months" before removing it a couple of weeks ago after receiving a warning from the historical commission. He said sales [illegible] to [illegible] up to [illegible] percent [illegible] removed it.

"[illegible] testimony are able to make," he said. "[illegible] ridiculous [illegible] the commission [illegible] with enforcing the law, but it can't change or amend it."

The law, despite being under the commission's jurisdiction, can only be amended by the Quincy City Council.

Dan Flynn of Daniel J. Flynn & Co. said: "I think it's unfair that downtown retailers are currently being penalized by the city's position. In these challenging economic times, I think it's important not to obstruct opportunities for retailers to do business. I think the city must re-evaluate its position. It's important to preserve the historic district, but we must allow the retailers to do business."

Nancy McArdle of Hancock Tobacco and the newly-opened Hancock Convenience: "I don't think it's a very good law. I'm not in favor of it because it discourages business. It certainly doesn't encourage people to open up a business in downtown Quincy."

McArdle said the commission recently told her that she could not put a neon sign in her window at her new business, but added that the law allows older businesses that already have such signs to keep theirs.

"If there's no neon signs, then there's no neon signs," she said.

Bernie Reisberg of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop, who has been in business in Quincy for 47 years: "I'm very much against it. I think it needs so many improvements; it needs to be looked into and changed. I don't think it should be under the historical commission.

"Things truly have to change if they want to make improvements to Quincy Center. But sometimes our own people are strangling us," he added.

Mike Kenealy of Key Realty: "The downtown people should really have a say in what's going on. The QCPBA (Quincy Center Business and Professional Association) should be [illegible] and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

It has been said that for every great man mentioned in history, there are millions of unheralded great men unmentioned in history. The following thought penned by an unknown author tells the story . . .

"A man is no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man! He's measured not by tithes of creed high-sounding though they be; nor by the gold that's put aside; nor by his sanctity! He's measured not by social rank, when character's the test; nor by his earthly pomp or show, displaying wealth possessed! He's measured by his justice right, his fairness at his play; his squareness in all dealings made, his honest, upright way! These are his measures, ever near to serve him when they can; for man's no bigger than the way he treats his fellow man! . . .

We knew - and know a great many great men who " measure up." And we know you do, too . . .

CP Of South Shore Seeks Volunteers

Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore is seeking volunteers to help assist with its services.

"Volunteers, particularly people who can type or use a word processor, are desperately needed at our agency," said Loraine Duna, CPSS board president. "We are providing so many services to disabled children, adults and their families that our needs for office help keep escalating, and not only do our volunteers provide great assistance for those truly in need of help, but we all have a good time there too."

CPSS runs the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center, the Options Personal Care Attendant Program and the Adult Recreation Program. The agency provides therapeutic, educational, psychological, social and recreational services and programs for disabled children, adults and their families throughout eastern Massachusetts.

Those interested in volunteering weekdays at the Quincy agency offices should call 479 7443.

North Quincy Air Force Jr. ROTC In Regional Drill Meet

The North Quincy High School MA-841st AFJROTC (Air Force Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps) recently participated in the Northwest Regional Drill Meet Championships held at West Roxbury High School.

Schools from Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Maine and New York took part in the meet after qualifying in the drill meet season at local drill meets.

Two cadets from the MA-841st qualified for the regional drill meet in the individual drill with rifles competition. Cadet Airman First Class Bai Lan Zhu won second place in the female individual drill while Cadet Master Sergeant Edward Lo took third place in the male division. They are the first cadets from MA 841st to place at a regional drill meet.

The Coed Unarmed Drill Team, commanded by Cadet Captain Kachen Tam also qualified for the drill meet. The team performed outstandingly, finishing only 11 points from third place.

North Quincy High cadets earned valuable experience in the competition. Their encouraging results should lead to future successes for the cadets and the MA 841st.

Pvt. Jason Klemp Completes Training

Army Reserve Pvt. Jason W. Klemp has completed basic training at Fort Knox, Ky.

During the training, students received instruction in drill and ceremonies, weapons, map reading, tactics, military courtesy, military justice, first aid, and Army history and traditions.

Klemp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Turner of 76 Payne St., Quincy.

$3 Million City Budget Hike Seen

PARTNERSHIP AGREEMENT was recently signed between Bank of Boston and the Parker School in North Quincy. Among those on hand were, from left, Parker Principal Gerald Butler, Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Bank of Boston Regional President Bruce MacKilligan, Marcia Goulart, Bank of Boston human resources representative and School Supt. Eugene Creedon.

taxes last year--despite a 4 percent budget increase--because state aid, local fees and other non-tax revenue increased.

Currently, the city's tax rates are $14.58 per $1,000 of valuation for resident property and $30.58 for commercial, industrial and personal property (C.I.P.P.).

This year, the tax bill for an average Quincy home valued at $134,000 was about $2,019. Homeowners pay about 63 percent of the tax levy and businesses pay the balance.

Sheets said it would be nearly impossible to not raise property taxes two years in a row. But he added that he is pleased with his proposed budget, noting that all of the city's fixed costs--including health insurance, pensions, unemployment and others--are under control.

"I think we've got a very tight, very frugal budget," he said. "It's a budget without fat."

Sheets Honorary Chairperson Of WalkAmerica Campaign

Mayor James Sheets has been named honorary chairperson of the 1995 South Shore WalkAmerica Campaign which will be held Sunday, April 30 at 11 a.m. at Pageant Field in Quincy.

"I am proud to participate in the 25th anniversary of WalkAmerica and join the March of Dimes and its dedicated volunteers in making a difference in the lives of all babies," said Sheets. "I would like to urge all Quincy residents and businesses to become involved and show the entire South Shore how committed Quincy is in support of our children's health and well-being."

Local and national sponsors of the event include T.J. Maxx, Bradlee's, AAA, Home Depot, Monadnock Water, Impressions Plus Printing, Weight Watchers, The Discovery Zone, Mahoney & Wright Insurance Agency, Quincy High School, K-Mart, Quincy Municipal Credit Union, Quincy ROTC, Quincy Hospital, Business Solutions, Shaw's, Costco, State Street Bank, The Red Parrot, and more.

QUINCY DISTRICT COURT Officer Richard Garstel mans metal detector as Linda Spear enters the courthouse lobby. The detector was installed in March, 1994 and has ben an effective security measure, according to Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

In Wake Of Oklahoma City Bombing

District Courthouse May Implement Tighter Security

Quincy District Courthouse, in the wake of the deadly bomb explosion in Oklahoma City last week, may implement tighter security measures, according to Court Magistrate Arthur Tobin.

"I will be making some suggestions to the judge in light of some information brought to my attention regarding safety and security in the courthouse," Tobin said. New security measures may focus on parking restrictions outside the courthouse as well as internal procedures.

The court already has three security guards and a metal detector which was installed in March, 1994 as part of a phase-in process instructed by the Massachusetts Trial Court. Other courthouses in the state have metal detectors due to the Trial Court mandate.

In Quincy, everyone entering the courthouse must pass through the metal detector including probation officers, district attorneys, judges and other court officers, Tobin said. In some instances, officials with identification badges, such as judges and members of the Mass. Bar Association, are allowed to go around the detector provided they have already passed through the detector.

"If a judge leaves the building to mail a letter, he doesn't have to pass through the detector again on his way back into the building," Tobin said.

Tobin said the metal detector has been an effective security measure and deterrent. "I think it's effective. It gives people a sense of security. Hopefully it's a deterrent too."

Since the detector was installed a year ago, Tobin said there have been some instances when a potentially dangerous situation was averted.

"I think they've caught a few people with knives and confiscated them." In the event a knife is discovered, it is taken from the party and if there is a legitimate reason for the party carrying it, it is returned.

Tobin said not having a metal detector is too risky. "It's for the protection of the people who work here and for the people who do business here.

Committee Holds First Meeting

Sign Enforcement On Hold While Changes Studied

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Enforcement of the city's controversial signage ordinance that has been put on hold while a special committee begins to examine the law to look into proposed changes.

The Quincy Historical Commission, which has the law under its jurisdiction, has voted to delay any new decisions on the enforcement of the ordinance until after the newly-appointed Quincy Signage Committee has completed its duties.

The 10-member signage committee, which is comprised of representatives from the city, the downtown business district and the historical commission, held its first meeting Tuesday at City Hall. Among the ideas that were discussed were the possibility of changing the boundaries of the city's historic district in Quincy Center and establishing a "basic instructional package" that provides new merchants coming into the area with information on permit and signage regulations.

Downtown merchants have voiced objections to the law--originally part of the city's zoning ordinance--saying that it is too strict. One common complaint is that the law does not allow a business to display more than one sign bearing its name but does permit other wordage, which hurts businesses whose signs are too high above the ground for pedestrians to see.

Others feel that the historic district is an important part of the city's culture and see the law as a way to preserve its aesthetic integrity.

Committee members at Tuesday's meeting agreed that some kind of compromise is needed and that an amendment of the law would be a good way of achieving that goal. Kathy Missell, who both chairs the historical commission and owns a downtown business, Infinity Books, said any changes made should be done with both sides in mind.

"I admit there are times when things (done by the historical commission) seem inflexible," she said. "We just don't want downtown Quincy to be a mish-mash and a mess."

Maralin Manning, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, said that while she certainly has an interest in protecting the rights of downtown businesses, she also sees the importance of the historic district.

"I do not live in a cultural void," said Manning. "I want a compromise."

Bernie Reisberg, owner of Bernie's Model Formal Shop who has been in business in the city for 47 years, said he understands the historical commission's concerns but would like to see something done to help struggling downtown business owners.

"I want to see a happy atmosphere in Quincy," said Reisberg. "We're going through real tough times today, and we're not making it easy for merchants to survive. I would like to see a little more (sign) freedom....Exposure is very, very important."

Caryn Smith of Caryn's Corner, QCBPA president, said the historical commission has received too much criticism in recent weeks over the sign ordinance. Although the law falls under the com-

Six New Firefighters To Be Sworn In Friday

Six new firefighters will be sworn in as members of the Quincy Fire Department Friday at 2:30 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The new recruits, all Quincy residents, are: Shawn P. Darcy, 24, of 205 Wilson Ave.; James D. McCarthy, 24, 90 Babcock St.; John F. McIsaac Jr., 29, 97 Pontiac Rd.; twin brothers Matthew A. Ryan and Patrick J. Ryan, 29, both 83 Lawn Ave.; and Stephen A. Stanton, 42, 143 East Elm Ave.

According to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman, none of the six have previous experience but were chosen because of their scores on the firefighters' Civil Service exam administered in June 1993.

The chief added that he is eager to welcome the new men to his department.

"This will definitely help us, especially now that we're coming into the summer months when we're heavy with vacations," said Gorman. "It will bolster our strength and be a great asset to us."

Gorman added that state Fire Marshal Steve Coan, who heads the Massachusetts Fire Academy, will give the men an introductory speech next Monday. They will then participate in an eight-week training course in Quincy, Stowe and Barnstable before they begin work.

The six firefighters will replace retirees and will receive the starting firefighters' salary of $24,322 a year, according to the chief. With the addition of the six new recruits, the fire department now has 205 members, he added.

Rabies Immunization Saturday

The Quincy Health Department will hold a rabies immunization clinic Saturday, April 29 from noon to 3 p.m. at the Quincy Animal Shelter, 56 Broad St., Quincy, behind the George F. Bryan Post and Fr. Bill's Place.

The clinic, held rain or shine, is offered at a cost of $8 for each dog and $8 for each cat. The department encourages pet owners to have their cats and dogs immunized against the disease.

Although the usually fatal disease is extremely rare in humans and fairly uncommon among animals in this part of the country, an outbreak of rabies occured mainly among raccoons in Massachusetts last year. A total of 1556 animals have tested positive for rabies in Massachusetts: 1276 raccoons, 32 cats, 199 skunks, 21 woodchucks and 16 foxes.

In Quincy, seven raccoons, two skunks and one stray cat have tested positive for rabies. The infected stray cat bit five people who were fortunately all immediately treated successfully with the anti-rabies vaccine.

For more information about rabies, contact the Quincy Health Department at 376-1273 and/or the Division of Communicable Disease Control of the Massachusetts Department of Public Health at 522-3700 ext. 194, 196.

Students Hold Petition Drive In Memory Of Slain Pakistani Boy

Broad Meadows Middle School students recently collected signatures to be sent to the Pakistani government calling for an investigation of the murder of a 12-year-old civil rights activist who visited the school in December.

Iqbal Masih of Pakistan was gunned down Easter Sunday while riding his bicycle near his grandmother's home in his native country. He had become a civil rights activist after escaping slavery from the carpet industry there at age 10. His parents had sold him into slavery six years earlier.

Iqbal traveled around the globe speaking to people, including the United Nations, about the injustices done to children in his country. Authorities suspect that carpet industry officials gave orders to have the boy assassinated.

Broad Meadows students, who were horrified by the Iqbal's story in December, were equally stunned by his death. They decided the petition drive would be a good way to keep his memory alive and to keep authorities interested in the case.

Another student at the school, Amy Papile, has written letters to government and local carpet industry officials about the murder. Among the responses she received were from Sen. Edward Kennedy and Michael Sokolowski, president of Newton Oriental Rugs in Newton.

"In the past Congress, I was a sponsor of the Child Law Deterrence Act, whose purpose is to protect children from exploitation by preventing their employment in the production of goods for export," Kennedy wrote. "The bill would have banned such products in the U.S. market and would have encourage other nations to join in such a ban.

"Unfortunately, that legislation was not passed by Congress in 1994, but I continue to support it, and I hope that it will be adapted by the new Congress."

"It is wonderful to see a young person caring so much about others," wrote Sokolowski. "To reply to your concern, Newton Oriental Rugs has people in the countries check to make sure that the rugs we receive are made by ethical work standards."

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meetsing.

•Granted a request from Quincy Lodge of Elks, No, 943 for a permit to hold a Sunday Bingo occasionally instead of its usual Monday evenings. The Sunday Bingo will be a "super bingo" and be held to help carry out the club's various charities.. Chairman Joseph Shea had to abstain from voting because he is a member of the Elks.

•Granted a request from the Pneumatic Scale Corp., 65 Newport Ave. for a one day beer and wine license for their 100th anniversary celebration May 19 at 65 Newport Ave. from 3 to 6 p.m.

•Granted a request from the Squantum School PTO, 50 Gladstone St., a permit to hold their annual school fair May 13.

•Granted a request from Bee Zee Gulf, 68 School St. for a Motor 11 License. Owner Fadi Zakharia promised he would have no more than five cars on display for sale.

•After scolding Patriot Lunch owner, Vassilios Kyriazis for opening the restaurant before applying for a license, the board granted his request. He was told that in the future to come before the board before any changes are made. Vassilios opened the restaurant at 1348 Hancock St. three weeks ago.

•Granted a request from Reed Thomas Ventures, Inc., doing business as Clouds, 152 Parkingway for a common victualer license, a pool table license and pinball license for a non-alcoholic Club. The site is next to Mass Barber School.

Owner Lawrence P. Hunt, said Clouds would be alcohol free and be open to those 21 years and over. The hours will be 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

•Granted a request from Osco Drug of Mass., Inc., for a change of managers from Robert Manning to William T. Peroira and the downsizing of the liquor store.

Howard Wayne, attorney for Osco Drug said the store has to be downsized because of the sale of Star Market, who owns the building. The store would decrease in size from 25,000 square feet to 14,000 square feet.

Halfway through Tuesday's meeting, Shea had to call a 20 minute recess for a swearing in at the Mayor's office.

The board will meet again next week.

Citizens Advisory Committee Meeting On Concourse May 11

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the proposed downtown Quincy Concourse connecting Burgin Parkway and Hancock Street will meet Tuesday, May 11 at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

CAC Chairman David Ezickson urges all members to attend to hear a presentation of the city's traffic report by Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

Ezickson said the traffic report is key to planning for the proposed Quincy Center Concourse.

All CAC meetings are open to the public and comments, written or oral, relative to the proposed concourse are invited.

Sixth Female Member On Police Department

Nancy Coletta Sworn-In As Quincy Police Officer

The Quincy Police Department welcomed its sixth female member this week.

Nancy Coletta, 30, of Quincy, officially became a patrol officer during swearing-in ceremonies Tuesday at City Hall. She joins five other women on the force, bringing the total number of department members to 191.

"I'm very proud to have been selected. I'm preparing for the challenges of the police academy and I'm looking forward to serving the City of Quincy," Coletta said after she was sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea as city officials, family and friends looked on.

Coletta will attend a municipal police academy in Canton for 18 weeks and then undergo eight weeks of field training at the Quincy Police Department before she is assigned, said Chief Francis Mullen.

"She'll be an asset to us. We need women investigators especially for assaults and she'll also fit in with other officers in domestic violence cases because all our officers are trained in domestic violence," Mullen said.

Mullen and Mayor James Sheets said Coletta is highly qualified to join the department.

"She's a very special person. I've looked at the backgrounds of all the candidates and I have to say I was extremely impressed with your resume and background," Sheets said.

"You come from a family (the Colettas in West Quincy) which has been involved in law enforcement for many generations. You'll be an absolute superb addition to the police department. You're a very fine human being and the City of Quincy will be the beneFactor of your presence on the police department," the mayor added.

Mullen agreed. "You're highly qualified and you have extensive background. We're so happy to have you."

Mullen noted Coletta is knowledgeable because she has relatives who are police officers, including a female cousin who is a State Trooper.

Coletta, who previously worked as an investigator for the Department of Revenue in Boston, has also been trained as an emergency medical technician. A 1980 graduate of Quincy High School, she attended Quincy College and received a bachelor's degree in sociology/criminology from Suffolk University in Boston.

Coletta, who will fill a vacancy on the force due to a retirement, will receive the starting patrol officer's salary of $26,063 a year.

Ayers Holds Up NQ Pizza Hut License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

Because of an objection from Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, the Quincy License Board delayed action regarding a request from D'Angelo/Pizza Hut, 260 Hancock St., to open its business at the site next to North Quincy High School.

The site is the former Coletta's gas station, and is under U.S. State Bankruptcy Court.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Pizza Hut, told the board he had already had at least eight meetings with various committees including the Quincy School Committee, Eugene Creedon, Superintendent of Schools and Peter Chrisholm, principal of North Quincy High School, the PTO and the Atlantic Neighborhood Association There was no opposition, he said.

Even though the initial request to open the restaurant was made a year ago, Ayers had not

Medically Speaking

by Michael M. Bakerman, M.D., F.A.C.C.

THE CAT'S OUT OF THE BAG

Just when you think you've got a handle on medical buzz words, something changes. For example, instead of the familiar term "CAT scan," these days you may find medical professionals referring to "CT scans." CT ("computed tomography") scanning imaging has improved the way doctors can look inside the body. A new "slip-ring" technique uses spiral scanning to decrease the time patients need to lie still to undergo X-rays, while delivering images of higher quality definition. One revolution of the X-ray beam takes only 1 or two seconds. A typical chest examination might call for 25 to 30 pictures, or "slices;" a head examination would generally use 15 to 18 slices.

P.S. Slip-ring CT scanning is painless. Examination room temperatures are also more comfortable than for earlier model CAT scans, due to equipment differences.

While technology can be bewildering, overall, the increase of diagnostic tools has only increased our capacity to better help our patients. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, we specialize in treating heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. Convenient parking. Maher Council Candidate?

This city election year just four months old has already produced a few political surprises and there could be another one on its way.

Thinking of joining the City Council at-large field is a well-known figure who would create a bit of a stir: City Plumbing Inspector Ralph Maher.

MAHER

How serious is he about running?

"Very serious," he says. "There are 67 people who have said they would help me if I run and I have been meeting with some of them."

Maher has been a somewhat controversial figure.

He was fired from his job as plumbing and gas fitting inspector in 1989 for alleged conflict during the administration of Mayor Francis McCauley and fought the dismissal for five years.

The court ruled in his favor and he was re-instated last July with something like $300,000 in back pay and other benefits awarded. The matter is under appeal by the city.

Has this anything to do with him thinking of running for the city council?

"No," he says. "I'm thinking of running because I would like to have something to say in the council. I certainly wouldn't pussy-foot around on issues. I'm a fighter."

Maher has been involved in a number of political campaigns down through the years although never as a candidate himself.

"I know how to run a campaign," he says.

Would he be in conflict holding his job as head of the plumbing inspection department while serving as a city councillor?

"No," he says. "NAGE (National Association of Government Employees) has informed me that there would be no conflict if I did not vote on my department's budget."

And, if for some reason it was ruled a possible conflict, he says he would just take a leave of absence from his job.

"I don't need the money," he says.

Maher lives on Gardiner Rd. in West Quincy.

If he decides to run for the council it will be definitely at-large and not for the Ward 4 seat.

"I wouldn't run against Tom Fabrizio," he says. "I will support him."

If he did run, it would make the council at-large race one of the more interesting in recent years.

It's already a good race with Larry Chretien giving up his Ward 3 seat to run for one of the three at-large seats held by City Council President Michael Cheney, Tim Cahill and Joseph LaRaia.

Maher would make it a five-man race.

Whether he runs remains to be seen.

"I'm really serious," he insists.

Mike and Gayle, incidentally, have purchased a home on Standish Rd. This gives Squantum both a state representative and a state senator in residence. Senator Michael Morrissey lives on Lansdowne St.

SPEAKING OF THE stork, City Councillor Chuck Phelan and his wife, Michelle, are expecting their first child sometime in November. Phelan is stepping down as Ward 5 councillor to be able to devote more time to his family and because of increased business duties.

WELL, he did it! City Clerk Joseph Shea kept his word and shaved off his beard on his 50th birthday as he promised. He had it two years and was a little reluctant to part with it. But now that it's gone, he doesn't miss it. Not when people are telling him he now looks a lot younger than 50.

Steven Reilly, candidate for the Ward 5 City Council seat being vacated by Chuck Phelan, has a campaign announcement party set for Wednesday, May 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. at Pat Flanagan's, Parkingway, Quincy Center. Tickets are $15.

Joseph LaRaia, running for re-election as councillor at-large, has a cocktail reception scheduled for Wednesday, May 10, 6 to 9 p.m., at the Common Market, Willard St., West Quincy. Tickets are $50.

BILL HAROLD, brother of former Senator Paul Harold, came on from Coronado, Calif., to run in his first Boston Marathon. Also running was his daughter, Courtney, 23, an assistant account representative for a Boston advertising agency. Harold finished in just over five hours and Courtney in 4 1/2 hours.

Harold says he learned a lesson. The day before the marathon he was on his feet most of the day cooking at a family get together and was at a party the night before.

"I found out that's a no-no," he says. "Next year I'll rest up the day before."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A POSTCARD from the Harvard Aeronautical Society's 1910 airmeet in Squantum. Over $60,000 in prizes were offered for propeller driven aircraft to set records at the airmeet and other contests attracted a helicopter, two mankites and this dirigible commanded by Cromwell Dixon who was only a teenager. He was to fly this balloon from Squantum to Beacon Hill but he mistook the Christian Science Mother Church as the dome of the State House and lost the contest. Now the site of Beechwood-on-the-Bay, the 500 acre field for this airmeet later became Dennison's Airport and then a US Naval pilots training station. The earliest record of airflight in Squantum was in 1835, when a Boston gentleman, perhaps from Beacon Hill, intentionally crash landed his balloon near Squaw Rock to keep from going into the ocean.

'Sandwich Board' Signs Obstacle To Handicapped

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I noted your recent article regarding allowing additional signage for retail establishments in Quincy.

One of the alternatives that I have seen used, especially in the Quincy Center area, consists of quote "Sandwich Board" signs which are usually placed in front of the business on the sidewalk. This type of signage presents an obstacle to any person having a mobile or sight impairment. By placing the signs on the sidewalk in front of the store, it narrows the area that can be a travesty by the handicapped individual. This becomes particularly crucial to those operating a wheelchair.

The shrinkage of the area in front of the store becomes even more pronounced when the sidewalk further narrowed by snow mounds during the winter months.

I believe this problem should also be considered by the City Council when reconsidering the current ordinance regarding the issue.

Don't Let Electric Industry Be Deregulated

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities is preparing an ill-conceived revolution in our electric industry, promoted by big business and the utilities, which threatens the living standards and quite possibly, the safety of residential and small business electricity customers.

This summer the DPU may allow industrial electricity customers to engage in retail wheeling--that is, to buy from the cheapest supplier, not necessarily their local electric company, regardless of the supplier's environmental, labor and safety standards or payment policy for senior citizens and needy families. Beyond that, the DPU wants to deregulate the whole electric industry.

The costs of power generation don't just disappear. If big users are covering less of the overhead, the rest of us will wind up paying more. The utilities are already pressing for permission to raise their rates.

When you deregulate an industry, serious questions about safety and customer service arise and there is usually a rash of layoffs. Look at the airlines. Do we need such chaos?

Rep. Daniel Valianti of Marlboro is sponsoring a bill to take this matter away from the unelected, unaccountable people at the DPU and to allow a special commission to investigate the subject and make recommendations to the legislature. The commission would give everyone a voice--businesses, residential users, labor, conservationists and the DPU.

We should give Rep. Valianti's fair approach by letting the DPU know we oppose retail wheeling and by urging our legislators to support the special commission bill, H2929.

Special Shrimp Surprise

At a recent gathering while we were enjoying food at a buffet table, our friend John Marrone gave me a couple of great recipes.

The first hint he gave me was something different in the roasting of a leg of lamb. In addition to piercing the lamb for the placing of garlic and Rosemary , he poured a large cup of black coffee over it for a different taste. He said the gravy from it got raves from his 30 dinner guests.

After he told me about that, he related a funny story about another recipe that is offered today. It seems John was on an elevator in a Boston hotel with the one and only Julia Childs.

Surprised at seeing her, and in awe of her reputation as a great cook, he proceeded to give her his recipe for shrimp. She listened and told him it sounded "wonderful".Here is John's great shrimp recipe.

John's Special Shrimp Surprise
12 jumbo shrimp
12 slices of munster cheese (or a favorite)
12 slices of proscuitto (Italian Ham)
1 cup Aste Spumonte Wine

Wash and de-vein the shrimp keeping the tail. Butterfly the shrimp and wrap the cheese around them first, then the proscuitto. Place in a slightly greased pan and bake in a 350 degree oven for about 15 minutes.

Half way in between the baking, pour the wine over the top and bake until done. Serve with lemon wedges. It can be served with rice or noodles.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Steve Liss Sees No Big Difference

Former Sun Photographer Clicking For Time Magazine

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Time magazine is a nationally-known publication that highlights politics, science, entertainment and other events that happen throughout the country.

The Quincy Sun is a weekly community newspaper that serves the community in its own backyard.

Yet the two have more in common than one might imagine, according to Steven Liss, former Sun photographer and now a full-time staffer at Time.

"There's no difference between shooting photos for Time magazine and the Sun," he said in a recent interview. "There's always a hole to fill."

Liss, 40, took photographs for the Sun from 1974 to 1977. He began doing occasional work for Time covering presidential campaigns in 1976 and eventually became a full-time staff photographer in 1985.

Since then, Liss, who also does some advertising work promoting his Time photos on the side, has done about 20 cover shots for the magazine. He has also won two awards for his work from the New England Press Association.

Liss, who now splits his time between Chicago, Ill. and Brookline, is a Quincy native who attended school here before receiving his high school education at the Commonwealth School in Boston. Having lived 22 years in the city, he has fond memories as both a former resident and Sun employee.

Liss attended Central Middle School while it was still Central Junior High School and credited Dr. Laurence Osborne, a teacher there as well as head guidance counselor Mary Catherine Iannoni with helping to inspire his interest in journalism. Both are still on staff at the school, and Liss, in fact, was interviewed shortly after appearing before some of Osborne's students as a guest speaker.

He also credited Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth with helping him to launch his career in photography.

"I really did learn the craft here," he said of his days at the Sun. "I learned how to cover my hometown, and that makes you a little less arrogant. They say you should shoot so you can return to the scene of the photograph, and I think that's a good adage.

"I wish everyone could start out by covering their hometown. It keeps your ego in check."

STEVEN LISS, photographer for Time magazine, presents gifts to newly-elected President Bill Clinton in January 1993. Liss, a former Quincy Sun staffer, gave Clinton a copy of Time's election-night cover and a second photo he shot of the president on the railroad tracks in Clinton's hometown of Hope, Ark.

Liss said perhaps the most memorable photos he shot for the Sun were of the March 1975 Quincy Center Business and Professional Association promotion when a man dressed as the Easter Bunny stood on top of a downtown building and dropped ping-pong balls to an eager crowd of people below. The balls entitled peoples to prizes available at downtown businesses.

Hancock Street was jammed with wall-to-wall people as the Easter Bunny dropped the ping-pong balls off the building after arriving by helicopter.

When he finally ran out of the balls and tried to leave, the Easter Bunny was chased down Hancock Street and fled into the Sun office for safety.

It was the largest crowd ever to turn out for a downtown Quincy shoppers promotion.

"The Easter Bunny was definitely a high point," said Liss.

He also spoke fondly about one of Quincy's favorite daughters, the late actress Ruth Gordon, whom he met during his days at the Sun.

"Ruth Gordon was a very, very, very cool lady, there's no question about that," he said.

Although Liss is a classic example of the local boy who made the big time, he insists that his work at Time is the same as what he did for his hometown newspaper.

"If you can't shoot (a photo of) the mayor of Quincy, you can't shoot the president of the United States," he said.

In fact, the first Liss photo Time ever printed was one of Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, the Washington Democrat who was seeking his party's presidential nomination in 1976. Liss took the photo for the Sun during a stop Jackson made on the South Shore and submitted it to Time.

"I sent them (Time) the negatives, and they decided to use it," he said.

Liss covered the inauguration of President Jimmy Carter for the Sun in January 1977. One of the close-up photos showed Carter taking the oath of office from Chief Justice Warren Burger with Rosalynn Carter, Vice President Walter Mondale, President Gerald Ford and Sen. Hubert Humphrey looking on.

Liss has met many other famous figures from the world of politics, including President and Mrs. Bill Clinton and former Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis. He also recently traveled through four states with presidential hopeful Sen. Phil Gramm, the Republican from Texas.

Sometimes photos of Presidential hopefuls hurt more than they help. Liss took the famous one of Dukakis sitting in an Army tank with a helmet on that produced more laughs than votes for Dukakis during his bid for the Oval Office in 1988.

Still, Liss said he prefers to shoot photos for "social issues" stories because "there's more time to sink your teeth into it."

"Quality photojournalism is dependent on being able to take the time to do it," he said.

Some of the "social issues" are hard to forget. Last summer, Liss spent a month on the streets of Hollywood, Calif. with teenagers who had been led into a life of drugs and prostitution. He also vividly remembers shooting photos for the story of an 11-year-old boy in Chicago who was killed by a gang after he himself had committed a murder.

"A lot of the work is pretty depressing," Liss admitted.

Depressing or not, it is still preferable to working in the "vacuous" world of political campaigns, he added.

"I'd rather shoot photos at Central Middle School than photograph these guys (politicians)," said Liss. "Everything you do with these guys is contrived. You never see anything real; nothing real ever happens. When I'm out with the street kids, I see reality."

HERE ARE 12 of the approximately 20 cover photos former Quincy Sun photographer Steve Liss has done for Time magazine.

Hanlon's Owner Begins New Venture In Old Field

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Thomas Hanlon, owner of Hanlon's Family Shoe Store, 27B Cottage Ave., is beginning a new venture in an old field with the addition of a men's section to his women's and children's shoe store.

Hanlon formerly owned and operated the women's and children's side of the shoe store but became the sole owner in 1992 when his cousin sold the men's shoe business to Hanlon.

The company was started in 1919 by Hanlon's grandfather in Jamaica Plain. The business moved to their present location in 1962.

Hanlon's has become a "home away from home" for the veteran salesman. As a young boy, Hanlon's father would often bring him to work and he would dream of being the boss.

"I remember running around the store when I was 3 years old, helping my father and telling everyone I would be the boss someday and now I am," reminisced Hanlon, 35.

Hanlon pointed to a lifetime of experience as evidence of his competence.

"I have a lot of experience. It [the shoe business] is in the blood," said Hanlon who has been officially working for his father at the shoe store since he was 15 but had been helping out around the store since he was a small child.

According to Hanlon, one common mistake some people make when they are sizing their feet for shoes is measuring the wrong foot.

Everyone knows the difference between their right and their left foot, but what is the difference between your right foot and your wrong foot?

"Sometimes people who have one foot which is smaller than the other foot measure the smaller foot. But, it is important to remember to size your bigger foot and not the smaller one. It sounds like a common-sense thing, but sometimes people measure their smaller foot by mistake," Hanlon explained.

Hanlon explained that properly sizing people's feet is not always as simple as asking for a shoe size and trying the shoes on.

"It is important to not only measure the foot length but also the width and arch size," Hanlon said as he pointed to a brannock device which is designed to measure the three sizes.

"Your feet are very important, " Hanlon noted, "they support your body."

Among the injuries which are regularly experienced by people who wear shoes that do not fit correctly are bunyuns, corns and achilles pain.

Hanlon, who often gets referrals from podiatrists, also caters to the elderly and those who have difficulty finding their shoe size.

"Since everyone has different feet, it is important to get the perfect fit for each person," explained Hanlon.

Besides selling a wide array of footwear for old and young alike, Hanlon's also sells polish, waterproofing products and shoe trees. Shoe trees are devices which are designed to keep shoes from wrinkling when they are not being worn.

Customers and friends can expect to rely on Hanlon and his staff to provide dependable quality and lasting relationships for many years to come.

"We're not going anywhere," Hanlon, the father of two, reassured, "we've been here for decades and we plan on staying for decades."

Located around the corner from Quincy District Court, Hanlon's, 472-4926, is open Monday through Saturday from 9:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

TOM HANLON, owner of Hanlon's Family Shoe Store, 27B Cottage Ave., Quincy Center, has added a men's selection to his women's and children's shoe store.

Advisor To Implement Financial Planning Education At QHS

Jim Aldred, a financial advisor with American Express Financial Services, Inc. has been selected to implement financial planning education to Quincy High School students through a specially-designed program.

Known as the High School Financial Planning Program, the program was intended to supplment course-work for the banking class at Quincy High School. The program is part of a nationwide effort by the financial planning profession to instill in young people the essential concepts of personal finance and sound money management, enabling them to cope with the strong economic pressures of today's changing society.

The two to three week intensive course emphasizes such concepts as understanding the financial planning process, earning income to meet goals, protecting assets, saving, and planning to meet financial goals.

Aldred will work individually with one or more teachers at Quincy High. The program is part of a continuing effort by American Express Financial Advisors. Aldred will assist with the presentation of program materials, and also be available to answer questions for students.

For more information, contact Aldred at 617-849-0980, or the program director at the National Endowment for Financial Education in Denver, 612-220-1200.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Why Quincy Real Estate Is A Good Investment

ARTHUR FOLEY

By ARTHUR FOLEY

When we moved to Quincy 24 years ago, it was mainly because of convenience.

Situated seven miles south of downtown Boston, you can hop on the Red Line and be in Boston often times in less than 20 minutes. Quincy is at the juncture of two main highways, Routes 3 and 128 which can get you to the Cape in one hour or the Berkshires via the Mass Pike in a few hours.

This was the primary reason we moved to the "City of Presidents," but much to our surprise, there were many other things about Quincy that made it a great place to live, to raise a family, to work, worship, and of course to recreate.

In 1980, the average price of a home in this area was $53,800. Today, that average price is $138,000. That's an annual return on our original downpayment (which was probably 20 percent) of 15.2 percent per year.

Now many other surrounding communities probably have similar returns, some maybe even better, but I'm not so sure they have all the attributes that Quincy's possess.

Here's a partial list:

Great Neighborhoods

Many distinct, organized communities such as Squantum, Merrymount, Houghs Neck, Adams Shore, Germantown, Post Island, Wollaston, Montclair, North Quincy, Presidents Hill, West Quincy, Southwest Quincy, Quincy Point, and our newest, Marina Bay. Strong neighborhoods linked together to form a strong city.

Recreational Programs

Great organized sports programs, baseball, football, soccer (1500 kids-plus), basketball, track club (one of the largest in the state), volleyball high school state champs several years. We have one of the oldest tennis clubs in the country, "The Quincy Tennis Club" on Glendale Rd., founded in 1886; two golf courses, sailing and boating programs, fishing and clamming and much more.

Parks and Open Space

Quincy has a high ratio of open space/land area, much of it left to us by former residents who were also leaders in our country, such as the Adamses.

First-Class Hospital

Improved in recent years to make it equal to some of the best in Boston.

Government

A stable, honest government and a decent tax rate lower than many communities in our area at $14.59 per thousand in valuation.

Diversity

We have areas where homes sell for less than $100,000 and areas where they are above $300,000. Many different ethnic and cultural groups make up our community. There are many great churches, synagogues and a Mosque, one of the few in the area. There's a good stock of affordable apartments for our kids to move to and as I said, before some great neighborhoods to bring their families up in.

Historical Significance

We have a tremendous historical heritage that rivals the best in the country. We have five national landmarks: the H.H. Richardson Library, the Adams Mansion on Adams St., the Adams Academy (the site of John Hancock's birthplace), the birthplaces of the Adamses on Franklin St. and the United First Parish Church.

Quincy has a good balance on residential and commercial real estate which stabilizes our tax bases and provides housing and jobs for our residents.

The list could be much longer and while there area many positives, there are also some negatives, but when you add up both sides of the ledger, the positives far outweigh any negatives.

While some have chose to move to the cookie-cutter developments where you can't walk to anything, I still think Quincy has so much to offer.

Quincy real estate is a good investment because Quincy is a good investment.

Realtors Attend Beacon Hill 'Legislative Day'

Approximately 25 members of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors (QSSBR) recently traveled to Boston to participate in the ninth annual "Legislative Day on Beacon Hill" activities sponsored by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

The local Realtors met with Sens. Michael Morrissey and Robert Hedlund and Reps. Mary Jeanette Murray, Michael Bellotti, Paul Haley and Ronald Mariano to discuss a number of bills filed in the current legislative session which will impact the real estate industry.

In particular, the QSSBR members spoke in favor of a measure introduced by the MAR which would require all real estate agents to regularly attend state-approved education programs in order to maintain an active real estate license. If passed, the bill, H. 2558, would require brokers and salespersons to successfully complete 16 hours of industry-related coursework every two years, prior to a license renewal.

Currently, Massachusetts is one of only two states in the U.S. which does not mandate continuing education for its real estate professionals, and the lack of a continuing education requirement in the Bay State unnecessarily places home buyers and sellers at risk, according to the MAR.

Furthermore, QSSBR members also support an increase in pre-licensing requirements for individuals seeking a real estate salesperson's or broker's license. Currently, 24 hours of instruction is required to sit for the salesperson's license and 30 hours is required to obtain a broker's license, but those levels were set in

Realtors Board Warns:

Tax Proposals Could Jeopardize Home Ownership

Tax proposals now being floated on Capitol Hill to limit or eliminate the deductibility of mortgage interest could make the dream of home ownership vanish for an entire generation of hard-working Americans, according to the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors (QSSBR).

One proposal, by Sen. Bob Packwood (R-Ore.), would eliminate the deductibility of mortgage interest on any amount of a home loan exceeding $250,000. Another, by Rep. Richard Armey (R-Texas), would institute a flat income tax rate, effectively eliminating all itemized deductions--including the mortgage interest deduction.

"Congress is attacking Americans' ability to own a home," said Jim Stamos, QSSBR president. "Limiting the mortgage interest deduction is one more step toward eliminating America's incentive for home ownership. It is yet another government plan that increases the tax burden on the middle class."

Stamos said more than 24 million American families each year would be affected by elimination of the mortgage interest deduction, and that first-time buyers will be hit more severely than owners of expensive homes.

"Capping the deduction is clearly one step further down the slippery slope of eliminating the deduction altogether. Congress just can't help themselves when it comes to raiding the wallets of middle-class Americans," he said.

Research shows that elimination of the mortgage interest deduction will raise the cost of owning a home by as much as 33 percent. High-income families, with greater savings resources, will be able to handle the rising cost of home ownership; however, the budgets of many middle class families could not handle such a dramatic rise in the single largest monthly expense they have. In addition, elimination of the deduction will have a devastating effect on the value of American homes. Industry analysts predict elimination could reduce home values by as much as 20 percent.

"To first-time buyers, that means starting to climb the housing ladder more than 20 percent in the hole," said Stamos. "Make no mistake: this is a middle class issue. Of the 24 million Americans who take the mortgage interest deduction, more than half have household incomes of less than $50,000. These are families that will be most severely affected by eliminating the mortgage interest deduction.

"What these ill-conceived ideas really amount to is a substantial tax increase for our nation's home owners," he added. "The ability to deduct mortgage interest is one of the few remaining incentives provided by the federal government to promote home ownership growth in the United States.

"Owning a home is more than a financial decision--it's a quality of life issue. Communities with high ownership rates have higher levels of social and political participation.

"Home ownership represents a stake in the neighborhood and in the community. Home equity, built up by home owners over a period of years, is also the largest savings vehicle for most Americans. Along with financial security and education, surveys show that home ownership is the most important component of achieving the American dream.

"The mortgage interest deduction is as old as the income tax itself," Stamos noted. "When the Constitution was amended in 1913 to introduce an income tax, Congress affirmed America's commitment to home ownership by creating the mortgage interest deduction. Proposals to eliminate the deduction would shatter the contract that commits Congress to helping average people pursue the American Dream."

Restricting mortgage deductibility is being proposed as a way to "pay for" a proposed cut in the capital gains tax rate, Stamos said. The QSSBR strongly favors reducing the capital gains tax rate. However, the board does not believe that tampering with mortgage interest deductibility is a valid way to recoup any revenue lost through a capital gains tax cut.

"From an economic standpoint, cutting the mortgage interest deduction would completely negate lowering the capital gains tax rate," he said. "It makes sound fiscal sense to retain the mortgage interest deduction in its current form and lower the capital gains tax rate."

Stamos said those tax laws trigger residential and commercial investment benefit the entire economy.

"Congress must realize the vital role real estate plays in sustaining overall economic growth," he said.

The QSSBR is more of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors (NAR). As the nation's largest professional association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Crime Prevention Officer
Quincy Police Department

Use 9-1-1 For Emergencies Only

When calling the police to report a non-emergency situation, you should use your police department's business number. Only use 9-1-1 if the situation is, or you think it could be, an emergency situation.

Example #1.

It's 2:30 a.m. and you hear loud music in your neighborhood. It's obvious to you that someone has a radio on loud, but nothing indicates that an emergency exists.

You want to loud music to stop, since your are unable to sleep because of it. You should call the police on their business number, 479-1212, NOT 9-1-1. This is NOT an emergency situation, there is no danger to life or property at this time.

Example #2.

In the morning you go out to your car and attempt to start it, but it won't start. You open the hood and discover that your car's battery has been stolen. It is obvious that the battery was stolen sometime during the night. This is NOT an emergency situation. There is no need for police to render an emergency response. Report this theft by calling the police on their business number.

REMEMBER: If the crime is NOT taking place, or about to take place, use the regular business number of your police department. If you have any doubt about whether this is an emergency or not, use 9-1-1, otherwise use 479-1212.

Quick Quiz On Water Hazards

(NAPS)—Do you know what to do to protect your home from a couple of pipe busters: "water hammers" and freezing water? The answer is to leave the faucets turned on to trickle strength when your water is shut off for any reason, or when the weather is freezing so the sudden surge doesn't burst pipes.

In addition, when the forecast is for freezing weather, beam a small lamp or heater at exposed pipes. If you have uninsulated pipes, wrap them with newspaper, foam or tape to provide additional insulation. Open doors in cabinets and unheated rooms so that warm air can reach pipes located in these areas.

Another way many builders and homeowners are avoiding the problem of frozen pipes is by turning to materials that are less susceptible to bursting. Polybutelene (PB) pipe offers an excellent alternative to rigid metal pipes that can rupture when frozen water expands. PB pipe is more tolerant to freezing damage because of its elasticity. When frozen water expands, the polybutelene pipe expands with it, returning to its normal shape when the frozen water thaws. Polybutelene also offers more insulation from the cold than metal pipes.

You can fight the risk of flood damage to your home by taking a few simple precautions to protect your pipes.

Laboratory tests sponsored by the State of Wisconsin confirmed the ability of PB pipe to withstand repeated exposure to freezing temperatures. When exposed to five freeze/thaw cycles during a laboratory test, none of the PB pipes cracked or leaked. Metal pipe in the test failed within two freeze/thaw cycles.

PB has gained widespread acceptance since it was first introduced 25 years ago. It is rugged but much easier to install than rigid metal pipe, making it ideal for new construction or remodeling. PB is also friendly to the environment, eliminating the use of lead solder and is even available in specially designed systems that help conserve water.

If your metal pipes do freeze, remember to thaw them very carefully. It is necessary to turn off the main water supply before attempting to thaw the pipes and waterproof the area you will be working in case the pipe does burst or leak.

For additional information concerning PB pipe systems contact The PB Technology Center (800) 838-7732.

The Quest For A Greener Lawn

By BRENDA WHITENETT

Have you ever wondered why so many homeowners want to have a beautiful green lawn on their property? It seems to be an integral part of the American Dream. A lawn creates a lush and living carpet around our home. It provides a good surface for playing and relaxing. And compared to the cost of trees, shrubs and other forms of ground-cover plant materials, a lawn is the least expensive to install.

Once installed, lawns can present some common problems. Shade can inhibit the growth of grass. Fortunately, grass mixes have been developed which include grass varieties which thrive in or at least tolerate a shady location. If you have a shady part of your property, look for a grass seed mix which contains a blend of bluegrass, fescue and perennial ryegrass. Lawns can develop thin areas. This can be caused by incorrect soil pH (a measure of acidity or alkalinity), inadequate fertilizer coverage or poor seed germination. (Your local garden center sells soil test kits.) In this area, soils tend to be acid and lawns generally require the addition of ground limestone to raise the soil pH.

Thin areas with acceptable soil pH levels can be improved by scratching in some seed mix for your existing lawn. Keep the over-seeded area evenly moist to ensure good germination. For large thin areas your landscape contractor can overseed using a slice seed technique which involves the use of a sod-slicing machine to sow seed effectively without injuring existing grass.

Brown areas of lawn are signs of insect or disease damage. Your landscape contractor can help you to identify and treat affected areas of your lawn to control or eliminate the damage.

Weeds are the bane of lawns, and many techniques exist to minimize their effect on your lawn. Keeping your lawn healthy is the first step, because a thick lawn will crowd out weeds. Keep your lawn cut high in summer to choke weeds and cut low in the fall to allow sunlight to penetrate to the soil surface to kill weed seeds. If necessary, a carefully-calibrated application of a specific herbicide will help your grass lawn to overcome excessive weediness.

Sometimes you might be unsure of whether to renovate your existing lawn or turn it under and start from scratch. The 30 percent rule is a good guideline to use in making your decision. If you have at least 30 percent of desired turf grasses in your lawn, it is better to renovate your lawn as opposed to starting over.

If you do decide to start from scratch, remember that grass needs a fine surface on which to grow. After your loam is spread and raked smooth, it will need to be rolled to an evenly firm surface for the grasses to take root.

Even though it is very economical to establish a lawn, it can be very time-consuming to maintain if you have more lawn than you want or need for your lifestyle. If you have too much grass to mow, or would like to create more variety around your home, consider plating shrubs and ground covers that are more colorful and are easier to maintain. A good landscape designer can help you evaluate your landscape needs and suggest ideas that are appropriate for your lifestyle and your budget.

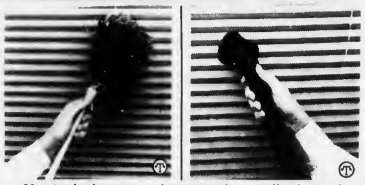
Cleaning Blinds And Shades: A New Way



Most window coverings can be easily dusted or vacuumed clean.

(NAPS)—Beautiful blinds and shades offer a wonderful window of opportunity to enhance your home decor. Fortunately, today's alternative window coverings are also easy to maintain.

While there's a little more effort involved than just turning on the spin cycle, it's simple to find a window covering maintenance program that suits every homeowner's needs and pocketbook. Plus, with proper care, you can maximize your investment by keeping your window treatments looking like new for a longer time. The experts at Hunter Douglas Window Fashions offer the following tips:

Mini-Blinds and Venetian Blinds: To vacuum: Use the brush head attachment and tilt the slats first up, then down (but not entirely closed) to reach the entire top and bottom surfaces. To dust: Use a soft, clean dust cloth or a chemically treated dust cloth and tilt the slats up and down as well. To wash: Use a damp cloth or sponge and mild detergent with warm or cold water (not hot water), tilting the slats as indicated above. The blind also can be taken down, placed in a bathtub of mild soapy water and then rinsed clean, wiped down or allowed to dry completely in the open air.

Wood Blinds: Do not wash wood blinds. Although the wood is sealed, water or even excessive dampness may cause warpage and/or discoloration of the slats. Dust can be easily brushed off at regular intervals using a clean, soft dust cloth or a vacuum cleaner brush attachment. Tilt the slats first up, then down (but not entirely closed) to reach the entire top and bottom surfaces.

Vertical Blinds: Fabric vertical blinds require only periodic vacuuming. Small stains may be removed with a dry fabric cleaner. Do not wash or dry clean louver materials. Aluminum and vinyl blinds can be sponged with a damp cloth and mild detergent.

Pleated shades: Pleated shades can be vacuumed with a brush attachment and dusted occasionally. At Hunter Douglas, some pleated shades are treated with Scotchgard™, which keeps them looking new longer and resists stains and soil.

Vignette and Silhouette Window Shadings: Vignette™ window shadings—new from Hunter Douglas—feature layers of gently contoured fabric folds with the easy operation of a shade. They are as simple to clean as Silhouette® window shadings, whose "floating" colored fabric vanes are suspended between sheer front and back facings. Both products are made of a 100 percent polyester fabric, which is anti-static as well as dust and stain resistant. For routine cleaning, use a feather duster. For more thorough cleaning, use a hand-held vacuum with low suction, compressed air or a hair dryer on the cool setting. With Silhouette shadings, be careful to avoid wrinkling the fabric, particularly where the vanes meet the facings.

Vignette and Silhouette shadings also may be ultrasonically cleaned by a professional with the proper equipment, but specific guidelines must be followed. Contact your Hunter Douglas dealer for more information, or call 1-800-937-STYLE.

Duette Honeycomb Shades: Duette® honeycomb shades feature a honeycomb construction in a non-woven polyester fabric that is anti-static and repels dust and dirt. They can be feather dusted or lightly vacuumed with a brush attachment. Duette shades can also be spot cleaned by gently blotting with a soft, damp cloth or sponge, using lukewarm water with a mild detergent.

State Street Bank Volunteers Work With Squantum Students

[The following article was originally printed in a recent issue of the State Street Bank magazine, "The Clipper" and submitted to The Quincy Sun for publication by Donald Houghton, principal of the Squantum School.]

Thirteen State Streeters made an important investment in the future during recent weeks, an investment that will pay great dividends! They invested an hour a week for five weeks into Junior Achievement, a 75-year-old, not-for-profit organization dedicated to educating and inspiring young people to value free enterprise, understand business and economics, and most importantly, stay in school.

Using practical, hands-on activities, State Street volunteers brought business lessons they learned in their careers into 10 classrooms at the Squantum Elementary School. In doing so, they helped provide second, third, fourth and fifth grade students with team-building and leadership skills, and understanding of the business world, and the motivation to prepare for tomorrow.

Diane Shaw of Mutual Funds and Kathy Bandera of Global Investment Manager Services, for example, co-taught a second grade class using a clearly-defined lesson plan created by Junior Achievement. One recent morning, they taught the Decision Tree project, whereby students had to decide whether building an animal hospital, an arcade, or an ice cream shop would most benefit the community. (The animal hospital, fortunately, was the runaway winner.)

"The kids are fun," Diane said after the class. "They really remember what we talked about."

Diane said she signed up for Junior Achievement "to get a feel for teaching. I didn't realize how well they put the program together." The kids also derive a lot from the sessions. "We get to make stuff and learn new things," said eight-year-old Briana.

Squantum School Principal Donald Houghton said State Street's participation in the program has been invaluable. "It benefits both sides," he said. "It's a great experience for the kids to have business people come in and for the business people to talk about their experiences." Emily Blampied, a fifth grade teacher, agreed. "The State Street volunteers were wonderful," she said. "State Street needs to know how valuable this is."

Other volunteers teachers from State Street were: Theresa Vrandenburg, Patti Hart, Jol Bayani Manilay, Shawn Murphy, Cathy Sloan, Myra Jackson, Stephanie Lataif, John Connolly, Jodi Greenberg, Michelle Jolle and Beth Garvey. Thank you all!

If you would like more information about Junior Achievement, contact Denise Flynn at 617-341-4069.

Stop & Shop Plans $255M Purity Supreme Acquisition

The Shop & Shop Supermarket Co. plans to acquire Purity Supreme Inc. for $255 million.

Officials announced the plans for the deal this week. The acquisition of its struggling competitor would strengthen Stop & Shop's already dominant presence throughout New England, and bolster its position as a growing number of retailers and warehouse clubs sell food from their shelves.

Stop & Shop, based in Quincy, operates 128 stores in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and New York.

Billerica-based Purity Supreme Inc. owns 55 Purity supermarkets in Massachusetts--including one in Quincy--as well as Connecticut and New Hampshire. It also runs 66 Li'l Peach stores in the Bay State.

A spokesman for Purity Supreme said the sale, which is expected to be completed this summer, is the result of competitive pressures.

A Stop & Shop spokesman said the company will assume $200 million in debt from Purity as part of the acquisition and that the amount is included in the $255 million purchase price. He added, however, that some administrative employees and workers in distribution facilities may lose their jobs.

Stop & Shop employs more than 30,000 people, including almost 14,000 in Massachusetts. Purity has about 55,000 employees. Locally, the only community where both companies have stores is Kingston.

Fr. William McCarthy To Receive McIntyre Award

Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John's Church, will receive the James R. McIntyre Humanitarian Award at Law Day ceremonies Tuesday, May 2 at Quincy District Court.

Fr. McCarthy, who served as pastor at St. John's for 18 years and is now senior priest in residence there, was selected for the McIntyre award for his many years of helping the poor, homeless and others in need.

Fr. McCarthy will be the 11th recipient of the award named in honor of the late mayor and senator, James McIntyre.

Previous recipients were: Former Public Works Commissioner James J. (Pete) Ricciuti (1984), Atty. Thomas Kiley (1985), City Clerk John Gillis (1986), former Mayor Walter Hannon (1987), former Mayor Arthur Tobin (1988), Norfolk County Dist. Atty. William Delahunt (1989), late Atty. Richard Barry (1990), Rabbi Jacob Mann, Beth Israel Synagogue (1991), Probate Judge James Lawton (1992), Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth (1993) and Esther Sanger for her work with the hungry, in 1994.

Winnie Fong On Dean's List

Winnie Fong of Quincy has been named to the Dean's List for outstanding academic achievement for the first semester at Colby College in Waterville, Me.

Fong, a freshman, is the daughter of Peter and Ruby Fong.

'Christmas Wishes On Parade' Theme For 43rd Annual Parade

"Christmas Wishes on Parade" will be the theme of the 43rd annual Quincy Christmas Festival Parade, announces Festival Chairman Mike McFarland.

The winning theme, selected from more than 250 entries from South Shore residents, was submitted by Bonnie Ray of 69 Revere Rd.

"The Christmas Festival Committee appreciates the general public's participation and it is wonderful they want to be a part of this annual event," McFarland said.

The selected theme offers the float builder much diversification, flexibility and imagination in building a float to comply with the theme, said Float Committee Chairman Paul Kennedy.

The Christmas Festival Committee congratulates Ray and looks forward to her participation in the Nov. 26 parade. She will be presented with a gift of appreciation at the award's event following the parade.

The best overall non-commercial float receives the Fr. Thomas Tierney trophy and a $1,500 cash prize. Other awards are $750 for first; $500 second; and $250 for third, fourth and fifth places.

Floats are judged on creativity in meeting the parade's theme and other criteria. With a theme selected, all organizations will be notified and the parade float entry forms will be mailed soon.

Kennedy urges all organizations and businesses planning to participate to return their completed float entry forms as quickly as possible. In recent years, the Festival Committee has established a waiting list for floats and has also increased the number of entries to accommodate more floats.

The annual float building seminar is planned for mid-September.

Durkin Candidate For Ward 5 Council Seat

Stephen J. Durkin announces his candidacy for Ward 5 city councillor. Durkin, 38, of 125 Colonial Dr., Quincy, has been a member of the Quincy School Committee since 1984.

STEPHEN DURKIN

In making his announcement, Durkin said as a lifelong Quincy resident "it has been an honor and privilege for me to serve the citizens of Quincy as a school committee member for the past 12 years. I feel, however, that the time is right for me to pursue new challenges in public service," he said.

"I am very excited about the opportunity to represent the people of Ward 5 on the City Council. Having lived most of my life in Wollaston, which makes up a large part of Ward 5, and with family ties to the community going back more than a half century, I am very familiar with the Wollaston area and many Wollaston families." Durkin pointed out that Ward 5 also includes Hospital Hill, where he resides, President's Hill, parts of Quincy Center and part of Merrymount and said he's "very excited about serving the residents of those neighborhoods as well."

As a ward councillor, Durkin said his main objectives would be "to maintain and improve and quality of life for Quincy residents, so that Quincy remains a great place to live, to raise a family, to work and to do business. I pledge to be a responsive and caring ward councillor, one that I hope Ward 5 residents will be proud to have."

Among Durkin's concerns are controlling traffic and alleviating traffic congestion throughout the ward. Durkin said he would be a very strong advocate for residents who will be effected by the Shaw's project. "I pledge to make certain that Shaw's lives up to every condition of the special permit and I will work to ensure that the residential character of Ward 5 neighborhoods is preserved."

Durkin also said he would focus on necessary public works improvements to eliminate flooding problems, improve water quality, and replace sidewalks and curbstones in disrepair. Additionally, Durkin said he supports the mayor's initiative to upgrade and better maintain the city's parks and playgrounds, saying that "it is important that the city have an attractive appearance and that our children have safe and quality facilities for recreation."

Regarding capital improvements in city schools, Durkin said he is "proud of the accomplishments of the school committee in relieving overcrowding and helping to bring about the re-opening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, the expansion of the Park and Bernazzani, and the building of the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center and the new auditorium at Quincy High School. The mayor, school superintendent, city council and involved parents deserve a great deal of credit.

"We do, however, face the challenging task of complying with federal mandates to make buildings accessible."

In addition, Durkin stressed he has serious concerns about public safety. "We have had too many traffic accidents, some very tragic, during the past year involving pedestrians. I know that the city is examining this issue, and I agree that the keys are education and enforcement. We must be vigilant and consistent in enforcing speed limits and adherence to driving rules," he said.

"Quincy is very fortunate to have well-trained, professional and experienced police and fire departments and as a city councillor, I will focus on public safety so that we can all feel secure in our persons, in our property and in our neighborhoods," Durkin said.

Regarding downtown development, Durkin said "it is critical that we focus on revitalizing and re-energizing the downtown business area. I support the concept of a master plan with municipal government, business people, real estate interests and residents working together to help existing business and to attract anchor businesses to the downtown area. We should commit ourselves to doing whatever it takes to make Quincy Center an attractive and thriving center of commerce."

Finally, Durkin pledged "my support for and involvement in our schools will not wane. The hallmark of an attractive city or town is a strong and well-supported public school system. It's good for property values, and our children deserve nothing less than the best we can give them."

As a school committee member, Durkin cited his work in maintaining small class sizes, improving school safety, implementing a strict high school attendance policy, and improving programs for children with special needs. "I have had experience making budgets during times of limited resources. I have faced school budget cuts several times in the past, and I know what it takes to make certain that important services continue despite fiscal constraints.

"I will apply that experience to my duties as a city councillor," Durkin said.

Durkin, an attorney, and his wife, Maureen, have two daughters, Mollie, age 8, and Bridget, age 14 months. Maureen is a pediatric nurse and a figure skating instructor. Durkin is also active in the community, serving as president of the Board of Directors, Quincy After School Day Care, Inc., and teaching C.C.D. at St. Ann's in Wollaston.

DOVE Receives $3,703 From Don Bosco School

Domestic Violence Ended (DOVE) of Quincy has received a donation of $3,703 from the students, faculty staff, parents, friends and administration of Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston.

Audrey Wilcoxen, coordinator of the DOVE shelter, received the donation from Michael Boyle, president of the Student Council.

Fr. Jim Heuser, SDB, coordinator of the Youth Ministry of Don Bosco, conducted the Lenten project which resulted in the total raised. He was assisted by Bernadette Fitzgerald, the school nurse.

Mrs. Wilcoxen thanked everyone for their generosity and Fr. Jim expressed his appreciation for their cooperation in the project.

DOVE provides services that are both immediate and long-term to women and children in crisis who are running in fear of their lives because of domestic violence. Among their offerings are: shelter, crisis clinics, counseling, advocacy and a children's workshop.

Over of the weeks of Lent, groups of students were challenged to each raise $60 which covers a day's food expenses for the eight women and 10 children presently at the shelter. Some organized voluntary collections while others chose more creative approaches like homeroom breakfast or a raffle or items produced in the Don Bosco Woodshop.

As each donation of $60 was raised, a white paper dove was placed on a large wooden cross in the center of the school lobby. Daily, the school community saw the amount of its almsgiving grow and the enthusiasm for the drive increased.

Eric Joyce Studying In Spain

Eric Joyce of Quincy, a student at Boston College High School, is attending school in La Coruna, Spain.

Joyce is one of three Boston College High students participating in the exchange program in Spain. La Coruna is a co-ed Jesuit school. In Spain, the school day is longer, lasting from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Offered to students in their junior year, B.C. High has a direct student exchange program with schools in Argentina, Spain, France and Germany. B.C. High students spend two months in the home of family abroad who, in turn, sends their son to live in the American student's home while attending B.C.

A CRAZED NOTION

If a brake drum displays small hairline cracks on the friction surface where it makes contact with the lining, the brake drum is said to be "crazed." These cracks are usually caused by the stresses of the expansion and contraction cycle that accompanies heat buildup due to braking. It may be argued that the problem can be corrected by machining the drum to get rid of the cracks. It may also be reasoned, however, that the cracks will probably reappear to contribute to a worsening problem. To be on the safe side, replacement of crazed drums (in matched sets) may be recommended. Along the same lines, the appearance of blue spots on the friction surface of a brake drum is indicative of hardening and altered friction characteristics that may best be treated with replacement.

Hint: Blue spotting on brake drums is due to severe brake use that causes hardened metal due to overheating.

NQ Drops Game But Shows Improvement

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy High School softball team continues to improve, and it showed on Monday despite dropping a 6-2 decision to Old Colony League rival Silver Lake at Mitchell Field.

The Raiders (2-3) travel to league-leader and softball juggernaut Taunton today (Thursday). This past Monday, Taunton had their seven-year-long string of 102 consecutive OCL wins broken by Barnstable. North comes home for a game with Weymouth on Monday.

"We played a great game today," said Red Raider head coach Carolyn Parsley following the loss to Silver Lake. "But we still need to work on our mental state."

Most of North Quincy's offense came from the bat of Jen Teahan. She went 3 for 3, scored one run and stayed in scoring position by stealing a season-high five bases. Her run scored came on a Liz Fitzpatrick single which tied the score, 1-1, in the fourth inning.

"Jen played a great overall game," said Parsley. "She hit the ball well and showed heads-up base running."

Denise Anderson again pitched a fine game. She controlled her game well for four innings, allowing just one hit and at one point retired 10 Laker batters in a row. A tired arm ended her day in the sixth inning. Sophomore Janean Elfman finished the game in relief and pitched well.

Silver Lake scored the game's first run in the first inning after a lead-off walk led to two stolen bases. The runner came home on a groundout. After North Quincy tied the score in the fourth, the Lakers scored two runs in the fifth and three runs in the sixth.

The Red Raiders responded with their second run in their half of the fifth when Meghan Roche singled, then stole two bases and scored on a Jen Doherty double.

They made a rally attempt in the sixth when Teahan and Fitzpatrick singled but were left stranded, and again in the seventh when Roche singled but was also left on base.

In addition to Teahan's five stolen bases, Fitzpatrick and Roche brought the team total up to nine with two steals each.

One of the best fielding days was had by Kerry Skehan, who was playing shortstop for the first time this season. She was so impressive, Parsley may play her there more often.

"Kerry played very well and made some great defensive plays," said the coach.

Other Raiders who contributed to the effort were Alyssa Cobban, Kerry Ginty, Nancy Walker and Kelly Keegan.

American Legion Baseball Tryouts This Weekend

The Morrisette and Quincy American Legion baseball teams and the newly-formed Wollaston Legion 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth team will hold tryouts for the 1995 season this weekend.

Combined tryouts for the Morrisette and Quincy Legion teams begin Saturday, April 29 from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at O'Rourke Field on Quarry St. in West Quincy. They continue Sunday from 1-4 p.m. at O'Rourke Field.

Tryouts for the 16-year-old Senior Babe Ruth team begin Saturday from 1-4 p.m. at O'Rourke Field and continue Sunday from 8 a.m. to 12 noon at Coletta Field at Merrymount Park.

Any Quincy resident who will not reach their 19th birthday before Aug. 1, 1995 is eligible to tryout, regardless of the high school they attend.

In case of inclement weather, the same schedule will remain throughout the month of May.

Quincy Boys, Jr. Bruins Win Title

With the help of Quincy hockey players Matt Langille, Chris Haidul and Chris Katides, the Boston Jr. Bruins Bantam Major team recently won the Massachusetts Selects tier one state championship.

Langille is a sophomore and Haidul a freshman on the Quincy High School varsity hockey team. Katides plays for Boston College High School.

The three Quincy boys and their Jr. Bruins teammates recently took part in the USA Hockey National Championship Tournament in Chicago where they competed against teams from Michigan, Minnesota and the Rocky Mountain region.

NQHS Football Fund-raiser

The North Quincy High School Football Boosters will hold a fund-raiser Monday, May 1 from 5 to 10 p.m. at Papa Gino's, 1 Beale St., Wollaston.

A portion of the total sales at the restaurant during that time period will be donated by Papa Gino's to the school's football program.

Delivery sales will also be available by calling 770-3444.

QHS Wrestling Banquet Tonight

The Quincy High School wrestling team's annual awards banquet takes place tonight (Thursday) at the George W. Bryan Post located behind the Quincy Police station.

The doors open at 6:30 and dinner will be served at 7:15.

Panther Cheerleaders Among Best On East Coast

The Quincy Point Panthers cheerleading squad exceeded their own expectations recently when they placed eighth in the National Cheerleading Association East Coast Championships at Six Flags Great Adventures amusement park in New Jersey.

"The Panther girls did better than they ever expected to do," said coach Patti Myers. "They were competing against large, well-established, regional programs. For a team with girls from just one small part of Quincy to do as well as they did is incredible."

The Quincy girls matched skills with 45 of the best cheerleading teams on the East Coast in the junior high-age division. Maine, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland and Washington, D.C. were represented in the two-day event and over 150 teams competed in four divisions.

The Panthers were the lone Massachusetts representative in their section and won the right to compete when they captured the small schools division state title last fall at Boston College High School.

In New Jersey, the Panthers compiled 238 points out of a possible 300, scoring highest on creativity, dance choreography, jumps, motions and showmanship in their two minute, 30 second routine.

The 12-member Quincy squad traveled six hours by van on a Friday afternoon and competed Saturday morning. Following their routine, the team and a group of over 20 parents and fans went to the theme park and safari. Awards were presented in the Chevrolet/Geo Showcase Theater at 5 p.m.

The Panthers were each given an award for their accomplishment and will also receive a poster, t-shirt and complimentary items from the NCA.

The weekend's most unusual twist came when the girls ran into another Point Panthers cheerleading team. Point Pleasant High School (New Jersey), also nicknamed the Panthers, took part in the event. The Quincy Point Panthers outscored their New Jersey sister squad.

Members of the Top 10 Quincy team were captains Bonnie Ford and Jana Bagen, and Valerie Doherty, Jamie McCarthy, Elizabeth Dunlea, Kristen Perry, Maeve Glynn, Sarah McQuinn, Tiffany McAdam, Lisa Califano, Kristen Brogna and JoAnna Ford.

The girls, their parents, and coaches Myers and Anita Curran, held an indoor yard sale at St. Joseph's School in February to help defray the cost of the trip. They also received donations.

Sponsors of the trip were the South Quincy Bocce Club, St. Joseph's Parish, Rev. Daniel Graham and Rev. Daniel Riley, the Kelley Family, Joan's Olympic Gym, Washington Tap, Mayor James Sheets, State Rep. Michael Bellotti, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, State Sen. Michael Morrissey, Artery Cleaners, the Cerasoli Family, Dan Russell, the Debonis family, the Cedrone family, Jackie Glavin and Maureen and Mary Mancuso.

City Celebrates National Immunization Week

Mayor James Sheets has proclaimed the week of April 22-29 National Immunization Week in Quincy.

Sheets read the proclamation at a ceremony last week in City Hall. Among those participating were Jim Chiccino of Citizens Bank, Quincy Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue, South Shore YMCA Executive Director Mary Moore and Quincy Hospital Public Relations Director Joan Schwartz.

There are several activities taking place at the hospital and the YMCA in conjunction with this week.

The main goal of National Immunization Week is to make parents aware of the importance of having their children immunized. For more information, call Gallahue at 376-1272.

Young Quincy Girls Strong And Building

Just three meets into the season, seven member of the Quincy High School girls' track team have recorded state qualifying times or distances.

"By the time the season is over, we may qualify more girls for the states than we have in the last six or seven years," said coach John Franceschini. "This, already, is a very good indicator of how well the individual girls and the team are doing."

The qualifiers are Liz Sawan (400 meters and mile), Kathryn Lencki (two mile), Julie Dunn (two mile), Kasey McNaught (100 and 200), Suzanne Civitarese (100 hurdles), Erin Barry (800 and shot put) and Kristen Priscella (javelin).

Quincy has a 1-2 record following an opening day, 84-42 win over Taunton, and close losses to Weymouth and Bridgewater-Raynham.

Sawan, a junior, Lencki, a sophomore, and Dunn, a freshman, lead a talented group of one- and two-milers that includes juniors Erin Flaherty, Maryann Ashworth and Amy Nicklas.

In the middle events the Presidents have been paced by Barry, an outstanding freshman athlete, juniors Karen Mazzetti and Amy Wysocki and freshman Erin Djerf.

Since the outset, Franceschini has counted on these two groups of girls to spark his club. Before the season started he said, "We can hold our own with anyone at the middle and distance events. We have depth and are as strong as we have been in years."

Joining qualifier McNaught in the sprints are Grace Amao, Sandy Buonopane, Kelly Spaur and senior Gabrielle Montes. Civitarese has paced the hurdler group which includes Katie Sullivan, Erin Morrell, Marisa Ross and Pamela Gray.

The key to how well the Presidents perform over the rest of the season lies with this group of sprinters and hurdlers.

"Our success as a team in dual meets will depend on how well we develop our sprinters and hurdlers" said Franceschini. "If they come along, as I hope, we'll do very well." So far, with the leadership of McNaught and Civitarese, he has not been disappointed.

The Presidents boast a promising young group in the field events, led by qualifier Priscella, who was among the top five javelin throwers in the Old Colony League last season. Sullivan and Barry have top-five potential this year in the discus and shot put, respectively.

With just one senior and a wealth of returning talent, the Presidents have the framework to improve for several years to come. This is something Franceschini attributes to the growth of the city's middle school programs.

"Since they implemented the middle school track program it has helped us to expose kids to the sport once again" he said. "Also in the middle school, physical education-wise, there is a lot more emphasis on track & field-type activities. Kids realize that they don't just have to be fast, that there are a lot of different events. I think we're starting to feel the effects of that increasing exposure."

He feels the payoff from that exposure will become greater of the next couple of years. "Right now we have a good, young squad that can finish in the middle of the pack," he said. "In the next couple of years I think we'll be battling it out with the top teams in the league."

The coach is also excited by the work ethic his club has shown. "This team has worked very hard. It is probably the most focused group we've had in a very long time."

NQ Drops Two, Three Girls Still Unbeaten

The North Quincy High girls' track team lost two recent outings to Old Colony League rivals Falmouth and Barnstable, but Red Raiders Jen Pineo, Phyllis Poon and Kelly Duggan remained unbeaten in their featured events.

Against Falmouth, Pineo captured the shot put with a throw of 35-feet-9-inches and the discus with a 98-7 effort. Versus the Red Raiders of the Cape, her first-place shot put heave went 37-1 and her winning discus throw went 102-4.

Poon took first in the 100-meter hurdles with times of 17.1 seconds against the Clippers and 16.7 seconds versus Barnstable. Duggan raced only in the Falmouth meet and won the two-mile in 12:52.8.

Erica Crawford gave the Red Raiders their other win in the 90-46 loss to Falmouth with a distance of 83-10 in the javelin. Second-place efforts were made by Suk Ng (100 hurdles) and Claire Quilty (javelin).

In the 82-54 loss to Barnstable, wins were posted by Jasmine Gonzalez (400 meters), Nicole Bertone (javelin) and the 4x100 relay team of Casey Ngo, Sharon Lee, Gonzalez and Poon. For Bertone, a freshman, it was her first time competing in the javelin.

Ngo (100), Pineo (200), Ursula Feurtado (800), Ng (100 hurdles) and Quilty (discus) recorded second-place finishes.

"We're progressing well, especially the rookies," said North Quincy coach Geoff Hennessy. "We don't worry about April performances. When the weather improves you'll see some big stuff."

The Raiders will take part in the state relays Saturday at Andover. Tuesday they travel to Taunton for an OCL meet.

North was hurt in the Falmouth and Barnstable meets, held during April vacation, by the loss of four athletes who went away for the week.

Pee Wee A's End Season On High Note

The Quincy Pee Wee A team, sponsored by the Quincy Lodge of Elks, ended the season on a victorious note as 1995 Pee Wee Champions of the 16th Annual American Legion Coca-Cola Tournament in Bourne.

The Quincy team was undefeated, topping Belmont, 2-0, WTM, 3-1, New Jersey Mavericks, 6-1, and taking the championship game, 4-1, against the Northern Rhode Island Vikings.

Dan Kennedy had the hot stick with five tournament goals, Mike Carloni followed with three goals and Paul Markarian scored twice. Single tallies were recorded by Paul Burke, Chris Griffin, Didier Alther, Ryan Doyle and Mike Welch.

Baseball

Loss Ends Two-Game Win Streak

Presidents Ousted By Brookline, 12-2

By KERRY BYRNE

A weak start by the Quincy High baseball team last Friday led to a 12-2 loss to Brookline and ended the Presidents' two-game win streak.

Quincy fell to 2-5 with the loss. They were scheduled to host Plymouth South yesterday (Wednesday) in the first-ever meeting between the two clubs following the split of Plymouth High School last year. The Presidents' next home game is Monday at 3:30 against Barnstable.

The Brookline Warriors jumped to a 5-0 lead after one inning and an 11-0 lead after three against a Quincy squad that was "not mentally prepared and not focused" according to coach Bob Sylvia.

"Technically, we were out of this after the first inning," he said. "Teams, especially ours, cannot spot a team five runs after one inning and expect to come back and win."

The most damaging hit in the opening set was a bases-loaded double by Alan Meigel which knocked in three runs. The heavy-hitting first baseman also knocked in runs in the second and third innings. The fact that Brookline lead-off man Joe Mandra came to the plate three times in the first two innings indicated the type of day Quincy was having.

"We were hoping to have some momentum after the two wins (3-2 and 2-1, both over Boston Latin)," said Sylvia. "A win again here could have put us in position for a tournament berth. This game was very disappointing for us. We have to forget about it now and move on."

Sophomore pitcher Chad Feetham came in for relief work for the Presidents in the second inning and, after getting stung a couple of times early, settled down and hurled one-run ball over the last four innings, including five strikeouts.

The Quincy batsmen showed signs of life in the third inning when they scored both their runs. Junior Mike Sheffer led off the inning when he was hit by a pitch. Steve Barrett, the lone senior playing full-time for the Presidents and one of only a couple on the roster, followed with an infield base hit which moved Sheffer to second. Sheffer then stole third and Barrett went to second when junior Joey Biagini grounded out.

Senior designated hitter Chris Delisle reached on an error which loaded the bases. With sophomore Bobby Walsh at the plate, a passed ball allowed Sheffer to score. Walsh was then thrown out at first on a fielder's choice which allowed Barrett to score.

However, the Presidents could not keep up an attack, going down 1-2-3 in each of the next three innings.

"This wasn't even growing pains," said Sylvia, in response to a question about his club's youth. "This was just not a good day. We have to forget about it and go on. Some days you just have a bad day. The nice thing about having young kids is that you can see what they're capable of now and hope to improve upon it."

Barrett recorded two of Quincy's three base hits on the afternoon.

met with school officials as yet.

Ayers told the board they originally wanted the site to be taken by eminent domain by the City of Quincy to use for parking school buses and cars, but the city could not afford to do so.

Board chairman Joseph Shea promised that next week a vote would be taken.

Acknowledging that it had been a long time since the request was originally made, Ayers promised he would meet with school officials in time for next week's meeting.

He said the size of the store would be 3500 square feet and have 18 parking spaces.

The smoke free restaurant will, have a video camera for security. Fleming said there will be no video , cigarette or mechanical machines or telephone booth.

A letter from John Gillon, traffic engineer to Councillor Ayers was presented at the meeting which stated that the business would not present any unique traffic problem and driveway conflicts may be less than the previous service station use.

Michael Jones, director of site development for D'Angelo's, told the board that D'Angelo's and Pizza Hut merged over a year ago, but this would be the first one in Quincy.

Fleming, who called the restaurant a "plus,plus for the city of Quincy" and a company with "quality background" said the business would have 46 seats and employ between 40 and 50 persons.

He said he met with Dick Myers, director of the work study program at North Quincy High School in order to employ some of the students. He said hours for working mothers will also be available.

OBITUARIES

Patricia A. Murphy, 60

New England Telephone Co. Supervisor

A funeral service for Patricia Ann "Pat" Murphy, 60, of Quincy, was held April 21 in Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Miss Murphy died April 18 at home after a long illness.

She was an employee with New England Telephone Co. for 30 years. She began work as a telephone operator and worked in many different capacities, retiring as a supervisor in 1988.

Miss Murphy came to New England from her native Pittsburgh to attend Eastern Nazarene College in Wollaston and was a member of the college church for more than 40 years. She was co-founder of the Bell Choir at the church and founder and a volunteer with its Inasmuch Sunday school class. She also sang in the church choir for a time.

After retiring, she worked part-time for Photomat in Wollaston.

She was a member of the Telephone Pioneers and the Science Museum.

Miss Murphy is survived by many friends, including Audrey Ward of Quincy, and many nieces, nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews.

Burial was in Blue Hill Cemetery, Braintree.

Funeral arrangements were by the Deware Funeral Home, 576 Hancock St.

Donations may be made to a memorial scholarship fund in her name at Eastern Nazarene College, 23 East Elm Ave., Wollaston, MA 02170.

Marion R. Treacy

Former Copywriter, Proofreader

A funeral Mass for Marion R. (Hurley) Treacy of West Quincy was celebrated April 21 in St. Mary's Church.

Mrs. Treacy died April 17 in Milton Hospital after a long illness. She previously had overcome a bout with colon cancer in 1986.

She worked as an advertising copywriter and proofreader for the S.S. Pierce Co. in Kenmore Square, Boston, in the 1930s and 40s.

A talented seamstress, she made a good deal of clothing for her family and also volunteered to teach sewing to local Girl Scouts.

She grew up in Wellesley Park, Dorchester, and graduated from Dorchester High School for Girls.

Talented in drawing, she won a scholarship to the Museum School at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston but was unable to attend for financial reasons. While in high school, however, she had been able to take some courses at the Museum School.

Mrs. Treacy enjoyed poetry and music, baking, traveling and keeping up with news events.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Troubles... We all have them. We all complain from time to time about them, but they are still there. In our daily lives we continually face difficult decisions, trying circumstances and situations.

A wise and philosophical man was once asked how he overcame his difficulties...He replied: "How do I get through a trouble? Well, first I try to go around it, and if I can't go around it, I try to get under it, and if I can't get under it, I try to go over it, and if I can't get over it, I just plow right through it." Then he added, "God and I plow right through it." Good advice? We think so...

Here's another good piece of advice..."Warning! Following are the names of the seven Mischievous Misses who are responsible for most of our troubles: Miss Information, Miss Quotation, Miss Representation, Miss Interpretation, Miss Construction, Miss Conception, Miss Understanding. Don't listen to them! Beware!"

1979 and Realtors believe more class time is necessary to educate new licensees on ever-changing agency, fair housing and disclosure laws.

"It's our belief that increased educational requirements for all real estate licensees will raise the level of professionalism within the industry, thereby providing greater protection to consumers," said Jim Stamos, QSSBR president.

In addition to expressing their views on the education initiatives, QSSBR officials asked local legislators to oppose a proposed Rivers Protection Act, S. 1099, which they say threatens individual private property rights and future economic growth in the Commonwealth. Specifically, the rivers bill would prohibit the future construction or renovation of any residential or commercial property which lies within 150 feet or more than 2,000 rivers, streams, brooks, and other tributaries currently designated for protection under the measure.

"The bill's severe restrictions on development will hurt the economic recovery now underway in Massachusetts because it will prevent business expansions, lower property values, and slow job growth in construction and other real estate-related occupations," said Stamos.

Realtors also object to the rivers bill because it lacks a funding mechanism to compensate property owners who lose full use of their land, and it duplicates the efforts of nearly a dozen existing local, state and federal regulations while providing no scientific rationale to support the 150-foot setback provision.

At the "Day on the Hill" program, QSSBR members, along with more than 300 other Realtors from across the state, heard from Priscilla Douglas, Massachusetts secretary for consumer affairs and business regulations, and Joel Blackwell, president of The Issues Management Co., who educated agents on effective grass-roots lobbying and communication techniques as a way to shape public policy.

Quincy Heights Center For Emotional Health Free Anxiety Screening Day

Quincy Heights Center For Emotional Health at Quincy Hospital will take part in National Anxiety Disorder Screening Day by offering a lecture and anxiety screening at the hospital May 3 at 1 and 5 p.m

Each session will last approximately one and a half hours. Stan Alexander Ph.D. will be the featured speaker and Program Site Director.

The screening presentation includes a lecture by a mental health professional, a video, completing a screening questionnaire and meeting with a mental health clinician to review the questionnaire and receive information about anxiety disorders. The event, co-sponsored by more than 15 national mental health organizations, will help to build awareness and educate the public about anxiety disorders, their symptoms and the effective treatment available.

More than 28 million Americans, nearly 25 percent of the population will have an anxiety disorder at some point in their lives. However, approximately only 25 percent of those suffering from an anxiety disorder will seek treatment.

Symptoms of anxiety disorders can range from specific phobias such as fear of elevators, insects, or lightening storms, to generalized anxiety disorder which can present as constantly feeling "on edge". Obsessive compulsive disorder can include certain behaviors such as excessive cleaning, counting and double-checking.

Fore more information on the free screening, call the hospital at 773-6100, Ext. 5427 or 773-9634.

Sign Enforcement On Hold While Changes Studied

mission's jurisdiction, it can only be amended by the City Council.

"They (the commission) are an enforcement arm," said Smith. "They do not make the law. I think the ordinance is necessary but needs updating."

The suggestion was made that the city's historic district, which includes a large stretch of Hancock Street from the Quincy Historical Society on Adams Street to School Street, could withstand a boundary change. The committee agreed to consider the possibility of removing the section of Hancock Street from School to Granite Streets from the district and/or the feasibility of placing a clause in the signage law that would exempt downtown businesses from its provisions.

Quincy 2000 Interim Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, however, said the signage committee should get a consensus from others in the downtown before submitting any amendment proposals to the City Council.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets, also suggested the establishment of the "basic instructional package" for those considering opening a business in Quincy Center. Such a package would be beneficial to business owners just starting out, she said.

"We have to make it easy for people to do business," she said.

Another topic that was brought up is the presence of billboards in the downtown. Currently, two buildings in Quincy Center have giant billboards on their rooftops, which angers some merchants who feel that the signage ordinance is too strict.

Both Reisberg and Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth said they are unhappy with the fact that the law restricts what businesses can do with signs but allows billboards to be placed on downtown rooftops.

However, another signage committee member, Planning Director Richard Meade, said the city no longer has authority over such matters. Due to a Supreme Court ruling, billboards are now protected under "freedom of speech" in the First Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, he noted.

The committee agreed to add a representative from the sign manufacturing community as well as a member of the city's building department--which enforces the ordinance--to its membership. Future meetings will be held Wednesdays at 3 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex.

The signage committee's session followed the Quincy Historical Commission meeting Monday night at which Missell announced that the commission would delay any action regarding punishment of possible infractions of the law. Taxworks and The Academy for Computer Training, located at 31 Temple St., were to appear before the commission for allegedly using two unapproved blinking box duplicate business sign names, but the hearing was postponed.

Two other businesses were denied signs at Monday night's meeting: Citizens Bank, which recently purchased Quincy Savings Bank, and The Law Offices of Spillane & Epstein.

Citizens went before the commission to replace the Quincy Savings Bank signs at its main office at 1200 Hancock St. in the downtown and its South Quincy branch at 138 Franklin St. While most of the signs requested were approved at both locations, the bank was denied permission for the two major signs--one to be placed along the front of each building--because the commission felt they were two large.

The main office sign requested, measuring 99 feet in length, was more than twice as long as the current 48-foot Quincy Savings Bank sign.

Citizens withdrew its request for the sign at the main office, which the bank plans to use as its regional headquarters, and return to the commission with a new proposal. Plans for an altered, smaller sign at the South Quincy branch were viewed more favorably by the board, but Citizens representatives said the new plan would have to be pre-approved by the bank's marketing department.

Citizens will be allowed to use temporary banners in place of the larger signs until replacements are approved.

David Spillane of Spillane & Epstein was denied his request for a new carved wood sign on the balcony at its location at 1212 Hancock St. While commission members admitted they liked the design of the sign, they said the spot where Spillane wanted it hung was not made for signage.

Currently, Spillane & Epstein have no sign at the site.

Spillane responded by noting that a business at the Dimmock Building across the street from his office has signage very similar to what he was requesting. The commission agreed, however, that that site was built in a way that makes the signage more feasible.

Spillane was asked to return to the commission with a new proposal.

Mr. Wizard Science Program At Sterling May 3

The mysteries of science will be explored at Sterling Middle School when ECA Educational Service, in conjunction with the Mr. Wizard Studios presents Mr. Wizard's Everyday Energy In Action.

New guidelines set by the American Academy for the Advancement of Science ask teachers to use hands-on projects in an effort to improve the science programs in our nation's schools. In keeping with these guidelines, Mr. Wizard Science Assembly Programs demonstrate the science of everyday living using interactive teaching methods.

Don Herbert, better known as "Mr. Wizard" from NBC TV's Watch Mr. Wizard and Nickelodeon's Mr. Wizard's Worlds, has produced a program for Sterling at 9:45 a.m. Wayne Kirsch, his assistant will present the program.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. AMD 4/27

FIRE TEARS THROUGH the site of the former Dutton's Restaurant on Sea Street last Friday. The cause of the blaze, which caused $350,000 damage, is still under investigation.

4-Alarm Blaze At New Restaurant Still Under Probe

Quincy and state fire officials are still investigating the cause of a fire last Friday that destroyed the former Dutton's Restaurant on Sea Street, which was recently renovated and scheduled to be reopened this month.

The building was to reopen as a new restaurant, The Custom House. However, the four-alarm fire destroyed all but the building's masonry, according to Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and other city officials.

Gorman said the fire apparently began in the building's cellar around 4:30 a.m. and was out in about 30 minutes because of the teamwork of 36 firefighters. There were no live gas lines in the building and no electricity, except for a temporary cord brought in from the outside, he added.

The chief said damage was estimated at about $350,000.

Susan Manning of South Boston and Paul Flaherty of Wollaston, the partners behind The Custom House, said they still plan to open the restaurant. Their goal of reopening the site, which has been vacant for 12 years, has drawn wide support from the neighborhood.

Before Dutton's, the site was the location of the Fox and Hounds, a landmark restaurant with a popular piano bar.

N.Q. Pizza Hut Gets Go-Ahead

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The License Board on a 3-2 vote Tuesday gave D'Angelo/Pizza Hut the go-ahead to open a restaurant next door to North Quincy High School.

Opponents expressed concern that students might leave the school during class hours to skip over to the restaurant.

Voting for the license were Chairman Joseph Shea, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman and Police Chief Francis Mullen. Opposing it were Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and Building Inspector Matt Mulvey.

The vote followed a plea from Steve McLaughlin, director of real estate for D'Angelo's

Voting against the proposal was Health Commissioner Jane Gallahue and Building Inspector, Matt Mulvey. Both said they had concerns over the effect a fast food restaurant 30 feet away from the school would have on students.

After hearing oppositions from several parents of students at North Quincy High School who called the venture an inappropriate use for the space that was once a gas station, McLaughlin told the license board not to "put the burden on D'Angelo's to make students stay in school". He added that it was a "discipline problem" for the school and not to make "D'Angelo a scape goat".

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers told the board he had met with North Quincy residents including the Atlantic Neighborhood Association, the Superintendent of Schools and principal of North Quincy High School. He said the consensus was that the property would be better used for school activities or parking.

Ayers addressed concerns and restrictions which included security, proper ventilation limiting odors from distracting students in classrooms, no cigarette, vending, video machines, no pay phones and no smoking.

Also, that the dumpster comply with the city ordinances and health commissioner review.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing D'Angelo's said all of Ayers restrictions had been taken into consideration and were all being complied with.

Shea, who called the decision a "tough one" began by asking board members to initiate a motion. Mulvey made the motion to deny D'Angelo the license, seconded by Gallahue.

Gorman made the motion to grant the request, seconded by Mullen. The vote was then taken. with Shea siding in favor.

Some of those speaking in opposition at the meeting were Arthur Linehan, co-president of NQHS PTO, Kathleen Zangla, vice-president, Janet Reilly, co-president, Denise Mulcahy, treasurer, Ed Fitzgerald, president.

Also Ken McPhee, dean of students at NQHS, said he opposed the restaurant because it would make his job more difficult in the discipline of the students. He said there are 1260 students at the school with 12 doors and not all the doors are checked.

Speaking in favor of the proposal was Atty. George Burke whose office was once housed in the building next to the gas station.

Raymondi Asks For City Audit

Ambulance Billings Questioned

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy Atty. Daniel Raymondi has asked the city to conduct an audit of an ambulance company serving Quincy Hospital and residents to determine whether it is using improper or inconsistent billing practices.

Raymondi also called the matter to the attention of the Norfolk County District Attorney's office which referred it to the state Attorney General's office for investigation.

Raymondi said he is raising the questions because of bills received by two of his clients from the Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Service.

"The issue is whether the billing practices are improper or inconsistent with the language of the contract" between the hospital and the ambulance company, Raymondi said.

Norfolk-Bristol President Robert Zammito said his company is open-minded about the possibility of an audit.

"We have no problem with it," he said. "Our books are open to anybody."

The hospital has the right to call for an audit because its contract with the company states "Quincy Hospital, acting through its chief financial officer or his/her designee, reserves the right to call for or perform an audit of the Contractor's accounts, as they pertain to this contract."

The city could also ask the hospital to conduct an audit. City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said material forwarded to him by Raymondi indicates that there could be a legimate

$434,555 Appropriated For City Dept. Vehicles

The City Council appropriated $434,555 Monday night for new vehicles for city departments.

The police department received $252,000 to replace 10 of its 55 cruisers. Police Chief Francis Mullen said the older cruisers each have more than 100,000 miles.

An additional $182,555 was appropriated for nine other new vehicles for other departments. Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton said seven of those will replace 10-year-old cars used by several city departments.

Colton said the other two vehicles will go to the data processing and traffic engineering departments. Employees in those departments currently use their own cars, he said.

The money for the vehicles was taken from the city's free cash (cash surplus) account.

Kolson Proposes New Graffiti Law

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is calling for a new law that would impose a $200 fine on those who spray graffiti on public buildings.

Kolson introduced his proposed ordinance at Monday night's council meeting.

The law would also call for a $100 award to be presented to any individual who provides the police department with information that leads to the arrest of a person or persons who violate the ordinance.

Kolson said graffiti is a serious problem in many communities.

"It's becoming so prevalent in our society," he said. "It's actually a scourge, it that's what you want to call it."

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia, who brought up the subject of such an ordinance last September, noted that the city recently invoked a state law that defines graffiti as a felony. He said any new city ordinance should include private as well as public buildings.

"There has recently been a diminishing of graffiti in places I've notice before," he said. "However, private property is a different story. I personally think our biggest problem is on private property."

LaRaia said he has also noticed a graffiti problem on coin-operated newspaper boxes throughout the city.

The council agreed to submit the proposed ordinance to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath for review.

Sheets Submits $136.6M Budget To City Council

Mayor James Sheets has submitted a proposed FY96 budget of $136,652,789 to the City Council.

Sheets announced his plans for the proposal, which is up nearly $3 million from last year's budget, to The Quincy Sun two weeks ago. The new budget calls for slight increases in most city departments, with the largest going to the school and park departments.

The City Council sent the proposed budget to its Finance Committee Monday night. The council cannot add to the budget but has the power to make cuts before the beginning of the new fiscal year, which begins July 1.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the Finance Committee, said he will schedule budget sessions for the council by the end of the week.

First Night Carnival Raises $10,000

A carnival held last week on Faxon Field raised $10,000 for First Night Quincy, announces First Night Chairman and Council President Michael Cheney.

"Hundreds of families came out and enjoyed a fun-filled afternoon or evening of rides and entertainment. It was an overwhelming success," Cheney said.

Twenty percent of the proceeds, or $2,000, will be distributed to Quincy High School athletic teams and Little League Baseball and Youth Soccer. "We feel that we should share in the profits of this wonderful event with the groups that most utilize our athletic facilities," Cheney said.

On Monday morning a delegation of representatives from the school department and park department walked the field with Cheney and a representative of Fiesta Shows to determine the condition of the field at the conclusion of the who and removal of the equipment. Cheney noted that outside of a few areas of matted grass the field was left in substantially the same condition as before the carnival.

Cheney required Fiesta Shows to post a $5 million bond for liability which would be utilized in the event there was any damage done to the field. City officials are expected to release Fiesta Show's bond by the end of the week.

As a requirement for the use of the field, Fiesta Shows provided photos of the field before and after its use. Cheney noted the infields (the baseball diamond recently refurbished)--those areas not used--they were blocked off.

The outfields are scheduled to be refurbished this summer.

"Even thou Faxon Field has not yet been refurbished under the park department's improvement program, we still took every precaution to ensure that the field would be left in the same condition in which it was found, and we were successful to that end," Cheney said.

Cheney thank all those who attended the event and made it a success.

Middle School Women's History March May 9

A middle school march in period costume will be held Tuesday, May 9 at 10 a. m. to commemorate 219 years of U.S. women's history including "75 Years of Voting Women."

Student role players portraying Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Susan B. Anthony and others will pass through Quincy Center where Mayor James Sheets will address the 219 female Quincy middle school marchers.

From Quincy Center, the two-mile march will proceed in its final destination: the Adams National Historic site. A costumed Abigail Adams will address those gathered to remember the ladies and the struggle for the right to vote for women.

Teachers from the middle schools are organizing the march as an outgrowth of the middle school U.S. history curriculum.

Support for the event is being provided by the National Park Service, Adams National Historical Site, the mayor's office, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and School Supt. Eugene Creedon's office.

Chapter I Dinner, Election Meeting May 10

Chapter I parents of Quincy public schools will meet Wednesday, May 10 at the Ward 4 Community Room at the Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center.

Dinner will be served at 6 p.m. followed by an election of representatives to the Parent Advisory Council. At 7 p.m. parents will plan the Chapter I program for 1995-96.

Childcare will be proved for children two to six years with pre-registration. Parents may register by returning a form to their child's Chapter I office at 984-8737 by Friday.

PRIME TIME FOR LYME DISEASE

Lyme disease is one of those illnesses you never used to hear about. With our increasingly mobile society, however, it is a disease everyone these days should be aware of, especially during the spring and early summer. Lyme disease, identified and named only a few years ago, is a tick-borne illness that can cause arthritis and disorders of the heart and central nervous system. It is most common in the forest areas of the Northeast and Pacific coasts and in the upper Midwest - but new cases are being reported in other regions as well. The bite of a pin-head-size deer tick is responsible for spreading the disease, which is diagnosed on the basis of blood tests and symptoms, and treated with antibiotics.

P.S. Symptoms of Lyme disease include flu-like aches and pains and a clearly defined rash with a light center.

If you are traveling on vacation, it's worth finding out if you need some medical protection in the form of immunization before you go. In our office, all medical professionals keep up-to-date on the latest information on medical intervention and care. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself offer complete medical care with a focus on treating heart disease. Call 472-2550; office hours by appointment. I am also board certified in cardiology and internal medicine.

Council Scorecard, Anyone?

You may need a scorecard to keep track of the City Council candidates this election year.

Several more—a few of them surprises—trotted onto the campaign field this week as nomination papers became available at City Hall.

Among other developments, the stage was apparently set for a four-way race in Ward 4, a possible four-way run in Ward 5, an unexpected contest in Ward 1 and a race in Ward 2.

Ward 4 incumbent Tom Fabrizio, it appears, will have to fend off three challengers.

Gregg Rennie, 28, of Gridley St., a financial advisor, officially announced his candidacy for the seat, and Michael Larkin of Alrick Rd., 50, a parole officer took out nomination papers. Michael D'Amico, 19, who ran against Fabrizio two years ago, has already been campaigning.

A POLITICAL NEWCOMER stepped out of the wings in Ward 1 in Joseph Kasparian, Jr., 61, of Rhude St., a retired police officer, who picked up nomination papers for the seat held by Peter Kolson. It came as a surprise to political observers as there had been no speculation about a possible challenger.

TO NO ONE'S real surprise, School Committee Vice Chairman Dan Raymondi took out nomination papers for the Ward 2 council seat being vacated by Ted DeCristofaro who has held it 14 years.

Mark Roberts of Curtis Ave., a young attorney and political newcomer, officially announced his candidacy for the seat.

THERE COULD BE a fourth candidate for the Ward 5 council seat Charles Phelan is retiring from.

Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, former chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging and Wollaston businesswoman, says she is thinking of joining Steve Durkin, Steve Reilly and Dennis Dockham as a candidate.

Stenberg, who now lives at 80 Clay St., says she wants the city to do more for senior citizens and more to bring new business here.

Stenberg, who has run for the council in the past, could be the only woman candidate for the Ward 5 seat this year if she decides to run.

That seat, incidentally, has never been held by a woman.

MEANWHILE, A POTENTIAL Ward 5 candidate, has decided to sit out this election year. Joseph Murphy, legislative aide to state Rep. Ron Mariano, says his decision not to run was a difficult one. At this particular time, he says, "I simply don't have the time to devote to the job of city councillor."

Murphy indicates he will remain neutral in the Ward 5 fight this year and could be a candidate himself in the future.

A KICKOFF FUNDRAISER for Ron McCarthy, candidate for School Committee, is set for 6 p.m., Friday, May 12 at the Fours Restaurant, Quincy Center.

McCarthy and his wife, Diane, are celebrating the recent birth of their second daughter, Veronica Mikaela.

MARTY FINNEGAN, retired Quincy public schools athletic director, and his wife, Norma, are in town for a visit. They moved to California last October and have decided to make it permanent. They just bought a home in Desert Hot Springs, about an hour's drive from Pasadena.

"It's the perfect house," says Marty, a golf nut. "Just a little off the fourth green at the Mission Lakes Country Club. We keep a golf cart in the garage and we're to the first tee in three minutes."

He's got Norma swinging the clubs, too.

While here, Marty will attend the reunion of the Quincy High School football teams of 1950-59 Saturday night at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

ALSO VISITING is Joe Fasci who has been living in Texas the last three years.

Fasci and Tom Tehan were partners in the Ultrasonic Testing Engineering firm that went up in smoke one night in 1986 when fire destroyed the Mutual Building, better known as the Kincaide Building, in downtown.

While here, he and Tehan planned to attend the annual dinner of the Fore River Shipyard Long Service Club that is still active though the shipyard isn't.

Fasci, who was active in the Quincy Legion and Bryan VFW Posts here is now chaplain of the Lake Granbury Legion Post (491) in Granbury, Tex. And his daughter, Rev. Kathryn Fasci-Hubley is chaplain of the post's auxiliary.

Joe thinks they could be the only father-daughter Legion chaplain team in the country.

Kiwanis Family Safety Day May 13

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy will sponsor a Bicycle Rodeo and Family Safety Day Saturday, May 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Wollaston School, Beale St.

The event will feature a bicycle obstacle course, free bicycle inspection, free helmet fitting as well as demonstrations on rollerblade safety, street smarts. There will also be refreshments, games and a drawing for a free bicycle provided by the Bicycle Link in Weymouth.

Safety-approved bicycle helmets for children and adults will be available for $6 each.

Organizations supporting the bicycle rodeo and family safety include the South Shore YMCA, Impact Quincy, Citizens Bank, Monadnock Spring Water and the American Heart Association.

It is in cooperation with the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Institute.

Quincy Conservation Committee Meeting

The Quincy Conservation Commission was to meet last night (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Among the items on its agenda:

•Notice of Intent filed by state Sen. Michael Morrissey for the repair of an existing walkway and dock area on property located at 111 Lansdowne St. to the edge of Pope's Creek.

•Request for Determination of Applicability filed by Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson for the management and control of phragmites for the purpose of fire prevention near residents' homes on property located adjacent to Broad Meadows Middle School, 50 Calvin Rd.

•Request for Determination of Applicability filed by Frank Brangiforte for the construction of a 24-foot by 30-foot garage on existing piles on property located at 243 Hollis Ave.

•Request for Determination of Applicability filed by Jens Thornton for the dumping of dirt on a coastal bank, and the dumping of concrete blocks on a coastal beach, on Plot 28, Bayside Road.

Scenes From Yesterday

THE NATIONAL SAILORS HOME shown on this old postcard was located near Dickens Street in what is now known as the Beechwood Knoll section of Wollaston. In operation for over 50 years, the home was opened after the Civil War to care for indigent U.S. Navy veterans. A small graveyard in Grossman Park, across Fenno St. from this site, contains over 100 stone markers noting the remains of some of the 19th century sailors who spent their last years in Quincy. Across Rice Road, Sailors Home Pond still bears the name of this otherwise long forgotten part of Quincy's past.

Signage Law Is Too Strict

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I don't understand the big deal ("Sign Enforcement On Hold While Changes Studied," Quincy Sun, April 27). The Quincy Historical Commission has delayed any decision on the city's controversial signage ordinance until after the Quincy Signage Committee has completed its duties.

I agree with downtown merchants who say the ordinance is too strict. No one wants downtown Quincy to be "a mish-mash and a mess," as one person told The Sun, but shouldn't the bottom line be keeping the business district alive? It will never be "Shopperstown USA" again, but it doesn't have to be a ghost town, either. Any ordinance so strict or inflexible that in the name of preserving aesthetics or historic character results in the closure of existing retail outlets is dumb and counterproductive to the future of downtown Quincy.

Do we want to have a vibrant business district or do we want some historic shrine dedicated to the old days? Are we putting the area on some South Shore Freedom Trail or are we encouraging growth and opportunity as we move closer to the 21st century?

I agree with Bernie Reisberg, who has been in Quincy for 47 years when he observed, "I want to see a happy atmosphere in Quincy. We're going through real tough times today, and we're not making it easy for merchants to survive."

Historic sites are nice, but downtown Quincy is not yet ready to be that. However, if we keep changing businesses from the city with apparently unrealistic ordinances, we will doom downtown Quincy forever. Hopefully, all sites in this mutter can come up with reasonable compromises to keep the retail districts going into another century.

WORK, Inc. Urges Support For Direct Care Wage Increases

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Massachusetts House Budget for FY '96 was passed April 14 without line item #1104-1020 - a $15 million pay raise for human service workers who care for people with mental illness and retardation. These direct care workers care for, educate, train, and support the Commonwealth's most vulnerable citizens. WORK, Inc., based in Quincy for 25 years, is a non-profit organization which employs nearly 300 direct care professionals--176 in its Quincy division. We strongly support the $15 million line item.

Most direct care workers have not received a pay increase in seven years. Often times, human service agencies are faced with additional challenges of shrinking staffs and resources as they try to serve the state's most challenging clients. Employees struggle with difficult working environments and low pay.

Despite all these hardships, these human service workers are saving the Commonwealth millions of dollars each year. It annually costs about $31,320 (or $85.81 a day) to care for a person with mental illness in a community-based home. If that same person was placed in a state hospital, it would cost almost $172,754 a year (or $473.30 per day).

The pay raises, which amount of $1295/worker annually, after taxes, would affect 10,348 direct care employees, currently making an average salary of $17,200. That's an hourly increase of $0.62. It is easy to forget that 90 percent of these workers' salaries are paid by the state. Unless the state legislature raises their salaries, human service providers have no other means of receiving pay raises.

WORK, Inc. serves more consumers with disabilities, 1042, than any other organization on the South Shore. On behalf of the staff and consumers of WORK, Inc., we urge our elected officials to support wage increases for the state's direct care workers, employed in private, non-profit agencies serving the mentally ill and retarded.

Hannon Cuts Red Tape On Mall Construction

By PAUL HAROLD

May 4 - 10
1973
22 Years Ago

Pushing for a Labor Day completion date, Mayor Walter Hannon convened a meeting of engineers and MBTA personnel in his office to cut the red tape that had been delaying the construction of a pedestrian mall at the site of the former McGilvray's Drug store.

During the meeting Hannon called MBTA General Manager Joseph Kelly for the green light on the project. Also called in to work out plans for the survey work was city engineer Edward Leone.

The new design called for the elimination of the bus route on what was Depot St. and the relocation of 48 parking spaces for city hall workers.

The mall was scheduled to be named after Mayor James McIntyre's father, a former captain in the Police Department.

VIETNAM VETERANS' PLAQUE DEDICATED

A plaque was dedicated at North Quincy High School honoring 11 of the school's graduates who were killed in Vietnam from 1964 to 1973.

Former Mayor James McIntyre said, "It's difficult duty for me because I knew most of these young men and I know their parents."

Those honored were Brian Ahern of Andrews Rd., Christopher Donahue, George Fell of East Squantum St., Peter Gerry of North Bayfield Rd., Martin Keefe of Billings St., Lawrence Sirois of Vassall St., James Stark of Fenno St., David Sullivan of Safford St., Richard Vasconcellos of Newbury Ave., Gary Webb and Ralph Willard of Ditmar St.

SENIOR CITIZENS GOVERNMENT DAY

A mock City Council meeting was held in the Council Chambers as part of the senior citizen government day activities.

City Council President Arthur Tobin handed over the gavel to Edna Magee of Snug Harbor Court who was council president for the afternoon.

Among the resolves endorsed by the senior councillors was a motion by acting Ward 6 Councillor Marie Thibault of Ellerton St. for a 25 percent cut in city taxes. Also endorsed were proposals to lower the cost for seniors for prescription drugs and utility charges, putting a check on false alarms, and a thank you to the Quincy Housing Authority for public housing.

QUINCY-ISMS

More than 3,000 people watched the Loyalty Day parade along Hancock, Elm, Washington Streets and McGrath Highway. Sponsored by the George F. Bryan V.F.W. Post, the parade included 43 units. Councillors Tobin and John Quinn were among those marching. Essay award winners in the Loyalty Day competition were Robert Barron of Quincy High School, Margaret Noll, John Conroy and Paul Morris of Broad Meadows Junior High School; John Cheney of St. John's and Diane Praderio of Sterling. . . Ralph Paull, commander-elect and Joseph LeClair, past commander of the Quincy Jewish War Veterans, were honored by the state Jewish war veterans for their community youth work. . . Sabina's House of Beauty on Hancock St. offered a senior citizen wash and set for $1.75. . . Jimmy Carter, governor of Georgia, was scheduled to speak at the annual Protestant Men's Prayer Breakfast. . . Quincy High School track coach Tom Hall was given most of the credit for the team's 28 out of 29 wins. . . Three new fire lieutenants sworn in were George Taylor, Edward O'Toole and Roy Rizzi. . . Mayor Hannon proclaimed 1973 "Koch Club Year," its 25th anniversary. . . Mass. Young Democrats President Paul Harold introduced a resolve at the Y.D.'s regional conference for the impeachment of President Nixon. . . Joseph Verlicco of Merrymount died this week. . . The big offensive weapons for North Quincy High School in their win over Somerville were Lee Watkins, Bob Pierce, Steve McLaughlin. . . John Lydon Jr., vice chairman of the Rent Grievance Board, proposed a series of actions to prevent Quincy from becoming a student dormitory for the new UMass at Columbia Point. "It is my concern that an influx of students would have a detrimental effect on neighborhoods and city services," he said. . . Apartments at Grandview House, 100 Grandview Ave., were $225 for a one bedroom. . . A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hurley. . . The Quincy Citizens Association opposed the sale of city land on Quarry St. to the Elks. . . Ronald Iacobucci of Quincy High School received the Reuben and Lizzie Grossman award. . . Mrs. Lawrence Baker of Warren Avenue headed up the auction for the Republican City Committee.

Special Stuffing For Cornish Hens

Dinner at our friend's Keith and Connie (and their handsome 2 year old son David) was a gourmet's delight.

For the entree we had stuffed grilled Cornish hens. The stuffing recipe, made with Jarlsberg cheese was so different, I just had to share it with all of you..

For dessert we had an incredible pistachio cake in which Connie made her own filling and frosting. That recipe is also included today.

Connie's special stuffing

1 cup chopped mushrooms
1/4 cup butter or margarine
2 cups cubed zucchini
1 cup chopped onion
1 medium garlic glove (minced)
1/2 teaspoon oregano
2 medium tomatoes (chopped)
1 1/2 cups shredded Jarlsberg cheese
salt and pepper to taste
5 Cornish hens (about 1 pound each)
1/2 cup bottled Caesar salad dressing

Brown mushrooms in butter. Add the next 4 ingredients. Cook until zucchini is tender. Remove from heat. Blend in the tomatoes, the cheese, salt and pepper. and salad dressing. Cool and then fill each hen. Season hens with salt and pepper. you can either bake in a 350 degree oven basting them as they bake or grill them 4 inches from coals about 20 minutes or until done.

Connie's Pistachio Cake

1 yellow cake mix (or a favorite cake recipe from scratch)
1/2 cup chopped pistachio nuts
1 small package instant pistachio pudding

Bake cake according to directions.adding the other two ingredients listed above.using two cake pans.

For the filling and topping heavy cream
another package pistachio instant pudding
1/4 cup pistachio nuts for topping

Mix heavy cream and . pistachio pudding and whip until thickened.

Place half the mixture in the center of the cake and then rest as the frosting. top with the nuts.

My husband commented that I hardly ever finish dessert, but this day I did and if you bake this cake, I think you will do.

Poet To Give Readings At Crane Library

South Shore Poet Elizabeth Carter Torrey will give a reading Thursday, May 11 at 7:30 p.m. at the Thomas Crane Public Library, Quincy Square.

She will read from her own work in progress, "Cargo of Stars," and from the works of other poets. Her program will include time for discussion.

Torrey is a member of Salt Winds Poetry Group, the New England Club, and Blue Moon Poets of Cambridge. She has been giving readings since 1983 in the Boston area and on Cape Cod. In addition, she is a librarian and a free lance editor of novels for teenagers.

The poet says that she writes to expand her boundaries, "to discover alleluias to shout about in an increasingly beleaguered world."

The poetry reading is sponsored by the Friends of the Library. All interested adults and young adults are welcome.

Impact Quincy Accepting Community Hero Nominations

Impact Quincy is accepting nominations until May 10 for its annual Community Hero Awards, which will be presented at the IQ annual meeting in June.

Any member of the community is invited to nominate persons or organizations for this year's awards, which will be selected by the Impact Quincy Leadership Team.

Nominees for the awards may be any person who lives and/or works in Quincy, and whose professional or volunteer efforts have contributed to the creation of a healthier, more caring community. In selecting the recipients of this year's awards, the IQ Leadership Team will be looking particularly for those persons who have worked to strengthen communication, foster relationships, and create and support true community collaborations which promote and sustain healthy living.

Nominations must be in writing, and must be received by 5 p.m. on Wednesday, May 10 at the IQ offices, 15 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center.

Forms are available at the IQ office and a ballot also appears in this issue of The Quincy Sun.

Last year, 10 individuals and organizations were honored as the first Impact Quincy Community Heros. The recipients represented a broad range of the community, from business to education to law enforcement.

Last year's recipients were Debbie Cheung, guidance counselor at Atlantic Middle School; Sgt. Bob Edgar, Quincy Police Department DARE officer; the First Night Committee; Dr. Mary C. Lydon, Quincy Public Schools Health Education director; Carole Neuhch long-time early childhoo advocate; The Open Door Quincy Peace Festival, the Senior Olympics, Charles R. Simpson Jr. former president of Quincy Savings Bank; and Teen Get-Away.

Impact Quincy is a community-based coalition of volunteers who worked collaboratively to prevent alcohol, tobacco, and other drug problems within the community. In selecting the Community Heros, IQ recognized community members fo their efforts that directly o indirectly helped to reduc these problems by creating a stronger community.

Gregg Rennie Candidate For Ward 4 Councillor

Gregg T. Rennie, 28, of 100 Gridley St., West Quincy, announces he is a candidate for Ward 4 city councillor.

Rennie, a financial advisor for American Express Inc., co-manages an independent office at 1245 Hancock St. in Quincy Center.

"My practice focuses on advising small business owners with the diverse planning that they face in business today. As a member of Quincy 2000 and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, I feel I am in tune with the local business owners needs for existing and start-up businesses in Ward 4," Rennie said.

"We still have many empty commercial spaces that are not being utilized to their potential. I am also in favor of a major hotel in Quincy Center," Rennie said.

If elected, Rennie said he looks forward to representing the citizens of Ward 4. "Growing up in a West Quincy neighborhood I have seen first hand some of the major projects that have changed the structure of Ward 4. As a city councillor, I would like to see some of the mistakes that have been made in terms of zoning and building not repeated," Rennie said.

"One of the major issues that my campaign will focus on is public safety and the need for more youth programs. I feel that the lack of quality programs for our young people has had a direct impact on public safety and always will. I also believe that the upgrading and expansion of local schools should be an issue throughout this campaign," Rennie said.

Rennie attended St. Mary's Elementary School and the Gridley Bryant School, both in West Quincy. He is a 1984 graduate of Archbishop Williams High School and a 1989 graduate of the University of Massachusetts at Boston with a bachelor of arts degree in economics.

A fundraiser for Rennie's campaign will be held Thursday, May 25 from 7 to 10 p.m. in the Tirrell Room, Quincy Lodge of Elks, Quarry St., West Quincy.

Council To Rezone Fore River Shipyard

The City Council will soon rezone the Fore River shipyard to Planned Unit Development (PUD) zoning.

The shipyard was previously zoned PUD but was rezoned to Industrial "B" last year because of a Greek company's plans to revitalize the yard by bringing shipbuilding back to the area. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said at the time that if the company's plans fell through--which eventually happened--the council would rezone the shipyard to PUD.

Councillors feel PUD zoning offers the most protection for city residents because it makes the council the permit-granting authority that has the final say on what kind of a business can move into and/or build at any given site.

No one appeared at a public hearing Monday night to speak for or against the matter. The council will rezone the shipyard later this year, although probably not before its summer break.

Low Vision Elders Invited To Join Senior Olympics

Low vision elders are invited to participate in the Quincy Senior Olympics.

Walking partners (volunteers from Quincy Lion's Club) will team up with Senior Olympians with low vision for two events.

•The one mile walk, May 8 at 6 p.m. preceding the opening ceremony with Mayor James Sheets.

•The half-mile walk, Saturday, May 13 at 9 a.m.

The 13th Annual Senior Olympic Games begin May 8. Senior Olympians receive an official Olympic shirt and are invited to participate in all social activities related to the Sports computer.

Happy 106th!

106 YEARS YOUNG--Cecelia Anderson, a resident of the Friel Nursing Home in Wollaston, celebrated her 106th birthday Monday. A native of Sweden, Mrs. Anderson moved to Quincy at age 15 and worked as a seamstress before her retirement. She attributes her long life to "strong faith, a slow, simple life and a good cup of coffee." (Robert Gorrill photo)

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them, including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

So, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-1322.

The camp provides age-appropriate programs for children, a leadership training program for teens, a tennis camp for children ages 9-12, and Family Nights which will be open to all camp families.

Mark Roberts Candidate For Ward 2 Councillor

Mark F. Roberts of 30 Curtis Ave. announces his candidacy for Ward 2 city councillor.

MARK ROBERTS

Roberts, who was recently admitted to the Massachusetts Bar, received his law degree from the Massachusetts School of Law and his bachelor's degree in financial management from the University of Massachusetts at Lowell. He has experience as a small business owner and is employed by State Street Bank in Quincy.

Roberts enlisted in the Massachusetts Air National Guard at Otis Air Force Base in Falmouth in 1989 and is completing his commitment this year. He received the Air Force Achievement Medal and was awarded the Outstanding Airman of the Year by the First Numbered Air Force.

He is married to life long Quincy resident Judy Folsom Roberts, a graduate of Quincy High School and Quincy College.

"I feel that my family education, and experience in business, banking and the military have given me the discipline and the other qualities necessary to help make Quincy a friendly business environment while maintaining the family oriented quality of life that attracted many of us to Quincy," Roberts said.

"I would like to continue the commitment the outgoing Councillor Leo DeCristofaro has made to the elderly and veterans issues, while also advancing the business and quality of life issues in Quincy," he added. "I want Quincy to be city where families feel safe from crime and do not have to choose between buying food and paying their water bills."

"These are ambitious goals, but if we can get the political, business, and media leaders to work together with the residents then we will be successful in advancing Quincy together as a city prepared for the changes awaiting us in the 21st century."

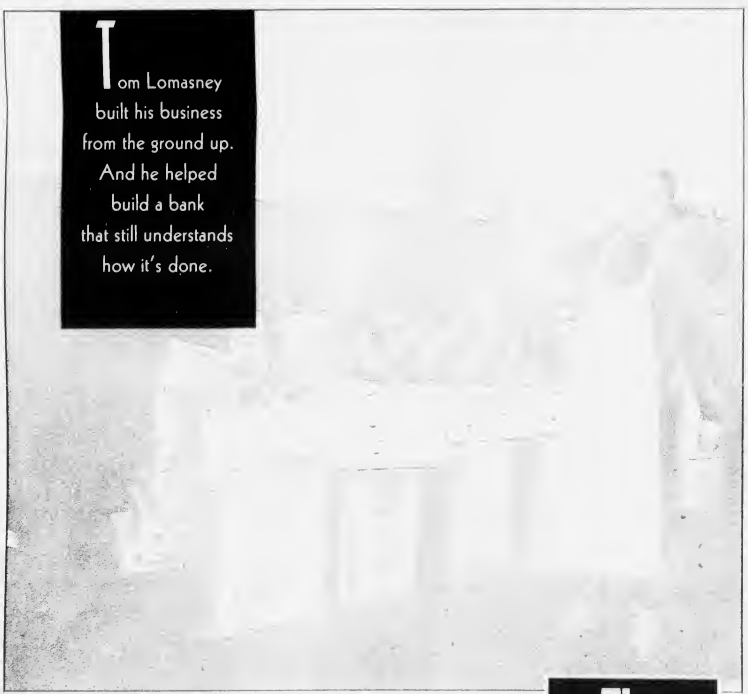
Tom Lomasney built his business from the ground up. And he helped build a bank that still understands how it's done.



Starting with little more than ambition and an appetite for hard work, Thomas Lomasney built a thriving wholesale produce business in Boston's North End. Then, as an incorporator of The Hibernia Savings Bank, he put his enthusiasm and expertise to work for other ambitious small business owners. Lomasney's legacy is still at work today in the bank he helped establish. If you have a small business, and you need financing to get a little bigger, call Joe Richardi at 479-2265. He'll be glad to listen, offer suggestions – and then put Thomas Lomasney's legacy to work for your business. Call now. You're welcome at The Hibernia Savings Bank.

AVOID BACK PROBLEMS WHILE CATCHING SPRING FEVER

It appears that the worst of the long cold winter is behind us as the sleds, shovels and ice skates have been replaced by bicycles, rakes and baseball bats. The longer, warmer days not only signal a time of renewal for the plants and animals of our environment, but springtime also beckons each of us to get off the couch, put down the TV clicker, and get outside and do something. Whether it be exercise, recreation or working around the house, there are many examples of springtime activities which can be harmful to your spine of you are not careful. Specific activities which can be troublesome include swinging a golf club or baseball bat, turning over the garden, raking and cleaning up the yard, and lifting fallen tree limbs, bags of manure, limestone or peat moss.

It would be a good idea for each of us, especially those folks who have been relatively inactive during the winter months to take a few moments to stretch and loosen up our backs before engaging in stressful physical activity.

After warming up, use common sense and start your activity slowly; maintain good posture with your back straight and knees bent whenever possible; and avoid repetitive bending, twisting and lifting. Remember that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, as you enjoy the spring of 1995.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Law Day Ceremonies Held At Quincy District Court

Area police officers, officials and other community leaders were honored at the Quincy District Court's annual Law Day ceremonies Tuesday.

Nine police officers received the Robert P. Dana Award for outstanding police service above and beyond the call of duty. The award was presented by Norfolk County District Atty. William Delahunt.

Receiving the Dana award were Officers William West, Brian Cherry and Paul Baleyko of the Milton Police Department; Detective John Hamelburg of the Randolph Police Department; Troopers Scott Wilson and Megan Mason of the Milton State Police; Troopers Timothy Walsh and James Arroyo of the Norwell State Police and Trooper Brian O'Riordan of the Old Colony State Police.

The District Attorney's Special Award was presented to Robert Barry.

The James M. McIntyre Memorial Award for outstanding service in law and government was presented to Fr. William McCarthy, former pastor of St. John the Baptist Catholic Church in Quincy for his many years of serving the homeless, poor and others in need.

The Alfred P. Maloney Award, given by the Quincy Bar Association's outstanding attorney and man of the year, was presented to Gerald Kirby.

The Jason Feldman Award for outstanding citizenship was presented to The Patriot Ledger for work in printing the court's lists of "most wanted" suspects. Accepting on behalf of the paper was Editor William Ketter.

The outstanding program award was presented to Polaroid Corp. of Cambridge which supplies the court with cameras. The award was accepted by Barbara Poremba, the company's law enforcement market manager.

A special merit award was presented to Sgt. Edward O'Malley of the MBTA Police.

The Honorable Judge Charles E. Black, the court's presiding justice, brought greetings from the court and introduced the guest speaker, state Public Safety Commissioner William Baker.

Winners of the Dennis F. Ryan Essay Contest, named for the distinguished district court magistrate, were announced. Local high school students participated in the contest. The three winners were Monika Boban of Weymouth High School, Bonnie Chan of Quincy High School and Tramaine Weeks of Randolph, who attends The Woodward School for Girls in Quincy.

Robert Bloom, first assistant clerk magistrate, was master of ceremonies.

Atty. Jean Alexander, president of the Quincy Bar Association, brought greetings on behalf of the association and filed the Law Day motion.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Tips For A Quick Home Sale

When selling your home, there are a number of steps you can take to accomplish that goal more quickly, according to James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

Your Realtor, a real estate representative who belongs to the National Association of Realtors, will have a lot of helpful hints to make your home easier to sell, but here are some general things to keep in mind:

•First impressions are lasting. The front door should be fresh and clean, and the yard should be neat and cleared of any toys or debris.

•Make certain that your home is clean and appealing. If the walls look dingy, paint or repaper them.

•Fix any dripping faucets. They discolor sinks and add to your plumbing repair bills.

•Fix any loose knobs, sticking doors, windows, and drawers. Failure to do so may be interpreted as a sign of neglect.

•Bathrooms are a selling point: make certain that everything is shining. Clean and repair bathtub and basin caulking. Clothing and personal items should be put away.

•Make certain the kitchen and all appliances are spotless.

•Cluttered rooms look smaller than they are; remove excess furniture.

•Closets and storage areas can look larger by disposing of items you don't need and storing the rest neatly. Clearing them out now will also help you when you move!

•If paint on the exterior trim is peeling, it's time to get out the paint brush.

Once you get everything in shape, here are some additional pointers for showing your home:

•Before the prospective buyer arrives, create a cheerful atmosphere by opening drapes and curtains. Make certain the temperature is comfortable throughout your home.

•Avoid having too many people present. Potential buyers may feel like intruders and hurry through.

•Unless pets are quiet, peaceful and well behaved, get them out of the way.

•Soft background music may be acceptable, but turn off blaring stereos, radios and televisions. They can only impede discussions.

•Silence is golden. Too much talking on your part can only distract from the buyer's inspection of your home.

•Never apologize for the appearance of your home. After all, it's been lived in. Let your Realtor react to comments.

•It's a good idea to stay in the background: better yet, get out of the house. Your Realtor is trained to sell your house. He's familiar with the buyer's needs, and can point out the significant features of your home.

Is all this effort worthwhile? "Simply consider that you are competing for the buyer's attention with other families who are also selling their homes at the same time," said Stamos. "Time and effort invested to make certain that your home is shown in its best light will not only give you a competitive edge, but will also help you get the best price for your home."

The Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and associations of Realtors nationwide that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

GROUNDBREAKING FOR NEW home to be built by South Shore Habitat for Humanity at 95 Main St. in Quincy Point was held over the weekend. From the left are SSHH President Gerry Roethel, Mayor James Sheets, Mary Pottle, chairman of the SSHH Site Selection Committee; Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Evan Newby. Construction of the home, which will benefit a needy Quincy family, will be done by volunteers including the future residents and is expected to be completed by this fall.

QUINCY'S TONY WU sets to return a shot in his team's loss to Chelmsford Monday. Wu had a great game as his returns and tough service shots set up a number of points for Quincy.

PRESIDENT DAVE SAWAN leaps to hammer a spike back in the direction of Chelmsford blocker Rob Luhrs. The Quincy senior made a series of kills after battling along the net.

Quincy Does Not Pass Chelmsford Test

By KERRY BYRNE

It was looked at as a test by the Quincy High boys' volleyball team. It turned out to be one that this up-and-coming group is not quite yet ready to pass.

The Presidents fell to perennial volleyball power Chelmsford, 2-1 (9-15, 15-13, 15-13), Monday at home. Their record dropped to 5-2 - still impressive considering the number of landmines on the QHS schedule. The one other loss was to Boston Latin during the second game of the season. Their wins have come over traditional volleyball powers Holliston, Milford, Lincoln-Sudbury and Brockton.

Quincy was scheduled to battle North Quincy yesterday (Wednesday) in an intra-city rivalry that may soon take on the epic proportions of the girls' volleyball battles of the past decade. The Red Raiders (6-3), have lost only to defending state champion New Bedford (twice) and undefeated Natick.

"We're pleased, we're tickled pink with the 5-2 record. At 6-1 I would have been ecstatic," said Quincy head coach Jim Rendle of his Quincy squad which finished at 5-15 last year. "I'm pleased, though, we just played a good team, we played good volleyball and had some good digs. But we'll have to play a lot better to beat North Quincy."

After quickly falling behind, 3-0, the Presidents took game one of the match against Chelmsford (5-2) behind the serving of Tony Wu, Jason Downey and Hong Lei. Lei served for four consecutive points as Quincy put away what had been a tight 11-9 match. Geoff King and Jared Downey controlled the final run with some tough, tough net play. With the score 13-9, the two combined to reject a Chelmsford spike attempt which set up the game point.

The Presidents trailed throughout most of the second game, but took a brief 13-12 lead when Huang Lei hammered a spike past the outstretched hands of Chelmsford blockers Mike Sime and Justin Safdie. The Lions regained a 14-13 lead and the Presidents held on through a series of six consecutive sideouts before giving up the game point when Brent Rutter's spike ended a long volley.

In the rubber game, Quincy showed a great deal of character in battling back from a 9-3 deficit to take leads of 11-10 and 12-11. Chelmsford pushed the Presidents to the limit, 14-12, but great net play by Dave Sawan and Jason Downey made the score 14-13. The contest ended when a vicious Quincy spike attempt went beyond the end line.

Although the Presidents made the second and third games close, they never appeared to have the organization which allowed them to take the first game. Rendle believes his developing club must develop the killer instinct necessary to make the step up to the next level.

"I was a little disappointed about the way we finished," said Rendle "We were a little tentative near the end. That's what we work for [to be in the position to win]. That's what he have to learn to do. I think the kids want to win so bad that they become afraid to lose. I'd like us to learn to attack the ball a bit more instead of waiting for something to happen."

The Quincy program has already shown great improvements over last year's club, but they are still to be tested by some of the more powerful teams in the state. The Presidents' remaining schedule includes two games against North Quincy, two games against defending state champion New Bedford and one game against the Boston Latin squad which beat them earlier in the year.

"We're a good volleyball team," said Rendle. "But we haven't been tested by the great teams yet."

After 5-Game Win Streak Was Snapped

NQ Bounces Back, Sweeps Holliston

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

After having a five-match win streak snapped by defending state champion New Bedford Friday, the North Quincy High School boys' volleyball team bounced back with a convincing 2-0 (15-3, 15-9) win over Holliston Monday to improve their record to 7-3.

The Red Raiders were scheduled to travel to Coddington St. to face Quincy (5-2) yesterday (Wednesday) for the first time this season. They meet again next Tuesday at North. The Raiders will also play Medfield on Monday. All three games start at 3:30.

North got out to a 10-2 lead in the first game with Holliston. They were led by the strong serving of Ken Goon, Samson Lee and Mike Johnston, who paced the team with five points serving. Lee had four points off serves.

The second game was not as easy for the Red Raiders. After NQ jumped out to a 3-0 lead, Holliston got back with two points of their own to make the game interesting. North had to adjust to a different lineup in the game with Wing Lau and Frankie Liu seeing their first varsity action of the season. Both teams traded the ball around throughout the game and neither was able to take a real advantage. At one point, possession changed six straight times between points.

North added points to the board slowly and eventually pulled out the 15-9 win to sweep the match.

"This is a typical North Quincy volleyball win this season," said head coach John Perkins. "When we haven't played the top two teams (New Bedford and Natick, the teams responsible for NQ's three defeats this season), the team controls every match. We rebounded well after the New Bedford loss and we're ready for Quincy."

The Red Raiders were led in the match by the strong hitting of James Rendle, who was tops on the team with four kills. Lee led the team with 12 points off serves. Defensively, Goon was number one with five blocks. Eric Lee gave North Quincy a superb effort off the bench.

"Monday is the toughest day for our team," said Perkins. "It's hard to get back in shape after the weekend."

Against New Bedford last Friday, the Raiders dropped their third game of the season, 2-0 (15-9, 15-11). North led, 11-7, in the second game but missed their next five serves to allow the defending champions to catch up and win. NQ collected a total of 32 blocks in the contest, the first time any team had been able to block the Whalers offense so effectively.

Before the New Bedford contest, the Red Raiders had won their last five matches, sending down Weymouth, Methuen, Boston Latin, Milford and Brockton, all by 2-0 scores.

Others seeing action on the varsity level this season have been Jackie Lei, Jason Lau and Charles Yu.

Little League Season Opens With Fantastic Game

The season opened in grand fashion as Jachnig Chiropractic captured a 3-2 come-from-behind win over Atty. George Burke in a battle of Little League heavyweights.

Jachnig won the Quincy Little League title last year as the Lions Club.

Jachnig's Dan O'Toole and Fred Butts were the men of the hour in a game many in attendance felt was the best Little League contest in years. O'Toole carried the team on the mound with an 11 strike-out, three-hit performance. He ended the game by fanning two of the last three men he faced. Butts' mammoth home run shot in the sixth inning broke open a 2-2 stalemate.

The Burke Club jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Pat Bregoli reached base on a single, stole second, then came home on Justin Hall's single. Hall then scored after a throwing error.

Eleven-year-old Hall, who got the opening-day nod for Burke, also pitched a masterful game.

Tom Buckley's hit tied the game for Jachnig in the fifth.

NQ Girls Can't Beat Mother Nature

The North Quincy High girls' tennis team sports a nifty 2-0 record, but so far the season has not gone quite according to schedule.

The Red Raiders have had four of their six scheduled meets cancelled due to inclement weather. The most recent postponement was of Monday's meeting with Weymouth. Monday began cold and rainy, but by game time the sun was shining brightly. However, it was too late to re-schedule the contest.

This is how things have gone for the improving North Quincy club. It has been unfortunate because they are on a roll. They easily beat Plymouth South almost a month ago, 5-0, in the season-opener and followed that with a 4-1 win over Silver Lake last week. The second win marked the first time in five years that the North Quincy girls have topped the Lakers.

"It's been frustrating," said head coach Doug McFarland, in reference to the fact that his team has been able to compete only twice in nearly a month. "We would like to see if we can get something going but rain has been our enemy."

The truncated win streak has been a continuation of the success the Red Raiders enjoyed last year, which ended with the first tourney appearance in the program's history.

Five North Quincy players, sophomore Wendy Trafton (first singles), senior Vivian Kam (second singles), Yun Yu (third singles) and sisters Ngan and Kim Ho (first doubles) are undefeated this season.

The group has given McFarland reason to be optimistic.

"We'll be very competitive against almost every team we play," said McFarland. "Although I don't think anyone's going to touch teams like Falmouth and Barnstable, they're just so far ahead of everyone else. Falmouth didn't lose one point all last year and both schools have their whole teams back from last season.

"But I think we have a very strong group of girls," he added.

Trafton and Kam competed as second and third doubles, respectively, last year before moving to the next level this season. The Ho sisters will likely continue to do well and have the added benefit of knowing each other so well.

"They play very well together," said McFarland. "They know each other's moves extremely well. They're not very strong, but they keep everything alive. Playing against them is like playing off a brick wall. I think they frustrate a lot of opponents because they go after everything and keep things in play."

The NQ girls were scheduled to travel to Bridgewater-Raynham yesterday (Wednesday) and will host cross-town rival Quincy Friday.

If the weather cooperates.

Jolene Dooley, Enters Wins First Competition

It was Dooley's first competition. She has been skating in Quincy for five years under the tutelage of Maureen Durkin. She also recently began skating in a program at the Pilgrim Arena in Hingham.

Dooley is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dooley of North Quincy. She is a sixth-grade student at Sacred Heart School.

QHS Football 1950-59 Reunion Saturday Night

Guests are flying in from around the country for a reunion of the Quincy High School football teams of the 1950s, which will be held Saturday night at 7 p.m. at the new Quincy Lodge of Elks on Quarry St.

Ron Ivil, the force behind the reunion, and cohorts Vin Moscardelli and the wise-cracking Jackie Powers, who will likely emcee the event, have been overwhelmed by the response they have received.

"We have people flying in from California, New Jersey and New York," said Ivil. "We're definitely surprised. And not just by the response, but by the enthusiasm as well. They think it's a great idea and they're looking forward to it."

Among those attending the celebration will be former Quincy Athletic Director Marty Finnegan, who left the cozy confines of his Southern California home for the event, and former coaches Bill Sullivan, Hank Conroy, and Bob Basiliere. Also invited are Mayor Jim Sheets, QHS principal Dr. Lloyd Hill, Athletic Director William Walker, Betty Silverman, the 1994 Quincy High School all-scholastic football players and several members of the original Quincy High football Father's Club.

North Quincy's Pete Zoia and Laroy (Curly) Rogers will also be in attendance. "These guys are cut from the same mold in terms of supporting sports of all kinds in Quincy for many years," said Ivil of the North Quincy invitees.

The event will bring together many members of the football programs, including players, managers, coaches and cheerleaders.

In addition to memories, films, songs and awards, there will be a raffle with over 40 prizes and several other surprises.

As part of the North Quincy High School Pride Week rally last Friday, a plaque listing every all-scholastic football player in school history was presented by Ivil and other members of the Quincy High School football team of 1956, which is sponsoring the reunion.

Ivil, an all-scholastic fullback for the Presidents in 1956, has spent endless hours researching the names of all-scholastics, dating back to the beginning of the honors in 1929 for Quincy High School and 1933 for North Quincy High School.

A plaque similar to the one presented to NQHS last week was given to Quincy High in January. The list of names now hangs in the Quincy Pride Room.

the 1994 Quincy-North Quincy Thanksgiving Day football game.

The plaque presentations have been part of a series of events sponsored by the 1956 QHS football team that will culminate with the Saturday evening reunion.

Anyone who was associated with the Quincy High football program in the 1950s and wants to attend Saturday's reunion can obtain tickets by calling Ron Ivil (337-4347), Bob Derbes (471-0596), Bob Smollett (774-1122), Ken Burgess (293-7156), Vin Moscardelli (328-1312) or Jack Powers (508-564-4103).

Tickets are $25 per person. There will be a social hour at 7 p.m followed by dinner at 8 p.m. Only 220 tickets are available.

For more information call Powers at (617) 356-7825 (days) or (508) 564-4103 (evenings).

Quincy Youth Soccer

Scores and top performers from this past weekend's full slate of in-house action in the Quincy Youth Soccer League.

Under 12 Coed:

J&T Contractors bulldozed their way to a 9-1 win over Sweeney Funeral Services.

Tom Hughes, Matthew Conso, Andrew Ross and Keith Walsh scored two goals apiece for J&T. Melissa Lumaghini netted one goal.

Aaron Echelle tallied for Sweeney off a feed from Paul Griffith. Mark Griffin played well in the short effort.

Flavin & Flavin battled to a 2-2 tie with Morrill Realty.

Andrew Johnson and Tim Curran scored for F&F. Nadia Cardone made an assist, while Kathleen Carten and Roisin Callanan played well.

Pat Jaehnig and Florian Rosni notched the Morrill goals.

Mayor Sheets vetoed Fire Extinguisher, 4-1, thanks to two goals each by Paul Donovan and Ryan Hogan.

Chris Gates scored for Fire.

Sweeney Funeral buried Mayor Sheets, 8-0.

Caitlyn Golden's three goals dug the Mayor's grave. Danny Duggan and Chris Smeglin each scored two goals.

Michele Sheehan, Pam Jacobs and Marianne Caspar played well for the Mayor Sheets club.

Flavin & Flavin blanked Fire Extinguisher, 2-0.

Glen Liberatore and Tim Curran recorded the game's only scores. Nadia Cardone and Jessica Gal-lant aided the winning effort.

Makena Cahill, Carolyn King and Natalie Bara-hona were sharp for Fire Extinguisher.

Pat Jaehnig's four goals lifted Morrill Realty to a 10-5 win over J&T Contractors.

Laetitia Lutts and Sara Houghton netted two goals apiece while Florian Rosni and Beth Houghton each scored one.

Keith Walsh had a great outing for J&T as he knocked home three goals. Matthew Conso scored two. Playing well in the short effort were Effia Rozantis and Melissa Lumaghini.

Boys Under 10:

Telephone Workers Co-op posted a 7-2 win over Della Barba CPA, courtesy of three-goal outings by Matthew Hardy and Daryl Costa.

Thomas Peterson also scored for the winning club.

Anthony Calley and Pat Carnell played well for Della Barba.

Mul's of South Boston blanked Beechwood, 3-0.

The goals were unrecorded.

The Beechwood squad was paced by Mike Mar-shall and Paul Hardiman.

Feenan Income Tax notched a 4-2 win against Beechwood.

John Norton, John Kozak, Stephen Barbuto and Danny Joyce netted the Feenan tallies. Assists were handed out by Mike Bandera, John Miller and Barbuto. Raymond Cheng, Matthew Schow and Benjamin DiBona aided the win with strong play.

Greg Lanham registered both Beechwood goals. Paul Seaver and Sam Dionne-Keay played well.

Two goals by Bill Cosgrove were the difference as Mul's of South Boston cooked up a 4-3 win over Telephone Workers Co-op.

Dan Cosgrove and Oltion Reshi netted one goal apiece for Mul's. Ryan Quinn made two assists.

Joshua Clancy, Paul McLean and Michael Barnett led the Telephone effort.

Della Barba recorded a 1-0 win over Henley Carpet.

Brendan Craig booted in the game's only goal. Mike Cafano and Shawn Giudici assisted. Thomas Ivy and Joshua King helped fuel the narrow victory.

Girls Under 10:

Dependable Cleaners slipped past Dwyer Oil, 3-2, behind the two-goal effort of Alyson Coriffin.

Sarah Shea netted the other winning tally. Assists were booted by Meghan Chargnon, Samantha Chaisson and Jennifer Gordon.

Jeannie Sheehan and Madeline Tarabelli scored for Dwyer. Meghan Mooney and Christin Dwyer made the assists. Melody Smith, Marrla Carten and Rachell Carrera had solid outings.

Morrissey Senators blanked Beacon Sports, 8-0.

Courtney Peterson paced the win with three goals. Allison Hunt scored two while single tallies were posted by Josselyn Drew, Colby Morrissey and Joan O'Mahony. Nicole McEachern and Laura Mellyn played well.

Shining for Beacon were Mary Gardiner, Jessica Smialek and Christina Sullivan.

George Smith Acct. and Quincy Hospital battled to a 1-1 stalemate.

Noelani MacPharl recorded the Smith goal off a pass from Jenna Bagangan. Courtney Breslin and Christine Wood played very well.

Joanna Gervais scored for Quincy Hospital, thanks to a set-up from Caitlin Kyle. Jessica Her-rick and Cassie Hurd looked sharp in attempting to break the deadlock.

T-Shirt Master shutout Patriot Insurance, 3-0.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

It's a beautiful sight.

Hundreds of little boys and girls again are filling the city's parks, partaking in the glory of America's pastime.

Not that I have a thing for little boys. I'm talking about the beauty of the game itself. Call me a bitter, crusty, curmudgeony young man, but I'm kind of glad that attendance at major league baseball is down this year. Serves 'em right.

I just hope more people now will get out and support the boys and girls at all age levels, in this and other cities, who actually enjoy playing baseball, who go out every other night and play as hard as they can without the so-called motivational factor called money (if anything, money causes complacency, but that's a philosophical debate for another day).

Have you seen the movie The Sandlot? It's on HBO every day of every April and May. It's about a bunch of kids who live to play baseball. In the most sickeningly sweet baseball/mom/apple pie/slice of Americana scene I've ever witnessed in any movie, the kids run to the ballfield (the local sandlot) on the Fourth of July to play their only night game of the year. A massive fireworks display lights up the field and the kids play ball as Ray Charles sings America, The Beautiful in the background.

It's such an blunt effort to pull on your heartstrings, you want to yell, 'No, stop! You're making me sick.' But you don't. You just kind of watch. And it makes you glad we have baseball.

So, basically the moral of the story is: screw the major leaguers. When you see our fields filled with little baseball players, you know the national pastime is alive and well.

Speaking of money and young baseball players, the closing date for those who want to support the youth of the city by placing an ad in the Morrisette American Legion baseball team's ad book is May 13.

For more information, or to place an ad, call Frank Osborne at 773-5436.

I had a vision. The Orlando Magic and Shaquille O'Neal are trailing the Boston Celtics by one point with three seconds left in Game 4 of their best-of-five first-round NBA playoff series.

O'Neal gets fouled and steps to the line. Knowing that O'Neal has about as much chance of hitting back-to-back free throws as I do of winning a Pulitzer Prize, Magic coach Brian Hill calls on Quincy's 10-year-old free-throwing phenom, Erin Croke, to take the shots (yes, this would be illegal, but it's my vision, not yours).

For those who don't know, last month Croke won the New England regional title of the Elks National Free Throw Competition when she hit 21 of 25 shots from the charity stripe. This past weekend, the Elks flew Erin and her family out to Indianapolis where she did herself, her family and the city proud when she placed seventh nationally by nailing 17 of 25 free throws.

The performance tells us a couple of things. First and foremost, is that Croke is an incredibly gifted and skilled basketball player. It also tells us that pro basketball is a game of grace and dexterity. And mutated genetic freaks.

O'Neal is a prime example. Imagine a 7-foot-2-inch, 300-pound man gets paid a trillion dollars a year to play a sport that he has less skill at than a 10-year-old girl. He barely makes half his free throws, yet Erin Croke can easily shoot at a nearly 80-percent clip.

O'Neal is a weapon, a force, a physical presence without equal. But, come on, how much skill does it take for a man of that size to put a ball through a 10-foot high net?

None, zero, zilch. Certainly not as much skill as it takes for a pint-sized 10-year-old to sink free throw after free throw on her way to competing against girls from across the country.

You can take that to the hole.

Reggie's Oil Wins Back-To-Back Games

Reggie's Oil of the St. John's Farm League, opened the season with back-to-back wins over Sweeney Funeral Services and Sweeney Brothers.

Dan Reggiannini's bases-loaded triple was the day's most damaging hit and helped give Reggie's Oil an insurmountable lead. Liam Powers earned the win and Andrew McDonough played a superb game.

Reggie's Oil followed by blanking Sweeney Brothers, 9-0.

Nick Malvesti and Dean Sandonato had great outings while Theresa Maconochi contributed to the offense with her first hit.

SUFFOLK UNIVERSITY sophomore guard Jennifer Verlicco, a Quincy High graduate, recently completed her second season as a member of the school's women's basketball team.

International League

Recupero & Davis Capture Two Wins

Recupero & Davis captured back-to-back wins in first-week action in the Quincy Youth Baseball International League.

R&D scored five runs in the sixth inning to capture an 8-6 opening day win over Everlasting Engraving.

Relief pitcher Tony Tran earned the win as he struck out eight batters. Starting pitcher John Panagos recorded six Ks.

The winning offense was sparked by the bats of Tran, Tony DiBona, Jamie MacIsaac, Joe Barkhouse and Kevin Markham. MacIsaac made a series of nice plays at first base.

Everlasting pitcher Chris Mannix Kd five batters. John Ly struck out two in relief. John London and Jeff Langille were the top batsmen. Ly had a strong day at third and London played well at first.

Barkhouse hit a double and a triple and DiBona cracked a round-tripper as Recupero & Davis pounded out a 16-7 win over Osco.

DiBona earned the win in three innings of work. MacIsaac came on in relief and fanned six batters in just three innings.

Third baseman Kevin Markham paced the defensive effort.

ATSS opened their season with a 14-6 win over Noll Electric.

Jason Newhall led ATSS with three hits. Mike Cossboom belted two hits, including a double. Donald Kavanagh and Alex Kin played well in the field.

ATSS's Jason Newhall recorded 11 strikeouts.

Noll pitcher John Parastides fanned five men. Steve Minukas clubbed a two-bagger and Charlie Doherty was the top defensive player.

PRESSURE TACTICS

Car owners should look beyond the maximum air pressure figure molded into the sidewalls of their tires when they pull up to the air pump. Instead, they should focus their attention on the recommended inflation pressure figures that are likely to be printed in their owner's manuals or posted on a label inside the glove compartment or inside a door jamb. The car manufacturer's recommended inflation pressures are calculated on the basis of what level of tire inflation is best suited to a particular car model's suspension settings. In some cases, the recommended inflation pressure will be different for the front tires and rear tires. Because a tire can lose about 1 psi (pound per square inch) per month of normal driving, tire pressure should be checked regularly.

Hint: It is estimated that tires underinflated by a mere four pounds per square inch will experience a ten percent reduction in their tread lives.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

What we look for, you know, is a habit of goodness....Not sporadic, isolated acts of goodness, however great. These leave no lasting effect on society. They occur at the whim of the individual, and the whim is a lightweight, unreliable thing. Whim seldom outlasts the feeling engendered it and many an act of goodness dies, when whim dies, on the vine.

The habit of goodness. Not goodness performed because someone is watching, someone authorized to criticize or reward. This sort of "goodness" is not good. Its first consideration is always the self. The self seeks praise. The self avoids guilt, pain and punishment. There can be no true joy in a "goodness" meant to protect oneself and to curry favor.

What we hope and pray for, both in the community and within ourselves, is a habit of goodness. This goodness is motiveless, in that it needn't be argued or explained. It is a way of life. It's the person's personality-utterly spontaneous in deed but characteristic in spirit. There is no heroism in this goodness because there's no awareness of exceptional action. Goodness is natural. What other thing should one do besides this good thing? Why, there is no other thing...You see? This goodness springs from a quality of being...

Appears Before Assassination Records Review Commission In Boston

Local JFK Researcher Seeks Declassified Records

(Editor's Note: Six people recently testified, including one local JFK assassination researcher, Edgar Tatro, before the JFK Assassination Records Review Board at a hearing at the State House in Boston. Tatro, of Braintree, is a Quincy High School English teacher. The author of this article, James Coughlin, a former student of Tatro's, is head of the art department at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree.)

By JAMES COUGHLIN

In an effort to respond to the American public's reaction to Oliver Stone's film, "JFK," President Bill Clinton appointed a commission to oversee the declassification of President Kennedy's assassination records, some which have been withheld from public scrutiny for more than 30 years.

Estimates suggest that as many as three million documents remain classified.

The most challenging aspect of the Commission's work is to determine the definition of an "assassination-related" document. On Friday, March 24, 1995, five members of the JFK Assassination Records Review Board met at the State House in Boston with six assassination experts from the New England area to hear their suggestions regarding the definition of an "assassination-related" document, specific records which deserve high priority attention, and other sources for hidden information.

Board members in attendance included executive director, David Maxwell, chairman, John Tunheim, chief deputy attorney general from Minnesota; Kermit Hall and Anna Helson, history professors; and William Joyce, an expert librarian.

For three hours the commission listened attentively to the detailed concerns of six members of the JFK assassination's "critical community."

Phil Melamson, author of Spy Saga, asked the board to focus its attention on the possibility of an Oswald imposter in Mexico City in September of 1963, and the intelligence records of the military and the National Security Agency.

Priscilla Johnson McMillan, a controversial journalist, who had interviewed Lee Harvey Oswald while in the Soviet Union, made suggestions about obtaining information from Russian officials.

Dick Russell, author of The Man Who Knew Too Much, recommended that Richard Case Nagell, a mysterious intelligence operator and Oswald associate, testify before the board about his extensive knowledge of the case.

Richard Trask, author of Pictures of The Pain, detailed his in-depth knowledge of films and photographs of the assassination, many of which have never been viewed by the public or researchers.

George Michael Evica, author of And We Are All Mortal, offered a spirited overview implicating the late Texas Governor John Connally in controlling the Texas trip and Dallas motorcade. He also questioned the legitimacy of the Oswald rifle and the ballistics evidence.

Finally, Edgar Tatro, an English teacher from Quincy High School and JFK assassination course instructor at Quincy College as well as co-author with LBJ mistress, Madeleine Brown, of the unpublished manuscript, Texas In The Morning, insisted that documents should be released involving a variety of subject areas:

•An unidentified fingerprint discovered at the sniper's next in the Texas School Book Depository.

•Records related to the manufacturing origin and ownership of the fatal ammunition (which has links to the Iran-Contra affair.)

•All files linking Oswald with the Monterey School of the Army, a language institute for American spies.

•Oswald's association with close friends of former CIA Director, Allen Dulles.

•Oswald files in Canada. (Some were destroyed as recently as 1990.)

•Any records indicating the switching of the JFK limousine windshield.

•Documents showing Oswald's attendance at a military base in Gulfport, Mississippi. Tatro said he has documents supporting this allegation, but the Navy denies Oswald was there.

•All files on Lee Harvey Oswald's best friend, George DeMohrenschildt and his associations with Lyndon Johnson and George Bush.

•All files linking President Johnson to four political scandals in 1963 which threatened to end his political career, but were squashed once JFK died.

•All documents pertaining to an alleged Elm Street bullet scar which corresponds architecturally with a photo of a rifleman—like figure atop the grassy knoll south.

Audit Asked On Ambulance Billings

billing problem, and he will call for an audit if so directed by Mayor James Sheets.

Sheets said before he calls for an audit, he would prefer that the matter be investigated by hospital officials, including Director/Chief Executive Officer Ralph DiPisa and Nursing Director Doris Sinkevich, who chairs the hospital's committee on ambulatory affairs. However, while he said the problem may very well be solved in-house by the hospital, he did not rule out the possibility of an audit.

"I'm not going to call for an audit if it is not necessary," said Sheets. "But if an audit is necessary, I would call for one."

Sheets added, however, that it might be more proper to have DiPisa call for the audit.

Dennis Mahoney, Assistant Norfolk District Attorney in charge of white-collar crime, said the Attorney General's office has also agreed to look into the matter. Mahoney learned of the matter after being contacted by Raymondi.

Mahoney said the District Attorney's office originally was going to investigate the matter at Raymondi's request. However, he added, he turned the matter over to the Attorney General's office after learning of a possible conflict: Zammito is a contributor to District Attorney William Delahunt's campaign.

Raymondi said he has evidence that at least two of his clients--whose names he would not disclose--have been wrongfully charged by Norfolk-Bristol.

In one case, Raymondi said, a Quincy woman represented by him was charged $369 for use of the ambulance service prior to her death in January. Her estate is now expected to pay the bill, he said.

According to Raymondi, the woman should never have been charged for the service because she had no health insurance. Norfolk-Bristol's contract with the hospital states that "It shall be agreed that if a user is indigent or one with no third party (insurance) coverage, and is a resident of the City of Quincy, he/she will not be billed."

Raymondi's other client, a Quincy woman who was the victim of a violent crime, was told by the ambulance company to pay the balance of an $865 bill after her insurance paid $735.25, he said.

She was also threatened with court action if she did not pay, he added.

Raymondi said the woman is not responsible the remaining $129.75 because the company's contract with the hospital states "The Contractor will agree to bill the residents of Quincy no more than the allowable Blue Cross/Blue Shield and/or Medicare rate." That allowable rate in this case was the $735.25, he noted, meaning that the balance should have been disregarded.

Raymondi said he recently wrote to the ambulance company about the two cases but received no response. He added that he also received no cooperation when he subsequently telephoned there, although he could not identify the person with whom he spoke. He would not say whether he thinks the company's actions were intentionally fraudulent or simply a mistake, but he added that he is worried there may be others who are receiving similar bills.

"My concern is that with the amount of seniors in the city, how many others are receiving bills like this?," he said. "This may be a small part of a very large problem. If people are being billed improperly, we have to stop that as soon as possible."

Raymondi said the purpose of the hospital audit should be three-fold: the contract language must be re-examined, the billing methodology must be changed if defective, and those who have been overcharged must be identified and reimbursed. He suggested that a program to refund those who have overpaid should be established, possibly through the city solicitor's office.

Those who conduct the investigation should also find out whether other communities serviced by the ambulance company have experienced similar problems, he added.

Zammito said he was "surprised" to learn of any lack of cooperation on the part of his employees when Raymondi telephoned. He said the billing procedure is the same for all the cities and towns serviced by Norfolk-Bristol and that the company "receives practically no calls" about any problems.

"We pride ourselves on that," he said.

When an occasional mistake is made, Zammito added, the company works with the individual until the problem is solved.

"We work with every single resident," he said. "We're not out to put any liens on houses."

Norfolk-Bristol, which has serviced Quincy since February 1990, transported "well over 100,000 patients" by ambulance last year, according to Zammito.

The Co-Operative Bank To Acquire Bank Of Braintree

The Co-operative Bank of Concord , with branches in Quincy, announces it has entered into a definitive agreement to acquire The Bank of Braintree, a $202 million community bank based in Braintree.

The Co-operative Bank will exchange one share of common stock in a new holding company for each share of The Bank of Braintree's outstanding stock, in a transaction structured as a pooling of interests on a tax-free basis. The Co-operative Bank's shareholders will also receive one share of the new holding company stock for each of their current shares.

The new holding company will serve as the owner of two subsidiary banks, The Co-operative Bank of Concord and The Bank of Braintree. The Co-operative Bank existing South Shore operations, consisting of seven banking offices and approximately $290 million of deposits, will be transferred to and become a part of The Bank of Braintree's operations.

The Bank of Braintree will grow to approximately $570 million in assets, $465 million of deposits, and $360 million of loans, with 10 banking offices serving Norfolk and Plymouth counties as a result of the transaction.

Chairman and CEO Winthrop Sargent, IV, and President and COO Donald C. Olson will continue in their respective positions as the senior officers of the bank. The current board of directors of Braintree will continue in that capacity, with two members of the existing board also serving on the holding company's board of directors.

Josiah S. Cushing, II will be the President and CEO of The Co-operative Bank of Concord, consisting of nine offices in Middlesex County, with assets of $400 million, $310 million of deposits, and $259 million of loans. David E. Bradbury will continue to serve as Chairman of The Co-operative Bank of Concord. Leo G. Sheehan, Senior vice President and Treasurer, will be the bank's Chief Financial Officer and James A. McBride, Senior Vice President, will continue to head its Commercial Banking division.

The holding company, with approximately $1 billion in total assets, $773 million of deposits, $616 million of loans, and $86 million of stockholders' equity, will be headquartered in Acton, Massachusetts.

David E. Bradbury will be Chairman, President, and CEO, Michael O. Gilles will be Executive Vice President, Treasurer, and CFO, Lisa Bergemann, Executive Vice President, will be responsible for administration, and Josiah S. Cushing, II will serve as an Executive Vice President of the holding company, directing the legal, audit, and compliance functions.

"The acquisition of The Bank of Braintree provides us with an excellent opportunity to expand in Norfolk County," said David E. Bradbury. "Braintree is a very profitable community bank which specializes in lending to the small to mid-sized businesses on the South Shore. With two offices and the number one market share for deposits in Braintree and a rapidly growing office in Norwell, they will be an important contributor to our future success.

"We were attracted to The Bank of Braintree because of their commercial focus, excellent earnings, and strong management. With the added resources from our South Shore operations, The Bank of Braintree will have the ninth largest deposit share at 4.03 percent and become the premier community commercial bank in Norfolk County.

"With the local market dominated by huge regional banks, The Bank of Braintree will become an increasingly attractive alternative for banking services to the commercial customers who are seeking a higher level of service and support from their bank.

"We are looking forward to welcoming The Bank of Braintree's stockholders as our stockholders," said Chairman Bradbury. "The proposed transaction offers Braintree holders a premium to the market price, a 20 percent increase in pro-forma book value, a meaningful increase in pro-forma earnings per share, and an initial dividend rate of $0.48 annually,m which is 20 percent higher than their current dividend. The combined entity will have over 5 million shares outstanding, providing the opportunity for greater liquidity for all stockholders."

The banks have identified $1.4 million in cost savings which can be achieved by the centralization of certain functions at the holding company which allows the transaction to be accretive to earnings in 1996. The banks combined will take approximately $1.7 million of one-time charges prior to the closing to cover the costs of contract cancellations, severance benefits, and other acquisition-related expenses.

The transaction, which is subject to stockholder and various regulatory approvals, is expected to close by the end of 1995. Simultaneously with the execution of the definitive agreement, The Bank of Braintree granted to The Co-operative Bank an option to acquire up to 19.9 percent of Braintree's common stock at $12 per share, exercisable upon the occurrence currence of certain events which would interfere with completion of the acquisition.

•Granted a one day liquor license to the Wollaston Yacht Club, 692 Quincy Shore Drive for use at opening night May 20, and a permit to hold a yard sale May 27, 28.

•Granted a one day liquor license to the Rotary Club of Braintree for use at their installation of officers and directors June 10 from 6 to 10 p.m. aboard the USS Salem at the U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

•Granted a one day permit to the Montclair School PTO 8 Belmont St. for their annual May Festival on May 20.

•Granted a request for a change in ownership of The Old Railroad Cafe, 273 Willard St. from Antonis Katsikis to Zaki Ibrahim.

Granted a request for a permit to hold a Folk Music Concert May 13 at 8 p.m. at First Parish Church, Quincy. Although not on the agenda, the matter was taken at Tuesday's meeting.

Granted a request from Stooges, 1626 Hancock St. for a pool table license and a pinball license.

•Heard complaints from residents in the neighborhood of the Centre St. area at Dunkin Donuts and Speedee Oil Change & Tune-Up.

Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio said a sign indicating to take a right turn on Columbia St. had "mysteriously diappeared."

Chairman Joseph Shea said "We'll take the responsibility for putting the sign back up."

Also complaints over trash in the rear of both businesses plus late hours at Speedy Lube. Representatives from both businesses promised to police the area twice a day to pick up trash. The hours at Speedy Lube are from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. and rarely until 7 p.m. Fabrizio suggested a schedule be sent to area residents.

•Postponed until May 16 a request from Brannigan's 226 Water St. for a change of managers from Edward J. Maloney to Daniel Lynch.

•Postponed until May 16 a request from Smith Auto Sales, 291 Water St. for a Motor 11 License.

•Postponed a request from Twin Rivers Technology and Sprague Energy for a operators licenses for oil.

City Council President Michael Cheney questioned the safety of transporting petro chemicals citing the Town River Yacht Club being fearful that floats would have to be removed for boat traffic generated by Twin Rivers.

Because the item was not on the agenda and with need for further discussion, chairman Joseph Shea postponed the meeting until May 16.

Docket No. 79F1355-E2
Notice Of Fiduciary's Account

To all persons interested in the estate of Samuel J. Craddock, late of Quincy, in the county of Norfolk.

You are hereby notified pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 72 that the 5th account(s) of Charles Schwartz, Administrator w/w/a has/have been presented to said Court for allowance.

If you desire to preserve your right to file an objection to said account(s), you or your attorney must file a written appearance in said Court at Dedham on or before the 31st day of May, 1995, the return day of this citation. You may upon written request by registered or certified mail to the fiduciary, or to the attorney for the fiduciary, obtain without cost a copy of said account(s). If you desire to object to any item of said account(s), you must, in addition to filing a written appearance as aforesaid, file within thirty days after said return day or within such other time as the Court, upon motion may order a written statement of each such item together with the grounds for each objection thereto, a copy to be served upon the fiduciary pursuant to Mass. R. Civ. P. Rule 5.

WITNESS, Robert M. Ford, Esquire, First Justice of said Court at Dedham, this 18th day of April, 1995.

USS Salem Re-commissioning Sunday

Here's Looking At You!!!

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Three admirals, a general and a host of other dignitaries are among the invited guests who will attend the re-commissioning of the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem Sunday at 2 p.m. at the Fore River shipyard.

Sunday marks the 46th anniversary of the Salem's original commissioning. It will also be the opening of the new U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

"Sunday's ceremony will be a re-enactment of a standard Navy commissioning where the orders will be read and the ship will be turned over to the museum," said U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Executive Director William MacMullen. "The museum will in turn enroll the ship into the Historic Ships Museum System."

Ret. Adm. Allan B. Roby, the Salem's commanding officer in 1956-57, will read the orders from the Navy Department, thereby putting the ship back into commission as a museum ship. Roby, the Salem's only surviving comman-ding officer, is the only living Navy captain to have two of his former commanders preserved as Historic Naval Ships.

Ret. Navy Captain Channing Zuckers, executive director of the international Historic Naval Ships Association, will accept the Salem into the ship's museum system. MacMullen, as the commanding officer, will read his orders and assume command of the ship as rear admiral of the Mass. Naval Militia.

The commissioning pennant will then be raised. The Salem's original cotton pennant will not be used because it is very fragile, MacMullen said. Instead, the USS Long Beach nylon commissioning pennant will be flown. The Long Beach, another cruiser, was the Salem's successor from the Quincy shipyard.

Other speakers scheduled to participate are Mrs. William Collins, wife of William Collins, yard manager of the Fire River shipyard in 1949; and Robert Daniels, president of the USS Salem Association.

Mayor James Sheets will give the keynote address. The mayor's wife, Joann, will be the ship's sponsor.

Other invited guests include Ret. Rear Adm. Raymond Couture of the Naval Reserve; Ret. Rear Adm. Peter Mitchell of the Mass Maritime Academy, and Quincy native Gen. Gordon Sullivan, Army Chief of Staff.

The museum has invited Gov. William Weld, Sen. John Kerry, and the mayors of towns named Salem to attend.

Admiral Jeremy Bourda, chief of Naval Operations for the Navy, may also be present.

(Cont'd on Page 28)

THE BIG EIGHT-INCH guns of the USS Salem seem to be pointing to Sunday when the heavy cruiser is re-commissioned into the Historic Ships Museum System at the Fore River Shipyard where it was originally commissioned exactly 46 years ago to the day--May 14, 1949.

Or Face Possible Audit

Ambulance Co. Given Deadline To Explain Billing

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A company that provides ambulance service to Quincy Hospital has been given until Friday to explain the reasons for alleged improper billing practices.

Mayor James Sheets said at press time that Natick-based Norfolk-Bristol Ambulance Service has been contacted by City Solicitor Stephen McGrath about the matter. If the company does not respond, then hospital officials may call for an audit of its records, although the mayor was unsure if that would be the action taken.

"It could include an audit, it might include other kinds of action, I'm not certain at this time," said Sheets.

McGrath was away at press time, but Sheets said the solicitor has met with Quincy Hospital Director/Chief Executive Officer Ralph DiPisa, Chief Financial Officer Mark Gronberg and Nursing Director Doris Sinkevich, who chairs the hospital's committee on ambulatory affairs, to discuss the issue.

Sheets said if an audit is necessary, then DiPisa would likely be the one to call for it. DiPisa could not be reached for comment.

The hospital, through its contract with the ambulance company, has the right to call for an audit at any time.

The city began to look into the matter last week after Quincy Atty. Daniel

Study: Concourse Would Ease Traffic Problems

Results of a study in connection with the proposed Quincy Center Concourse project indicate that the planned east-west roadway would help resolve traffic problems in the city's downtown section.

Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton will give a presentation to the Quincy Center Concourse Citizens Advisory Committee today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the Quincy 2000 Conference Room, 1250 Hancock St. (Presidents Place), Quincy Center.

Colton, who received the final draft of the traffic study conducted by Whitman & Howard Engineers of Wellesley Tuesday, was reluctant to discuss the study because, he said, "there is a public participation process" that must be followed by unveiling the details at today's presentation.

However, he summarized the study's conclusion when contacted by The Quincy Sun.

"The study confirms that constructing the west side of the concourse, which would run from Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street, would mitigate traffic congestion and improve access to Quincy Center," said Colton.

He added that the study does not address the second phase of the project, the east side of the concourse that would link Hancock Street to Revere Road.

Colton plans to give his presentation to the City Council June 5 and to the Students Commemorate Women's Right To Vote

Wearing period costumes and carrying flags and red, white and blue banners bearing slogans from "Give Us A Voice" to 75 Years Standing Tall," more than 200 middle-school girls marched through Quincy Center Tuesday to commemorate the 75th anniversary of women being granted the right to vote.

Under bright sunny skies, students from Broad Meadows, Central Middle School, Atlantic Middle and Sterling Middle School participated in the 2-mile march. They gathered outside City Hall, where they were welcomed by a large crowd of supporters.

Some students walked to City Hall, others came by bus.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets, said, "As a former history teacher, this looks like the pictures I always saw in history books. They did a great job with their authentic-looking costumes."

Donna Willoughby, Broad Meadows social studies teacher and organizer of the march said, "Isn't this wonderful?" She said they picked the month of May to march because of the "good weather." The anniversary is actually in August, but students would not be in school then, she said.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon called the march a "very special celebration" and one "done in silence" because at that time, people said the suffragettes would be "babbling and talking," so they marched in silence.

Creedon said they marched in "beauty, serenity and silence, depicting unity, determination and strength."

Mayor James Sheets said his mother was 4 years old when the women were given the right to vote. He said "If my mother were alive today, she would be an activist."

Sheets said although Abigail Adams is considered the "most important" woman, he singled out Edna Austin, who was the first woman in Quincy to sit on the City Council and also women on the School Committee. He reminisced about Patricia Toland who served on the City Council for many years and said, "she left all of us a great legacy, an obligation for every woman and man to share in the destiny of their city, state and country."

Elizabeth Quinn, a student from Central Middle School said "we must celebrate the women of the past so that we can become the women of the future."

Another student, Amanda McKenna from Broad Meadows spoke about equal jobs versus equal salary. She said she hoped one of the students there today would "someday be president."

Quoting Eleanor Roosevelt, McKenna concluded, "You must do the thing you think you cannot do."

Following the program at City Hall, the students proceeded to the Adams National Historical Site where they heard Caroline Keinath of the Park Rangers address the gathering, and where a costumed Hope Buechler, actress portraying Abigail Adams addressed those gathered to remember the ladies and the struggle for the right to vote for women, and a speech by Michelle Catrambone, a student. They were then treated to a cookout and viewed a ballot box from the 1920s.

Support for the march was provided by the mayor's office, the Quincy Historical Society, the National Park Service Adams National Historical Site, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, Quincy Police Athletic League and Quincy Public Schools.

In attendance were Sen. Michael Morrissey, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, School Committeewoman Joanne Bragg and members of the League of Women Voters.

During the ceremony, three girls felt ill. One girl from Central Middle School struck her head when she fainted and had to be brought to the hospital.

According to Central Principal Louis DiMartinis, the girl's parents had been notified and it looked like she was going to recover.

Committee Plans In-Depth Review Of Sign Ordinance

The Quincy Signage Committee is planning a line-by-line review of the city's signage ordinance which has caused something of a controversy in the downtown historic district.

The recently-formed committee agreed at its second meeting last week that a full examination of the law must be conducted before proposed amendments for submittal to the City Council can be made. The law, originally part of the city's zoning ordinance, now falls under the jurisdiction of the Quincy Historical Commission but can only be amended by the council.

The signage committee is comprised of members of the business community, historical commission and the city. Downtown merchants have voiced displeasure with the law, particularly with a provision which only allows each merchant to display one sign bearing the name of his/her business in each storefront. Merchants have argued that pedestrians walking past their stores are unable to identify a business because its one sign is too high above the ground for passers-by to see.

One example brought up by Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth, a signage committee member, is a sign near Blockbuster Video in Quincy Center which says "Welcome to Quincy" on one side and "Video Store Parking Only" on the other. The latter message is worded the way it is because the store already has another sign that says "Blockbuster Video," and so the sign in question cannot contain the message "Blockbuster Parking Only."

Bosworth called the Blockbuster situation "crazy."

"What harm would there be if the sign said 'Blockbuster Parking' instead of 'Video Store Parking?,'" he said.

Robert Colman, who owned the former Colman's Sporting Goods store where Blockbuster now stands and who still owns the property there, agreed.

"The overregulation of signage in this community is disgraceful," said Colman, who is not a committee member but was invited to speak at the meeting.

Downtown business owners have also questioned why a Firestone Tire Co. near the video store can use its name three times on its building, and have said the historical commission is inconsistent in its enforcement of the law.

Members of the historical commission have responded by saying that there are legitimate aesthetic reasons for their actions and that they try to enforce the ordinance as consistently as possible. Strict enforcement of the law will help preserve the historic district, they say, which will make the area eligible for state money and aesthetically attractive to businesses looking for a place to locate.

The signage committee's second meeting was much like its first, with both sides presenting their general views on the ordinance. Members of both the business community and historical commission again stated that changes should be made to

MERCHANTS WONDER WHY, according to the city's signage ordinance, this sign at Blockbuster Video must read, "Video Store Parking Only"--because the business already has another sign bearing its name--and why nearby Firestore Tire Co. apparently does not have to follow the ordinance since it is allowed to display its name three times.

Council To Begin Budget Review Sessions May 16

The City Council will begin to scrutinize Mayor James Sheets' proposed $136,652,789 FY96 municipal budget next week.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, has scheduled budget sessions for May 16, 22 and 31 and June 5. All will be held at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

In addition, a public hearing on both the mayor's proposed budget and the federally-funded Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) budget for the new fiscal year will be held Monday, May 15 at 7:20 p.m.

The council has the power to cut the budget but cannot make additions. Any changes must be made prior to the start of

Partnership Seeks Veterans Memorial Flags For Flag Day

The Quincy Flag Day Committee is asking families of deceased U.S. veterans to loan their Veteran's Memorial Flags to the committee, to line this year's annual Quincy Flag Day Parade route, Wednesday, June 14.

Those families and individuals wishing to loan their flag or flags for display may deliver them to the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston, or call (617) 773-3551. Each flag will have a banner attached, bearing the name of that veteran. Also each flag will be returned to the donor after the parade.

A Memorial Flag is given to the family of a veteran by the Veterans' Administration to be displayed on the casket during the funeral. These are the requested flags for prominent display along the parade route.

"Each year, more and more flags are loaned to the parade," said Ed Keohane, president of the Quincy Partnership, one of the sponsors of the parade. "The community response has been tremendous. We believe this is a special way to honor our flag as well as the veteran who fought to protect it. We want Quincy to lead in showing how much we appreciate the courage and sacrifices which have been made by all of our veterans through the years."

The Quincy Flag Day Parade will start at 7 p.m. at the intersection of Washington and Coddington Sts.. The parade will proceed north to and on Hancock St. The route passes Veterans Memorial Stadium and ends at Adams Field, at the intersection of Hancock St. and Southern Artery. A flag raising and fireworks display will follow the parade.

The annual Flag Day Parade is co-sponsored by the Quincy Partnership, the City of Quincy and the Koch Club.

DON'T LET A STROKE GET YOU DOWN

A stroke can be among life's most challenging medical problems, disabling people in ways that are quite difficult to manage. Anyone who suffers a stroke can expect to experience a wide range of emotions, including anxiety and even dispair. Researchers are discovering, though, that when a patient's emotional state turns into prolonged clinical depression, the chances of long-term survival drop. As many as one-third of patients end up battling depression within three weeks of sustaining their stroke. In one study that followed stroke patients for ten years, doctors found that patients who continued to be depressed were more than three times as likely as non-depressed stroke survivors to have died.

P.S. Everyone feels "blue" sometimes, but when those feelings start to hinder daily life, see your doctor about getting help.

No matter what your medical difficulty, managing one's emotional response to it can be helped with the care of compassionate professionals. Harold Considering Running

Paul Harold may be on this year's ballot as a city councillor at-large candidate after all.

HAROLD

Up until a few weeks ago he had no thoughts of running. But since then, the picture has changed.

Changing the picture are people who keep urging him to run.

"A solid cross-section of people in the city have been urging me to be a candidate," he says. "It's really amazing."

And will he run?

"I'm giving it serious consideration," he acknowledges.

That could be a big step toward the council-at-large ring considering he wasn't even thinking of running such a short time ago.

"Serious consideration" on his part aren't words at-large incumbents Mike Cheney, Tim Cahill and Joe LaRaia want to hear right now. And neither does Larry Chretien who is giving up his Ward 3 seat to challenge for one of the three at-large seats.

Harold, as a candidate, would have a dramatic impact on the City Council at-large race this year and Quincy politics in the future.

He is one of Quincy's all-time popular political figures and top vote-getters.

In fact, he holds the record for most votes ever given a Quincy council at-large candidate. That was 21,246 in 1977. The other two winners that year were John Quinn with 13,866 and Francis McCauley, 13,659.

Harold is runner-up to James McIntyre as the top vote-getter in the city's history. McIntyre rang up a 22,034 vote for mayor in 1965 against LaRaia's 7,713.

McINTYRE

Harold served three years as councillor at-large from 1976 to 1978. In the 1978 state election he defeated Arthur Tobin, a pretty good vote-getter himself, for the state Senate seat. Harold left the council in early 1979 to concentrate on his state Senate duties. (He was succeeded in the council by Joseph Brett.)

Harold remained in the Senate until 1992 when he decided to run for Congress after Brian Donnelly announced he would not seek re-election.

Seemed like an opportune move at the time.

But then the area was redistricted and Harold found himself up against an incumbent powerhouse by the name of Gerry Studds instead of running for what he thought would be an open seat.

STUDDS

Studds won the Democratic primary but Harold carried Quincy by a wide margin of 12,951 to 5,256. Studds, of course, easily won the final election.

It's almost three years since Harold has been out of elective office. But he is still up there in the popularity department.

And that's probably why he keeps running into people who want him to run for councillor at-large this year, because they really are fond of him.

But among some of those people are the politically-conscious who also like him and fear he could start losing political ground if he remains out of the political spotlight for another two years or more.

Harold's return to the City Council would have a definite effect on a future mayoral race.

Topping the ticket or coming close would put him in a strong position for a future mayoral bid if he decided to set his sights on that office.

CITY COUNCIL President Mike Cheney isn't letting any grass grow under his feet this election year.

CHENEY

Cheney was waiting at City Clerk Joseph Shea's door at 7:30 a.m. the day (May 1) nomination papers were available and had half of the 50 required signatures on them before the day was out.

Cheney plans to make his formal announcement at a fund-raiser at the Quincy Elks Lodge later this month.

And if you don't think time really does fly, here's a reminder: Cheney has been in the City Council 11 years—five as Ward 1 councillor and six at-large.

He has served on all of the council's key committees and, of course, established Quincy's First Night celebration of which he is quite proud.

He says he will launch "a vigorous campaign" door to-door immediately after his official announcement.

A NEW SCHOOL Committee candidate has stepped forward. Sal Giarratani of Atlantic St., North Quincy, picked up nomination papers the other day and says he will formally announce in a week or two.

GIARRATANI

Giarratani is a police officer in the Department of Mental Health and writes a column for a North End weekly.

Giarratani and his wife, Fay, are parents of a daughter, Nealia, a third grade student at the Squantum School.

Giarratani almost ran for the School Committee in 1989 but decided not to because of family reasons then.

❑

POLITICAL NEWCOMER Mark Roberts is off to a fast start in his quest for the Ward 2 City Council seat being vacated by the retirement of Ted DeCristofaro.

ROBERTS

Roberts, 32, an attorney, turned in 30 nomination signatures Tuesday and is already knocking on doors with his wife, the former Judy Folsom.

THIS 1944 POSTCARD mailed from San Diego shows the business end of the USS Cruiser Quincy II. The second cruiser with the name Quincy, this ship was launched at Fore River Shipyard on June 26, 1943 after the first cruiser Quincy had been sunk by the Japanese in the South Pacific Battle of Savo Island in 1942. This Quincy distinguished itself on D-Day, 1944 with the accuracy of its gunnery, first in breaching a seawall which was an obstacle to the invasion troops, and then in softening enemy resistance by bombarding several other assigned targets. The Quincy was part of a large naval bombardment group which steamed up and down the Normandy beachhead supporting the invasion of France.

Supports Legislation For Improved Patient Care

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The Massachusetts state legislature is now considering bills that should be enacted so that patients can gain access to useful and meaningful information about physicians.

As president of the first medical society in the country to support such "physician profiling" legislation, I am proud to say that the Massachusetts Medical Society strongly endorses a program that would bring about the most important goal of all--improved patient care.

In any discussion of these issues, we should never lose sight of two key objectives: to make relevant information available to the public, and, to take a proactive role in ensuring quality care for all in the Commonwealth.

The MMS will do everything it can to establish such a system for the benefit of all patients in Massachusetts.

W. Quincy Dumping Headed For Vote

By PAUL HAROLD

The St. Moritz Association said this week it would consider forcing a city-wide vote on the proposed plan to use Cashman and Granite Rail quarries for a sanitary landfill. The association opposed land filling and favored instead incineration for the city's wastes.

May 11 - 17
1969
26 Years Ago

Ernest Coose, a member of the St. Moritz subcommittee on dumping problems, said he would confer with City Clerk John Gillis on the number of signatures necessary to institute a city-wide referendum.

Meanwhile, City Solicitor Harry Paven was considering a request by West Quincy residents on relocating the second hearing on the dump issue from City Hall to St. Mary's Hall so more West Quincy residents could attend.

POLICE PICKET CITY HALL

Forty off-duty patrolmen picketed City Hall after the break-down of negotiations of a collective bargaining agreement between the police and city agents.

Last month, the members of the Police Betterment Association rejected the latest offer to increase the base pay of patrolmen from $7,700 to $9,200.

Mayor James McIntyre said the deadlock was over a "major issue," including the provision that all members of the force, except the chief, be allowed to join the Betterment Association.

Carmen DiRamio, president of the association, led the opposition to the city's latest offer.

Signs carried by the demonstrators included "Seniority, Not Political Influence," "Why Does The City Fear Fact Finding," and "Be A Man! Support Law, Order and Justice."

GROSSMAN'S TO MERGE WITH EVANS

Grossman's Building Supplies Company of Quincy agreed to a merger plan with Evans Products of Portland, Ore.

Under the agreement, Evans would transfer 572,000 common shares to Grossman's shareholders. The Grossman's name would be retained on the company's 80 stores in New England, New York and Pennsylvania and the company would be operated as a subsidiary of Evans.

Kiwanis Bicycle Safety Day Saturday At Wollaston School

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy will sponsor its second annual Bicycle Safety Day and Rodeo Saturday, May 13 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Wollaston School parking lot, 205 Beale St.

The event is part of the New England-wide Kiwanis Family Safety Day. Quincy is one of more than 60 Kiwanis Clubs in six New England states which will sponsor bicycle rodeos in their communities in an effort to teach children and their parents bicycle safety skills in a fun family setting.

Each year, approximately 400 children between newborn and 14 years are killed in bicycle accidents. Thousands more are treated in emergency rooms for bicycle related injuries.

While bicycle helmets have been shown to reduce the risk of head injury by 85 percent, only five percent of all children cyclists nationwide use bicycle helmets. Many parents and children are unaware of these statistics and the basic techniques for staying safe while riding a bicycle.

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy and its sponsors are committed to preventing accidental injury in children and will offer approved bicycle helmets at the rodeo for $6.00 each, as well as running several bicycle stations where riders can learn bicycle safety skills and practice them in a safe setting. The South Shore YMCA Bicycle Club will provide free bicycle inspections.

All children and parents are invited to participate.

The event is sponsored by the South Shore YMCA, Impact Quincy, Citizens Bank, Monadnock Water, American Heart Association, The Bicycle Link of Weymouth, Harvard Community Health, radio station WJDA, National Fire Protection Association, Kryptonite Corp., Quincy ROTC, Quincy High and North Quincy High Key Clubs, South Shore Demolay Old Colony Chapter, and Quincy Emergency Management.

Sixth Annual Cleaner-Greener Campaign 'Tremendous Success'

City officials are calling the sixth annual Cleaner-Greener Quincy Campaign a tremendous success.

The event, which was held last Saturday, drew between 960 and 1,000 participants, according to Department of Public Works Program Manager Michael Wheelwright.

"It was a clear, brisk day, and invigorating for outside activity," said Wheelwright. "Participation was high in spite of other events that day, including the Walk for Hunger, First Communion and the beginning of baseball league."

"It was a very successful program," said Mayor James Sheets. "I think it's important to have a program every year where we clean the city up. And it was a good day, a beautiful day."

Cub Scouts, Brownies, PTO groups, business and church organizations and citizen work groups participated in the event. In addition, Wheelwright noted, the MDC held a concerted cleanup at Wollaston Beach with an additional 300 people.

Organizations that donated equipment, tools and other assistance to the event included Arronson Bros., Curry Hardware, Home Depot, the Quincy Park Department, Quincy Police Athletic League and Quincy Recreation Department.

Wheelwright listed among the "hot spots of activity" Post Island, Heron Road Beach, Rhoda Street, Faxon Park, Bower Road, Avalon Beach, Nickerson Beach and Squaw Rock, Welcome Young Playground (Sagamore Street), Bernazzani School, Butler Road and Sailors Home Pond.

He added that a mild winter produced less tonnage from beaches and open spaces than in previous years.

Following the cleanup, the mayor hosted a cookout at Pageant Field that was attended by about 600 people. As he has done in the past, the mayor flipped hamburgers at the event.

Sheets also paid tribute to all who participated in the Cleaner-Greener Campaign.

"They did a great job," he said.

"Numerous neighborhood groups throughout the city worked independently in the spirit of Cleaner-Greener Quincy and held cookouts of their own," added Wheelwright.

Special Ed. Subcommittee Meeting At City Hall May 18

Meetings are open to the public.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

Sheets Proclaims May 'Correct Posture Month'

Mayor James Sheets has designated May as "Correct Posture Month."

In signing an official proclamation, Sheets recently joined the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society, the American Chiropractic Association, and the nation's doctors of chiropractic in observing the event.

Dr. Barry Freedman, president of the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society said, "The objective of Correct Posture Month is to direct the attention of the public to the role of posture and spinal integrity in the maintenance of health, and create and awareness of posture as something that does more than just make you look better."

Dr. Freedman, whose offices are located at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy, added that in addition to the apparent physical advantages of the body being erect, good posture provided more energy and creates greater physical efficiency, allowing the individual to have a better lifestyle.

In issuing the resolution, Sheets praised the doctors of chiropractic for their dedication and efforts on the public's behalf. He also commended them for undertaking a public education program which brings attention to the values of spinal health care.

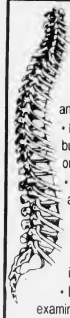
SPINAL COLUMN

By Dr. Barry Freedman, M.S., D.C.



May Is Correct Posture Month, But Good Posture Is Important Year-Round

WHY SHOULD YOU HAVE SPINAL HEALTH EXAMINATIONS ON A REGULAR BASIS?

- Correct posture is a key element which enables physical and mental accomplishment.
- Posture not only affects the appearance of an individual, but also his/her comfort, productivity and emotional outlook on life.
- For children, correct posture is essential to proper growth and development.
- For adults, correct posture is important to sustaining general good health.
- For senior citizens, correct posture is a factor in maintaining independence and a high quality of life.
- Dr. Freedman recommends periodic chiropractic spinal examinations, with close attention to posture, can reveal structural defects or distortions, which can be corrected.

GOOD POSTURE ENABLES YOUR BODY TO FUNCTION MOST EFFICIENTLY.

CHIROPRACTIC WORKS-NO DRUGS-NO SURGERY. Dr. Barry Freedman has been the Director of FAMILY PRACTICE OF CHIROPRACTIC for the past 16 years, with offices at 112 McGrath Highway, Quincy Center. He is President of the Massachusetts Chiropractic Society, teaches nutrition at Massasoit Community College and lectures extensively at many organizations and schools, including Harvard University School of Medicine and Boston University School of Nursing. If you have any questions about chiropractic or need information about lectures for your organization please call Dr. Freedman's office at 472-4220.

Salem Getting Ship-Shape For First Tourist Season

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

When she arrived back home in October, the USS Salem resembled a ship neglected for 36 years, a mere shadow of her former status as the once proud flag ship of the Sixth Fleet.

Ubiquitous peeling paint, weeds dotting rotting teak planks, and 43 tons of steel shrouds covering equipment, the bridge and other openings made a formidable restoration task.

Now, six months later, the Salem's exterior is beginning to match her mint-like interior.

The guns or turrets can train and elevate, the intercom, alarm, electrical and other systems are up and going. The air-conditioning system is almost operational. The decks have been cleaned and in some areas repainted. The teak decking is being repaired with new planks. Tool lockers have been restored. The machine shop is running and workers are making ship parts which had been missing.

All the radar masts and antennas, once stored in the hanger, are now up on the repainted mast. The hanger hatch itself can open and close electrically.

Aesthetically, the 718-foot Salem appears more ship-shape with new paint. The starboard side has been repainted and the port side is next.

It's been 22 years (1973) since the Salem was painted. For that reason, a lot of the peeling paint was removed by hand. Power-washing and vacuum-grinding were also used to flake off large sections of peeling paint. There's virtually no rust, so the surface only has to be prepped for the paint.

"The ship's coming along," said William MacMullen, executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum as he surveyed the Salem's deck.

"It's going to look the way it's supposed to look as if it's going to be coming out of mothballs and be reactivated. That's exactly what we're doing. That's what we want to interpretation of the ship to be," MacMullen said.

"I'm really proud of all the people who have worked on this project. It's really just a beginning because we'll always be working on the ship because we'll always want to be showing it in this manner."

MacMullen said first-time visitors will be awe-struck at the size of the vessel. But it's the ship's intricacies that the director wants people to understand and appreciate.

"I'd like to have people understand what's being done. This is a shipbuilding museum and we've taken on a large ship which was built here. We're interpreting it in a way that would be shown as if it were in a shipyard having this type of work being done to it.

"It's going to be a first-person type of interpretation where crewmembers and people working on the ship are working as interpreters rather as tour guides. I've been on too many tours where people go through a ship and they're told where everything is then 20 minutes after you leave you've forgotten everything they've said.

"Here people will encounter some of the crewmembers and they will start to talk to you about what they're doing and why they are doing it."

MacMullen believes the Salem will be a modern day living museum.

"We're going to be doing a 20th Century version of Plimouth Plantation only I feel we'll be much more accurate because they're guessing at a lot of stuff. They're probably right or very close but here we actually have people who worked on the ship who are still around helping us get it restored.

"We have a primary source of historical facts that we can back up what we're doing," he added.

Since her final berthing at the shipyard, a dedicated corps of 136 volunteers and 60 reservists have worked thousands of hours readying Salem for visitors.

"The volunteers are great because everyone of them is skilled in some way," MacMullen said. "We've got electricians, pipefitters, boilermakers, everything that you would need to put this ship back together we've got here."

Although some were disappointed by her arrival condition, volunteers were not discouraged.

Roger Snowman of North Weymouth, a retired mechanical engineer, has worked on the ship four to five days a week since October.

"We all said it was going to be a big job. We're here and we keep on working at it and we're going to get it done," said Snowman, a former Navy signal quartermaster and Coast Guard auxiliary.

Archie Shaw of Houghs Neck, a World War II Navy veteran who served with Navy Beach Battalions, agreed. "It looked like it was going to be endless and it will be because when the ship is in commission, you work on it constantly. That's what it will be like here; you'll never stop working on it."

Shaw, a former carpenter who once worked at Bethlehem Steel and General Dynamics Shipyard in Quincy, is a retired ship's carpenter. He is in charge of replacing sections of the teak decking which have rotted out. "It's a dying art, not many people know how to do it."

Shaw said tourists will enjoy the Salem. "People are going to love to see this. It'll be interesting for people to see what we've done. We've got a lot of work to do yet."

THE COMBAT INFORMATION CENTER on the fourth deck is the "nerve center" of the ship where all systems would be controlled during battle. Executive Director William MacMullen mans one of the controls.

ADMIRAL'S CABIN, which will be restored in the coming months, entertained such dignitaries as the King and Queen of Greece, Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Marshall Tito. The room contains several artifacts, including a telephone which is checked out by Museum Executive Director William MacMullen.

ARCHIE SHAW of Houghs Neck, a museum volunteer, planes a plank of teak wood for the Salem's deck. Shaw will help replace 600 linear feet of teak deck which had rotted after the Salem's decommissioning in 1959.

OPERATING ROOM, where routine medical procedures such as appendectomies were performed, is examined by Musuem Executive Director William MacMullen.

JACK MAHONEY of the USNSM staff displays a commercial 10-gallon mixer in the ship's bread room or bakery. The mess areas were set up to feed up to 1600.

Touring The Salem: A Naval Time Capsule

WILLIAM MACMULLEN, executive director of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum, points to the center gun in the main eight-inch battery or Turret No. 3 on the Salem. The Salem scored a Golden Eagle, representing a near perfect percentage of target hits, during its service as the flagship of the Sixth Fleet in the Mediterranean in the 1950s.

LOCAL DENTIST Dr. Robert Ryan examines some of the equipment located in the Salem's dental office. He will help restore the office.

"G-DUNK" OR SODA FOUNTAIN was kept in a "clean and neat" appearance according to a 1955 regulation which is still attached to a wall inside the area. John Schaefer of the museum staff opens one of the ice cream freezers.

SALEM BARBERSHOP is one of the many areas which will be open to the public after the Quincy-built heavy cruiser is re-commissioned Sunday at the former Fore River Shipyard.

(Quincy Sun photos by Robert Bosworth)

A fascinating and intriguing tour awaits the public on the heavy Quincy-built cruiser USS Salem which will open its first tourist season Sunday after a re-commissioning ceremony at the former Fore River Shipyard.

The super structure and bridge, the CIC (Combat Information Center) and the main deck as well as the main eight-inch battery and a smaller five-inch battery will be open for visitors. Also, most of the second deck, which houses the ship's operational spaces, will be available to tourists. The spaces, many in mint condition, contain the same equipment while Salem sailed the Mediterranean as the flagship of the Sixth Fleet from 1949 to 1959.

Visiting the myriad of rooms and spaces is like walking through a time capsule.

The first highlight of the tour is Turret No. 3, the main eight-inch battery at the aft part of the ship. The area, secured by six inches of armour plate on the sides and top, contains the analog firing computer and other battery and communication controls.

"We've got some shells on their way from Dalhgreen, Virginia, and we're going to get those into the center gun. The rest will be out on the deck," said U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Executive Director William MacMullen.

On the side of the ship is a Golden E, which represents a near perfect percentage of hits. The Salem was the only ship in the Sixth Fleet to achieve a Golden E.

MacMullen said the firing system, like other operational systems on the ship, could be used again once the reactivization is complete.

After Turret No. 3, visitors can walk around the main deck and tour the starboard and port sides. Midway on the starboard side is an open stairway which leads to the second deck where most of the operations of the ship took place.

"When you come down you'll be in the engineering and work spaces. The general workshop, the backsmith shop, the electrical shop and the offices for all those areas to support were all located there," McMullen said.

Continuing down the starboard side on the second deck, visitors will see hospital spaces including a recovery room, a bacteriological lab, operating room, first aid room and waiting room. The flag office, now the museum's executive director's office and the officer's galley follow.

The officers' galley features a two-room kitchen which opens out into the officers' ward room. "That's a pretty large area and we'll be operating part of the ship's store there and the regular ship's store further aft. It's the largest single space on the ship other than the hanger," MacMullen said.

After exiting the galley, visitors will be on the port side of the ship. After passing the heads (toilets), showers and sinks, they will pass state rooms like the chaplain's office, chief engineer, and warren officer's mess room.

Next is the anchor windless room. "You won't be able to get in there but you'll be able to look through and see the grate. It's where the anchor chains were wound up and down," MacMullen noted.

Other areas on the second deck are:

•A dental office, which is being restored with the help of local dentist Dr. Robert Ryan.

•The chief's mess, which is presently blocked of and will open in about six months after it's restored.

•A medical sick bay area.

•The "g-dunk" or ice cream parlor complete with soda fountain and ice cream freezers.

"The (parlor's) wire mesh enclosures will be open and you'll be able to see through and we're going to try get someone manning that," MacMullen said.

At the very end of the ship, visitors will go through different mess areas where the crew would normally eat in shifts five times a day. They will also see the laundry room, the largest space on the portside aft, where all the equipment still works.

Coming across to the starboard side of the ship, guests will visit the crew's lounge which also served as the chapel, three mess areas, food prep areas and the crew's galley. All the stainless steel equipment has been cleaned and is operational.

The bakery, barbershop, post office, general workshop, blacksmith shop and machine shop are also located nearby.

Down below on the fourth deck up is the CIC, the Combat Information Center or the ship's "nerve center."

The ship would be fought from there and the CIC would control all of the systems during battle. It will be darkened for a dramatization. Only five people will be let in at a time.

Other highlights include the bridge, where the ship was steered and the admiral and captain stood.

Plans call for one deck to be opened per year. "When people come back they'll be able to see something different each time," MacMullen said.

One ship area which will restored in the coming months is the Admiral's Cabin where such dignitaries as the King and Queen of Greece, King of Egypt and Gen. Dwight Eisenhower and Marshall Tito were entertained. The cabin features a dining room, sleeping quarters and separate bathroom.

"(Ret.) Admiral (Alan) Roby (scheduled to attend the re-commissioning ceremony Sunday) will come in and give us a hand and tell us exactly how this was set up," MacMullen said.

The director said the Salem will be presented as if she were preparing for reactivization.

"If this ship were in the Navy and the Navy decided to put her back into service, they'd do exactly the same things we're doing now. This is the greatest way to present the ship because you'd go to a shipyard to do that. And since this is a shipbuilding museum, this is really the best way to interpret the ship," MacMullen said.

With the exception of the USS Constitution, the Salem is perhaps the only other museum ship which is not a mere shell.

"We have a ship that they never took anything off of, even the tags and everything else are still in place like the gauges. The water system works, we've got the ventilation system going, you name it, all it takes is just checking out the wiring and turning it on and making sure everything is charged. We'll have the heating and the air-conditioning going, too," MacMullen said.

Ball Launches Commissioning Weekend

The USS Salem Ball will be held Saturday evening in the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum's offices in Building No. 4 at the Fore River Shipyard.

The ball will be from 8 to 11 p.m. in the main room of the building. Admission is $25 per person.

A reception will be held prior to the ball at 6:30 p.m. in the lobby of the same building. Reception tickets are $50 which will also include admission to the ball.

Ball proceeds will help finance the operation of the Shipbuilding Museum to open for the first time on Sunday following the re-commissioning of the USS Salem into the Historic Ships Museum System.

Michael D'Amico Candidate For Ward 4 Councillor

Michael D'Amico, 20, of 602 Willard St., West Quincy, announces he is a candidate for Ward 4 city councillor.

D'Amico, who ran for the seat two years ago, made his announcement at the Common Market before approximately 200 people. The lifelong West Quincy residents says is he running because he believes he can best represent the interests of Ward 4.

"Experience is important, but the bottom line is having experience and commitment. I am proud of the fact that over the past two years I have served as director of the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association.

"Upon joining the board, I pioneered the very first Ward 4 community newsletter. The letter served as a local news source to inform local residents of happenings in our ward," D'Amico said.

"We plan on publishing the new Ward 4 newsletter sponsored by the campaign committee. The difference is, I not only talk the talk, I walk the walk. I offer the honesty, experience, and character necessary to facilitate competent leadership of which we can all be proud," he said.

D'Amico proposes to

MICHAEL D'AMICO

"restore accountability, enhance public safety, alleviate zoning concerns, foster the growth of our unique community center, and hold the line on taxes. Foremost, I will restore accountability to the office and have a plan to do so. I have the new ideas and innovative skills to tackle old problems.

"We have a unique ward with close neighborhoods and civic-minded residents. In dealing with the public's business, it will be an ongoing effort of mine to encompass the input of all our local residents. Therefore, I will implement a Ward 4 neighborhood advisory committee, continue my neighborhood newsletter, form a volunteer staff at City Hall, as well as conduct weekly office hours at both City Hall and our community center," D'Amico said.

Public safety is among his highest priorities, D'Amico said. "I will use my hands on experience as a five-term committeeman on the Massachusetts Juvenile Justice Advisory Committee to ensure the public's safety in Ward 4. I will fight for community policing.

"We also need working neighborhood watch groups in West and South Quincy. I will also see to it that a monthly police log is published in our community newsletter. I will implement needed safeguards against crime and together, we will be an effective bastion on behalf of our neighborhoods," D'Amico said.

Other major themes outlined by D'Amico are a Ward 4 comprehensive zoning protection plan, including passage of the Site Plan Review Ordinance; utilizing the community center bu opening it daily and holding public hearings there; and bringing a large hotel to the city.

D'Amico is pursuing a bachelor of arts degree in political science at Stonehill College.

Atlantic Council To Present 'Together We Can' Plan

The Atlantic Neighborhood Prevention Council, with the assistance of Impact Quincy and through the nationally-known "Together We Can" program, has devised a plan to help improve children's chances for a healthy future.

The council will present its plan to the public Wednesday, May 17 at 7 p.m. in the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy. The plan outlines positive steps which can be taken to help reduce the risks facing children in the neighborhood and throughout the country.

"Together We Can" is a program that builds consensus in a community by seeking input from every community member. Atlantic is the first Quincy neighborhood to participate in it.

For more information, call Steve Ward at Impact Quincy, 472-6027.

Cremation More Popular

By WAYNE FITZPATRICK

Despite being considered by some people as being disrespectful and eccentric, cremation is quickly becoming a more popular method of body removal.

Roger Hamel, director of the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St., and treasurer of the Cremation Society of Massachusetts, has noticed an increase in the number and growing acceptance of cremations.

"When I got into the business 30 years ago, cremations were very rare but now they are becoming quite common," Hamel, 54, said during a recent interview.

The number of cremations per death was at 19 percent last year, up from 4 percent in 1991.

According to Hamel, there are three main reasons for the sudden increase in cremations.

"Cremations have increased because they are economically better, environmentally better and it has been accepted by the Catholic Church," he said.

Cost is a major attraction for those seeking cremation.

While the average funeral and burial may cost families up to between $6,000 and $7,000 Hamel charges under $1,000 for the cremation process.

Since cremated remains may be buried but are not always buried, the quickly growing problem of lack of land in cemeteries can be averted through cremations, according to Hamel.

After opposing the practice of cremation for many years, the Catholic Church began allowing cremations in 1983 with the publication of the new code of canon law.

Hamel urged people to look forward and plan ahead for their inevitable future.

"Most people don't like to talk about death and when the time comes it is too late," he said.

The cremation process begins by placing the body into a wooden coffin or alternative container and putting the coffin or container into a retort which burns the body at temperatures which can reach more than 1,400 degrees.

After the cremation is complete, the remains are collected and put into a cardboard urn.

There are several options after a body has been cremated.

The remains can be left in the urn, placed memorial wall, with other urns or the remains may be scattered.

Each memorial wall has many small niches in which urns may be placed.

While the scattering of remains is the most popular method of discarding remains, Hamel discourages the practice, stressing that care should be given to human remains.

"It's a human body and there is no recovering the remains if you scatter them," Hamel explained.

Although the majority of remains are scattered at sea, some cemeteries offer a special area for the scattering of remains.

Since they are mostly made up of water and calcium, Hamel said the remains actually give nutrients to the water.

Cremations are most popular by younger people, according to Hamel.

"Younger people tend to use cremation services partly because they are more in touch with the environment and want to save land," he noted.

While some states such as California already have some rates of cremation which hover at around 50 percent, Hamel predicted that by the year 2010 the national rate of cremations will reach 50 to 60 percent.

"It's a growing practice and is not showing any signs of stopping," he said.

Anyone seeking information concerning cremation or the Cremation Society of Massachusetts can contact Hamel at 472-5888 or 1-800-696-5887.

Water Department Team To Compete In Tapping Contest

A team from the Quincy Water Department will compete in the second annual, state-wide "water-tapping" contest on Boston Common today (Thursday) on Boston Common starting at 9:30 a.m.

The contest will highlight a series of activities on that day on the Boston Common and at the State House commemorating National Drinking Water Week in Massachusetts.

During the contest, teams representing water utilities throughout Massachusetts will work against the clock, performing the various steps involved in connecting a public water supply line to a typical home, said Quincy Water Supt. George Clark.

The Quincy team will include Tony DiStasi, Ed Laura, Ron Leaman and Mark Vialpandro.

Health Advisory Council Meeting

The Quincy Health Advisory Council will meet Tuesday, May 16 from 3 to 5 p.m. at the Three Seasons Restaurant in Quincy High School/Center for Technical Education.

The meeting had originally been scheduled for Wednesday, May 17.

CURRENT EVENTS

A battery's failure to hold a charge for more than a day or so may be due to reasons other than it is defective. The least of these in terms of seriousness is a loose alternator belt. Otherwise, the alternator may not be putting out enough electricity to meet the car's electrical needs, in which case an unwarranted demand will be put on the battery. The voltage regulator may be bad, which might cause voltage to drop so low that the battery eventually goes dead. Lastly, and often overlooked, a battery can be the victim of high parasitic draw. Also known as parasitic drain, this refers to the amount of current that drains from the battery even when the engine and all accessories are turned off. This can be the result of a very dirty battery or a defective alternator diode.

Hint: The reserve capacity rating tells how long the battery can supply current in the event that the alternator fails. It typically ranges from 1 to 3 hours.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Interior Design Important To Buyers

For prospective buyers, the interior design of a house is important.

However, the Quincy & South Shore Board Realtors says that the location, price and layout of the home counts more, as the interior can always be redone to suit one's personal taste.

It is much easier to add a bucket of paint to a house in the right neighborhood than to move a house painted the right color to another location.

Redecorating a home can be exciting, but also frustrating. You may begin to wonder whether you should hire a professional interior designer or do it yourself.

The professional has a trained eye and may be better able to transform your well-loved and well-used furniture into a balanced, attractive scheme. On the other hand, money paid to an interior designer could be channeled into furnishings for the new home.

"If you decide to invest in the services of a professional designer, there are a few things to remember," Quincy & South shore Board President James Stamos said. "First, designer fees vary as greatly as doctor fees. Some work on a set rate basis, others work for a percentage of the total decorating budget. The first question a homeowner should ask a designer is the basis on which he or she charges. What a homeowner thinks is a rough estimate or a casual opinion of room might be a chargeable appraisal for the designers."

When seeking a designer, ask for recommendations from friends who have used more and have been satisfied with results. Also, if a designer uses the initials ASID after his name, he or she is a member of the American Society of Interior Designers, an organization of approximately 10,000 members nationwide. This society has strict membership requirements. To join, a person must have had extensive education and experience in the interior design field, in addition to passing a two-day examination.

There are plenty of helpful hints for homeowners who decide to do the work themselves. First, do your homework. That is, take a tour of some furnished model homes, visit furniture showrooms, look through decorating magazines, or pay attention to friends' and relatives' homes. Jot down ideas and compile a list of what you like and dislike in color combinations, arrangements and furniture.

"Another word of advice is to take your time," said Stamos. "Successful decoration develops from a carefully considered, long-range plan. Many homeowners wisely wait one or two years after they move in before beginning a major redesigning venture. This gives them plenty of time to get an idea of what they want and to shop around for furnishings that will give lasting satisfaction."

Keep in mind that rooms in your home must serve your living habits and those of your family. The design should satisfy your family's ideas of comfort, beauty, economy and ease of maintenance. For instance, if no one in your home enjoys housekeeping, stay away from small intricate accessories or white carpeting that demands constant cleaning.

However, don't be drab in order to be practical. Choose colors you like, not necessarily colors of current fashion. Collect color samples that you intend to use in a room and study the combination carefully. If you still like it after a day or two, include the combination in your plan.

It's also interesting to note how different groups respond to various colors. Men tend to like tomatoey, yellow-based reds to raspberry shades with a blue base. While older women adore the color purple, it's the color most disliked by men of any age. Almost everyone finds pale blues calming.

Cut out cardboard shapes in scale with your furniture and room size. Experiment with different arrangements. This is much easier than moving the furniture itself around. Remember that some bare spots in a room are desirable--simplicity enhances beauty.

Above all, don't shy away from an interior design merely because it's unusual. If something works well for your lifestyle, then you've done a good job. The satisfaction of having your home the way you want it is what matters in the long run.

Quincy Attractive Location For Automobile Retailers

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

The criteria in site selection for automobile retailers seem obvious.

They need lots of space to display product in heavily-traveled areas that provide maximum street frontage exposure. The industry-accepted standard size for a healthy business operation is six acres. Yet the densely-populated metropolitan areas that have the demographics to support new car sales also tend to be highly developed with minimal space available for development.

This has resulted in a new industry trend to develop showrooms on smaller, higher-priced retail properties that are supported by off-site distribution points.

A good example of this national industry trend is the $2 million acquisition of the 10-plus acre Barney & Carey site on Ricciuti Drive by Daniel Quirk in 1994.

"Quincy is attractive to an automobile retailer on a growth trend because of its location, population base, pro-business attitude, and the fact you can still find some parcels of industrial land," said Quirk.

Quirk began doing business in Quincy in 1990 at his Southern Artery site. He considers the Southern Artery one of the South Shore's premier places for business. To support this retail operation, he acquired 38,147 square feet on Field Street for $1,475,000 in 1993.

The Quincy market, with a solid regional population and easy access, has sustained operations at Fore River Motors for 49 years.

"I think that Quincy is one of the up-and-coming spots in the universe," said Jack Dunn, owner of Fore River Motors. "Even when the regional economy was really depressed, we still had the advantage of being at the gateway to the South Shore."

The Fore River Motor site occupies an estimated 3 acres of land and is directly across from the new Roche Brothers and Wal-Mart Shopping Center under construction on Falls Boulevard.

Around the corner at 19 Quincy Ave., an upstart by the name of Eddie Abed is operating a used car dealership. He opened his operation in January 1994 and is already looking to expand.

"I chose Quincy because it's easy for people to get to and I was able to find a site for my business," said Abed.

Used car dealers are also demanding when it comes to visibility of the site but they can operate on a much smaller scale. According to Abed, a 10,000-square-foot lot will accommodate 20 to 25 cars.

City Clerk Joe Shea confirmed that both the new and used car businesses are prospering in Quincy.

"The License Board has seen a significant increase in license applications as contrasted with previous years," said Shea.

There are an estimated 12 Class I (new car) sales licenses and 50 Class II (used car) sales licenses active in the city at this time. Licenses are issued through the Quincy License Board which requires evidence of an established business address

After 4-0 Win Over North Quincy

Presidents, DeLisle Edged By Taunton

By KERRY BYRNE

The man they call Sasquatch, senior pitcher Chris DeLisle, had a monster outing for the Presidents, but it went for not as the Quincy High baseball team fell to Taunton, 1-0, Monday at Adams Field.

DeLisle's was the second consecutive strong pitching performance for Quincy, coming on the heels of Shaun Kivlin's mastery in a 4-0 win over crosstown rival North Quincy last Friday.

The Presidents (4-8) hoped to get some run support to go with their pitching yesterday (Wednesday) when they traveled to Weymouth. They host Bridgewater-Raynham today (Thursday) at 3:30 p.m. Quincy lost to Bridgewater-Raynham, 8-0, in their one previous meeting this season.

Against Taunton (7-2), DeLisle unfurled a mixed bag of breaking balls and off-speed pitches as he held the Tigers to four hits and struck out five.

"Chris was on today," said coach Bob Sylvia. "If we could just get him some runs. He had Taunton off balance and pitched a masterful game. This is the type of game you go away from frustrated, but not mad."

The lone run was scored in the sixth inning due to a defensive breakdown by the Quincy infield. Tigers DH Jeff Smith opened the frame with a double, the only extra-base hit by either team in the contest. Steve Rositer then laid down a bunt up the first base line, and DeLisle and first baseman Kivlin went to field the ball, but no one covered Kivlin's base, allowing Rositer to reach safely. Smith moved to third.

A walk to Chad Soderberg loaded the bases and set up Dan Fagan's game-winning base hit, which went just above the reach of sophomore third baseman Chad Feetham and fell in inches from the left field foul line.

Before the walk was issued, Quincy left fielder Steve Barrett saved a run when he made a splendid running, shoestring catch and a throw which held Smith at third.

Barrett recorded one of six hits the Presidents managed against Taunton pitcher Brian Smith. Joe Biagini, in his first game back after a short illness, led Quincy with two singles. Other hits were cracked by Billy Marchand, John Hanafin and Jeff Russell.

The Presidents were unable to concentrate the hits in one single inning.

"We have young kids and they're just not hitting yet," said Sylvia. Barrett is the only every-day senior playing for Sylvia's club.

Kivlin and North Quincy's Joe McCarthy locked in a pitcher's duel Friday in Quincy's 4-0 win.

McCarthy fanned nine batters, including six in the first two innings, but was struck for one run in each of the first and third innings and two in the fourth.

Kivlin allowed two hits in the complete-game shutout effort. It was the first goose egg posted by a Quincy pitcher this season.

Marchand played a superb, error-free game behind the plate in place of Biagini.

Disappointed Red Raiders (3-10) coach Leo Donovan spoke after the game: "Joe pitched very well. He deserves a better fate. I hate to waste this type of pitching performance."

North Quincy followed the loss with an 8-4 win over Plymouth South which featured a tremendous performance from senior Sean Dolbeare.

Dolbeare posted a whopping 16 strikeouts and broke open a 2-2 game in the fourth inning with a three-run roundtripper. Junior Tim Zaniboni added a one-run shot for the Red Raiders.

Also helping North break out of the doldrums were Steve Koch (2 for 4, RBI) and Dan Reynolds (2 for 4).

The Red Raiders were scheduled to host Falmouth yesterday (Wednesday) at 4:00 p.m. at Adams Field. They travel to Barnstable today and resume their home schedule Monday when they take on Silver Lake at 3:30.

NQ Falls To Quincy Friday

Raiders Regroup With Win Over Plymouth S.

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy High School softball team improved to 5-6 and swept the season series with Plymouth South following a 6-4 win Monday at Mitchell-McCoy Field.

The Red Raiders defeated the Panthers, 22-16, earlier this year.

Last Friday, NQ lost, 12-8, to arch-rival Quincy.

North will take the field at home today (Thursday) against Barnstable and will travel to Silver Lake on Monday. Both games start at 3:30.

The offense against Plymouth South was spread evenly throughout the lineup. The big inning was the fourth. Leading, 2-0, the Raiders batted around the lineup with Liz Fitzpatrick leading with a double. Alyssa Cobban followed with a single, scoring Fitzpatrick. After reaching third, Cobban scored on a Kerry Monahan groundout to make the score 4-0.

Kristen Proude and Kerry Ginty walked to keep things going. Proude stole third and scored on a Jen Doherty sacrifice fly. Denise Anderson singled in Ginty with the fourth run of the inning to make the score 6-0.

North Quincy scored their first run in the first inning when Doherty singled, scoring Proude who led the inning with a walk and two stolen bases. The next run came in the second inning. Jamie Monahan led with a walk, stole second, and scored when Cobban hit into a fielder's choice.

Softball

The Panthers scored one run in the fifth and came through for three in the seventh inning.

Janean Elfman started her first varsity game and pitched six innings, allowed four hits and struck out two. Anderson came on in the seventh to finish the game.

North played the game without standout freshman Kerry Skehan. She fractured her finger in two places while pitching against Bridgewater-Raynham last week and will miss the rest of the season.

In their previous game on Friday, the Red Raiders fell to crosstown rival Quincy, 12-8.

With the scored tied, 7-7, in the seventh inning, the Presidents (3-7) scored five runs on four hits and a walk. All five runs came with two outs.

Quincy's Alicia Ford and Toni Kabilian swung the big sticks. Ford went 3 for 4 and knocked in four RBIs. Kabilian went 2 for 3 with two long doubles, scored one run and recorded three RBIs. Angela Hogrell pitched well in recording her - and her team's - third win in a row.

North Quincy's Kerry Monahan went 2 for 4 with three RBIs; Fitzpatrick went 2 for 3; and Ginty went 2 for 4 with one RBI.

"It's always nice to beat North Quincy," said Presidents coach Bob Keuther. "It's helped us to gain confidence. We're playing with confidence and it shows on the field. I'm definitely looking forward to the second half of the season."

Quincy was scheduled to host Weymouth yesterday (Wednesday) at 3:30 and will travel to Bridgewater-Raynham today. Their next home game is Wednesday, May 17 versus Plymouth South.

The Presidents lost to Old Colony League powerhouse Taunton on Monday, 12-3.

Hall (No-Hitter), Turowski Strong As Burke Rolls

In Little League action, Atty. George Burke received two outstanding pitching performances in posting back-to-back wins.

Justin Hall recorded the first no-hitter of the season as Burke blanked South Shore Buick, 11-0. Hall K'd 11 batters.

Mound-mate Peter Turowski followed that game with a one-hitter as Burke topped Rotary, 8-1.

Little League

The Burke pitching staff has allowed just four runs in three games this season. In the SSB game, Burke broke the game open with seven runs in the fourth after Hall was given an early 3-0 lead.

They closed the scoring with a late run thanks to a hit by Brian Rooney. Ryan Hutchings led the attack with two hits and four RBIs. He also played wonderfully on the receiving end of Hall's no-hitter.

Against Rotary, Burke jumped to a 4-0 lead in the first inning. Dan Duggan and Pat Bregoli led with singles and came home

Nearly 200 Attend QHS Football Reunion

Memories Relived At Reunion Of 1950-59 Teams

By KERRY BYRNE

America of the 1950s was a different place. Before the riots, protests and psychedelia of the 60s changed the outlook of the nation, there was a simpler, Norman Rockwell-esque country where 16-year-old whip-thin receivers, bull-necked fullbacks and brawny linemen battled for local football glory, to the delight of thousands, amid the colorful splash of a brisk autumn afternoon.

Until Alan (The Horse) Ameche of the Baltimore Colts crashed over the goal line in sudden-death overtime in the 1958 NFL championship game, high school football ruled the land. Quincy was no exception. Thousands turned out for every game - not just on Thanksgiving - and high school players were local heroes. The newspapers were more likely to feature the boy who scored three touchdowns than some professional player from New York or Chicago.

Those 'glory days' were celebrated Saturday night as 190 people attended a reunion of the Quincy High School football teams of 1950-59 at the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

Former players traveled from near and far for the celebration. Bill Peruzzi and Glenn Craig, who played side-by-side at left guard and left tackle on the 1955 team, came from New York and California, respectively. They had not seen each other for 30 years, but were surprised to find that their lives after football had taken them down the same career path.

Peruzzi found out they were in the same business - educational curriculum development - when a cryptic message was left with his secretary asking if her boss ever played football. The message was from Craig.

The reunion of the former linemates was just one of scores of similar meetings that took place as men - now a little

BILL SULLIVAN, who coached the Quincy High football team from 1952-59, received a standing ovation when he came to the podium to speak to his former players at the 1950-59 reunion Saturday night.

BILL MYERS, a former standout on the Quincy High football team, walks away from the podium after winning a prize during the raffle at the reunion of the Quincy High football teams of the 1950s.

STANDING FOR THE Q-U-I-N-C-Y cheer and good-natured round of the Quincy High School fight song which began the reunion are, from left, Mike Angelis, Glenn Craig, Bill Peruzzi and Earl Alsop.

thicker around the middle and a little thinner on top - recalled fondly the memories of another day - memories that included the time Don Tobin and his 1953 QHS teammates battled mighty Everett High during a rare night game.

Everett at the time was known across the country as the biggest high school team ever, with kids weighing upwards of 260 pounds. Quite impressive in a day when 175-pound linemen were the norm. Tobin, a guard, and his Presidents teammates fought valiantly but in the end fell, 19-14.

It was just one of many games talked about as players, coaches and cheerleaders from those teams of the 1950s reminisced throughout the evening.

"I just wish I had the time to talk to everyone I wanted," said Ron Ivil, who first developed the idea of reuniting all the teams of the 50s after a meeting of the players from his 1956 team went over so well last year. "Everyone had a lot of fun, mostly remembering the little things we did - the things that might not mean much to other people but that mean a lot to those of us who were there."

Jackie Powers, a member of the 1956 team and one of the organizers of the reunion, summed up the gathering: "Nowhere in the history of the world has anyone got together to do this type of thing - we still don't know why we did it. But there are 190 people here to show that it means something to a lot of people."

Several of the players' mentors of the 50s were in attendance, including Bob Basiliere and Marty Finnegan. But none were greeted as warmly as Bill Sullivan, who was Quincy's head coach from 1952 to 1959. The crowd gave him a standing ovation as he stood before his players one last time.

Perhaps the former players best remembered Sullivan's fiery locker-room speeches which lifted Quincy High to five consecutive Thanksgiving Day wins over North Quincy in the mid-50s. It remains the longest streak in the 62-year history of the storied Quincy-North Quincy rivalry.

On display at the reunion were newspaper clippings and cartoons featuring the feats of those Quincy teams. Also displayed were the large plaques which, thanks to the research of Ivil, list all the Quincy High all-scholastics, dating back to 1929.

Those plaques, and a similar set listing the North Quincy all-scholastics, will hang in the Pride Rooms of their respective schools and spaces remain for any future all-scholastics.

Ivil hopes that a list of the all-scholastics will placed permanently at Veterans' Memorial Stadium, beside the turf where, for the past 60 years, whip-thin receivers, bull-necked fullbacks and brawny linemen have strived for football glory amid the colorful splash of an autumn's day.

Hall Hurls No-Hitter As Burke Rolls

when Hall unleashed a three-bagger.

Hall scored on a passed ball. The final run of the inning came when Matt Moriarty's single knocked in Joe Sudak.

Turowski's double in the second plated another Burke run. They scored three times in the fourth, courtesy of runs by Billy O'Brien, Bregoli and Turowski.

Turowksi lost the no-hitter in the sixth when Joe Thorley singled to center. The Burke Club then turned a 6-4-3 double play and Turowski fanned the last batter, his eighth victim in the contest.

Jaehnig Chiropractic edged South Shore Buick, 9-8.

The Jaehnig offense was led by Dan O'Toole who clubbed two hits and reached base safely three times. Kevin Weeks and Pat Jaehnig also got on base three times each. Chris Ham played well defensively.

SSB was paced by the sticks of Dave Centrella and Joe Holleran, who nailed two hits apiece. Matt Holt safely reached base four times. John Fidalgo, Brian O'Hanley and Miah Hasson also looked sharp.

In an earlier contest, SSB topped Rotary, 9-6.

Fidalgo had a superb day at the plate with two doubles. Holleran, Hasson and Holt pounded out two hits apiece. On the mound, Holt (three innings, seven strikeouts), Fidalgo (two, three) and Centrella (one, two) combined to hold Rotary to three hits. Brandon Deshler and Neal Gavin also played well.

Leading the Rotary club were Ken Ryan, Joe Thorley and John Virtue.

Noll Tops Osco, R&D Wins Two

Noll Electrical scored 10 runs in the seventh inning to put away Osco Drug, 19-8.

Sparking the Noll Electrical hit parade were Steve Minukas (4 for 5, two doubles, five RBIs), Billy Norris (3 for 5, double, RBI), Eugene DeLisle (three hits, four RBIs), Matt Terlaje (two hits, two RBIs), John Parastides (double, RBI) and Ricky Carmichael (two hits).

Parastides was the winning pitcher and recorded 12 Ks. Terlaje led the defense with five putouts and one unassisted double play.

Playing well in the field for Osco were Jimmy Fitzgerald (seven assists, one putout), Neal Rosenberger and Kevin Joyce.

Noll Electrical battled to an 11-11 tie with Feenan Financial Group before the game was called due to darkness.

Noll's Norris clubbed two doubles and two RBIs. Minukas and Terlaje posted three RBIs each and Justin Drysdale cracked a triple and a single.

Terlaje again turned in an unassisted double play.

Matt McDonough powered the Feenan offense with two hits and two RBIs. Peter Dawidow stroked three singles and Jason Lisowski nailed two.

Matt Nelson and Mike Keenan played well in the field.

Recupero & Davis cooked Super Chef, 8-4.

Pat Hanley (single, double, two RBIs), Tony DiBona (single, triple, two RBIs), Jamie MacIsaac (two hits, RBI), Louie Barbosa (double), Kevin Markham (double) and John Fish (single, RBI) swung the stick well in the winning effort.

Mike Lencki and Adam Radzevich whipped up doubles for Super Chef. Corey Awed and Mike Aniolowski cracked two hits each.

Earlier in the week, R&D posted a 19-7 win over Feenan. They scored 10 runs in the first inning and never looked back.

Jamie Panagos recorded the win with a complete-game, 12 K effort. Tony DiBona ripped two singles and a triple. Stephen Inferrera punched a two-bagger.

Matt McDonough paced the Feenan effort with three hits and three runs scored. McDonough also played well on defense with 11 putouts at first.

ATSS pulled out a come-from-behind 17-10 win over State Street.

ATSS trailed, 5-2, going into the fourth but they struck for 13 runs over the next two innings to ice the contest.

Powering the winning attack were Brian Raddel (four singles), Jason Newhall (two singles, double), Alex King (triple, double) and Anthony Placet (triple, single).

Raddel picked up the win with an eight-strikeout effort.

Charlie Manning clubbed a double for State Street.

Babe Ruth

Elks Begin Title Defense With Consecutive Wins

The reigning Babe Ruth champion Elks squad opened their title defense with a pair of weekend wins.

The Elks topped Granite City, 10-1. Chris Bregoli short-circuited the opposition by allowing just two infield hits. He fanned nine in the complete-game effort.

Rusty Corner and Matt McLoughlin each scored twice for the Elks, in the first and third innings. Steve Clarke doubled in a run in the third and Bregoli doubled in two runs in the seventh.

Corner led the offense with three hits. Scott Staiti made the defensive play of the game by spearing a hard shot at the hot corner.

The Elks barely escaped in a wild 11-10 affair with Quincy Police.

Staiti nailed the key hit in the top of the seventh when he stroked a three-run homer after Clarke and Bregoli led the inning with walks. With the bases loaded after walks were issued to Rachel Powers, Mike Keddy and Kevin Shaw, McLoughlin singled in Powers with what proved to be the game-winning run.

Police rallied in the fourth as Adam Tiro, Sean Adams and Colin Shea loaded the bases and Ray Sartre clubbed his fourth hit of the game. But McLoughlin struck out the final batter to preserve the win.

Staiti led the Elks with four hits and three RBIs.

Manny Vasques posted his first win, 4-1 over Sons of Italy, as Fire Dept. evened its record at 1-1.

Vasques gave up a walk, a base hit and a run in the first inning, but shut down SOI the rest of the way. He fanned five and gave up four hits on the day. He was backed by a solid defensive corps, including Chad Fitzpatrick, who has playing his first game at shortstop, and Bill Walker, who was steady behind the plate.

Walker knocked in the winning run with a sacrifice fly early in the contest that put Fire Dept. ahead, 2-1. Fitzpatrick reached base three times, recorded two hits and knocked in a run. Vasques clubbed two hits. Singles were notched by Brian Nolan and Ron DiNapoli.

Playing well on the mound for SOI were Jonathon Caliri, Adam Goodrich and Billy Connolly. Stroking base hits were Caliri, Dan Toland, Jeff Peterson, Billy Connolly and Pat Coughlin.

Sons of Italy opened the season with an 8-5 win over Tirrell Services.

T.J. Miller pitched the complete-game victory, allowing just five hits. Hitting the ball for SOI were Matt Tobin, Goodrich and Connolly. Adam Delorey, Shawn Lynch and Billy Duke also played well.

Triple A

Remax Realty Pounds Out Back-To-Back Wins

Remax Realty pounded out back-to-back wins this week, tempting Quincy DARE, 7-2, and striking past Local 2222, 13-7, in Triple A ball.

Against DARE, Realty's Paul Dutton showed true grit as he came back to club and RBI single after getting pegged by a line drive. He also played a fine defensive game. Dave Toner, in his first-ever Triple A game, nailed a double and a single. Conrad Leger rocked a three-run roundtripper and pitched a complete game, allowing just five hits.

Zack Egan clocked a longball for DARE and scored both runs, while John Paquette pitched a strong game before tiring in the final inning.

In the win over Local, Joe (Hall of Fame) Cronin recorded two hits, two RBIs and made a fine catch of a frozen rope to kill a Local rally. John Ryan cracked two hits and knocked in three runs. He also played well at shortstop with three putouts and three assists.

Local's Mike McGuire pitched a gutsy game and spent most of the game on base. Reid Donovan rocketed two line-shot base hits and was robbed by Cronin's great catch. If the ball had got by, Donovan would have been star of the game.

Quincy DARE rebounded from their loss to Remax with a 15-6 win over Kenny Lock.

Pitcher Joey Fitzpatrick posted the win. Leading the offense were Mike Petruicelli, John Paquette and Fitzpatrick.

Led by the hitting of Eric Bingham and Mike Brangwynne, Hurley Insurance out-muscled old rival Yellow Cab, 18-14.

Mike Doherty recorded the win on the mound.

John Santos pitched well for Yellow Cab, while hits by Jonathon Carroll and Kelly Coleman helped keep it close.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Quincy High junior Kristen Priscella smashed the long-standing school record in the javelin last Tuesday in a meet against Falmouth High School when she made a throw of 111 feet, 8 1/2 inches.

The throw bettered by over three feet the old record held by Lisa Zannis, who made a throw of 108-5 in 1982.

Justin (Fireball) Hall, who last year mesmerized the minions with a myriad of momentous mound masterpieces as a 10-year-old Little Leaguer, is at it again this season.

In Atty. George Burke's 11-0 win over South Shore Buick last week, Fireball burnt the opposing lineup with an 11-strikeout, no-hit performance.

The future is bright for Hall. He still has one more year to hone his skills at the Little League level before moving up to Babe Ruth. Imagine what he'll do when he develops a curveball.

Former Quincy Athletic Director Marty Finnegan was in town last week so that he could attend the reunion Saturday night of the Quincy High School football teams of the 1950s.

The Big Guy looked in good health and good spirits when I spoke to him. He said the weather in Southern California has done wonders for him but complained bitterly of the fact that he's been able to get in 'only' three rounds of golf per week.

Life's tough, huh?

It seems in past years golf got the best of Marty, as it does many of us. He had it so bad that, according to one source close to the Finnegans, he and his wife Norma determined 45 years ago when they first married that it would be best for the marriage if they did not play golf together.

Since the two have been living in Desert Hot Springs (gee, I wonder what the weather's like there?) Norma has been playing with Marty without the fear that he may, at any second, turn into a raving golf lunatic, complete with cheesy polka dot pants and a pastel sport coat.

My source, a young lad known only as Mitch, attributes the new-found golf partnership to the "softening" of The Big Guy.

The Finnegans' home in Desert Hot Springs is about an hour from Pasadena, which is where you'll find Mr. North Quincy, Pete Zoia, and his wife Elaine on New Year's Day, courtesy of a birthday present from their kids.

The Zoias bought mom and dad tickets to the 1996 Rose Bowl, which takes place Jan. 1.

Zoia, proud grandfather of 26 and great-grandfather of six, has been to every Quincy-North Quincy football game since the rivalry began in 1933, but this will be his first trip to the 'Grandaddy of 'em all,' as the Rose Bowl, pitting the winners of college football's Pac 10 and Big 10 conferences, has come to be known.

While we're on my favorite subject, football, I figured I'd give a big, warm Sun welcome to new Quincy High football coach Peter Chella now rather than when the season starts.

Welcome, Pete.

By the way, has anyone noticed that the coach's name sounds like a wine?

Notice: "Excuse me waiter, could we have a bottle of 1937 Petachella with our veal, please?"

It could also be mistaken for an instrument: "Pavarotti was superb in concert. But the orchestra's petachella section was way out of tune. What an embarrassment!"

Or, it could be a style of artwork: "The petachella exhibit at the MFA was absolutely exquisite, Biffy."

"Yes, Tad, it was. We must see the it at the Met in August."

With apologies to my Italian friends.

Baseball parents and coaches, please turn in your game results to The Quincy Sun office no later than Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

If you don't have score sheets you can get them from your league president or by calling The Sun at 471-3100.

You can also write the results down on a plain old piece of paper, coffee-stained napkin or worn-out old shoe leather. Please be sure to include the score (some people seem to forget that part), your phone number, the correct spelling of all players' names and notable performances on both teams. Please print or type.

English is preferred but not mandatory.

Volleyball

Experience Leads NQ Over Quincy

The city's two rising boys' volleyball teams met in a measuring-stick game for both clubs and North Quincy prevailed, 2-0 (15-13, 15-4), over Quincy.

The two were scheduled to meet again this past Tuesday.

The boys' teams have yet to reach the preeminence achieved on the court by their female counterparts, but both teams appear headed in that direction. After a 2-0 win over Medfield Monday, the Red Raiders stand at 9-3. The Presidents fell to Brockton, 2-1, last Friday but improved to 6-4 following their 2-1 win over Billerica on Monday.

If both teams win 10 games, which it appears they will, then both will be in the post-season tournament for the first time in the programs' histories. North Quincy made the tourney last year with a 17-3 record but lost in the quarterfinal round to Holliston, a team which made it to the state finals before bowing out to New Bedford. Quincy ended the 1994 season with a 5-15 record.

The rise for both clubs has been relatively fast; boys volleyball has been in existence at Quincy and North Quincy for just eight years.

In the first meeting between the two this season, they battled back and forth before the Red Raiders squeezed out a narrow 15-13 victory in game one. Their superior depth and experience were in evidence as they easily handled the Presidents in the second game, 15-4, to capture the 2-0 victory.

"We made a lot of errors in the first game, but the errors were forced because of the way Quincy played defense," said North Quincy coach John Perkins. "In the second game our experience really took over. We cut our errors in half and we attacked from all spots on the floor."

"We played real well in the first match, but I think when we lost it, it kind of took the steam out of us," said Quincy coach Jim Rendle. "They took a quick lead in the second match before we could even get back into it. All of a sudden we're down by a wide margin and we can't afford to do that. Learning to overcome those losses comes with experience."

The Red Raiders have been led this season by the play of senior captain Ken Goon. Goon has recorded 70 blocks this season and is on a pace that will give him over 100 for the season.

Junior outside hitter Jim Rendle, Jr., leads North Quincy with an average of seven kills per match. His senior counterpart, Jacky Lei, is averaging six kills per match. Setter Samson Lee has also been a force; his "floating" serves have allowed him to average eight service points per match.

Presidents coach Rendle hopes that the experience gained in several close matches will benefit his club down the stretch.

"We lost to Brockton 18-16 in third game," said Rendle. "It was as close a game as I can remember in 10 years of volleyball. Then yesterday (Monday) we won one, 17-15. The more close games we play, the more battle-hardened we get. These close games build character and that will help us if we meet these teams in the tournament."

Barry, Quincy Girls Sparkle At Invitationals

Several Quincy High girls sparkled this past weekend during the Notre Dame Academy and Falmouth invitational tournaments.

Saturday, during the freshman-sophomore Notre Dame Invitational, QHS freshman Erin Barry captured first-place finishes in the shot put (29 feet, 11 1/2 inches) and 800 meters (2:38.9).

Freshman Pam Grey took first in the 300-meter low hurdles with a time of 58.9 seconds. Two of the top three performances in the triple jump came from Kara McSweeney and Julie Dunn. McSweeney placed first with a distance of 27-9 while Dunn took third with her leap of 26-9 1/4.

Other top performers on Saturday were sophomore Katie Sullivan, who finished second in the discus with a throw of 76-6 1/2, and Erin Flaherty, who placed fourth in the mile with a time of 6:13.9.

The Quincy girls placed fourth overall in the Notre Dame Invitational with 69 points.

On Sunday, during the junior-senior division of the Falmouth Invitational, junior Liz Sawan posted the top Quincy effort with a second place (5:38) finish in the mile. Her competition in the mile included some of the best runners in the region. Sawan recorded the best mile time in the Old Colony League this year when she ran a 5:27.5 in a dual meet versus Plymouth South in late April.

Junior Kasey McNaught was a semifinalist in the 100 meters and placed eighth overall with a time of 13.3 seconds. A good performance was turned in by Kelly Spaur in the triple jump

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

"God thought to give the sweetest thing
In His almighty power
To earth; and deeply wondering
What it should be-one hour
In fondest joy and love of heart
Outweighing every other
He moved the gates of heaven apart
And gave to earth-a Mother!" Anon.

On Mother's Day-we think back...We know mother is someone special...a special person who constantly tried to shape our character for the best. In thinking back, we realize we can never repay her for her uncountable acts of kindness; her gifts of patience, love and sacrifice. Nor can we reimburse her for the tears she shed for us in times past.

Mother's Day...What better time is there for us to rededicate ourselves to do better-to make our lives more meaningful to God and our fellow man? Would not a message of such intent, by letter, card, phone or personal visit...or promise by prayer...be a priceless gift to her?

Council To Begin Budget Review Sessions May 16

the new fiscal year July 1.

Fabrizio said at press time he was examining the mayor's proposal "line by line and page by page" to see if there is any room for the council for make cuts.

"Obviously, there will be some questions by the committee," he said. "We want to continue to manage the city in a fiscal and conservative manner, but also to continue to offer important services, and to continue to improve the quality of life in the city through those services.

"It will be a close review."

Sheets' proposal is nearly $3 million more than last year's budget. The most significant increases are in the budgets of the school, park and traffic departments. Personnel is the main reason for the increases, although the school budget provides for small additions in other areas as well.

Additional manpower has been proposed for the traffic department because of the city's plan to begin management of its own parking system, which includes the Ross Parking Garage and Hancock Parking Lot in Quincy Center, at the start of the new fiscal year.

The majority of departmental budgets, including those of the building, library and recreation departments, will be addressed during the May 16 session. The council will review the school, fire, treasurer's, auditor's and plumbing budgets May 22 and the police, public works, mayor's and City Council budgets May 31.

Fabrizio said the June 5 session will be an opportunity to review items placed on hold, cuts made and an opportunity to make additional suggestions or comments on the proposed municipal budget.

Sheets said Tuesday he still feels his proposed budget is a "no-frills" one but added that he is open-minded about City Council cuts.

"It's a sound budget," he said. "It's a tight budget and there really isn't much fat in it. But if they feel there's a need for some cuts, they'll make them, and we'll live with that."

Ambulance Co. Given Deadline To Explain Billing

Raymondi told McGrath and The Quincy Sun that at least two of his clients have been wrongfully charged by Norfolk-Bristol. The clients were charged despite language in the ambulance contract which clearly indicates that their health insurance situations ensure that they should not be billed for the company's services, according to Raymondi.

McGrath told The Sun last week after reviewing documents provided by Raymondi that there appears to be a legitimate problem.

Raymondi said Tuesday he has received phone calls that indicate that there could be more people who were wrongfully billed.

Norfolk-Bristol President Robert Zammito could not be reached for comment, but said last week that he is unaware of any problems and that the company is open-minded about an audit. The company has served Quincy since February 1990.

Meanwhile, a state investigation of the situation may also be conducted.

Dennis Mahoney, Assistant Norfolk County District Attorney in charge of white-collar crime, told The Sun after being contacted by Raymondi last week that his office had forwarded the matter to the state Attorney General's office for investigation.

However, First Assistant District Attorney John Kivlan said Tuesday his office had to investigate the matter further before it could be turned over to anyone else.

Committee Plans In-Depth Review Of Sign Ordinance

the law as a form of compromise.

Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins, sitting in at the meeting as a guest, told the two sides that they should be working toward the same end.

"What I see here are competing interests that should not necessarily be competing," said Timmins. "You should have the same goal."

The committee added three new members at the meeting, increasing its number to 13. Christopher Wilson, president of Signature Signs and Lynne Houghton, president of the Wollaston Merchants Association, were added because members felt the signage industry and Wollaston business community should be represented.

Michael Rie, economic development coordinator of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, had attended the signage committee's first meeting and was formally added to the group last week.

Other signage committee members include Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Mayor James Sheets who chairs the committee; Roberta Fitzgerald, principal planner of the Quincy Planning Department and a historical commission member; Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association (QCBPA) Executive Director Maralin Manning, Quincy 2000 Interim Executive Director Joseph Mannarino, Quincy Planning Director Richard Meade, Kathy Missell, owner of Infinity Books and chairperson of the historical commission; Bernie Reisberg, owner of Bernie's Modern Formal Shop and Caryn Smith, owner of Caryn's Corner and QCBPA president.

Lincoln-Hancock Pool Closed For Improvements

The Quincy Recreation Department swim programs at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School will be cancelled from Saturday, May 13 through Monday, June 5 so that the pool filter system can be replaced.

The replacement is part of the capital improvements to park and recreation facilities taking place throughout the city. The new system will replace the original that was installed over 20 years ago.

The state-of-the-art filter will improve the facility, which handles 50,000 visits between recreation and school use each year.

Study Shows Concourse Would Ease Traffic Problems

Quincy Center Business and Professional Association at a date to be determined.

The Quincy Center Concourse will cost an estimated $6 million in state and federal money. Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday the design phase of the project could begin next month and that will be followed by an environmental impact review by the state Department of Environmental Protection.

Construction on the first phase of the project could be completed in two-and-a-half years, while the entire concourse could be built in five or six years, Sheets added.

Quincy Attractive Location For Automobile Retailers

and annual renewal of the licenses on April 1.

"I think the auto auctions up on Ricciuti Drive have stimulated much of this local business," said Shea.

The factors of location and visibility that drive this end of the commercial real estate market result in auto dealers competing with retailers for some of the choicest properties in the city. Saturn, considered an industry innovator by many, will adhere to the tried and true real estate principle of "location, location, location" as they develop their new dealership on the 50,724-square-foot lot they purchased from the Morrisette Post for $1 million three months ago.

The former Volkswagen dealership site on Southern Artery was stalled by the Townbrook project and remained unmarketable for three years. With the property coming out of condemnation in a couple of months, CORE Resources, Inc., consultants to Volkswagen of America have the property under contract with a closing pending in the next month or two.

"After the dealership relocated to the Quirk franchise in 1990, Volkswagen had no further interest in owning the property," said Michael Carroll of CORE Resources, Inc. "I would speculate that the highest and best use of that site would be a single use retail development compatible with the development plans across the street."

The parcel across the street, the former site of John J. Duane Wrecking Co., has been proposed for development by Stop & Shop. Plans that have been made public to date illustrate a mini-mall with shops, restaurants, a renovation of the Fisherman's Pier Shack area--and in keeping with our theme--an auto parts store!

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x) Holy Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit, you who solve all problems, light roads so that I can attain my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things as you confirm once again that I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days. After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be published after the favor is granted. VT 5/11

Salem Re-Commissioning Ceremony Sunday

Some 1500 people are expected to attend the ceremony. Museum officials said they could accommodate approximately 2500.

"The best thing will be if we get a good crowd," MacMullen said. "Citizens of Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth, Hingham, South Boston, that's the area that this shipyard drew from for its ranks of shipbuilders and hopefully we'll get a really nice crowd.

The public will be allowed to tour the ship following the ceremony. Admission is $5 for adults and $3 for children and senior citizens. Donations will also be accepted on board to help with the museum project.

Tour hours will be 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. through July 1. Expanded hours, as well as overnight stays for groups, are planned after July 1.

To attend the ceremony, the public is instructed to enter the South St. gate after 1 p.m. The gate will not open before 1 p.m.

Eight hundred parking spaces are available inside the gate adjacent Building No. 4. Additional parking will be allowed in the DesMoines Road parking lot.

Quincy police will direct traffic and Quincy auxiliary police will show people to the Salem inside the South St. gate. Some seating will be set up.

The ceremony is expected to run from 2 to 4 p.m.

After 10 years of active service, the former flagship of the Sixth Fleet was decommissioned on Jan. 30, 1959. She came home in October to become the centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

NAGE Joins Action Seeking Funds For Harbor Cleanup

Cheney Files $2 Billion Harbor Suit

City Council President Michael Cheney and the National Association of Government Employees are filing a $2 billion lawsuit in federal claims court against the United States of America and the federal Environmental Protection Agency in an attempt to receive funds they say have been wrongfully withheld from the Boston Harbor Cleanup.

Cheney said state residents paying for the cleanup through their Massachusetts Water Resources Authority (MWRA) water and sewer bills have endured too much for too long to have the federal funding taken away.

"I am filing the suit on behalf of the people of the City of Quincy," he said at press time. "It is time someone took action against these outrageous water and sewer bills.

"The federal government has abandoned the Greater Boston area residents by requiring us to clean up the harbor and promoting us at the same time that they would pay for 75 percent of the cleanup. Then, when the bill comes due, they claim they have no money for this purpose."

The government had earmarked $100 million for Massachusetts to help assist with the cleanup but announced earlier this year that is no longer possible.

Cheney said an average family of five was paying $350 annually in MWRA bills, before bonds were floated for the cleanup. A family of the same size is now paying $1,100 and will likely be paying $2,100 by the year 2001.

"My calculations are conservative," he said. "They do not include an unexpected rise in the interest of upcoming bonds to be floated to pay for the Boston Harbor cleanup. They also do not include any increases from the city or the MWRA regarding maintenance of the existing system.

Once these figures are calculated, the rate will be as high as $2,800 for a family of five. In the event

Police, ABC Plan Sting To Curb Teenage Drinking

The Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, through a grant from the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau, has awarded Quincy a grant to conduct an underage drinking sting operation aimed at local bars, restaurants and package stores.

The Selective Liquor Enforcement Program will be done in conjunction with the Quincy Police Department and a representative from the state Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

The sting operation, announced Tuesday by Police Chief Francis Mullen, will involved a Quincy Police Officer and an ABCC investigator working with an underage individual who will attempt to purchase an alcoholic beverage from local bars and restaurants.

"The community stings are an effective way to remind license holders of their role in serving alcoholic beverages responsibly", said Pam Nourse, Commissioner of the Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission.

The sting will be conducted in communities throughout the state during the months of May through September. The goal of the sting is to identify licensees who sell to underage patrons, decrease incidents of sale of alcoholic beverages to underage individuals, and to increase public awareness of the problem.

"Underage drinking is a serious problem and requires different approaches", said Nancy Luther Director of the Governor's Highway Safety Bureau. "Approximately 6 percent of all registered motorists are under the age of 21, and yet they are involved in 16 percent of alcohol-related fatalities in this state", said Luther.

Licensees who sell alcoholic beverage to an underage individual will be required to appear at a hearing before the ABCC. Those licensees will also be asked to participate in the statewide Underage Drinking Task Force.

Quincy Partnership Goal $60,000

Sun Readers Can Help Abigail Adams Statue Become A Reality

Quincy Sun readers can help make a statue honoring Abigail Adams a reality.

An estimated $60,000 is needed for the bronze statue which will be placed on a site in Quincy Center as a lasting tribute to the only woman in history to be the wife of one U.S. president and the mother of another--and an early advocate of women's rights.

Considered, perhaps, the most appropriate site is on Hancock St. next to the United First Parish Church also known as the Church of the Presidents.

The tombs of Abigail, her husband, second President John Adams; their son, sixth President John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa Catherine are in the crypt of the church.

The pew in which John Quincy Adams worshipped is still there today.

The Quincy Partnership has commissioned noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie of Newton to create the statue which, it is believed, will be

Cheney, ABC File $2 Billion Harbor Suit

(Cont'd from Page 1)

Congress allocates $100 million, the effect on the average water and sewer bill for a homeowner would be approximately $5 per $100 million."

NAGE officials said the EPA induced local authorities to commit to the costly $3.8 billion Deer Island facility over more fiscally conservative options based on EPA claims that all cleanup costs would be subject to 75 percent federal reimbursement.

The decision to go with the Deer Island plan, coupled with subsequent federal disengagement from the project, has left local ratepayers responsible for at least 65 percent of the cost, officials said.

NAGE officials also said the federal government, by virtue of the decision to walk away from the cleanup, has violated the federal policy pursuant to the Superfund program. Pursuant to legislation, a polluter can be held financially liable for the cost of improperly dumped toxins, they said, and therefore the cleanup should be placed solely on the shoulders of the ratepayers.

Officials said the EPA should be forced to pay $2 billion to the MWRA since that amount is roughly equal to 75 percent of the Deer Island plant and a sum not inconsistent with the task of cleaning Boston Harbor, which has received refuse from government facilities for many years.

Massachusetts ratepayers currently pay the second-highest water bills in the country.

Flag Day Event June 14 At 7 p.m.

DeCristofaro 'Thrilled' To Be Parade Grand Marshal

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro says he is "thrilled" to have been named grand marshal of the Quincy Flag Day Parade to be held June 14.

The Flag Day Committee chose DeCristofaro for the honor last week.

DeCristofaro was asked if he was honored when he received the news.

"'Honored' is a very small word considering what this is doing to me," he said. "I'm thrilled. It's very important to me, it really is wonderful.

"To think that I could have a park named after me, and then have this happen in almost the same year, well, I'm just as thrilled as I could be. Those are two very, very, important things."

A park near Washington Street, Baxter Avenue and Southern Artery in Quincy Point was named in DeCristofaro's honor last November.

DeCristofaro said he does not know why the Flag Day Committee chose him for the honor, but speculated that it probably has to do with his well-known admiration for the flag.

"I love the flag," he said. "It symbolizes my country and what millions of people have died for. I think we need more education for young people and adults about the flag and what it means to us."

TED DeCRISTOFARO

A committee spokesperson said DeCristofaro was chosen because "he personifies the spirit of Quincy and the hard-working people he represents."

DeCristofaro, who will turn 72 on May 22, has represented Ward 2 for 14 years. He announced earlier this year that he will not seek re-election to an eighth term in the fall election.

DeCristofaro was a maintenance worker with the National Park Service at the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy for 25 years before his retirement. He has also served on the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and has been active in various community groups including the Ward 2 Civic Association.

A native of Quincy Point, he is a 1941 graduate of Quincy High School and a Navy veteran of World War II.

The parade will step off on Coddington Street near the South Shore YMCA at 7 p.m. and move to Washington Street, turning north onto Hancock Street. The parade march will continue nearly a mile on Hancock before turning onto Southern Artery for a final 200-yard stretch, ending at Adams Field.

DeCristofaro will also be honored at festivities that follow at the field. The program includes a 20-minute fireworks display at nightfall, about 9:15 p.m.

Quincy Flag Day is sponsored by the Quincy Partnership, a non-profit civic group, the Koch Club and the city. Co-chairman of the event are retired Patriot Ledger Advertising Director George White and Quincy Park, Forestry and Cemetery Department Executive Director Thomas Koch.

Families are invited to loan memorial flags to the event. They should be taken to the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Wollaston. For more information, call 773-3551.

Each flag will bear a name of a deceased veteran and will be returned after the parade.

Weekend Red Line Construction South Of JFK Station May 19, 26

Weekend Red Line construction south of JFK/UMass station will continue the last two weekends in May.

Crews working on RedLink track improvements need extra time the weekends of May 19 and 26 for new concrete to set on a section of elevated track south of JFK/UMass.

Beginning 9 p.m. Friday, May 19, work will continue around the clock until 7 p.m. Saturday, May 20. Work on Sunday, May 21 will take place from 8 a.m. until 7 p.m.

On Memorial Day weekend, work will continue around the clock from 9 p.m. Friday, May 26 through Monday, May 29. Regular train service will resume Tuesday morning, May 30.

During the RedLink busing, regular Red Line trains run between Alewife and Ashmont stations and North Quincy and Braintree stations. All trains from Alewife will be marked "Ashmont."

Customers bound for stations in Quincy and Braintree must take Ashmont trains to JFK/UMass Station and transfer to a shuttle bus to North Quincy station for service to the rest of the Braintree branch.

Council Undecided On 'Pooper Scooper' Law

A "pooper scooper" law proposed two weeks ago by Mayor James Sheets received a mixed response from the City Council Ordinance Committee Monday night.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, chairman of the committee, introduced the proposal at the urging of Sheets and the Department of Public Works. DPW Commissioner David Colton told the council that animal feces can cause serious harm to the water quality at city beaches as well as other areas such as parks and playgrounds.

"We must educate the public as to the seriousness of the problem," said Colton, who added that most other area communities have a similar law.

The proposal calls for pet owners to clean their pets' dropping from public places or be subjected to a fine.

City Council President Michael Cheney suggested an amendment to the proposal calling for violators of the law to receive a warning for the first offense and then pay $20, $25 and $50 respectively for second, third, and additional offenses. The original ordinance called for payments of $20, $25 and $50 respectively for first, second and additional offenses.

Cheney said he introduced the amendment because the main goal of the proposed law is education, and those who might be unaware of the ordinance should not be penalized for a first offense.

Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill voted against the amendment and spoke against the proposal. Cahill said he thinks educating residents about the problem is a good idea, but noted that the proposal makes no provision for enforcement of the law.

"My major concern is if we can't enforce it, then I don't know why we're bothering," he said. "I don't know if this law's going to solve it."

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro agreed, saying that people would never turn in neighbors who violate the law.

"It (the law) would never, ever be used," he said.

Cheney, however, argued for the law, saying that animal waste can cause serious health problems and that his son once became ill because he was exposed to animal feces. He added that since $6 billion is being spent by the government on the Boston Harbor Cleanup, residents would not be pleased to learn they cannot swim in Wollaston Beach because the water quality there has been harmed by animal feces.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said the majority of blame for the beach's condition should be placed on the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC) which has the responsibility of maintaining the site. He agreed that the matter is a serious health problem, but suggested that the city provide the council with more information about its plans for the proposal and how the law works in other local communities.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers suggested that Clerk of Committees Jeanne Reardon write to the National League of Cities for more information about the matter.

The proposal was left in committee.

$5,000 Reward For Restaurant Fire Info

A reward of $5,000 is being offered by the state fire marshal's Arson Watch program for information to help solve the case of the April 28 fire that destroyed the former Dutton's Restaurant.

Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said Tuesday that the fire, which caused $350,000 damage to the building, was an arson fire set in at least three places: one in the cellar, and two on the main floor. A fourth fire may have been set in the attic, he said.

Gorman said it is as yet unclear whether one person or a group of people

Lyons Takes Out Nomination Papers

Retired Contractor Says He Will Challenge Sheets

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets may not be running for re-election unopposed after all.

Roger B. Lyons of 211 West Squantum St. has taken out papers to run against the mayor in the fall election.

"This city needs a change," said Lyons, a retired contractor. "I'm very dissatisfied with what's been going on, and I intend to do something about it."

Lyons said he is dissatisfied with "a series of things," but would not elaborate. He added, however, that his discontent began with "gross discrimination and mishandling of certain landlords and their tenants" pertaining to the city's trash collection policy.

Lyons said he has tried to reach Sheets many times by telephone and through the mail but has received no response.

"I've tried to communicate with him for so long....but he doesn't want to communicate," he said.

ROGER LYONS

Lyons would not disclose his age but said he feels that should not be an issue in the race.

"I don't feel I'm too old [to run for mayor]," he said. "If I did, I wouldn't be running. I still stay very active."

Asked about his chances, Lyons replied, "I'm not going to say they're slim. I really think that if I get the word out, I can make it."

Lyons, a Democrat and longtime Quincy resident, lost two bids for Ward 6 city councillor in the early 1960s.

Sheets, a Democrat and former city councillor, was first elected mayor in 1989 following a race against Quincy businessman Peter O'Connell. He ran for election unopposed in 1991 and 1993.

Two years ago, Martin Ervin, a then 23 year old political newcomer, took out papers to run for the office but changed his mind before the election.

Your Social Security

Should I Report Wages Paid Babysitter?

By CAROL BOYLE

"Am I required to report my babysitter's earnings to Social Security and pay taxes on those earnings?"

That has become a frequent question, from people who call or visit the Social Security office.

The answer is: "You don't need to report his or her earnings and pay Social Security taxes if the person is under age 18 unless babysitting is the person's primary occupation."

However, if your babysitter or child care provider is over age 18 and you pay him or her $1,000 or more during the year, you'll need to report the earnings and pay the employer portion of Social Security taxes (7.65 percent).

You also need to withhold the same amount of Social Security taxes from the babysitter's earnings and send that amount to the Internal Revenue Service. The report is due once a year. You can make the report and pay the taxes when you file your federal income tax return.

These same rules apply to anyone you hire to work in your household, whether the person provides child care, cooks, cares for your lawn or garden, or performs any other kind of household work for you.

We've seen an increase in the number of inquiries about reporting household earnings as the result of a new law that was enacted last year to simplify the reporting requirements. Previously, people who hired household workers were required to report any household worker earnings that exceeded $50 during a calendar quarter.

FINDING ANSWERS TO LOSING YOUR VOICE

You wake up one morning, open your mouth to say good morning to the family—and nothing comes out. Most likely, you have come down with a raging case of laryngitis, an inflammation of the larynx or vocal cords. Common causes of laryngitis, which may or may not be accompanied by pain, include stress (vocal fatigue), viruses, allergies and airborne irritants. Treatment may involve resting the voice, drinking plenty of fluids, and using a humidifier. Antibiotics may also be prescribed. Most cases of laryngitis clear up on their own within a few days to a week, but prolonged or persistent voice loss should get a doctor's diagnosis to rule out any underlying conditions that might require treatment.

P.S. Women are more prone to laryngitis than men, partly due to a difference in the structure of the larynx.

Sometimes fatigue from stress can bring on a host of uncomfortable symptoms. That's why it's important to take good everyday care of your health. At COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and myself focus on prevention as well as treatment. We are conveniently located at 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Raymondi On Same Route

For Dan Raymondi you might say it could be a political version of "what-goes-around-comes-around."

RAYMONDI

And for long-time political observers the inevitable question: "haven't-we-seen-this-movie-before?"

Raymondi will make it official Thursday, May 25: he is giving up his School Committee seat to run for Ward 2 City Councillor.

He has a campaign kick-off fundraiser set for that date (5:30 p.m.) at Pat Flanagan's in the Parkingway.

Raymondi is sort of following a political script of 20 years ago. In 1975 he gave up his School Committee seat to run for Ward 2 councillor.

In that election he defeated a political newcomer, Robert Martinson to succeed Clifford Marshall who left the seat to become Norfolk County sheriff.

Raymondi remained in the Ward 2 seat until 1981. That year, Mayor Arthur Tobin decided not to seek a fourth term. Raymondi and Frank McCauley locked in battle for the open office with McCauley winning the prize.

Ironically, that same year, a fellow by the name of Ted DeCristofaro ran for the Ward 2 seat vacated by Raymondi and won it.

Now, 14 years later, DeCristofaro is stepping into retirement and Raymondi hopes to move back into the seat that DeCristofaro moved into when Raymondi vacated it. Sort of musical chairs.

Raymondi started his political career at age 23 in 1971 when he was elected to the School Committee. Elected with him that year were Frank McCauley and Harold Davis.

Incidentally, there were-get this—23 candidates for School Committee in the preliminary election that year. There hasn't been a turnout like that for anything since.

Raymondi returned to the School Committee in 1992 after serving four years as county treasurer.

Now again this year, he is giving up his School Committee seat to run for the Ward 2 council seat.

And there are those who are wondering if there might be some more history repeating itself in the near future.

They see another possible bid for mayor by Raymondi down the road if he is elected to the Ward 2 council seat.

The only possible roadblock in his way right now is Mark Roberts, a young attorney and political newcomer and announced candidate for the Ward 2 seat.

LARRY CHRETIEN is off and running in his quest for a city council at-large seat this year. Chretien, who is vacating his Ward 3 seat to make his at-large bid, picked up his nomination papers the first thing when they were available May 1, collected 120 voter signatures (only 50 needed) and filed them the next day.

CHRETIEN

Chretien already has coffee hours lined up, is visiting senior citizens complexes and knocking on doors in neighborhoods.

"This is going to be a very serious campaign on my part," he says.

A RECEPTION FOR Mayor James Sheets is set for tonight, 6 to 8 p.m. at National Fire Protection Association, Batterymarch Park. Tickets are $100.

SHEETS

It looked like Sheets would be running unopposed for the third time but as of the moment has an apparent challenger. Robert Lyons, retired contractor, and long-time Montclair resident has taken out nomination papers for mayor.

How serious is he? He says he's in it to stay.

A ZERO CAN mean a lot—especially if it isn't there when it should be.

Last week we noted here that Mark Roberts is off to a fast start in his bid for the Ward 2 city council seat.

And then, because of a typo gremlin, we reported he turned in 30 nomination paper signatures when it should have read 300. Three hundred certainly sounds like more of a fast start than 30.

WELL, YOU COULD say James Lee was a little ahead of his time. Like 32 years.

Lee was Quincy's Planning Director back in 1963 and exactly 32 years ago this week he came up with an idea.

The city, Lee said, should get the cruiser USS Quincy which was mothballed in Emerton, Wash., bring it to Quincy and moor it at the former Squantum Naval Air Station (now Marina Bay) as a tourist attraction.

Nothing ever came of the idea and the Quincy was eventually scrapped.

If the city had followed through on Lee's idea, the USS Quincy and not the USS Salem would be at the Fore River shipyard today as the centerpiece for the Naval Shipbuilding Museum.

HOW GOOD A tourist attraction the USS Salem proves to be remains to be seen. But it's off to a good start.

The Adams Inn in North Quincy had some 90 people—former crew members of the Salem and family members—staying there over the weekend for the re-commissioning.

One of them was Harold Strauss of Farmingdale, Long Island, N.Y., who served on the ship from 1951-54.

With him was his wife, Helen, and son, Dr. Hal Strauss, a dentist.

"I wanted him to see the dental office aboard the Salem," his father said.

STEVE DOHERTY kicks off his campaigning for the Ward 3 City Council seat Wednesday, May 24 at 6 to 9 p.m. reception at the Quincy Elks Lodge off Quarry St. Tickets are $15.

Quincy Hospital To Provide Screenings At Health Fair

Quincy Hospital will provide free blood pressure screenings at a Health Fair sponsored by South Shore Elder Services Inc. Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. at South Shore Plaza in Braintree.

More than 40 exhibitors will provide free health screenings and information, and there will be free entertainment throughout the day. The event, which is being held in celebration of National Older Americans Month, is open to the public.

South Shore Elder Services is a private, non-profit corporation serving older citizens in Quincy and 10 other South Shore communities.

Scenes From Yesterday

THE ADAMS BUILDING shown on the left in this old postcard originally was only as wide as the Woolworth 5 & 10 Cent Store which occupied street level in this photo. The curved section around to Temple Street was added later. The old Quincy Savings Bank building on the right at one time was the home of four banks at once. In this picture, Quincy Savings is on the lower right, now occupied by Dr. Ekbal Elkadry's dental office. The National Granite Bank is shown on the lower left in the space that is now the home of The Quincy Sun. Notice the third floor awnings on the bank building, later that floor was expanded and divided to make the present four floor building.

McNamara's Book One Of Most Important In Century

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

"In Retrospect: The Tragedy and Lessons of Vietnam" by Robert S. McNamara is one of the most important books of this century.

He was Secretary of Defense from 1961 to 1968 during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. The invasion was based on taking policital and economical control of events. Lies and more lies were told to the very end of the conflict.

The Wall is a tragic reminder of the actions taken by those in power. Millions of people in Vietnam were killed, America lost almost 58,000 plus hundreds of thousands that were injured. Many still suffer from their physical and mental wounds today.

We must now question the position that all public officials take on issues that affect our daily lives on all levels. The current Republican candidates for president did not speak out against the war in Vietnam. Now is the time to begin working to establish a peace record. The Contract with America is really a contract against America.

History shows that individuals such as Mahatma Gandhi, Nelson Mandela and Martin Luther King Jr. encouraged many people to join their ranks by giving them hope for a better world.

The people in high offices should be held accountable for their past, present and future actions. Democracy is not just a word to encounter but a way of life that involves participation by all. Discussions should be open for all views to be presented. The local and mass media should present a complete picture of all issues.

All those who took a dissenting stand against our role in Vietnam are now exonerated. They had the courage to oppose our involvement. It was not an easy task. The name-calling must stop.

Morrisette Post Awards Scholarships

The Cyril P. Morrisette Post Scholarship Committee recently awarded scholarships totalling $2,600.

The committee was aided by the Charlie Sacchetti Golf Committee, which is named after a deceased member of the Post.

Scholarships were awarded to Michelle Demaggio, Sean Mahoney and Brenda Welch, all of Quincy, and Carolyn Shea of Milton. Successful applicants are children of members of the Cyril P. Morrisette Post 294, American Legion, West Quincy.

In the past 35 years, the Post has awarded about $53,000 in scholarships to approximately 150 recipients.

Snug Harbor Memorial Day Service May 26

The Snug Harbor Community School will hold its annual Memorial Day Service Friday, May 26 at 9:30 a.m. on the school grounds.

Henry "Hank" Bradley, state commander of the American Legion and Quincy veterans services director, will be guest speaker.

The program honors the memory of members of the Armed Forces of the United States from Germantown killed while serving their country. As in the past, the Vietnam Combat Armed Forces, Quincy Chapter, will be the Honor Guard.

In the event of rain, the service will be held in the gymnasium.

2,400 Expected To March In Parade

May 18 - 24
1963
32 Years Ago

By PAUL HAROLD

Charles Ross, chairman of the Quincy Veterans Council's annual Memorial Day parade, predicted that 2,400 marchers would participate in next week's ceremonies.

The parade will also include 15 musical units including the Black Watch Royal Highland Regiment of Canada.

Francis MacKenzie, commander of the Veterans' Council, will lead the parade from Hancock St. to the Mt. Wollaston Cemetery where services for the war dead will take place.

YMCA CARNIVAL OPENS

The YMCA's annual carnival at Rotary Field, adjacent to the YMCA property, opened this week. Proceeds from the carnival will benefit the Y's two Cape Cod camps: Burgess and Hayward.

Carnival co-chairmen are Roger Whitcomb and William Rendle. Tickets are available at Remick's and from committee-members Mrs. Benjamin Sheffel, Mrs. James Bonney, Mrs. Edward Branagan, Mrs. Roger Whitcomb and Mrs. Paul Reardon.

CITY MAY ABANDON WEST QUINCY CEMETERY

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa announced the city may abandon the newly acquired 43 acres in West Quincy for cemetery purposes because of the development costs.

The city acquired a portion of what was formerly part of the Blue Hills Reservation for cemetery purposes, but the large number of boulders on the site may make it too expensive to use as originally planned. The mayor directed the Board of Managers of Burial Places to begin a search for out-of-town sites for cemetery expansion.

The city acquired the West Quincy parcel from the MDC for $5,000, the price originally paid when it was purchased for park purposes 50 years ago.

Barbara's Banana Whip Dessert

Our friend Barbara whipped up a great layered dessert one night that resembled the way one prepares lasagna. It contained bananas, cream and other ingredients layered together that looked heavenly.

She made it the day before and said it should set in the refrigerator for at least 6 hours before serving.

Barbara's Banana Whip Dessert

3-5 bananas
3 sticks of margarine
2 eggs
2 cups crumbled graham crackers
2 cups confectionery sugar
1 large can crushed pineapple
1 cup chopped walnuts
1 large container of whipped topping half jar of maraschino cherries

Mix 1 stick of soft margarine with the crushed graham crackers. Pat this mixture on the bottom of a 9 x 13 pan.

Next, beat together 2 sticks of margarine, 2 eggs and 2 cups confectionery sugar. Beat about 15 minutes and then spread over the crumbs.

Place sliced bananas over that, and then the drained pineapple. Put the whipped topping over the top and decorate with nuts and cherries.

Once it has set in the refrigerator for a minimum of 6 hours (Barbara likes 12 hours), it cuts like a dream and tastes even better. Of course if you like to create an atmosphere the way Barbara does, you'll have softly lit candlelight to go with dessert.

St. John's 20th Annual St. Anthony's Festival June 9-10

The 20th annual St. John's St. Anthony's Festival will be held on the church grounds, 44 School St., Quincy Center, Friday June 9 from 6 to 11 p.m. and Saturday, June 10 from noon to 11 p.m.

A special concelebrated Mass honoring St. Anthony will be said in Italian Saturday at 4 p.m followed by an outdoor procession from the church along School St. to the St. Anthony's shrine on the church grounds.

The festival has become one of the most widely attended celebrations of its kind along the Quincy-South Shore area. It is also one of the most popular religious, social and cultural events of the spring season.

The celebration is in honor of St. Anthony of Padua, the patron Saint of Italians everywhere.

Festivities include a wide variety of booths, specialty foods of all kinds, entertainment, and children's events. In addition, there will be games, prizes and awards.

Proceeds of the festival benefit St. John's building and charitable funds including St. Vincent de Paul, the homeless and the parish needy. There is no charge for admission and the public is invited.

Rev. Peter Quinn, pastor, is general chairman assisted by Coordinators Diane Acorn and Rosemary Martin. Hundreds of parishioners volunteer their talents to make this festival the success it has become.

Quincy Continental Cablevision To Cablecast Literacy Telethon

Continental Cablevision Channel 3 in Quincy will cablecast the "Plug Into Literacy" regional cable TV telethon which will benefit public libraries in 31 Greater Boston communities.

The telethon will be broadcast live from 7 p.m. to midnight Friday, May 19. Viewers in Quincy can tune in Channel 3 to join the fun and pledge donations that will help bring the latest information technology to local libraries.

Each donor's contribution in Quincy will go to the Thomas Crane Public Library. Local companies and Friends of Libraries organizations, as well as national cable networks, are also lending their support.

The telethon, which will feature a host of Boston-area entertainers, is part of Continental's ongoing initiative to promote media literacy and help provide new electronic information resources to schools, libraries and families.

Proceeds will allow local libraries to acquire new information technology, including computers, CD-ROM equipment, Internet access and other electronic resources.

Our Policy On Engagement Photographs And Wedding Announcements

The Quincy Sun will continue to publish photographs with engagement announcements as it always has.

The Sun will also continue to use in wedding announcements, the names of all members of the wedding party including maid or matron of honor, best man, parents, bridesmaids, ushers, flower girls and ringbearers, etc.

We invite engaged couples to submit photos with their announcements, and when submitting their wedding photo, to include a complete listing of the wedding party.

Black and white photos are preferred. The Sun can convert most color photos to black and white for publication but the photo loses some clarity in the process.

We suggest that when you have your engagement photo taken, you request the studio to send a copy to The Sun with the reminder that The Sun is continuing its policy of publishing engagement photos.

The Sun also publishes articles and photos of wedding anniversaries, beginning with the 25th anniversary.

And, as in the past, there is no charge.

Columnist To Speak At Historical Society Annual Meeting

Boston Globe columnist and Quincy native Donald M. Murray, will speak on "How My Home Town Shaped Me: at the Quincy Historical Society Annual Meeting, to be held at United Parish church, Quincy Center, Thursday, May 19 ,at 7:30 p.m.

Murray, the Globe's "Over 60" columnist, who lived in Quincy's Wollaston neighborhood for 17 of his first 18 years, will show how his life in Quincy shaped many of the attitudes, prejudices, and beliefs--good and bad--that he holds today. The talk should be evocative of personal experience and of Quincy life in the 1920s and 30s and, like Murray's writing, be funny, touching, and thoughtful.

Murray is a novelist and poet, Professor Emeritus of English at the University of New Hampshire and the author of several highly-regarded books on teaching writing. Earlier in his journalistic career, he worked for Time and for The Providence Journal and won a Pulitzer Prize for his editorial writing for the Boston Herald. In 1991, Boston Magazine selected him as the best columnist in Boston.

Admission is free. All are welcome.

At 6 p.m the same evening, the society will also hold a dinner at the church. Those interested in attending should call 773-1144 for details.

A WAX MODEL of the Abigail Adams statue which the Quincy Partnership has commissioned noted sculptor Lloyd Lillie of Newton to create was displayed last week at a reception at the Adams National Historic Site. From the left are Robert Curry of the Quincy Partnership, Lillie, Marianne Peak, superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site and Mayor James Sheets.

SCULPTOR LLOYD LILLIE views a wax model of the life-sized bronze statue of Abigail Adams that he has been commissioned to create. The estimated cost is $60,000.

Quincy Partnership Goal $60,000

Sun Readers Can Help Abigail Adams Statue Become A Reality

the first in the nation to honor a First Lady.

The Partnership has launched a fund-raising campaign with a goal of $60,000. An estimated $5,000 was raised last week at a reception at the National Historic Site which was home to four generations of the illustrious Adams Family and served as the summer White House for the two Quincy-born father-son Presidents.

Lillie was the featured speaker at the reception.

Beginning with this issue, The Sun is printing a donation form for the convenience of those who would like to help the Quincy Partnership reach its goal.

"We think our goal is attainable," said Bob Curry, speaking for the Partnership. "And we appreciate the help of The Sun and its readers in helping us to reach it. Community involvement is so important in an endeavor such as this."

The Partnership is planning other fund-raisers to help reach the $60,000 goal. A clambake is set for June 29 at the Adams Inn in North Quincy.

This November will mark the 251st birthday of Abigail Smith Adams who was born in Weymouth. It is hoped the statue will be ready by October.

Lillie's previous works include statues of Boston Mayor James Michael Curley and Red Auerbach, former Boston Celtics coach and general manager which are in Boston and Thomas Jefferson in St. Louis.

At last week's reception Lillie told the approximately 100 people in attendance that he had decided to portray Abigail in a standing position because she "was very intelligent, very spirited...a tireless working person...always moving."

He displayed a wax model of the statue which shows her holding a letter in her right hand.

The letter is an appropriate touch, for Abigail is known for her letter-writing to her husband John when he was often away.

Although she is better known as being the wife of one U.S. President, the mother of another and the first First Lady to occupy the White House, she is now being recognized more and more in her own right as an advocate of women's rights.

In one letter to her husband, John, she tweaked him a little:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them than your ancestors. Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all would be tyrants if they could."

Abigail never got to see her son, John Quincy, become President. She died in 1819.

John Adams did live to see their son become President in 1825.

Sheltering Coalition Receives Bentley College Agency Award

Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC), which operates the Quincy homeless shelter Father Bill's Place, was presented with the Bentley Agency Award at the recent Annual Bentley Service Learning Project Luncheon.

The award from Bentley College is presented annually to a non-profit agency recognized for "its outstanding contributions to the community."

In receiving the award, Father Bill's Place was commended for its voice mail project for homeless job seekers, the volunteer opportunities presented to Bentley students, and assistance provided to Bentley in their construction of economic development projects for the homeless unemployed and for non-profit agencies.

The Bentley Service-Learning Project (BSLP) is a program aimed to provide a new dimension to the education of modern business professionals. BSLP helps prepare students for business's changing social role by enabling them to contribute to community concerns. Its focus on career preparation allows students the opportunity to apply their expertise in various non-profit settings that assist children, the poor, and the homeless.

The program's goal is to make students aware of the various societal ills facing the country and the local community, and counter passive societal trends by convincing the next generation of business leaders that they can make a difference in the lives of others.

"I am honored by this award," said QISC Executive Director Joseph Finn. "Bentley College has contributed a great deal to the South Shore community. The voice mail alone has led to a significant number of jobs and housing for many of our guests."

Finn emphasized that the difference with BSLP is their willingness to learn.

"From their faculty to their students, they all seem willing to learn by their experience," he said. "They are not coming in with the attitude that we just have something to give to you, but instead ask us about what we do. In turn, they then contribute both their time and their skills."

Concourse Advisory Committee Meets Today

The Citizens Advisory Committee (CAC) for the Quincy Center Concourse will meet today (Thursday) at 3:15 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall annex.

The CAC has received a comprehensive traffic study report from Public Works Commissioner David Colton with several recommendations concerning the proposed construction of a $6 million roadway connector linking Burgin Parkway with downtown Hancock St.

The traffic study was conducted last fall as an essential component of the proposed project. The study identified traffic flow through Quincy Center and labeled several intersections as unacceptable for pedestrian safety and traffic bottlenecks.

Chairman David Ezickson said the CAC will hold additional meetings to elicit public comments about the connector linking the west side of Quincy with downtown Hancock St.

All CAC meetings are open to the public. Interested individuals, particularly senior citizens living in the area of the proposed roadway, are invited to speak or submit written comments.

There are still a lot of choices out there as to where you can do your banking. And we're one of them. Citizens Bank.

Now more than ever, people are choosing us because of how we choose to treat our customers.

Specifically, we make life easier by offering all the products and services you want — under one roof. As well as ATMs where you're likely to need them. Including every Shaw's supermarket in Eastern Massachusetts.

What really sets us apart, though, is our commitment to old-fashioned courtesy. Meaning we hire nice people. And do thoughtful things. Like giving out dog biscuits at our drive-up windows. And increasing our lollipop budget by one hundred percent.

If you're a business customer, it means making loan decisions locally instead of in some far-flung processing center where you're an unknown entity.

We even choose to play a very active role in our customers' communities. So much so that we offer our employees paid sabbaticals to roll up their sleeves and help where the need is greatest.

One last thing: we're not perfect. Except when it comes to taking a little constructive criticism when a customer sees fit to give it.

No, you don't have to bank here at Citizens. But we're doing everything we can to make sure that you do. Including giving you our toll-free number: 1-800-222-4322.

Fabrizio To Seek 4th Term As Ward 4 Councillor

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio has announced that he is a candidate for re-election to a fourth term.

Fabrizio recently launched his campaign at a gathering of over 250 supporters at The Common Market Restaurant.

A lifelong resident of Quincy, Fabrizio told the crowd that as a homeowner and taxpayer, he is a "neighbor representing neighbors" on the City Council. He pledged to continue his record of leadership through "results rather than rhetoric."

Fabrizio said among the many positive developments in Ward 4 during his current term are a number of changes designed to enhance public safety. He noted that he led a campaign to improve emergency medical services in South and West Quincy that resulted in the city's first neighborhood ambulance station which recently opened on Copeland Street. Ambulance response times have already improved significantly, he said.

Prior to the new ambulance station, ambulances responding to Ward 4 were based at a Quincy Point site.

The Quincy Fire Department took delivery of a brand new engine which replaced Engine 5 in West Quincy, Fabrizio said. Ward 4 currently has the newest piece of fire apparatus in the city, he added.

THOMAS FABRIZIO

Fabrizio said police cruisers serving the ward have been equipped with the latest in police technology. One of the units has a Lojack stolen car detector while another unit has a Mobile Data Terminal computer which is linked to the State Police database, he noted, allowing officers to obtain warrant, license and stolen car information from a computer inside the police car. In addition, 27 new police officers and 20 new firefighters have been added, and Fabrizio instituted a Neighborhood Crime Watch which meets monthly.

Fabrizio also told the crowd that the expansion of the Bernazzani School and the opening of the Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center has greatly improved the quality of public education in the community. A "Tot Lot" is scheduled to be built at the Early Childhood Center in the near future.

Fabrizio said he was pleased to support a $2.3 million bond issue to refurbish the city's public parks. Additional improvements to the Grasso and Flaherty playgrounds will be paid for by the Antonelli Trust Fund, he noted. He added that the fund was established as part of the Home Depot mitigation he negotiated.

Fabrizio also served as co-chairman of the Granite Workers Memorial project which he said he transformed Shea Park into "a magnificent tribute to a vital era in our history."

Fabrizio pledged to continue to seek improvements in the city's public works system. He said he supported the purchases of new street sweepers and snow removal equipment which has helped to reduce the need for private contractors and resulted in a cost savings to city taxpayers.

Fabrizio said he will continue to work with the developers of the proposed Community Recreational Facility located off Ricciuti Drive. Current plans call for a public golf course, driving range, walking trails and several athletic fields for the city's youth. Fabrizio also noted that the former Old Colony Gas Station on Furnace Brook Parkway is slated to become a communication repair facility and the nearby Morrisette American Legion Post has become a Saturn Auto dealership, and he pledged to work with the Morrisette Post members to relocate the post in West Quincy.

Fabrizio, 40, lives on Reardon Street with his wife, the former Kathy Graham, and their daughters Nicole, 10, and Michelle, 6. He grew up on Emerald Street where his mother, Ann, still resides.

Graffiti Law Moves Closer To Passage

The city has moved one step closer to passing a law that would penalize those who spray graffiti on public buildings.

The City Council Ordinance Committee voted Monday night to give a favorable recommendation to a proposed ordinance introduced by Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia that would impose a $200 fine on anyone who defaces any public building with graffiti. It would also establish a $100 reward for any person supplying information to the police leading to the arrest and conviction of an offender.

LaRaia that there is a state law recently invoked by the Quincy Police which allows communities to punish those who deface private property with graffiti.

"This (proposed ordinance) speaks only to city property," said Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, chairman of the Ordinance Committee.

Others, including Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, voiced their support of the proposal. City Clerk Joseph Shea said the council can take a final vote on the ordinance at its June 5 meeting.

In a related matter Monday night, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio introduced an ordinance that would regulate the sale of aerosol spray paints and dyes to another under the age of 18, and make it unlawful, in most instances, to carry spray cans containing those substances in public places. Fabrizio asked that his proposal be added to the graffiti ordinance.

Stice Seeking Second Term On School Committee

School Committeewoman Linda Stice announces she will seek a second four-year term on the Quincy School Committee.

"During the past four years, I've been part of a School Committee that has seen the building of the new Amelio Della Chiesa Early Childhood Center as well as a much-needed addition to the Bernazzani School," she said. "Construction is now underway on an addition to the Parker School, and Beechwood Knoll will reopen in September as a full-fledged elementary school.

"I think that parents have felt over the past four years that the School Committee will listen to them and work hard to address their concerns."

Stice cited her commitment to low-class size, her chairmanship of the Quincy College Governance Committee, her initiation of a task force to study and improve services to academically talented students, and her introduction of collaborative bargaining as some of the issues she has worked hardest on.

"When you compare the Quincy Public Schools to other cities and towns, you'll see that our low class size is outstanding. I'm also very proud of the work of the Quincy College Governance Committee. The governance plan that we recommended is now in place at the college, with 13 trustees devoted specifically to that institution. The formation of the Quincy College Board of Governors has freed the School Committee to focus on preschool through Grade 12."

Stice said her goals for the next four years include addressing overcrowding at the middle schools and advocating for school programs "that recognize academic talent in every child. 'Giftedness' is a term defined differently by whomever is doing the defining. What we do know is that it is manifested by different children in different ways and at different ages.

"I believe strongly that every child in the Quincy Public Schools has a special talent. Our job as a school system is to learn how to recognize that talent, to help every child believe in herself or himself, and to see that every single child is both nurtured and challenged by our school system."

The Committee to Elect Linda K. Stice will hold a fund-raiser Sunday from 5 to 7 p.m. at Steve's Beale St. Diner, 17 Beale St., Wollaston.

Suggested donations are $20 per person, $35 per couple. All are welcome.

Christine Murphy Wins Clifford's 'Hats Off To Mothers' Contest

Christine Murphy, a fifth grader at the Atherton Hough School, is the winner of the first "Hats Off to Mom" contest for Mothers' Day sponsored by Clifford's Flowers in Quincy Center.

All Quincy elementary children were invited to participate in the essay contest. A brief essay explaining why mom is "No. 1" was submitted to Clifford's Flowers.

Patricia Murphy received a $50 gift certificate for being chosen the "No. 1" mom by her daughter, Christine. The essay winner received a U.S. Savings Bond to be used toward her future education.

The writing teacher, Lori Hammerstrom and homeroom teacher Warren Meehan received plants for their classrooms while Principal Dorothy Greene received a flower arrangement for her office.

In her essay, Christine described her mother as a "very, very special."

"There are four people in my household and my Mom managers to take care of them all. She does laundry, dishes, dusting, vacuuming, cleans rooms, takes care of my little brother and cooks.

"Sometimes where I have a rainy, boring day she will say 'do you want to play a game?' Or on those days when you wake up on the wrong side of the bed, and you forget everything at school, and you feel like you want to cry, and my mom just lightens up my day by giving me a hug.

"She is like my best friend. She does everything well. She is very special."

The judges at Clifford's were amazed by the number of entries from all of the elementary schools. They said it is heartwarming and reassuring to see how many loving and wonderful families are living in our community.

1200 Attend Celebration Ceremony

Sailors, Shipbuilders Share Salem Spotlight At Re-Commissioning

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The USS Salem, which last sailed the high seas in 1959, was placed back into service Sunday as the Quincy-built heavy cruiser was re-commissioned into the Historic Ships Museum System during ceremonies at the Fore River shipyard.

Approximately 1200 people, including dignitaries, invited guests and former crew, witnessed the ship's transfer from the U.S. Navy to the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum under brilliant blue skies.

The Salem, built at Fore River shipyard and commissioned 46 years to the day from Boston, is now the floating centerpiece of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum.

The museum was originally set to open for tours Monday. However, the museum must wait for approval from the Department of Environ-mental Protection before tours can be conducted. That may not be completed for several more weeks, museum officials said.

Among those attending the ceremony were Quincy native Gen. Gordon R. Sullivan, Army Chief of Staff; Ret. Navy Capt. Channing Zucker, execu-tive director of the Historic Naval Ships Association; and Ret. Admiral Allan B. Roby, the Salem's last surviving skipper and the only Navy captain to have two of his former commands preserved as museums.

The re-commissioning ceremony was highlighted by colorful pageantry on a sun-drench day. Red, white and blue bunting fluttered in a breeze from the ship's side. Dozens of former crew members lined the main deck in blue and khaki shirts while museum staff wore dressed whites while manning the rails. Sirens and horns sounded from pleasure crafts and a fireboat sprayed towering spirals of water from the Fore River in celebration.

The Salem is home. Her story, as well as the annals of her crew and the shipbuilders which created her, can now be preserved and memorialized for generations to come as the cornerstone of a living museum.

"This ship is indeed a living monument to the men and women who have gone off to war, from the City of Quincy," Gen. Sullivan said. "If you look around in this crowd, look in the faces of the people who are here, you will see the strength of America.

"This is a great country. The reason it's great is because of what you see on this tarmac and this great shipyard. And I, like you, have relatives who worked here, I have memories of this shipyard just like you do. We all do. It represents the strength of America," Sullivan said.

Admiral Roby, Mayor James Sheets, museum Executive Director William MacMullen and other speakers also paid tribute to the Salem, her crew, and the shipyard workers which built her and other great fighting ships.

"As you visit her from time to time, you will begin to hear the kind of noises and kind of sounds that come from not an inert object but from a living being. That is truly what the Salem is all about," Roby said.

"I could talk for hours and hours of course on experiences aboard ship as the Salem worked her way around the Mediterranean Sea, visiting ports of other nations, some friendly, some whose friendship to the United States may be questioned, but all of them had to recognize that they were looking at a ship greatly built, expertly put together, and released among the seas as a guardian for world peace.

"This ship, with her large eight-inch guns, operated automatically by push-button control, were established in a way that each gun could be fired as frequently as six seconds apart... (The guns) put out a message to the world that the Salem was ready for war, and that the Salem and her crew aboard ship were there to maintain to the peace.

"If war had come, or had continued, Salem would have been one of the strongest adversaries there's ever been on the seas," Roby said.

The ceremony's principal speaker, Mayor James Sheets, who is chairman of the museum's Board of Directors, said the Salem is experiencing a rebirth since her return home Oct. 30.

"When she first came home to us, her decks were rotting and worn, her sides were rusted and peeling. But once again she is becoming clean and bright and strong and proud.

"The USS Salem represents a silent majestic fleet of ships whose presence will forever move ghost-like in silence across the seas of earth, patrolling and protecting. Its crew represents all the young men and all the young women whose faces set and strong stand the eternal watch and tend the wheel.

"Yes, more than a single old ship has come home in the presence of the USS Salem. . . If you allow her to speak to you, she would say my silent guns speak to the power, the strength, courage and glory of generations past and present who fought and died on a hundred different battlefields and on every ocean in the world so that each generation of Americans might by free," Sheets said.

Although the Salem never saw service during wartime, she played a significant role in the post-war and Cold War eras. Representing the latest technological advances, the heavy cruiser was commissioned into the U.S. Navy on May 14, 1949.

She soon began her first tour of duty with a "shakedown" cruise to Guantanamo Bay, Cuba two months later. In May, 1950, she left on her first Mediterranean cruise, carrying the flag of the Commander, Sixth Fleet, the first of seven such voyages. She visited every area of the Mediterranean, from Istanbul and Beirut to Algiers, Venice and Morocco.

While on a tour of duty in the Mediterranean in 1953, Salem took part in the rescue operations following the earthquake which devastated the Greek Ionian Islands. She was the first American ship to arrive on the scene and her officers and men worked tirelessly for four days, until her own supplies ran dangerously low.

She received the personal praise of the King and Queen of Greece, along with the heartful thanks of the residents of the islands.

Salem participated in exercises which involved more than 200 ships and 50,000 Naval and 26,000 Marine personnel from the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Greece. Although the USS Salem never fired a shot in anger, she was awarded the Battle Readiness Pennant, the Occupation Medal with European Clasp and the National Defense Service Medal.

Salem was the first ship to be homeported in the Mediterranean at Villefranche-sur-Mer, France. After her decommissioning in 1959, Salem was deactivated and berthed at the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard. She remained there until last fall when the cruiser was towed home for her new role as a floating museum.

MacMullen paid tribute to the men who built the Salem 50 years ago and the volunteers who have worked to restore her.

"When you look at her now and you look at her from the main deck below, you see what the ravages of 36 years of wear and tear and weathering can do. If you look from the main deck up, you see what three months and a battery of dedicated volunteers can do.

"Those volunteers are people who care about this vessel and what it stands for," MacMullen said.

"In 1945, a group of people came together from the South Shore to build this vessel. They came from all walks of life. They built something they were very, very proud of. "When this ship was launched and put into service, another group of people came aboard. They were the crew, the officers and the sailors who manned the ship during her term as active United States naval man-of-war.

"They too cared about this vessel," MacMullen said.

Now, a half century later, another group of caring and committed individuals have united for a common cause, MacMullen said.

"A lot of you are out there, volunteers, some who are former crew members, others who are people who worked here, some of you helped build her many years ago. The common thread that runs through this is a reiteration of what Rev. (John) Swanson said earlier.

"It is not an inert mass of steel, albeit a beautiful inert mass of steel, but a beautiful but a massive steel that means nothing without the people who man her, the people who built her and now the people who care for her.

"Let the ship stand as a monument to each of those groups," MacMullen.

Ann Collins, daughter-in-law of William H. Collins, Sr., World War II general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Company, Fore River and Hingham shipyards, recalled the proud local shipbuilding legacy.

Collectively, the Fore River, Hingham and East Boston shipyards were the most productive yards in the country at one time during World War II.

"As of October 1, 1944, 300 ships had been launched. Two hundred and sixty-three of these were launched following Pearl Harbor and of these, 121 were constructed in Quincy and 179 in Hingham.

"At the end of the war, a total of 317 combat ships were completed at these two yards, ranging in size from the 350,000-ton battleship USS Massa-chusetts, which was launched 15 months ahead of schedule, to infantry landing craft, one of which, from keel laying to launching, was on the way four days, 23 hours, and five minutes.

"Most of these were completed in time for combat service and many of them compiled outstanding records of combat."

As the Salem approaches her 50th birthday, Collins said it is fitting the Quincy shipyard and one of her ships are reunited.

"One of our lady's of the sea, the Salem, has not only come out of retirement, she has also returned home where she was conceived and is about to celebrate her 50th birthday. More import-antly, she is being commissioned into the museum of historic ships."

Robert Daniels, president of the USS Salem Association thanked the Navy for allowing the ship to be preserved. His also said the association is ready to assist in the restoration effort.

"The United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum faces a daunting task in making the USS Salem the cornerstone of their exhibit . . The members of our association stand ready to assist in that effort," Daniels said.

"We in the USS Salem Association are of course extremely happy the United States Navy has had the wisdom to provide the public with this outstanding example of a big-gun cruiser."

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS, chairman of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum Board of Directors, was the keynote speaker at the re-commissioning of the USS Salem Sunday at the Fore River shipyard.

Besides being the centerpiece of the shipyard museum, Capt. Channing Zucker, executive director of the Historic Naval Ships Association, said the Salem will serve as a lasting memorial to all United States cruisers and the cruiser men who fought them.

"She epitomizes our association motto," Zucker said. "History proudly served, valor well-honored."

As the Salem's re-commissioning sponsor, Joann Sheets, wife of Mayor James Sheets, said, "The city of Quincy is proud to sponsor the USS Salem and I as a representative of the city of Quincy, am equally proud on this memorable occasion.

"The USS Salem is now a lasting symbol of two centuries of shipbuilding. It represents the great ships that have been built here, the men and women and worked so hard to construct them, and the brave servicemen and women who served so valiantly on their deck," she said.

Officially, the Salem was transferred from the U.S. Navy to the Historic Naval Ships System and into MacMullen's command on an order read by Roby.

"Whereas the national defense authorization for fiscal year 1994, public law 103-160, section 1181, dated Nov. 3, 1993, authorizes the Secretary of the Navy to transfer the obsolete heavy cruiser Salem to the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum. That word obsolete must have been put in by somebody who never knew about the Salem," Roby said, eliciting a chorus of light laughter from the crowd.

Turning toward MacMullen, Roby read the final line of the authorization. "By order of the United States of America, represented by the Department of the Navy, captain do you accept this ship?"

MacMullen answered, "Yes sir, I accept this ship on behalf of the United States Naval Shipbuilding museum."

Roby then instructed all those able to "stand up for the United States Ship Salem and Quincy, Massachusetts."

Museum Opening Delayed

The official opening of the U.S. Naval and Shipbuilding Museum at the Fore River shipyard has been delayed.

The city had planned to open the museum full-time Monday following ceremonies held on its centerpiece--the Quincy-built heavy cruiser USS Salem--which attracted over 1,000 people over the weekend. That never happened, however.

Massachusetts Water Resources Authority spokesman Paul DiNatale said the reason for the delay is that the museum has not submitted a necessary environmental study to the authority, which owns the shipyard. The MWRA is required to review the study before passing it on to the state Department of Environmental Protection, he added.

However, Museum Executive Director William MacMullen said all necessary paperwork has been given to the MWRA and that the authority must make the next move.

MacMullen added that the museum will be allowed to provide limited tours, by appointment only, beginning Saturday. The delay will allow the museum's staff and volunteers, some of whom have worked 14 hours a day for months, to have some rest, he said.

MacMullen said he was unsure when the museum will be able to begin its planned hours of 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. seven days a week.

The environmental study is required because the museum wants to change the use of part of the shipyard from industrial to a tourist attraction. Once the study is complete, the law requires a 21-day public comment period.

Sal Giarratani Candidate For School Committee

SAL GIARRATANI

Sal J. Giarratani has announced his candidacy for the Quincy School Committee.

Giarratani, 47, who lives at 184 Atlantic St., North Quincy, is a police officer for the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health in Boston. A political columnist for the weekly newspaper Post-Gazette in Boston's North End and a freelance writer for The Patriot Ledger, he graduated from Boston State College in 1972 with a bachelor's degree in political science.

Giarratani is a member of the Squantum School PTO, Quincy Citizens and Wollaston Park Association, the Renaissance Lodge, Sons of Italy, Pere Marquette Council, Knights of Columbus, AFSCME Local 470, Bunker Hill Irish Heritage Society, Charlestown Historical Society, Massachusetts Association of Italian-American Police Officers, Bay State Lodge, Fraternal Order of Police; the Madonna del Soccorso de Sciacca Society, Massachusetts Citizens for Life, Catholic League for Religious and Civil Rights, Bay State Chapter, Freedoms Foundation and the Catholic War Veterans of America.

"As a Squantum School parent, I believe our school children today need all the tools necessary to survive in the next century," he said. "What takes place in our classrooms today will determine where we are going tomorrow. Through my candidacy, I seek to help formulate that vision working with educators and parents on a far-sighted 21st century curricula."

On the issue of school violence, Giarratani said he believes in "zero tolerance for drugs and guns inside schools."

"When the learning environment prevents our children from reaching their maximum potential, that environment must be changed," he said. "We cannot allow students to carry firearms inside our schools and we cannot tolerate students doing drugs. Schools exist to educate and we cannot allow them to be hazardous to the health and safety of our children. Perhaps Quincy should be working with nearby communities faced with similar problems and create a regional structure for those students caught with contraband inside our schools.

"I do not believe in providing expensive, taxpayer-funded private tutors for those students caught with weapons or drugs in school. As a law enforcement officer, I think we must make it clear that our school system will not be held hostage to weapons and drug use inside the school system. We need a safe learning environment for our children."

Giarratani added that he plans a grassroots, door-to-door campaign.

"I want to empower parents bringing our ideas and hopes to the table of government," he said. "As a member of the so-called baby-boomer generation, I have always felt that government is our business.

We must take it personally, because either we run it, or it runs us. The world is changing too fast to stay on the sidelines."

Giarratani is married to the former Fay Hambiln of North Weymouth and has one daughter, Nealia, who attends the Squantum School. He is the son of the late Dominic and Mary Giarratani of Charlestown. His maternal grandfather, James P. Harrington, lived in Quincy for many years. He is also the nephew of Irene Harrington of Wollaston and grandnephew of the late Elizabeth Murphy of Houghs Neck.

"My daughter represents the fourth generation of my family committed to Quincy," he said. "It is up to all of us to understand our roots in the past and our visions for tomorrow."

City To Take Part In 'Kids Voting' Program

Quincy school children will join their parents at the polls in this fall's election to cast ballots as part of a national program designed to educate youngsters about the important of voting.

Mayor James Sheets and Patriot Ledger Publisher K. Prescott Low announced Tuesday that Quincy will become the first community in Massachusetts to take part in the "Kids Voting USA" program, a non-partisan, non-profit endeavor that began in Arizona seven years ago.

"It will be, in my opinion, one of the outstanding events in my administration," said Sheets.

The city and the newspaper are sponsoring the election-day event for students in Grades K-12 who will punch special ballots at their neighborhood polling sites.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon said as many as 11,000 students--8,000 in the public schools and 3,000 in four parochial and one private school--might participate in the program.

Officials said nearly 60 communities nationwide now take part in the program. Participating cities and towns have experienced an average 3 percent increase in adult voter turnout, with some jumping as high as 9 percent, they added.

Creedon said the program is modeled after the system used in Costa Rica, where children routinely accompany their parents to the polls. Elections there average about 90 percent turnout, he added.

Sheets said a board of directors to administer the program this year, and to chart its expansion to other school districts in 1996, is now being formed and corporate sponsors are being sought.

The mayor added that Stop & Shop has agreed to be a sponsor and cover one-third of the estimated $30,000 cost of the program. Lowe said the newspaper put up $5,000 to get the program started.

Retired Quincy school teacher Harold Crowley has been hired to coordinate the program, which will include incorporating the Kids Voting curriculum into the classroom.

Low noted that schools have held mock elections in the past, but usually in the classroom a week or so before an election. The new program will be more much realistic and rewarding for them, he said, because students will have to register to vote and later will do so at genuine polling places on the day of the event.

Sheets said City Clerk Joseph Shea will have a tally on the students' votes on election night shortly after the adults' votes are tabulated, and the results will be released to the media.

Newspaper Recycling At Quincy Center T Station

Quincy Center Red Line Station is among the sites selected by the MBTA and MASSPIRG for a pilot newspaper recycling program.

Newspapers account for over 25 percent of the 2,600 tons of trash generated annually on the T. Under the pilot program, more than 1,000 pounds of newspaper are expected to collected each day--saving over 3,000 trees each years.

"The recycling program we're launching on the T is the product of a coalition that bridges state government, private organizations and local neighborhoods to improve the environment," said Transportation Secretary and MBTA Chairman James Kerasiotes.

The T will incorporate newspaper collection into its regular station maintenance, and the municipal recycling haulers for the communities in which the subway stations are located (Browning-Ferris Industries in Quincy) pick up the newspaper free of charge as part of their regular recycling route.

As the market for collected newspaper has been steadily improving, officials anticipate haulers will have no problem selling old newspapers to paper mills for recycling.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Statistics Can Help Show Real Estate Market Trends

By ART FOLEY

Statistics can be very revealing and can give great insight into what's happening in the economy, company sales, or a myriad of events where numbers play an important role. Then again, there are times when statistics are used and they don't really present a true picture of what is happening.

Hypothetical example: housing starts in the U.S. were up 10 percent in April over March. What does this mean? Maybe not a lot whole lot: if March were a particularly bad month for housing starts, then the 10 percent increase for April might be a negative and not a positive. Suppose April of '95 is up 10 percent over April '94. This again might seem positive, but numbers at a point in time really don't mean a lot. A better measure of housing starts would be year to date, since representative activity is spread out over a period of time.

Speaking of housing starts, whoever lived in a housing start? Why don't they use housing finishes, since not every start gets finished and at least you can live in a finished start.

Take a condo that sells for 50,000 in 1980 and sells again in 1987 for 100,000; that's a 100 percent increase. Now in 1990, the same condo sells for 50,000; that's a 50 percent decrease in value. The same dollar amount has changed, but the percentage change is far different—interesting—and maybe a little misleading.

Sales in the Northeast are up 8 percent for the first quarter. What does that mean to the average individual in Boston, Brookline or Brockton? Nothing. There are thousands of cities and towns in the Northeast each with their own market and submarkets. For example, in Quincy there are several residential submarkets by price $100,000 to $150,000, etc. Each neighborhood is a submarket, multi-families, condos and commercial properties each have their own unique markets. So while sales for the Northeast might indicate a national trend, they are worthless statistics to an individual. Single family homes in Brookline might be selling like hotcakes while the same market in Brockton might be dead.

Now for some numbers for the real estate market in our area. The accompanying chart from the Quincy & South Shore Board show combined statistics for Quincy, Braintree, Weymouth and Hull over the last five years.

What does the chart show? Average residential selling price has gone down since 1990 and inventory is continuing to shrink. One could assume that if demand held up and inventory continued to shrink them only one thing can happen: according to the supply and demand concept, prices would go up and with rising prices more people would decide to sell and inventory would increase.

All in all, statistics can be helpful in showing us what's going on in the world around us, but you have to keep some of those statistics in perspective since they sometimes can be used to tell us what we want to hear and not what we should hear.

Existing-Home Sales: A Major Boost To The Economy

Sales of previously-owned homes provide a major boost to the nation's economy, according to the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors.

Generally, about 80 percent of homes sold each year are existing homes, making this sector of the industry a significant economic barometer.

Existing-home sales have a far-reaching impact that includes brokerage, property management, construction, home improvement, landscaping, banking and insurance services, and furniture and home appliance purchases. A recent study prepared for the National Association of Realtors found that sales of existing single-family homes contributed nearly $11,000 per transaction to the gross domestic product (the total value of all the nation's goods and services).

"Home sales are a major engine driving the nation's economy," said James N. Stamos, president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors. "Housing leads the economy out of recession, and helps sustain economic growth."

According to Stamos, the contribution of existing home sales can be divided into four groups: pre-move expenditures, transaction costs, moving costs and post-move expenditures.

•Pre-move expenditures include seller outlays to prepare the house for sale and raise to market value. These expenses consist of structural and cosmetic repairs on the house and yard, or to furniture or appliances. They may involve buying goods or services directly or contracting with home improvement service providers.

•Transaction costs are payments for services rendered in the process of transferring ownership of an existing home. They consist of real estate agent commissions, fees paid in connection with obtaining financing and other types of settlement costs.

•Moving costs include both the purchase of professional moving services and the out-of-pocket expenses incurred with do-it-yourself moving.

•Post-move expenditures include buyers' outlays to remodel and furnish their homes, as well as other expenses resulting from the home sale. Such expenditures may cover repairs on the home's structure or yard, electrical and plumbing work, or furniture and appliance purchases.

"There is much more to a home sale than simply moving out of one home and into another," said Stamos. "The ripple effect of housing turnover is tremendous."

The Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local board and associations of Realtors that comprise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Residents Must Apply For Pesticide Exclusion

All residents requesting to exclude their property from pesticide applications must file with the City Clerk by certified mail.

The filing must include the following information:

Name and address, telephone number, names of all abuttors and a list of program (s) from which exclusion is requested.

Those filing for exclusion must post their property at least every 50 feet with markings made known to those making the application.

In addition to Source Reduction Work (cleaning draining ditches, cutting brush which obstructs drainage and reconstruction of drainage structures), the Norfolk County Mosquito Control Project applies pesticides as follows:

•Larviciding (the treatment of mosquito larvae during aquatic development) by backpack, briquets and mist blowers from April to September.

•Adulticiding (the treatment of adult mosquitos) by fogging from trucks, from May to September.

Board Urged To Reconsider Dunkin Donuts License

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board has been asked to reconsider issuance of a license to a new Dunkin Donuts at 825 Southern Artery.

A petition with the signatures of about 100 local residents against the donut shop was presented to the board at its meeting Tuesday.

Neighbors blamed Quincy Point Congregational Church, owners of the site in which the donut shop is housed and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro for not giving them a "full disclosure" before the license vas issued three weeks ago to open the business

The donut shop is located at the site of the former South Shore Bank.

City Clerk Joseph Shea, the board chairman, told abutters at the meeting that a letter will be sent to City Solicitor Steve McGrath before any ruling is made.

All of the complaints from the neighbors were about traffic, noise and trash.

In addition to the petition, the board received a letter from state Rep. Ronald Mariano as to whether the site was a "suitable place" and asked the board to reconsider.

William LaRaia, who said he grew up in the Quincy Point neighborhood and still lives there, asked "When do we say no?" He said there are "too many Dunkin Donuts in the city," so many, he said, that Quincy is going to be known as the "Dunkin Donuts Capital."

LaRaia cited traffic accidents and accused DeCristofaro of not notifying the License Board about a day care center not 30 feet from the donut shop.

He called the plan "ill-conceived, ill-planned and not planned for public safety."

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia, brother of William, said the issuance of the license for another Dunkin Donuts "was a mistake".

LaRaia called the area a "popular spot for any other business with a low volume of traffic."

A neighbor, Frances Donaher said she was "mad at the church" and angry at DeCristofaro for not notifying her about the plan.

"My home is depreciated. Who would want to buy it?," said Donaher, who then offered it to the owners of Dunkin Donuts, asking them if they would buy it for a "parking space".

The Carvalho brothers, Victor and Octavio, owner of the Dunkin Donuts on Southern Artery sat while neighbors expressed their fears of generated traffic mostly because of children in the area and especially from the day care center.

Abutters kept asking the Carvalhos why they needed another Dunkin Donut shop 30 seconds away from the other one on the Artery.

Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey called it "marketing strategy."

Board members told abutters that their hands "were tied" until they hear from the city solicitor and another hearing is planned.

Atty. Robert Fleming, representing Dunkin Donuts, said the site is zoned for business, and that the board was properly notified. He said the 1,500-square-foot restaurant will be a "satellite" with no cooking on the premises. It would seat 14 persons and have one drive-up window, he added.

Fleming cited the Carvalhos' business record as being "good and solid" and said they have been in the area for 17 years.

Rev. Fred Atwood-Lyon, pastor of Quincy Point Congregational Church, said the church planned to address every safety question, and make every effort to "would work with the neighbors."

DeCristofaro said it was the first time in 14 years since he has held public office that anyone has ever found fault with any contact with the License Board.

Shea said, "It drives me crazy when people say they were not notified. This board "bends over backwards for people."

Of DeCristofaro, he added, "Ted does not need me to defend him. Ted comes to almost every single board meeting."

Shea promised the neighbors that if he hears from the city solicitor early enough, the matter will be taken up at next week's meeting.

Brick Project Planned For SQ WWII Veterans

The Quincy Granite Workers Memorial Statue Committee is planning a new project to be dedicated to World War II veterans from South Quincy.

The committee led the effort to install the Granite Workers Memorial Statue and related memorial bricks in Shea Park, West Quincy, last year.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the committee, said the new project will be the installation of about 300 similar commemorative bricks at the memorial at Liberty and Taber Sts. dedicated to World War II veterans of Ward 3. He noted that the memorial is located in South Quincy because that part of the city was formerly in that ward.

Fabrizio said the suggested price for the bricks-which will be dedicated to World War II veterans from South Quincy-will be $50, same as those at the West Quincy statue. He added that it is likely that the same company that installed the bricks for the earlier project will likely be used but said details of the new endeavor at sketchy at this point.

"It's just in the beginning stages right now," he said.

For more information, call Fabrizio at 471-2302, Alba Tocci at 472-2580 or Steve Cantelli at 472-1019.

Durkin Tells Lions Club His Goals As Councillor

Stephen J. Durkin, a candidate for Ward 5 councillor, recently addressed the Quincy Lion's Club at its weekly luncheon meeting.

"It has been my privilege for the past 12 years to serve the citizens of Quincy as a member of the School Committee. I am proud of our accomplishments in the school system, and I am confident that our schools are moving in a positive direction in many ways," Durkin said.

Stating it is time he pursued other challenges in public service, Durkin said, "As a city councillor, I will focus on controlling and alleviating traffic congestion, and on making sure that if the Shaw's Supermarket project goes forward, that Shaw's fulfills every condition of the special permit.

"In addition, I will concentrate my energies on improving traffic and pedestrian safety. In recent months we have seen far too many accidents, some tragic, involving pedestrians, and I believe that education of the public and beefed up enforcement of driving laws are the answer," Durkin said.

Durkin said many people in Quincy are overburdened by taxes and fees. "As a councillor, I will work to control property taxes and MWRA water and sewer rates.

Durkin cited his accomplishments on the School Committees and pointed to the reopening of the Beechwood Knoll Elementary School, the additions to Parker and Bernazzani, and the construction of the Early Childhood Center and the Quincy High School auditorium as "major positive developments for our schools."

Durkin said he also wants to word toward "revitalizing and re-energizing Quincy Center through the combined efforts of business and real estate interests, city government and area residents.

"I look upon holding public office as an honor and privilege, and it would be my honor and privilege to serve the residents of Ward 5 as their city councillor," he added.

QHS Athletic Groups Receive $2,000 From First Night Event

City Council President Michael Cheney has announced that $2,000 raised from a recent Quincy First Night fund-raiser has been distributed to athletic groups at Quincy High School.

Cheney, who serves as First Night chairman, said the money was raised at a carnival at Faxon Field last month. The funds will benefit the wrestling and girls softball teams at the high school, he added, and a donation was made to the Quincy High School Coaches Association to determine how to distribute the remainder of the funds.

Cheney said he is pleased to share the funds with the athletic groups and noted that part of the proceeds from a North Quincy carnival to be held later this year will benefit teams at North Quincy High School.

"First Night also made a donation to Quincy Youth Soccer and the Quincy Youth Baseball organizations from the proceeds of the recent carnival," he said.

He added that he is hopeful First Night Quincy will be able to provide similar support to the teams next year.

"It is extremely important to support the youth of city with positive programs in athletics and the arts," said Cheney. "We have a responsibility to provide each student with many choices of cultural and athletic opportunities."

First Night Quincy is lining up artists to perform at First Night 1996, he added, and is introducing a new program called Arts in the Parks that will feature non-alcoholic family entertainment at local parks during July and August.

Win Seventh Straight

Red Raiders Cruise Through Schedule

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

For the second time this season, the North Quincy boys' volleyball team has gone on a tear through the South Alliance. The latest winning streak has hit seven with a 2-0 (15-4, 15-13) win over Billerica on Monday.

The Red Raiders improved their overall record to 12-3. They were scheduled to take the court yesterday (Wednesday) at Chelmsford. The next home match is scheduled for Monday against Newton South at 4 p.m.

"Today was a typical Monday game," said head coach John Perkins about the Billerica match. "We haven't played since Thursday and they had the prom on Friday, so we tried to keep the ball on the court."

North was led again by the leadership of Ken Goon, James Rendle and Jacky Lei. Goon led the team with 14 points off serves and added five more blocks to his amazing season total which is now over 80. Leading the team in kills was Rendle with nine, followed by Lei with six. Samson Lee had eight points off blocks.

"We're a very balanced team this season," said Perkins. "This means that other teams cannot focus on just one blocker."

Before you could blink an eye, the Red Raiders got out to a quick 6-0 lead in game one. This outburst in points was made possible by the outstanding play of Lee, Rendle and Goon. Goon had two monster blocks during the run.

North's offense slowed down for a few moments, allowing Billerica to catch up with four points. NQ's experience and power took over at that point and they scored the next nine straight to take the game, 15-4.

Game two proved to be one of the Red Raiders' toughest of the year. Billerica started with a 3-0 lead before North answered with two points, thanks to more great blocking by Goon. After tying the score at 4-4, the Raiders gave up five straight points.

From there the game went back and forth until Billerica took a 13-9 lead after scoring four straight points. North, sparked by the strong serving off the bench of Eric Lee, scored the next six straight to take the game and the match.

For the remainder of the season, the Red Raiders will be preparing for the state tournament, which they qualified for for the second straight year following their win last Tuesday against Quincy.

They will try new plays and coach Perkins will clear his bench earlier to give many players as much varsity experience as possible. Players like Lee, Charles Yu and David Lee saw action against Billerica and will see more in their last five matches of the regular season. Seedings for the tournament will be announced on May 31.

In the tournament qualifier against Quincy, North was in complete control from beginning to end, taking both games, 15-6, 15-3.

Pacing the Raiders were Lei and Rendle with eight kills each, and Goon with 10 blocks. Another reason for the Raider dominance was the serving of Samson Lee, who had a total of 15 points thanks to his strong floating serve.

Charles Yu added five blocks.

"We beat them by dominating on serving, blocking and our hitting," said Perkins. "But I think the real big key to our win was cutting down on our errors." North committed just seven errors, as compared to the first meeting with the Presidents when they made 17.

North also defeated Brockton on Friday in two straight games, 15-12, 15-4. They were at the top of their blocking game, collecting a total of 26, led by Mike Johnston with seven and Goon with six.

The Boxer needed the win to qualify for the tournament.

PAL Road Race Raises $4,000

Ruben Martinez of Cumberland, RI, and Valerie Madden of Jamaica Plain were the top overall male and female runners in the 3.5-mile Quincy Police Athletic League Road Race held Sunday.

Over 300 runners from across the region helped raise $4,000 for the Quincy PAL program.

"I want to thank officer Bob Hanna for helping to put together the race," said race coordinator Bob Seamans. "I also want to recognize the support we received from local merchants. Without them he wouldn't have been successful. They were enthusiastic and provided many of the raffle prizes which we awarded at the end of the race. Their efforts will help the youth of this city through the Quincy PAL program."

Winners of the race were:

Martinez, Men 30-39, 18 minutes, 32 seconds.

Christopher Ballum, Quincy, Men 20-29, second overall, 19:33.

Con Doherty, Winthrop, Men 50-59, 20:07.

Mark Podzon, Bridgewater, Men 16-19, 20:34.

Bob Wallace, Braintree, Men 40-49, 20:41.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Anyone who has played hockey in or around Quincy during the last couple of decades knows the name Beverly Reinhardt.

For 19 years Reinhardt has been manager of the Quincy Youth Arena. But her influence goes well beyond the confines of her little corner of the hockey world. She has been a mentor to hundreds, if not thousands, of young people, not to mention the mother of four boys, each of whom grew up playing hockey at 'Mom's Rink.' She was the first women ever elected to the Board of Quincy Youth Hockey and in 1993 she was elected to the Quincy Hockey Hall of Fame.

Recently she was bestowed with a lofty honor as she was inducted into the Frank J. Zamboni Memorial Hall of Fame alongside Jack Kirrane, a former U.S. Olympic hockey player, and Walter Brown...yes, the Walter Brown. The one who ran the Boston Garden and the Boston Bruins, the one who founded the Boston Celtics in 1946 and the one for whom the Boston University arena is named.

Not bad company at all, and it certainly shows how important Reinhardt has been in Massachusetts hockey circles. In a book put out by the Zamboni Memorial Hall of Fame, they said this of Reinhardt: "As the standards in many of our institutions wavered over the last generation, Bev held fast with her own standards and made us all a little better for it. Hard working, fair, willing to share her knowledge with others, Bev has befriended hundreds within our skating world."

I can personally attest to the fact that Reinhardt gives her all to the youth of Quincy. I've been to the arena at all hours of the day, never without her being there. She runs a damn tight ship, makes every effort to insure that the city's young hockey players are properly recognized, has handled difficult situations with a great deal of professionalism and is there for me whenever anything is needed.

And I know she has been there for the thousands of kids who have laced 'em up at Quincy Youth Arena.

Macho hunks, free booze and trashy babes...

Will not be available, but that doesn't mean you can't enjoy yourself at the Las Vegas Night to support the Quincy American Legion baseball team of the Quincy Senior Baseball Association.

The benefit will be held at the Quincy Legion Hall, 3 Mechanic St., from 7-12 p.m. this Friday. All proceeds will directly benefit the young baseball players of Quincy.

The Las Vegas Night will feature roulette, black jack, money wheel, raffle and cash bar. The admission is $2.

Quincy Legion coach Wayne Chambers said that anyone who brings this article will be admitted for free.

For more information, call Chambers at 847-0062.

Longball laureate and bleacher-reacher creature Dave (Dinger) Reinhart, whose heavy stick last year helped lead the Morrisette American Legion baseball team to a third-place finish in the state tournament, has taken his considerable skills to Massasoit Community College.

The move has paid off for the Warriors. They currently boast the No. 1 ranking nationally among junior colleges and recently captured the Northeast Regional championship.

Today (Thursday) they were scheduled to travel to Millington, Tenn. for the national JuCo World Series.

Dave Dinger, only a freshman, starts in left field for the Warriors and bats fifth.

Also helping the Warriors to an impressive 34-7 record is pitcher Matt O'Toole of Quincy. O'Toole was also a star player for the Morrisette Legion ball club.

Reinhart's former teammate at Morrisette and on the NQHS baseball and football teams, Dan Duncan, recently completed his freshman year of baseball at Assumption College, where he put up some fantastic numbers as a pitcher.

Duncan posted the most strikeouts per innings pitched on the team, the lowest ERA and the most innings per appearance.

Duncan, who was a standout infielder last year for Morrisette, played every position but first base for the Hounds of the Northeast 10 Conference. And he did it all despite a torn ulner nerve in his pitching elbow. He first suffered the injury playing under Leo Donovan at North Quincy, and will undergo reconstructive surgery in June.

Quincy Wrestlers Honored At Banquet

By LOU VENTURELLI

The 1995 South Sectional champion Quincy High School wrestling team recently celebrated their 21st annual post-season banquet at the George W. Bryan Post.

A large crowd honored the team and its nine seniors: Mike Feeley, Gregg Santoro, John Richards, Matt Strauchon, Billy Mitchell, Pual Bohn, Matt Miller, Bryan Gallahue and Rich Bergeron.

Mitch Finnegan, director of Impact Quincy, delivered the keynote speech in which he stressed the importance of today's choices on tomorrow's outcomes. City Council President Michael Cheney surprised everyone with an announcement that $800 of First Night proceeds would be directed towards the QHS wrestling program.

Councillor-at-large Tim Cahill, a former Quincy High coach and wrestler, awarded Gallahue with the Michael Doherty Award for his hard work and dedication to the sport.

Head coach Lou Venturelli awarded Bergeron with the Wayne Deschamp Award for excellence on and off the mat. Bergeron recently accepted an appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy.

Assistant coach Larry Taglieri presented Feeley the Billy Marston Memorial Scholarship for outstanding effort.

Former coach and wrestler Robert Cabezas presented the Joseph Streadwick Memorial Scholarshop to Miller, who this season became the team's sixth state champion.

Distinguished guests included Quincy High principal Lloyd Hill, Athletic Director William Walker, Mrs. Carmen Mariano and North Quincy assistant coach Rich Ragusa, who was honored for his service to wrestling in the city of Quincy.

Bullets Capture Gold At Special Olympics

For the second time in three years, the Quincy/TILL Bullets basketball team captured the gold medal at the Massachusetts Special Olympics held in Worcester.

The Bullets knocked off the defending champions, the SNAARC Norwood Warriors, 40-39, in an exciting battle witnessed by over 500 people.

The Quincy/TILL Bullets are a group of highly-dedicated and enthusiastic special needs athletes associated with the Dedham-based agency, Towards Independent Living and Learning. They finished their championship season with a remarkable 22-3 record and went undefeated at home for the second year in a row.

The Bullets also won the state championship in 1993.

"Stability has been one of our greatest factors of success," said 11th-year held coach Billy Ketchen of Weymouth. "Over the years we have built relationships with the players and created an atmosphere of trust that a one- or two-year coach cannot experience.

"The players have been able to grow and develop because the coaches know their strengths and weaknesses and have been able to work with them year after year," he said.

Veteran players Mark Smith, Robbie O'Keefe and John Fabello of Quincy and rookies Stephen Kearns and Robert Fraser of Weymouth stood out for the champions during their gold-medal run.

At the team's awards banquet this past weekend, Smith was named Most Valuable Player. Fabello and O'Keefe were honored at the Most Improved Players, and Kearns and Fraser were named co-winners of the Rookie of the Year award.

On the Bullets second team, which went 7-8 this year, Don Keene was honored as Most Valuable Player.

Other award-winners were: Mike Capparotta, Rookie of the Year; Dan Picewick, Most Improved Player; and Britt Nelson, Most Dedicated Player.

MDA Benefit Golf Tourney Tuesday

The ERA Central annual golf tournament to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association will be held Tuesday, May 23 at the Ridder Country Club, Route 14, in Whitman.

Registration and continental breakfast begin at 7 a.m. and the shot gun start is at 7:45. There will be a hole-in-one grand prize and closest to the pin and longest drive awards.

The $75 tournament fee includes cart, green fees, prizes and awards dinner. Tee sponsorships are available for $100.

For information call Vin Moscardelli at 328-1312. All net proceeds will go to the MDA.

CHARLOTTE FRASER won a number of medals in the Quincy Senior Olympics, including a gold for the softball throw.

SET FOR IGNITION

Even though a car's ignition wires should last at least 50,000 miles, they can fail sooner. Failure of ignition wires at any time is likely to be accompanied by rough idle and engine misfiring, especially at high speeds. When these symptoms are experienced, diagnosis of failed ignition wires as their source can be made by an auto technician with the use of an automotive oscilloscope (or engine analyzer). In the event that an ignition wire were to fail completely to create an open circuit, voltage in the ignition system could lead to the failure of the ignition coition module. To avert these possibilities, defective ignition wires should be replaced immediately. Engine misfire due to failed ignition wires can also lead to ruination of the catalytic converter.

Hint: Replacement ignition wires must have the same resistance value as the original parts.

LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO should be your full service auto care center for most every system in your car. Whether you drive a late model car and need work done on your antilock brakes or ignition system, or need us to look at another system in your older car, our service technicians have the skills to handle it. In addition, we have ALL-DATA, all the latest updates, changes, and service information on a CD, new every 90 days. You'll find us located at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree, (843-1550). Hours. Brian Ferrara, Andrew Smith and Tim Russell played well for Quincy.

The Under 10 Boys Div. 1 club pasted Whitman, 6-1.

Mike Tormey paced the Quincy effort with two goals, while single tallies were recorded by Adam O'Hara, Matt Alleva, Brian O'Hanley and Sean Moriarty. Kevin Holleran booted two assists and Dennis Thomson made one. Also looking sharp were Matt Ramponi, Jason Fidalgo and Mike Quilty.

The Under 10 Boys 2A team topped Raynham, 2-1, as Dan Coughlin and Craig Keenan tallied for Quincy.

Coughlin and Pat Maxey each had an assist. Ryan McFarland and Matt Lavery had splendid outings.

The Under 10 Boys 3A squad blanked Sharon, 3-0, behind the two-goal effort of Mark Tobin.

Ryan Feldhoff netted the other Quincy goal. Handing out assists were Brian Martin, Brian Malone, Pat Casper and Feldhoff. The entire squad put forth a solid all-around effort.

The Under 10 Boys 3B doubled Bridgewater, 6-3.

Ryan Tobin single-footedly scored as much as the opposing team with a three-goal outing. Two goals were netted by Kyle (Stand Up) Carmody while Jake (Easy) Ryder posted one. Playing well were Jason Perch, Darren Burke and Justin Kusy.

St. John's Junior Farm

Farm Leaguers Shine As Season Begins

Greg Morton and Kevin Donovan combined for the shutout as the 7-Eleven Athletics roared past the Tigers, 2-0, in early-season in the St. John's Farm League.

Helping lead the Athletics to victory were Anthony Zagrodney, Glen Gibbons, Shawn Gibbons, Trevor Vallone, Brittney Tobin and Kaitlyn Pudder.

Morton joined with Chris Jacobs on opening day for another strong pitching combination for the Athletics as they battled to a 2-2 tie with Matarazzo Dentistry.

Matarazzo's Kyle Carmody, James Collins and Shawn McRae walked to load the bases but were unable to score.

The Athletics scored both their runs in the first, but in the fourth a two-run roundtripper by Matarazzo's Eddie Laura provided the tying runs.

The top Athletics were Matthew Boyle, Shawn Boyle, Kevin Donovan, Greg Kodgis, Dan Nutley and Steven Sullivan.

Three days later, Matarazzo Dentistry rebounded as they drilled Nation One Mortgage, 7-5.

Matarazzo overcame a 4-0 deficit with one run in the third and four runs in the fourth. Shawn McRae's triple knocked in James Collins for the run in the third. In the fourth, Mike GilMcPhee nailed a double and then came home when Chris Kirschner walloped a three-bagger. Laura's single plated the final two runs of the inning.

GilMcPhee's triple in the fifth knocked in two runs, including the game-winner.

Jeremy Craig led the attack for Nation One with a home run. Nation One's Michelle Murray, Kevin Larkin and Joshua Bezanson clubbed two hits each while Francis Orlando had a great day on the mound in the short effort.

Matarazzo also smoked Agnitti Insurance, 9-4.

Kyle Carmody batted in the game-winning run in the third with a single that plated Ryan Buckley. A triple by winning pitcher Eddie Laura scored two more men, icing the contest. RBIs were also recorded by John Irvine (two), Shawn McRae, Ian McRae and Carl Morris.

Matarazzo posted another win when it squeezed Sunshine Fruit, 8-1.

Chris Kirschner posted the win. He struck out the side in both the third and fourth innings. Matarazzo scored four runs in the second and four more in the fifth when Robby Gagliard pounded a grand slam.

Gagliard then recorded the win as Matarazzo buried Sweeney Funeral Services, 9-1.

A single by D.J. Andrews in the first inning knocked in Carol Morris for what proved to be the game-winning run. With the score 5-1 in the third, Chris Kirschner clubbed a bases-loaded roundtripper to put the game away.

DiBona Plumbing handed Matarazzo their first loss of the season, 5-2.

Kyle Carmody and Shawn McRae belted RBIs for Matarazzo.

DiBona battled to a 0-0 deadlock with Sweeney Funeral Services.

DiBona's Billy Jones, Anthony Calley, Mike Bandera and Matt Quigley recorded hits. Calley stepped to the mound in the final inning with two outs and the bases loaded and recorded a strikeout to end the game.

DiBona Plumbing was clogged up by Sunshine Fruit, 8-5.

DiBona's Jones nailed a home run in the short effort. Other hits were made by Andrew Loud, Bob McEvoy and Matt Quigley.

DiBona was also spilled by Reggie's Oil, 10-3.

Playing well were McEvoy with a triple which plated all three DiBona runs, Joe Connelly and Spencer Peterson.

Nation One had a tough go of it as they were juiced by Sunshine Fruit, 17-4.

Craig pounded out a three-bagger for Nation One. Orlando and Jimmy Callahan nailed doubles while Ryan Flynn, Kelly Powers and Chris Randall played well on defense.

The hard-luck Nation One club also fell to 7-Eleven, 7-3, and DiBona Plumbing, 6-2.

Robbie Getchell, John Orlando, Jonathon Brooks and Kerry Powers played well for Nation One in the losses.

The Cardinals posted an 11-8 decision over the Tigers.

The Tigers spotted the Cardinals a seemingly insurmountable 11-0 lead before making a valiant comeback effort.

Joe Priscella, Steve Priscella, Carter DuFrane, Michael Ignani and Dennis Conway sparked the comeback bid, but a great play on a hard hit ball by the Cardinals John Nardone saved the victory.

Lumaghini, McEvoy Have Big Days On The Mound

Golden Print pitcher Jason Lumaghini led his club to two wins with consecutive complete-game performances. With the win, Print improved to 3-0.

Lumaghini fanned six, and allowed two hits and two earned runs as Print erased Houghs Neck, 7-4.

Strongboy John Sullivan's three-run dinger gave Golden Print a comfortable six-run margin. Lumaghini aided his cause with three hits and an RBI. Jason Chagnon clubbed two hits and Chris Carthas played well behind the plate.

Lumaghini fanned five and went the distance as Golden Print inked an 11-5 decision over Sons of Italy.

Print's offense was led by John Barron's triple and two RBI. Brian Kalil nailed a two-bagger and recorded two RBI. John Fitzpatrick chipped in with a double an one RBI. Tony Staffier played excellent defense, combining with second baseman Barron in turning two double plays.

Mike McEvoy had the game of his life on the mound, as Barry's topped Bryan Post, 5-3.

McEvoy hurled a no-hitter, but was plagued by three errors in the final inning. He K'd eight and walked four. Dennis Palardi pounded three hits and three RBI.

Despite the miserable conditions of a cold, unspring-like day, McEvoy had his day in the sun.

Bryan Post cruised past Quincy Police, 9-4, behind the seven-K performance of hurler Michael Shaw.

Matt McCann earned the save with one inning of relief work.

Steve Wiltshire swung the dangerous stick, nailing four hits. Brian Gates and Shawn Manning had three hits apiece. Mark Kelly, Michael Sullivan and Matt Norton recorded two hits each. Catcher Manning, shortstop Gates and second baseman Matt Graham anchored the defense.

Also contributing to the win were Kevin Cellucci, Shawn Boostrom, Didier Alther, John Cooper and Bob Mahoney.

The Elks remained undefeated following a 12-4 win over Barry's Deli.

The Elks rallied from an early 3-0 deficit. Chris Bregoli spun a one-hitter, fanning eight in the process. A Mike McEvoy double in the third foiled his no-hit bid.

St. John's Little League

Big Bats Leave Mark On Early-Season Games

Chris Doherty posted the win with three innings of work as defending champion South Quincy Bocce Club rolled past Bolea Funeral Services, 16-1, in St. John's Little League action.

Doherty K'd five, allowed two walks and gave up three hits. Dave Centrella came on in relief and was stung for Bolea's only run but he did not give up a hit.

The top four of the Bocce Club batting order, Tom Callahan (1 for 1, two runs), Centrella (2 for 3, home run), Doherty (2 for 2, two doubles) and Matt Gardner (2 for 3, double, two runs), accounted for the bulk of the offensive damage.

A solid performance by outfielders Jason Bedore, Brian Keefe and Matt Frangipane kept the Bolea bats silent.

In their first outing of the season, the brawny sluggers on the Bocce Club had their way in an 18-8 win over the Hogan Family.

The Hogan Family were among the pre-season favorites but the loss to the defending champs proved a reality check.

Centrella went 3 for 3 with a double and scored three runs. First baseman Gardner belted the first dinger of the season, a two-run blast in the fourth inning. Joe Gibbons went 2 for 2 with a double and three RBI. Doherty and Callahan backboned the defense and Wayne Larsen picked up the W.

The Hogan Family was led by the stick of Jayme O'Neil, who had three RBI on two this. Tommy Belton and Michael McLaughlin had RBI singles while key hits were clubbed by Nicholas Coney and James Constas. James Paskell played excellent defense.

The Hogan Family scored in every inning on the way to a 19-8 win over Continental Cablevision.

Constas, Coney and Billy Page worked the mound for the winning club. McLaughlin and Coney belted four RBI apiece while Paskell hammered home three. Two hits each were stroked by Mike Boyle, Mike Chamness and John Fennessy. McLaughlin stood out on defense.

A.H. Campbell & Sons lit up the scoreboard with eight runs in the first as they unplugged Continental Cable, 12-6.

Providing the offensive fireworks of Campbell were Corey Fitzgerald (2 for 2, double, triple, BB, five RBI), Ryan Casey (2 for 3, two runs), Adam Culley (single, two BB, two runs) and Sarah Dufrane (two BB, two runs).

Casey posted the win as he fanned nine batters in just three innings of work.

Corey Fitzgerald was the winning pitcher as Campbell & Sons edged Presidents Pharmacy, 8-7.

Fitzgerald aided his own cause by accounting for half his team's offense with two runs and two RBI, courtesy of a double and a triple. Culley singled, walked and scored, then made a great play in the sixth inning to keep the tying run from scoring. Nick Transfaglia went 2 for 2, clubbed a double, stole three bases and scored two runs.

Campbell & Sons also hammered out a 9-7 win over Hogan Family.

Campbell's Billy Brooks went 2 for 2, scored a run and clubbed three RBI. He also saved several runs when he made a great play at second base for the final out after Hogan had loaded the bases.

Casey was the winning pitcher, hurling a no-hitter in three innings of work while fanning seven. At the plate he singled, walked and scored a run. Matt Connelly and Jonathon Stromberg each recorded a single, a walk, a run and an RBI.

A four-run fourth inning lifted Campbell & Sons to a come-from-behind 7-4 win over Bolea & Buonfiglio.

Hurler Dave McDonnel posted the win with eigh K's in three innings of work. He also pounded roundtripper. Swinging th big sticks were Casey (for 3, double, triple, RBI) Connelly (2 for 3, RBI and Mark Darois (double two RBI).

Campbell's Fitzgerald worked the hill for three innings of one-hit ball.

President's Pharmacy upped their record to 2-1 as they short-circuited Continental Cablevision, 11-4.

Key hitting by Gary Jacob Thomas and Dennis McNiff and strong pitching by John Lupo led to the win.

A wild first inning was the key as Presidents Pharmacy closed the lid on Bolea Funeral Services, 12-7.

Bolea scored seven runs in the first inning but Presidents stormed back with 11 in their half of the frame. They added one more run in the fourth.

Paul Krystyniels cracked his first longball of the year for Presidents Pharmacy.

Flavin & Flavin was outgunned by Quincy DARE, 18-16.

Flavin found its early 11-1 deficit too much to overcome. A three-run roundtripper by Adam Jurevice brought Flavin to within four, but they were unable to close the final gap. Playing well in the short effort were catcher Robby Tatem, third baseman Danny Rackauskas and right fielder Brian Eaton.

Flavin & Flavin lost another shootout, 13-10, to CNA Insurance.

Flavin got off to a strong start, taking a 4-0 lead on runs by Robert Rice, Adam Jurewich, Billy Bent and Justin Kusy. They were unable to hold the lead as CNA forged ahead with six runs in their half of the inning.

Jurewich was the top star for Flavin as he pounded four hits and played great defense in center field. Bent was strong at first.

Youth Softball League Underway

The newly-formed Quincy Youth Girls' Softball League began play this past weekend. The league features five teams in the Junior (ages 8-10) Division and six teams in the Senior (11-15) Division.

In Senior action, Everlasting Engraving carved out a 19-11 win over Steve Mansfield, CPA.

Lisa Maconochie was the winning pitcher and recorded five strikeouts. She was supported by a powerful lineup which produced runs in every inning. Heather Schatzl and Caitlin Nichol clubbed four singles each, while Colleen Nichol pounded out two three-baggers. Julie Keane cracked two doubles. Kate Fernald and Meghan Ginty posted two singles each. Nichole Ferris and Meredith Langille were strong in the field, with Langille making the game's outstanding defensive play.

Jackie Zoia and Lisa Walsh hit the ball well for the Mansfield club. Eric Johnson recorded three RBI. Kelley Linnane and Kylie Mansfield were the defensive stars. Lisa Walsh was tagged with the loss, but she struck out four batters and walked only three.

In other Senior Division games, the Wisialko Whi Kids whizzed past Quinc PAL, 15-9.

Network Plus rolle past Home & Auto Appl ance, 14-10.

In Junior Divisio games, Quincy DAR tempted Club Chretie 10-7.

McEvoy Security locked up with Keohane's, 8-8

A Thought For The Week

Someone once said that "Anything is possible, if you set your mind to it . . . Remember this 'ole world of ours' is full of wonderful experiences . . . So don't keep your dream locked away for 'someday' because that 'someday' is now before you."

This saying reminds us of one such dreamer. His 'dreams' made this 'ole world of ours' a happier and more fun place to be . . .

Throughout his life he was an avid dreamer . . .

As a young man, he applied for a job as a cartoonist for the Kansas City newspaper. He was rejected . . . He applied at other places and was rejected everytime . . .

Finally, he got a job drawing publicity material for churches. Did he have a studio? . . . No he did not . . . His 'studio' was a mice-infested garage!

Thirty years later, though, he and one of his mice became world famous! His name? . . . Walt Disney.

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can." - F.W. Woolworth

Carl H. Scrivener, 81

Patriot Ledger Promotion Manager

A private burial service for Carl H. Scrivener, 81, of Brewster, formerly of Quincy and Braintree, was held Tuesday in Pine Grove Cemetery.

Mr. Scrivener died recently at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis after being ill for several months.

A retired Patriot Ledger promotion manager and editor, he worked at the newspaper for 40 years before retiring in 1975.

He joined the newspaper as a sports reporter in 1935 after attending Boston University. Shortly after he arrived, he was moved to the general news staff and covered the police and courts on the South Shore.

Mr. Scrivener also held various positions on the newspaper's copy desk, where he edited stories and designed pages.

For the last nine years of his career, he was the newspaper's promotion manager. He carried out community relations projects with local schools and businesses.

His work with schools was recognized by Randolph High School's Quill and Scroll Society, an international journalism group, which named its chapter in his honor.

In 1970, he was elected president of the Eastern Regional Conference of the International Newspaper Promotion Association.

During the 1980s, he did seasonal publicity work for Bay State Raceway, a harness track in Foxboro. During that period, he served as president of the New England Harness Writers Association.

After his retirement, he moved to Brewster, where he was a member of the Democratic Town Committee and served on the board of directors and as an adviser to the Friends of Brewster Elders. He was also a member of the Unitarian Men's Club and for several years acted as a tour guide at the Brewster Fire Museum during the summer season.

Mr. Scrivener was born in the Ballardvale section of Stoneham. As a child, he moved to Braintree where he graduated from Braintree High School. He also lived in Quincy before moving to Brewster in 1975.

He is survived by his wife, Christopher (Fuller) Scrivener; a son, Carl D. Scrivener of Washington, Conn.; two daughters, Carol Ann Chapman of Duxbury and Gwendolyn Gillen of Hustisford, Wis.; 10 grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

A memorial service will be held Saturday, July 15 at 11 a.m. in the Unitarian Church in Brewster.

Funeral arrangements were by the Nickerson Funeral Home, Orleans.

Donations may be made to Friends of Brewster Elders, P.O. Box 683, Brewster, MA 02631.

Wilfred Trotman, 82

Field Engineer For Many Years

A funeral service for Wilfred "Bud" Trotman, 82, of Quincy, was held May 13 in Quincy Point Congregational Church.

Mr. Trotman died May 10 at Quincy Hospital of a heart attack.

A former field engineer for Factory Mutual Insurance, he worked many years for the company in Massachusetts, South Carolina, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Florida and New York. His work included inspecting equipment, such as boilers and machinery in factories, buildings and mines.

After retiring, he worked at the 1000 Southern Artery housing for the elderly for eight years as building supervisor.

Mr. Trotman also did volunteer work there and completed many projects in the woodworking shop for Christmas fairs.

Born in Quincy, he graduated from Quincy High School.

As a young man, he was an apprentice electrician for Bethlehem Steel at the Fore River shipyard.

He was a member of Rural Masonic Lodge and the Penn Hills Senior Citizens.

He is survived by his wife of more than 60 years, Muriel M. (Blackmore) Trotman; three sons, Wilfred D. Trotman of Dover, Del., Robert Trotman of Maryland and William A. Trotman of Hampton, N.H.; seven grandchildren, and five great-grandchildren.

Burial was in Pine Hill Cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were by the Hamel, Wickens and Troupe Funeral Home, 26 Adams St.

Donations may be made to Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St., Quincy, MA 02169.

Council Considers Proposal To Raise Fees

The City Council is considering a plan to raise fees for city services.

The council's Ordinance Committee reviewed the proposal by Mayor James Sheets Monday night. The plan calls for increases in services performed by the city, including its fire, building, health, and gas/plumbing departments.

Some of the proposed increases are minimal, while others are not. For instance, installation of a furnace or boiler would increase from the current $12 to $15, while builders' licenses would jump from $25 to $100.

Michael McFarland, executive secretary to the mayor, told the council that the fees have not been raised in many years. The new fees were proposed by the respective department heads, he noted, and are comparable to what other communities are charging.

"Some of the (old) fees were less than the cost of services," said McFarland. "They have now been brought up to what we think is fair."

Officials said the proposed fees would probably net an additional $300,000 annually for the city. McFarland added that the Quincy License Board is also considering increases in fees it charges--including those for liquor and Common Victualer licenses--in conjunction with the proposed city hikes.

McFarland also noted that when Sheets devised his proposed budget for the new fiscal year beginning July 1, he anticipated the council's support on the proposed rates.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, chairman of the Ordinance Committee, said the proposed increases are "not drastic." However, Councillor-at-Large Timothy Cahill said he is uncomfortable with the thought of raising fees during a year when the council also plans to raise residents' property taxes.

"I don't think this is the right time to do it," said Cahill. "I think it's a bit of an overkill."

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro agreed with Cahill, but Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said the overall proposal is a fair one.

"Most of these (increases) don't seem unreasonable," said Phelan.

Councillor-at-Large Joseph LaRaia said he also "had a concern over the increases," but said if the fees are comparable to other communities', then they are probably fair.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio suggested that McFarland submit a report comparing the proposed fees to those in other local cities and towns, and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien asked that he submit a more detailed report providing justification for the increases.

The council agreed to keep the matter in committee.

started the fires. The motive is also unknown. The matter is being investigated by the city's arson team, the State Fire Marshal's Office, and the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms.

The federal group is involved because the Custom House project is being financed by loans from the federal Small Business Administration.

Paul Flaherty of Wollaston and Susan Manning of South Boston were refurbishing the long-vacant building and planned to reopen it this month as The Custom House, a 212-seat restaurant. They hope to rebuild and open the restaurant in the fall.

The federal group is involved in the investigation because the Custom House project is being financed by loans from the federal Small Business Administration.

Plans for the new restaurant of the Dutton's site--previously the location of the landmark Fox and Hounds restaurant--has received widespread support from the neighborhood.

Anyone with information about the fires can call the toll-free Arson Watch number at 1-800-682-9229. Callers' identities will be kept confidential.

Adult, Pediatric CPR Course At Hospital

Quincy Hospital will offer a course concerning both adult and pediatric CPR Tuesday, May 30 and June 6 from 6 to 10 p.m.

The course will be led by trained instructors and offer Level B Certification through the American Heart Association. Participants will learn techniques to rescue a victim of cardiac arrest and to dislodge an airway obstruction. They will also learn about cardiac risk factors and ways to reduce the risk of heart disease. CPR will be both demonstrated and practiced.

Cost is $40. Class size is limited and advance registration and payment are required. To register, call 376-4018.

Kerasiotes Chamber Of Commerce Speaker

State Transportation Secretary James Kerasiotes will be the guest speaker at the 7:44 Breakfast of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce today (Thursday) at 7:44 a.m. at Lantana in Randolph.

The breakfast will be followed by a series of transportation seminars from 9 a.m. to noon. Topics will include the Old Colony Rail Restoration Project, Central Artery/Third Harbor Tunnel Project, high occupancy vehicle lanes, and others.

License Board Briefs

The Quincy License Board took the following action at Tuesday's meeting.

•Granted a permit to At. Ann's School, 1 St. Ann Rd., to hold their Spring Festival May 20 from 10 a.m . to 4 p.m.

•Granted a request from Nicole's Steak & Seafood, 723 Washington St. to serve Bloody Mary's and Mimosas with brunch starting at 11 a.m. on Sundays.

•Granted a request from the Quincy Lodge of Elks, 254-256 Quarry St. for a change of managers from Jerome P. Hourin who has retired to Stanley J. Rakoski.

•Granted a license to Walsh's Restaurant, 7-9 Billings Rd. for the addition of 2 pinball machines.

•Continued for one week a request from Saigon Panda, 49 Billings Rd. for a common victualer license. Atty. George Burke representing the owner said the restaurant will feature Vietnamese and Asian foods. The site is the former Mr. Carpet.

Chairman Joseph Shea said he had spoken to Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers over the phone and said Ayers had "positive feelings" about the restaurant, but that Ayers wanted to meet with traffic engineer Jack Gillon before making a definite decision.

•Granted a request from Serendipity Cafe, 2 Hancock St. (Neponset Flea Market) for a full common victualer license. Will Lewis, owner, was serving food on a limited capacity until all building and fire equipment rules were met.

•Granted a request from Clouds, 152 Parkingway for a common victualer license, a cabaret license, pool table license and pinball license. Owners are Joyce E. Hunt and Carol Leman. The site is the former Grant's building.

•Postponed until an uncertain time a request from Funtastic Family Center, 30-34 Copeland St. for a common victualer and amusement license. Shea said owner Robert Westland owns the building and lives in the neighborhood.

Police Chief Francis Mullen voiced concerns over whether or not Keno would be played in the center.

Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio said he wanted to meet with Westland to view the plans and then to speak to the neighbors. Westland said he hoped to sell ice cream, candy and mostly packaged goods.

•The board heard complaints on the operation of a lodging house on 191 Burgin Pkwy., and the fact that he house is being run without a sprinkler system.

Leo Martin Jr., who only assumed ownership two weeks ago said he would house only five people until a sprinkler system is installed. At that time, Fire Chief Thomas Gorman said he can apply to house up to 14 persons in the rooming house.

•The board denied a request from Brannigan's, 226 Water St., for a change of managers from Edward J. Mahoney to Daniel Lynch.

Mullen said the request was a "business deal" and should go to superior court as both owners are arguing amongst themselves.

Board members called it an "internal struggle" between the owners and one which should not be heard at the license board.

Shea said he hoped the owners could get togethner and "square away" the problems.

AIDS Healing Service At St. Chrysostom's

An Interfaith AIDS Healing Service will be conducted Wednesday, May 24 at 7:30 p.m. at St. Chrysostom's Church, 1 Linden St., Wollaston.

Persons affected by HIV/AIDS, their families, caregivers and those who are concerned about HIV/AIDS are invited and encouraged to attend.

Guest speaker will be John Ray, music director at Quincy Community United Methodist Church in Wollaston, who also works for the Massachusetts Bible Society in Boston. The service will include prayer with the laying on of hands for those desiring it. Charles O'Leary will provide sign language for the hearing impaired.

The service of worship, including the laying on of hands, will be led by clergy and laity of churches in Quincy and representatives of area human service agencies. Refreshments will be provided by the host church and fellowship will follow the service.

For more information, call 472-0737.

United First Parish

A number of special animals will be guests of the Church School Sunday at 10:30 a.m. at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Bonnie Main, founder of "Creeping Crawling Co.," will introduce to the children some of her animals--a legless lizard, a python with calcium deposit lumps, and a formerly abused dwarf macaw--and talk about her philosophy that "everybody deserves to be loved."

New members will be recognized during a special ceremony at the 10:30 a.m. worship service. Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will preach on "Living Our Chosen Faith."

The Annual Meeting of the congregation will be held at noon following the service.

Fr. Daniel Graham To Celebrate 25th Anniversary Of Ordination

Fr. Daniel Graham, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church in Quincy Point, will celebrate the 25th anniversary of his ordination Sunday.

Fr. Graham will celebrate the 10 a.m. Mass at which Fr. Daniel Riley will be the homilist. Representatives of parish organizations will participate in the Liturgy. All parishioners are invited.

Coffee and refreshments will be served after the 8:30, 10 and 11:30 a.m. Masses.

Continental Cable Advertising Donates $700 To Fr. Bill's Place

Continental Cable Advertising of Braintree recently presented a check for $700 to Father Bill's Place, Quincy's homeless shelter.

Continental Production Manager Anita Armstrong and Sales Manager Robin Ferrini presented the check to Joseph Finn, executive director of the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (QISC) which operates the shelter.

Continental Cable Advertising has chosen Father Bill's Place as its local charity for 1995. It has also produced a public service announcement that will air this month on the Continental Cable network.

The 30-second spot, entitled "Father Bill's Place, When There Is No Place Else To Go," focuses on a formerly homeless person who successfully moved beyond the shelter several years ago. Continental Cable Advertising produced two separate versions of the spot, and both highlight the necessity of shelter and services for people who become homeless in a time of crisis.

"We are grateful for this donation," said Finn. "The television spot alone is a significant in-kind donation."

The spot is a first for QISC, which depends on private donations for nearly 30 percent of its entire budget. The public service announcement will highlight the services QISC provides to the community.
